American Tob. Co.	Feb. 18, 1908	1878	67,775	Chewing & Smoking Tobacco	Tobacco Products.
DuWane Norris	Jan. 1, 1907	1897	59,230	Chewing gum	47
Oakford & Fahnestock	Aug. 26, 1913	1891	93,246	Certain named foods	46
Thomas J. Knodie Co.	Feb. 10, 1920	1911	129,294	Hams, Bacon & Lard	46
D. Nicholson	Sept. 9, 1884	1867	11,470	Coffee	Groceries
J. Wassmer	Sept. 7, 1866	1884	13,648	Lager beer	Beverages
David W. Lewis	Aug. 8, 1899	1899	33,321	Butter	Dairy Products.
German American Provision Co.	Apr. 3, 1900	1900	34,410	Canned meats and lard	Canned foods.
Paragon Malt Extract Co.	Mar. 5, 1907	1906	61,117	Malt extracts	51
Blue Ribbon Mining Milling & Investment Co.	May 14, 1907	1902	62,518	Ginger ale & root beer	45
Regina Flour Mill Co.	Dec. 31, 1907	1873	66,788	Wheat Flour	44
Greever-Lotspeech Mfg. Co.	May 5, 1903	1899	40,273	Flavoring extracts	Flavoring Extracts.
George E. Bond	Oct. 31, 1905	1902	47,175	Eggs	Foods
Knickerbocker Chocolate Co.	Feb. 13, 1906	1893	49,714	Chocolate & cocoa	Foods
F. B. Chamberlain Co.	May 24, 1910	1897	78,038	Rolled oats	46
Yakima County Horticultural Union	July 4, 1911	1908	82,547	Fresh apples	46
Fresno Home Packing Co.	May 7, 1912	1895	86,397	Dried fruits and raisins	46
Somers & Co.	Apr. 1, 1913	1911	90,932	Stock food	46
Richard Hellman	May 5, 1914	1912	96,884	Mayonnaise dressing	46

Registrant	Date of Registration	Date of Adoption	No.	Subject	Patent Office Class
Standard Milling Co.	Oct. 26, 1915	1911	106,694	Rice	46
Wabash Chemical & Baking Powder Co.	Oct. 17, 1916	1915	113,463	Desert powder	46
Leon Renaker	Feb. 6, 1917	1911	115,390	Turkeys	46
Blue Ribbon Candy Co.	May 24, 1921	1875	142,936	Candy	46
Proctor & Gamble	Feb. 18, 1890	1890	17,553	Soap	Soap
Oakley Soap & Perfumery Co.	Feb. 12, 1895	1894	26,027	Perfumery	Toilet Articles
Hazard Powder Co.	June 4, 1895	1895	26,654	Powder	Explosives
William H. Fosmer	June 30, 1896	1896	28,480	Milk & Cream	Dairy products.
Daniel Oppenheimer & Anton Oppenheimer	Nov. 8, 1898	1894	32,120	Hats	Headwear
Rosemary Mfg. Co.	May 22, 1906	1903	52,962	Cotton Damask	Dry-goods.
Buegeleisen & Jacobson	Feb. 5, 1907	1901	60,406	Violin strings	65
Wiebusch & Hilder, Ltd.	Apr. 16, 1907	1901	62,082	Grass hooks	20
Charles Plunkett	Nov. 17, 1908	1906	71,341	Brooms	29
Durant-Dart Carriage Co.	Dec. 15, 1908	1894	71,805	Certain vehicle	19
Alabama Chem. Co.	Dec. 22, 1908	1903	71,973	Guano	10
Edw. K. Graham	Jan. 5, 1909	1908	72,181	Hosiery & underwear	39
National Enameling & Stamping Co.	Feb. 2, 1909	1907	72,559	Enameled sheet metal wear	13
International Metal Polish Co.	Feb. 16, 1909	1905	72,754	Metal polish	4
Geo. D. Snyder	Apr. 20, 1909	1904	73,481	Talcom Powder	6
Oakford & Fahnestock	July 20, 1909	1891	74,569	Chemical Preparations	6
Wood, Stubbs & Co.	Aug. 4, 1903	1903	40,866	Certain seeds	Agricultural products
Joseph Cogan	Aug. 1, 1905	1899	44,974	Dog collars	Dog trappings.
Southern Spring Bed Co.	Sept. 12, 1905	1903	46,204	Beds	Furniture
Rubber & Celluloid Harness Trimming Co.	Jan. 23, 1906	1902	49,131	Lather Brushes	Brushes
Peerless Rubber Mfg. Co.	Dec. 28, 1909	1891	76,258	Rubber hose	35
Keystone Steel & Wire Co.	Feb. 15, 1910	1909	76,791	Barbed wire	13
Edwin D. Hooey	Aug. 29, 1911	1910	83,252	Song birds	1
Chas. S. Moore	Jan. 28, 1913	1912	90,036	Milk pails	2
Geo. Borgfeldt & Co.	Oct. 21, 1913	1913	92,813	Hair nets	42
Paul H. Gesswein Co.	Dec. 2, 1913	1913	94,369	Jewelers saws	23
L. Hemmerdinger Co.	Apr. 28, 1914	1913	96,674	Gold paints	16
Gilbert Toilet Co.	May 19, 1914	1913	97,135	Head lotion & hair tonic	6
Buckley-Newhall Co.	Oct. 19, 1915	1910	106,206	Sewing machines	23
do	Oct. 19, 1915	1910	106,207	Baby carriages	19
do	Oct. 19, 1915	1910	106,210	Phonographs	36
do	Oct. 19, 1915	1910	106,211	Refrigerators	31
do	Nov. 9, 1915	1910	106,937	Gas Lamps	34
do	Nov. 9, 1915	1910	106,938	Electric stoves	21
do	Dec. 7, 1915	1910	107,487	Household furniture	32
do	Dec. 7, 1915	1910	107,488	Clothes wringers	24
do	Dec. 26, 1916	1910	114,622	Oil-cloths	20
do	Dec. 26, 1916	1910	114,624	Knitted Goods	42
do	Jan. 23, 1917	1910	115,065	Rain coats	39
Russel Playing Card Co.	Aug. 28, 1917	1907	118,332	Playing cards	22
Diamond Match Co.	Aug. 21, 1923	1905	171,989	Matches	9
Blue Ribbon Knitting Mills, Inc.	Oct. 2, 1923	1922	173,914	Bathing suits	39
Miller Rubber Co.	Mar. 7, 1922	1921	152,885	Water Bottles	44
Whitman Elect. Mfg. Co.	July 12, 1921	1919	144,650	Plug fuses	21
D. P. Harris Hdware & Mfg. Co., Inc.	Aug. 16, 1921	1919	145,687	Bicycles	19
New England Spun Silk, Corp.	Oct. 17, 1922	1921	160,252	Silk yarns	43
Electric Milker Corp.	Feb. 6, 1923	1921	163,915	Milking machine	23
Electrical Heating Appliance Co.	Mar. 6, 1923	1922	165,178	Waffle irons, etc.	21
George Alonzo Brown	Nov. 30, 1920	1919	137,565	Hen's nests	50
John L. Lansaman	Jul. 11, 1916	1915	111,429	Hog Cholera cure	6

CLIPPER.

Registrant	Date of Registration	Date of Adoption	No.	Subject	Patent Office Class
Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.	Apr. 20, 1897	1875	29,869	Plug Tobacco	Tobacco
do	Jan. 10, 1922	1897	150,881	Smoking & Chewing tobacco	17
Mrs. B. F. Lilley, Jr.	Aug. 24, 1920	1920	134,291	Candies	46
Wm. Numson & Sons.	Nov. 23, 1897	1878	30,887	Oysters, meats, fruits, vegetables, jellies and soups.	Canned and preserved goods.
Lyon & Greenleaf	Jun 25, 1907	1889	63,530	Wheat flour.	44
Merchants Coffee Co. of New Orleans, Ltd.	Feb. 11, 1913	1901	90,228	Coffee compound	46
J. B. Williams & Co.	Feb. 21, 1882	1876	9,131	Shaving soap	Soaps.
W. Ayres & Sons.	Aug. 20, 1889	1887	16,938	Horse nets	Horse clothing.
Grand Rapids Cycle Co.	Mar. 31, 1896	1889	28,051	Bicycles	Vehicles.
Albert T. Ferrell	Apr. 30, 1901	1879	36,353	Certain machinery	Machinery.
Wm. S. Cooper Brass Works.	Mar. 25, 1902	1890	37,995	Valves and spigots.	Miscellaneous.
Singer, Nemick Co.,	Dec. 26, 1905	1888	48,334	Steel	Metals.
Miller Lock Co.	Sep. 11, 1906	1903	56,305	Locks & Keys	25
Robin Hood Ammunition Co.	Jan. 19, 1909	1908	72,388	Shot Gun Shells	9
Flexible Belt Facing Co.	Mar. 2, 1909	1906	72,924	Belt hooks	23
Hartman Pharmacy	Oct. 26, 1909	1897	75,603	Remedy for corns	6
American Pin Co.	Apr. 11, 1911	1902	81,425	Safety pins	40
Diamond Rubber Co.	Jan. 14, 1913	1898	89,829	Rubber tubing	35
Henry Disston & Sons.	Feb. 3, 1914	1870	95,075	Saws	23
American Mfg. Co.	Jan. 16, 1917	1916	114,920	Oakum	1
do	Feb. 6, 1917	1916	115,269	Rope and cord	7
Mount Vernon-Woodberry Mills, Inc.	May 1, 1917	1917	116,443	Cotton duck	42
J. C. Blair Co.	Oct. 8, 1918	1918	123,014	Paper & Stationery.	37
Dunlap America, Ltd.	May 24, 1921	1920	143,989	Golf balls	22
Clipper Lawn Mower Co.	Dec. 13, 1921	1898	149,569	Lawn mowers	23
Watkins Cottrell Co	Sep. 10, 1901	1901	37,035	Knives & Razors	Cutlery

HORSE SHOE.

American Snuff Co.	July 3, 1900	1900	34,842	Snuff	Tobacco
Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co.	Sept. 29, 1914	1914	100,068	Chewing gum	46
Freeman & Shaw	July 11, 1882	1882	9,537	Canned goods	Canned goods
Habricht, Braun Co.	Nov. 9, 1915	1915	107,065	Dried fruits and Veg.	46
Wisconsin Condensed Milk Co.	Nov. 9, 1915	1914	107,132	Condensed milk	46
A. L. Bauman	Aug. 8, 1882	1882	9,588	Crackers	Breadstuffs
Angelo Fazzio	Apr. 23, 1907	1902	62,170	Pickles-mustard, etc.	50
Thomas Armstrong	July 19, 1892	1892	21,470	Washing powder	Washing powder
Felix H. Hunicke	Nov. 24, 1896	1896	29,190	Gloves,	Gloves
Meirecke & Co.	Mar. 5, 1901	1900	35,991	Cushions	Sick Room supplies
E. J. Brooks & Co.	Nov. 14, 1905	1897	47,674	Car seals	Seals
Abbot Augustus Low	Nov. 19, 1907	1907	66,332	Branding irons	21
Amer. Agricultural Chem. Co.	Sep. 23, 1913	1875	93,514	Fertilizers	10
Sangnoit Toilet Paper Co. Inc.	Oct. 21, 1913	1913	93,919	Toilet paper	37
Rennous, Kleinle & Co.	June 6, 1916	1887	110,608	Brushes and tools	29
Racine Auto Tire Co.	Jan. 30, 1917	1910	115,225	Inner tubes	35
do	July 22, 1919	1919	126,063	Rubber heels	39
Emil Goodwirth	Sep. 14, 1920	1919	134,662	Writing ink	11
Kansas City Smelting Co.	Nov. 8, 1921	1921	148,103	Babbitt metal	14
Altoona Overall factory.	Apr. 26, 1921	1914	141,470	Overalls	39
Alsing & Co., Ltd.	Apr. 14, 1894	1887	25,120	Matches	Matches
Dr. Decker Medicine Co.	July 29, 1884	1880	11,363	Certain medicines	Medicines
C. A. Griswold	Apr. 12, 1887	1886	14,274	Corsets	Apparel
Vacheron & Constantine	Oct. 14, 1884	1883	11,578	Watches	Time-keepers

KING PIN.

Registrant	Date of Registration	Date of Adoption	No.	Subject	Patent Office Class
Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.	July 27, 1920	1919	133,454	Smoking and chewing tobacco and cigarettes.	17
Columbia Salmon Co.	Oct. 3, 1916	1916	113,697	Canned Salmon	46
Manser Mill Co.	June 19, 1917	1916	117,180	Wheat flour	46
Siegfried Ellbogen	Apr. 29, 1913	1912	91,329	Coats, vests and trousers	39
Sinclair Mfg. Co.	Sep. 14, 1920	1915	134,805	Powdered lye	6
U. S. Rubber Co.	May 24, 1921	1920	143,202	Rubber boots and shoes	39

LIBERTY BOND.

Chas. P. Stanley Cigar Co.	Nov. 13, 1917	1917	119,396	Cigars, cigarettes and smoking and chewing tobacco	17
John J. Dalton	Nov. 13, 1917	1917	119,275	Chewing gum and mints	46
Winter Park Citrus-Growers Asso.	June 18, 1918	1917	122,050	Fresh citrus fruits	46

LIBERTY BELL.

Rucker & Witten Tobacco Co.	July 31, 1900	1893	34,983	Chewing tobacco	17
Pacific Coast Syrup Co.	June 7, 1921	1920	143,704	Cane and Maple syrup	46
Pillsbury Flour Mills Co.	May 31, 1921	1885	143,430	Wheat flour	46
Smith & Nessle Co.	Jan. 21, 1919	1918	124,207	Canned sardines	46
George B. Foley	Oct. 30, 1894	1887	23,415	Medals	Medals
Beatrice E. Linquist	Jan. 10, 1922	1919	150,886	Phonographs	36
Ferry & Napier	May 2, 1899	1895	32,783	Hats	Wearing apparel
Assy Shahien & Co.	Aug. 1, 1905	1903	44,934	Razors	Cutlery
Arneth & Minton Mfg. Co.	Mar. 29, 1921	1919	140,736	Salve	6
Frank E. Morse Co. Ltd.	June 4, 1895	1895	26,653	Portland Cement	Cement
Frederick S. Gwyer	Feb. 18, 1896	1895	27,829	Nails and Tacks	Hardware
Chas. Heinrich	Nov. 29, 1904	1901	43,782	Saddle polish	Polishing Compounds
Ganss-Langenberg Hat Co.	Oct. 17, 1905	1892	46,914	Hats	Wearing apparel
Alabama Chemical Co.	Dec. 22, 1908	1903	71,952	Guano	10
McAdoo & Allen	Oct. 19, 1915	1915	106,462	Leather Welting	39
Estate of Geo. Pabst, Dec'd	May 1, 1917	1895	116,446	Window shades	42
Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co.	June 5, 1917	1915	116,921	Hosiery	39

LIBERTY.

American Tobacco Co.	May 17, 1921	1891	142,428	Smoking and chewing tobacco	17
Eckhart & Swan	June 23, 1891	1885	19,748	Flour	Flour
Duty S. Thompson	May 2, 1893	1892	22,914	Baking powder	Leavening preparation
B. S. Janney, Jr. Co.	May 23, 1893	1893	23,082	Syrup & Molasses	Sugar products
James Butler	May 16, 1899	1892	32,883	Condensed Milk	Food
Alvah L. Reynolds	Dec. 26, 1899	1899	33,938	Cheese	Dairy products
James Butler	June 5, 1900	1900	34,739	Tomato catsup	Food
Hancock & Co.	Oct. 7, 1902	1901	38,996	Dried fruits	Evaporated fruits
Colonial Salt Co.	Nov. 21, 1905	1901	47,770	Salt	Salt
Rheinstrom, Beltman, Johnson & Co.	Dec. 18, 1906	1905	58,662	Preserved fruits	50
Henry Maillard	Jan. 28, 1913	1884	90,032	Chocolate	46
F. G. Vogt & Sons, Inc.	Mar. 3, 1914	1912	95,723	Lard, ham, Bacon	46
Triumph Mills	Jan. 19, 1915	1889	101,989	Coffee	46
T. E. Wareheim & Bro.	Jan. 26, 1915	1907	102,227	Butter	46
Hollock-Denton Co.	Oct. 31, 1916	1899	113,728	Flavoring extracts	46
G. H. Wetteran & Sons Grocer Co.	Apr. 16, 1918	1899	121,229	Canned meats & vegetables	46

Registrant	Date of Registration	Date of Adoption	No.	Subject	Patent Office Class
John L. Kellogg	Sep. 10, 1918	1918	122,713	Toasted Corn flakes	46
Richardson Corp.	Dec. 31, 1918	1918	124,045	Soft drinks	45
Apalachee Packing Co.	Jan. 21, 1919	1917	124,186	Canned oysters	46
S. H. Grinstead Co. Inc.	Mar. 18, 1919	1918	124,845	Dressed poultry	46
James R. McCleskey	Apr. 29, 1919	1917	124,276	Cake	46
P. W. Coppersmith Co.	May 13, 1919	1918	125,330	Fresh tomatoes	46
Waukesha Pure Food Co.	June 3, 1919	1918	125,693	Jelly powders	46
Pioneer Fruit Co.	Sep. 30, 1919	1917	126,750	Fresh fruits	46
Liberty Baking Co.	Apr. 19, 1921	1914	141,404	Bread	46
Liberty Maccheroni Mfg. Co.	Aug. 2, 1921	1905	145,400	Macaroni	46
Fred Hollander & Co.	Sep. 19, 1905	1878	46,456	Beer	Malt liquors
C. Gardner	Feb. 2, 1892	1890	20,664	Remedy for heart disease	Medicine
The Liberty Cycle Co.	Oct. 8, 1895	1893	27,146	Bicycles	Vehicles
Weingarten Bros.	Nov. 10, 1896	1896	29,125	Corsets	Wearing app.
Piebes & Co.	Aug. 4, 1903	1903	40,850	Children's headgear	Wearing app.
Standard Wall Paper Co.	Aug. 25, 1903	1899	41,005	Wall paper	Paper
Josiah T. Hair	Dec. 22, 1903	1898	41,728	Fire extinguisher	Chemicals
Davis Sewing Machine Co.	Apr. 26, 1904	1898	42,504	Sewing machines	Sewing Machines
Liberty Silk Co.	May 1, 1906	1902	52,153	Dress silk	Dry goods
American Thread Co.	May 7, 1907	1893	62,386	Spool cotton	43
Charles H. Besly	July 30, 1907	1896	64,304	Letter files	70
Eberhard Faber	Nov. 26, 1907	1899	66,361	Lead pencils	70
Simmons H'dware Co.	Sep. 1, 1908	1908	70,440	Lanterns	34
Peerless Rubber Mfg. Co.	Feb. 9, 1909	1904	72,666	Rubber hose	35
Illinois Watch Case Co.	Aug. 1, 1911	1893	82,890	Watch cases	27
Western Electric Co.	Aug. 15, 1911	1906	83,114	Batteries	21
Liberty Vending Co.	Mar. 5, 1912	1911	85,664	Vending machines	23
Liberty Paint Co. Inc.	July 9, 1912	1908	87,350	Calcimine	16
Waldes & Co.	July 14, 1914	1913	98,447	Snap buttons	40
Carl Essbach	Sep. 22, 1914	1886	99,883	Musical instruments	36
Liberty Motion Picture Co.	Oct. 6, 1914	1914	100,129	Motion picture films	26
Carter Paint Co.	Dec. 15, 1914	1914	101,442	Dry cleaner	4
Ed. Seevers	May 16, 1916	1915	110,298	Lumber	12
Cohn & Rosenberger Inc.	June 13, 1916	1915	110,727	Jewelry	28
Innovation Elect. Co.	July 4, 1916	1914	111,237	Vacuum cleaner	23
Liberty Motor Car Co.	Oct. 10, 1916	1916	113,092	Automobiles	19
John Braun & Sons.	Nov. 14, 1916	1905	113,940	Lawn-mowers	23
John S. Tilley Ladder Co.	Dec. 19, 1916	1914	114,578	Ladders	50
Automatic Pencil Sharpener Co.	Oct. 30, 1917	1917	119,166	Pencil sharpener	37
Liberty Stove Polish Co.	Dec. 25, 1917	1917	119,969	Stove polish	4
H. W. Doughten	Feb. 12, 1918	1917	120,482	Grass seed	1
International Shoe Co.	Feb. 12, 1918	1916	120,497	Boots and shoes	39
The Standard Ultra-marine Co.	Apr. 23, 1918	1917	121,349	Laundry blues	6
American Optical Co.	May 14, 1918	1917	121,573	Measuring appliances	26
Busch & Jolles, Inc.	June 11, 1918	1917	121,863	Turpentine	16
Halcomb Steel Co.	June 11, 1918	1917	121,892	Tool steel	14
Alexander N. Pierman	July 2, 1918	1917	122,156	Signal horns	21
Morris C. Shriver	July 9, 1918	1918	122,237	Thermometers	26
Hoyt Metal Co.	Sep. 17, 1918	1918	122,798	Babbitt metal	14
A. J. Reach Co.	Oct. 8, 1918	1918	123,058	Sporting goods	22
J. Michael Eilers	Oct. 15, 1918	1918	123,113	Hand bags	3
Apothecaries Hall Co.	Oct. 29, 1918	1916	123,314	Fertilizer	10
Annin & Co.	Jan. 14, 1919	1918	124,074	Flags	50
Jacob W. Elvyn	Feb. 18, 1919	1918	124,445	Toys	22
E-Z-Fit Artificial Limb Co.	Mar. 18, 1919	1918	124,839	Artificial limbs	44
Chas. M. Drinkwater	May 20, 1919	1918	125,419	Ash sifters	23
Ezekial Brothers	May 20, 1919	1918	125,422	Dyes	6
The Deming Co.	Aug. 26, 1919	1918	126,410	Spraying machines	23
The Dwelle-Kaiser Co.	Sep. 16, 1919	1919	126,527	Window glass	33
Consolidated Pharmacal Laboratories	Oct. 11, 1919	1918	126,929	Foot powder	6
Morris Leader	Nov. 18, 1919	1919	127,682	Hair tonic	6
Crown Cork etc. Co.	Dec. 9, 1919	1917	127,818	Bottle Capping Machine	23

Registrant	Date of Registration	Date of Adoption	No.	Subject	Patent Office Class
Liberty Chemical Co.	Dec. 9, 1919	1919	127,850	Auto Freezing solution	6
Clearfield Clay Working Co.	Dec. 16, 1919	1918	127,914	Brick & Tile	12
American Aluminum Co.	Feb. 10, 1920	1918	129,257	Cooking utensils	13
Hyman Julius	Mar. 9, 1920	1919	129,760	Writing ink	11
Liberty Chain Co.	Apr. 20, 1920	1919	130,345	Tire grip chains	13
Liberty Bread slicer Co. Inc.	May 11, 1920	1918	131,338	Bread slicing machine	23
Geo. W. Hartzell	June 29, 1920	1917	132,700	Airplane propellers	19
Diamond Grinder Co.	Aug. 3, 1920	1918	133,633	Grist-mills	23
Liberty Knife Co.	Nov. 2, 1920	1919	136,515	Pocket knives	23
John T. Hunter, Inc.	Jan. 4, 1921	1918	138,643	Matches	9
Joseph Rene Ayotte	May 3, 1921	1916	141,853	Spark-plugs	21
Kansas City Broom Co.	May 17, 1921	1918	142,647	Brooms	29
Russell Mfg. Co.	May 31, 1921	1917	143,446	Garters and Suspenders	40
Marshall Field & Co.	June 28, 1921	1917	144,199	Knitting needles	40
J. M. Ernst & Son	July 26, 1921	1920	145,091	Scratch feed	46
W. W. Bevan Co.	Jan. 31, 1922	1918	151,315	Paper cups	2
Liberty Mirror Works	Feb. 14, 1922	1922	151,844	Mirrors	19
Liberty Machine Works	Nov. 14, 1893	1860	23,828	Printing presses	Printing presses
Woolner Distilling Co.	July 9, 1907	1907	63,769	Denatured alcohol	6
Thomas E. Clark	Apr. 20, 1920	1918	130,280	Electric fans	21
M. M. Rhodes & Sons Co.	Apr. 26, 1921	1919	141,821	Shoe laces	40
Robinson Bros. Co.	Jan. 24, 1893	1892	22,364	Toilet soap	Soap
Archer Starch Co.	Jan. 14, 1902	1900	37,646	Starch	Starch

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 34.—PATENT OFFICE PAMPHLET SHOWING TRADE-MARKS CLASSIFICATION.

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

UNITED STATES STATUTES CONCERNING THE REGISTRATION OF TRADE-MARKS

With the Rules of the Patent Office Relating Thereto.

Revised July 26, 1920.

(SEAL) Department of the Interior.

Washington

Government Printing Office, 1920.

(Page 46 only of above is printed):

CLASSIFICATION OF MERCHANDISE UNDER THE ACT OF MAY 4, 1906.

1. Raw or partly prepared materials.
2. Receptacles.
3. Baggage, horse equipments, portfolios, and pocketbooks.
4. Abrasive, detergent, and polishing materials.
5. Adhesives.
6. Chemicals, medicines, and pharmaceutical preparations.
7. Cordage.
8. Smokers' articles, not including tobacco products.
9. Explosives firearms, equipments, and projectiles.
10. Fertilizers.
11. Inks and inking materials.
12. Construction materials.
13. Hardware and plumbing and steam-fitting supplies.
14. Metals and metal castings and forgings.
15. Oils and greases.
16. Paints and painters' materials.
17. Tobacco products.
19. Vehicles, not including engines.
20. Linoleum and oiled cloth.
21. Electrical apparatus, machines, and supplies.
22. Games, toys, and sporting goods.
23. Cutlery, machinery, and tools, and parts thereof.
24. Laundry appliances and machines.
25. Locks and safes.
26. Measuring and scientific appliances.
27. Horological instruments.
28. Jewelry and precious-metal ware.
29. Brooms, brushes, and dusters.
30. Crockery, earthenware, and porcelain.
31. Filters and refrigerators.
32. Furniture and upholstery.
33. Glassware.
34. Heating, lighting, and ventilating apparatus, not including electrical apparatus.
35. Belting, hose, machinery packing, and nonmetallic tires.
36. Musical instruments and supplies.
37. Paper and stationery.
38. Prints and publications.
39. Clothing.
40. Fancy goods, furnishings, and notions.
41. Canes, parasols, and umbrellas.
42. Knitted, netted, and textile fabrics.
43. Thread and yarn.
44. Dental, medical, and surgical appliances.
45. Beverages, nonalcoholic.
46. Foods and ingredients of foods.
47. Wines.
48. Malt extracts and liquors.
49. Distilled alcoholic liquors.
50. Merchandise not otherwise classified.

NOTE.—Class 18 was abolished February 24, 1909.

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 35—LIST OF BRANDS.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

CIGARETTES.

S. ANARGYROS.

A. A. G. Gold
A. C. K. Special Plain
A. D. S. J. Special No. 3 Plain
A. D. S. J. Special Cork
A. B. D. Special Cork
A. E. H. Special No. 3 Cork
A. F. J. Cork
B. A. R. Plain
B. P. O. E. Cork
Bairam
Bouton Rouge
Calumet
Coat of Arms
Columbian Cork
Columbian Plain
C. T. H. Special Pl.
Dardenelles Plain
Dabs Plain
Dabs Cork
Deities No. 1 Plain
" " 1 Cork
" " 3 Cork
" " 3 Plain
" " 3 Straw
" " 3 Gold
Deities After Dinner Pl.
" " " Cork
" Ladies Gold
" " M. P.
" A. D. Splits
Du Lux Egyptian Pl.
D. A. B. S. Plain
D. A. B. S. Cork
De L. N.
D. E. L. N. Plain
D. C. M. Plain
E. C. H. Special No. 3 Cork
E. A. Special No. 1 Plain
E. A. Special No. 3 Plain
E. C. Korah Plain
E. F. M.
E. K. (in Gold) Cork
E. R. H. Cork
Earl King
Egyptienne Du Lux Pl.
Egyptian Fairies Pl.
Egyptian Luxury Pl.
Egyptian Luxury Cork
El Karah
Erbers Cork
Europa Special
F. B. Co. Gold
G. D. C.
Thos. Garvin No. 3 Cork
" " " 3 Gold
G. W. Lange Spec. Straw
Helmar
House of Lords
H. L. P. Spec. Gold
H. E. W. Special Pl.
H. E. W. Spec. No. 1 Pl.
J. A. A. Ck. No. 1
J. A. A. Ck. No. 3
J. D. L. Spec. No. 1 Pl.
J. R. Special
J. F. Plain
King Edwards Plain
K. H. C. Special Plain
La Reine
Luxus Plain
Mi Lady
Mogul Cork
Mogul Plain
Mogul Ex. Plain
Mogul Ex. Cork
Motor Cork
Murad
M. W. W. No. 3 Cork

Nebo Cork
O. L. A. Special Plain
Otto Special Pl.
Oriental Zephyrs Pl.
P. H. R. Plain
R. E. S. Special Gold
R. E. S. Special Cork
Sacket Special
Sir Don Spec. Pl. J. C. A.
" " " Ck. R. A. D.
" " " E. F. M.
Specials Ck. (Val Electric Sign Co.)
St. E. W. Plain
Turkey Red Plain
Turkey Red Cork
Turkish Trophies Pl.
Turkish Trophies Cork
Twelfth Night Ck.
Utmost
V. F. Special No. 3 Pl.
W. D. Special Cork
Yuslick Plain
Zelmo.
Zira

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

LITTLE CIGARS.

Between the Acts
Bengal L. C.
Big Run
Big Run Specials
Blue Rings
Buffo 5s
Caliph
Cameretts
Cupid Bouquet
Gilt Edge
Golden Rod
Grenadier
Grenadier Special Half Dime
Havana No. 1
Hoffman House L. C.
Hustler
Jack Rose
Le Roy
Lyceum
New French
New Light
Puritan
Spanish Puffs
St. Leger
Sub Rosa L. C.
Sub Rosa Cigarros
Van Bibber L. C.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

PLUG.

Big Lump
Boston
Boston Gem
Bullion Climax
Forget-me-not Good Smoke
Green Turtle
Hot Shot
Job Lot
La Favorite
Mechanics Delight
Neptune
Nickle Nugget
No Brand
Old Navy
Overall Planet
Pride of Regiment
Prince Nugget

Rations
Rebecca
Redicut
Rose Leaf
Scrapno Pressed Splendid Teaser
Terrapin
Three Black Crows
Washington ¼s

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

LONG CUT.

Best Dark
Bright Red Cross
Challenge
Comet
Extra Eagle
Extra Oronoko
Extra Oronoko Grade
Hoyt's Medium
Hoyt's No. 1
Five Cent Ante
Flower of Kentucky
Flying Eagle
Four Thirties
Golden Cupid
Green Turtle
King Koal
Level Head
Live Stock
Long
Lorillard's I. X. L.
Lorillard's Stripped
Mechanics' Delight
Miner's Stript
Mixed
Moonbeam
Night Watch
No. 1
No. 1 Oronoko
No. 2
No. 49
Old Crisis
Old Joy
Old Monmouth
Old Plantation
Punch & Judy
Push
S. S. & S.
Shorts Dark & Bright
Snow Flake
Sweet Banner
Sweet Red Cross
Sweet Scented
Totem
W. & S. Oronoko
Warpath
Wedding Cake
Yellow Jacket

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

PLUG CUT.

Alligator
Bagdad
Bald Eagle
Black Joe
Black & Tan
Brotherhood
Bull's Eye
Bull's Head Mixture Chips
Duplex
Flagman
Friends
Ideal
Just Suits
Kozy

Little Rhody
Lucky
Lucky Grade
Canada
Kensington
Myrtle Navy Grade
Pippin
Old Pepper
Omega
Our Dandy
Ripple
Rose Leaf
Sensation
Sincero Fumo
Social Trout Line
Union Leader
Veribest
West Grizzly
Wild Rose
World's Fair

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

GRANULATED.

Bantam ?
Boston
Eureka
Gold Block
Honey Dew
Kent Mixture
Simon Pure
Tube Rose
Two Nickels
White Puff
Yacht Club
Bamboo

CLIPPINGS & SCRAP.

P. LORILLARD.

B. & L. Clips
Cigar Clips Climax Clips
Happy Thought R. C.
Havana Blossoms
High Grade Navy Clips
Kosciuszko Clippings
Mechanics Delight
Mugsy Scrap
O. S. Clips
Pan Handle Scrap
Rebecca Clips
Scotten Navy Clips
X. X. Clips

LUHRMAN & WILBERN.

Bag Pipe
Beech Nut
Honest Scrap
Natural Leaf
Old Nut
Polar Bear
Scrap Iron

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

FINE CUT.

Bee
Blot
Boss Bite
Cavendish
Century Bright
Century Red Challenge
Choctaw
Chow Chow
City Century
Cornucopia
Croton
Eureka
Five Cent Ante
Full Weight
Golden Thread
Golden Thread Grade
  Chesapeake
G. & A. 5¢ Chewing Hard Cash
Hard Cash Grade
  Olymp
Hearts Ease
Kimball Shorts
Lils. Cavendish
Luxury
Neptune
Old Fashion
Old Fashion Grade
  Albany
  Common Sense
  Troy
Old Timer
Orange
Oriental Grade
  S. & S.
  Snow Flake
  Spot Cash
Oriole
Oriole Grade
  Crown of Delight (Oriole Grade)
  Faultless (Oriole Grade)
Peerless
Peerless Grade
  Honey Dew
Picnic
Pineapple
Pioneer
Plain
Plain Grade
  Banner Plain
Prairie Rose Protection
Protection Grade
  Strawberry
Prowler
Punkin Pie
Punkin Pie Grade
  Farmers
Red Label
Rose Leaf Bright
Rose Leaf Dark
Royal
Stag
Sweet Home
The Buck
Tiger Bright
Tiger Dark
Tiger O. S.
Try It
Twin Sisters
Wage Worker

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

PACKAGE CHEROOTS AND CIGARS

MARKETED BY

THE DUKE'S MIXTURE DEPARTMENT A. T. Co.

American Chief
Blue Seal (No Wrapping Mat. 6/9)
Cannon Ball's 3's
" " 6's
Canvas Back
Champion Victor
Charmers
Cloth Top College Tips
Crete
Early York
Famous Red Flag
First Quality
Five Beauties (No Wrap. Mat. 7/19)
Florodora
Florodora 50s
Giants
Havana Plums
Havana Sprouts
Havana Infantes
Havana Specials
Havanette Threes
Havanette Londres
Le Roy Cubanas
Life Preservers
Modern Times
New Wrinkle
Nickel Treat (No Wrap. Mat. 6/9)
Old Glory Cheroots
Old Hickory
Old Mexico
Old Virginia Cheroots
Perfection Cigarros
Plantation Trip
Perfection 3's
Porcupine Quills
Possum
Prince Cheroots
Puritan
Red Cross
Red Rocket
Richmond 3's
Rough Cheroots
Royal Taste
Seal Skipper
Sly Boy
The Three of Us
Three Black Crows
Three Cuckoos
Three Jacks
Two Orphans
U. S. Bond
U. S. 5's
U. S. 3's
Virginia Cheroots
Walker's Giants (Name appears on Label)
War Eagle
Whitlock Club

List made Nov. 22, 1911.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

FEDERAL CIGAR COMPANY BRANDS.

LITTLE CIGARS.

Allwin
Beaux Arts
Bengal Invincibles
Black & White
Buck
Buffo Cigars
Buffo Grand
Capt. Marryat Opera
Columbia
Consols
Cuban Dainties
El Belmont Quarters
El Solano
Estabrook & Eatons Students
Figaro
Flexo Giants
Florodora Operas
Flor de Madrid
Havana Amer. Matinees
Hoffman House Cavalier
" " Chicos
" " Magnums
" " Manhattans
" " Petit Dues
" " Specials
Isle of Pines Minuetes
Jaynos 10-13
King Roger
La Belle Creole Tots
X La Plaza
La Preferencia Trios
Le Roy Majors
Le Roy Brevas
Minuet
No. 445 Cigarros
Orlando Juniors
Palma de Cuba No. 10
Pioneer
Poncico
Prince George Cadets
Prince George Petit Dues
Royal Bengals
Royal Princess Spanish Trophies
Van Bibber Bouquets
" " Lilliputanos

X To be discontinued when wrapping material is exhausted. Have not clear title to brand.

DEAD BRANDS.

El Fenix Students
Famous Havana Juniors
General Run
La Linda
Mardi Gras Jrs.
Opera Perfection
Red Swan Special
Sergeant Club
Temple Bar

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

ACTIVE CIGAR BRANDS—FEDERAL CIGAR COMPANY

JANUARY 1, 1911.

A. B.'s Londres
Adad
Adamezyk's Special
Adelosa
Admar
A. H. Frie's Special
Alden Supply Co.'s 1858
Alfred the Great
Alice Nielsen
Alles' No. 139
Alta
Alvina
Amarilli
Amco
American Beauties
Andrew M. Luksic's Special
Armory Hotel
Atkinsin's Special
Atlas
A. T. Parfrey Special
Auditorium
Austin's Special
Austrienne
Auto Girl
Autogo
Awenda
Balajszis' Special
Banner Havana Seconds
Barger's Choice
B. C. K. Special
Beeswing
Beldame
Berger's Special
Bernatzki's Leader
Berne
Bertig Bros. Famous
B. H. Special
Biddy McGee
Big Bill T
Big Gun
Blank Seconds
Block House
Blue Teal
Blue Violet
Boehm's Special
Boney's Pride
Boyer's Poke Hollow Smokers
Boyer's Special
Brenan's Pride
Brindle
Brod Vana
Buffalo Pearl
Bug Pincher
Cabinet Council
Campbell's Special a 10¢ Cigar for 5¢
Canego
Capitola
Captoco
Carrozza's Special
Cerine's Best
Chesco
Christmas Greetings
Ciampala's Pastime
Clark's 76 Special
Clearosa
Cliff Weil Cigar Co.'s Shop Smokers
Clubdom
Club House
Club Night
Cohen's Cotton Palace
Coldato
Colonel Bill
Colonists Comedian

Commercial Queen
Cooney's Special Cornelius
Count Gondomar
Country Lasses
Cow Boy
Crabtrees Guarantee Unequalled
Cracker Jack
Cream Puffs
Creola
Crescello
Crowned Beauty
Cuba Florrie
Cuban Favorite Resagos
Cuban Panetelas
Cuban Smokers
Cupido
Daily Choice
Daily Service
Daniel Cohen's Special
Dave Powell Special
Davison Bros. Londres
Democrat
Dempsey's Best
Dew Drop
Dextet
Diana Diploma Grande
Dixie Doodle
Dixoletta
Dominick's Special
Don Alvar
Don Brave
Don Ramire
Dot. (S. & P. Co.)
Dragoon
Dropiewski's Choice
Dwyer's Best
Edrena
Edw. J. Phelps
El Cafe Bouquet
El Captain General
El Enfatico
El Top
Elkinton's Special
El-Ko
El Processo De Cuba
El Mecanico
El Merito de Cuba
El Rizado
El Rement
El Tino
El Toreador
El Trillo
El Vase
Emma Abbott
Empire Girl
Empire State
Evan's 408
Evergood
Entre
Factory Leaders Selected
Factory Smokers Selected
Factoryville House Special Fair Helen Falcon Special
Fancy Nancy
Favette
Federal Pride
Felix Garcia
Fermani's C. Columbo
Fermani's Special
Flashlight
Flor de Astro
Flor de Lone Star
Flor Mantanza
Flor de Union
Flor de Verdi
Franklin Throw Outs
Freeland Beauty
Fritch Bros. Tobacco Cigars
Frotana
Ftorkowski's Best
G. A. Marsh Special
Gencha's Special
General Corbin
General Dan Morgan
General Hannibal

Genuine Havana Seconds
Genuine Havana Rosages
General Woodford
George Chylak Special
Geo. Washington Smokers
Gerstin's Favorite
Globe Runner
Goddard's Superfine
Godshalk's 1006
Golden Prince
Golden Tower
Goldstein's Special
Golf Links
Goodman's Special
Gov. Hoffman
Grand March
Grand Order
Grand Union
Grand Union Special
Great Game
Great Scott
Greeley Square
Grenadier
Greskovich's Special
Grigger & Jaike's Special
Grumbler
Gulls Special
H. A. Munro's Special
Hance's Special
Happy Smoke
Harlequin
Harvest King
Havana Consul
Havana Creams
Havana Maid
Havana Rothchilds
Havana Seconds
Headline Helmet
Hendrick Hudson
Henry Horn's Best
Hidden Fortune
Hildand Chieftain
Hildora
Holland Cigar Co.'s Smokers
Holz's Best Value for 5¢
Honest
Honey Tips
Hoppies Best
Hudson Brand
Hunt Club
Hyman's Favorite Ideals
Ifhlejango's La Rampooza
Injun
Insalaco's Special
Irish Jaunting Car
J. A. McDonald Special
J. A. Young Special
J. & B.
J. Farina's Special
J. G. Blaine
J. G. N. Special
J. O. Connor's Special
J. J. Olenddyke's Special
J. P. La Brune's Favorite
J. S. R.
James Hamilton Lewis
Jennie Jones
John Frasco's Special
John Law
John's new one 5¢ Straight
John's Special
Johnetta Hotel
Johnie Smoke Born 1810 Still Smoking Good
Jones Supreme (Buck Hotel)
Jos. J. Sparks
Joy Smoke
Judicia
Junius
Justinian
Karvonis' No. 220
Kerpet's Special
Kilcullen's Special
King of India
Knickerbocker
Kocher & Picketts Premier
Koch's Leader
Kolobuk's Special

Kopec's Family
Kotarski's Leader
Krauser's Special
Krzyzanski's No. 48
Kucma Supreme
Kuhno
Kuni's Best
La Almilla
La Bella Vera Labor Queen
La Cornola
La Cubec
Lady Bird
Lady George
La Flor de Alfonso Garcia
La Flor de Hence
La Flor de Kosciusko
La Fragosa
La Maradad
La Muleta
La Nacina
La Norita
La Pila
La Reina Regents
La Rosa Gloria
Lardie's Special
La Santilla
La Seradosa
La Vera
La Vana Rica
Leador Constant Rovenski
Leonard's Best
Leonard's Special 5¢ Cigar
Le Roy
Levin's Havana Seconds
Liberty Bird
Liberty Girl
Lillian Russell
Lisco
Little Beauty
Little Chief
Lonsdale
Lord Aston
Lord Dover
Lord Grey
Lord Dugdale
Lord Rochester
Lord Sheldon
Lord Talbot
Loreto
Los Trofeos Loyalty
Lulu Gal
Lustig's Special
Levin's Special
La Rosa de Cuba
Lyon's Special
Los Puros
La Cresta
La Thais
Levenburg's Oley
Lazaro Lopez
Lenox Cafe Special
L. Vaglak Special
Lloyd's Special
Leo
London Swells
Louis F. Moritz's Specia
La Relacion
McNeil & Haggin's Co.'s Trade Mark
Mack's Leader
Madge Lessing
Mailey's Leader
Maggie Cline
Manila Caballeros
Manoel the Great
Manuela
Marjorie
Masavage's Pride
Marblehead
M. B.
McGill's Lake House Specials
Merceita
M. T. Cos. Dips
M. T. Co.'s Knickerbocker
Michael Turok's Best Midvale
Mid Valley Cigar

Milbrodt's Leader
Milda
Miss North
Miss Swell
Mon Rovia
Moon Light
My Favorite
Mitchel House Special
Mandate (Manufactured for Newman & Snoddy)
Marca Royal
Monogram
M. J. Hasting's Special
M. D. Urso's Special
Nandora
Nash's Supreme National Hotel
Nat Cig. Stands Resagos
National Seal
National Stock
Nautica
Nattrass' Best No. 16
Naylor's Special
Nefta
Nellie Power
New Market
New Rose
Newsboy
Nickel Winner
Nif-tee
Nita
Non-Pareil Seconds
Nordstrom's Special
Nugget's
Nutitus' Special
Nutitus' Leader
Novajovsky's Specials
Oath
Old Story
On Time
189 Earnest Special
Opie Read
Our Albert
Our Best
Our Big Three
Our Bob
Our Driver
Our Favorite
Our Leader
Our 127
Our Smokers
Pantano
Papas Bros. Best
Parker Blake Co. Knickerbockers
P. G. Cigar
Pearl Palace
Peck's Special
Penn Statue
Peola
Persian Belle Perun's Leader
Peter's Best
Pfeiffer-Loeb Cigar Co.'s National Stock
Pietro's Special
Piscotie's 642
P. J. McNulty's Crest
P. J. McNulty's Special
Pleasant Hill Special
Plover
Polly Prim
Pompei Cafe's Special
Poncico
Porto Rico Rockets
Post Master
Price's Special
Prime Beauty
Prime Choice
Primrose
Prince Teck
Princess de Rose
Purity
Quaker Queen
Queen Addie
Queen Cloe
Quigley's Favorite
Rail Road
Rapid Results

Rigoni's No. 72
Rebel Queen
Recreation
Red Boot
Red Chief
Red Cross Pharmacy's Special
Red Domino
Red Spot
Reginita Regulator
Reilly's Special
Reese's Special
Restuccia's Best 5¢
Right U Are Rittenhouse Square Perfectos
Rokoszs Special
Roman Queen
Rooney's Best
Rose de Syria
Rosa de Valle
Rose Bud
Roth Tobacco Co.'s No. 1
Rovinski's Special
Roxy King
Royal Blood
Royal Harvest
Royal Hunt
Royal Iris
Royal Maid
Royal Nibs
Royal Swell
Royal Perfecto
Russia's Best
R. & G. Club Favorite
Rex Cigar Co.'s Factory Smokers
Royal Duke
Ross Special
Reconciler
Sahv[illegible]'s Supreme Sale[illegible]s Leader
San[illegible]'s Pride
Sar[illegible]Bana
Saturday Special
Saxon Chief
Savitsky's Columbus Cigar
Scotch Seal
Scottie Seconds
Senior
Servi's Special
Seth Jones Special Shells
Shelly & Lewis' Londres
Shining Light
Shop Smokers
Shorter's Havana Seconds (a good 5¢ Smoke)
Ship Champions
Signola
Sinke's Londres
Skirmish
Slugoski's Town Seller
Smile
Smoker's Paradise Big Value
Smoke Penn Dandy 5¢ Cigar
Smokettes
Solitaire
Spanish Belle Spanish Bride
Star
Standard Beauty
Standard Havana Seconds
Staunton's Best
Steel Trap
Steele Wedeles Crest
Sternberg & Sons Gold Medal
St. Julien
St. Lawrence
Strohl's Best
Strongheart
Stryjak's Special
Stuyvesant Club
Sudana
Sweet Songstress

Santa Rosa
St. Paul Custom House
Shanbacher Special
Selected Havana Rosagos
Shonholtz's Special
Smith's Special
Stein's Special
T. A. Harrington's Favorite
Tallman's Preferred
Tamposa
The B. Feiock Havana Seconds
The Big Gun Perfectos
The Boar
The Celebrated K. B. C.
The Colonnade
The Dozier Drug Co.'s Dips
The Dream
The Dremios
The Eagle (Panatelas)
The Eastern (J. H. Collins Prop.)
The Flirt
The H. H. Brams Club
The Inn Special
The Massie
The New Imperial
Theo. S. Robaczewski's Zbyszko
The Sign of Quality
The Three Authors
The Towns Favorite
The Victor
Throw Outs
Thunder & Lightning
Tillman's Havana Specials
Town Seller
Trilby
Tropical Tropical Bouquet
Turkana
Two Brothers
Turco
The Palace Special
The Invincible Schley
Tampanita
The Presto 5¢ Cigar
Top Notch
The Putnam Special
U-No-Us Club
Uncle John's Special
Uncle Sam
Uncle Peter's Straight 5s
Upshur
Valley Belle Vanities
Victor Biagioni's 63
Vintage
Vote
Velvet
Walsh' Special
Wavel Cafe
Wego
Wendling Special
Wilkes Barre Record
Winnie Worth
Winnita
Wintor's Pioneer
Womolsdorf's Best
Waw Waw Smokers
W. A. Special
Wm. A. Stickney's Flor de Colonna
Young America
Youchumas Special
Zada
Zadejkas Sisters
Zannoner's Special
Zurenda's Dobra

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 36—ASSIGNMENT, AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY TO P. LORILLARD COMPANY, DEC. 1, 1911.

THIS INDENTURE, made and entered into this First day of December, Nineteen Hundred and Eleven, by and between

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY, a corporation duly created, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey (hereinafter called the "VENDOR," party of the first part, and

P. LORILLARD COMPANY, a coporation duly created, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of said State of New Jersey (hereinafter called the "VENDEE," party of the second part.

WITNESSETH: That for and in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) and divers other good and valuable considerations to the Vendor through its duly appointed and authorized agents in hand paid by the Vendee, the receipt whereof is hereby fully acknowledged by the Vendor, the Vendor has given, granted, bargained and sold, and doth by these presents give, grant, bargain, sell, alien, assign, transfer, set over, deliver, confirm and convey unto the Vendee, and its successors and assigns absolutely and forever, the factories, plants, brands and businesses, and capital stocks of tobacco manufacturing corporations as follows:

All the rights of The American Tobacco Company in the old P. Lorillard Company, to-wit: All the common stock, and One Million Five Hundred and Ninety-six Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($1,596,100) at par out of a total issue of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000) of 8% preferred stock.

All the stock of S. Anargyros, a corporation existing under the laws of the State of New York, engaged in the manufacture of cigarettes;

All the stock of Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company, a corporation of the State of New Jersey, engaged in the manufacture of scrap tobacco;

All the stock of Federal Cigar Company, a New Jersey corporation, engaged in the manufacture of cigars;

Philadelphia Branch B at Philadelphia; Wilmington Branch B at Wilmington; Penn Street Branch at Brooklyn; Danville Branch B at Danville, Virginia; and Ellis Branch B at Baltimore; all branches of The American Tobacco Company, engaged in the manufacture of little cigars, the principal brand being "BETWEEN THE ACTS";

Each of the foregoing properties is conveyed as a going concern;

With proper and adequate storage houses, leaf tobacco, and other materials and supplies, provision for book accounts, and a proportion of the cash held by The American Tobacco Company on December 31st, 1910, proportionate to the businesses and properties conveyed.

It is the purpose of this conveyance to convey to the said P. Lorillard Company in book value as carried on the books of The American Tobacco Company, tangible property useful in the tobacco business, including storage houses, leaf tobacco, supplies and materials and cash, and stocks of other companies of the value of Twenty-eight Million Ninety-one Thousand Seven Hundred Forty-eight Dollars and Eighty-six Cents ($28,091,748.86), and Vendor covenants and agrees to deliver the certificates of stock endorsed to the P. Lorillard Company, the said Vendee, or as it may direct, and to execute further deeds, bills of sale, assignments and conveyances as at any time or from time to time hereafter the Vendee may reasonably request as necessary to fully vest said title.

And Vendor, for the consideration aforesaid, covenants that it will warrant and defend said title against all claims and demands of every person whomsoever, it being understood that the Vendee takes this conveyance and all conveyances, transfers, assignments and deliveries subject to the unexecuted part or parts of all contracts that have application to the factories, plants, brands and businesses conveyed, so that they might be said to run with them, or not being carried out by the owner of the given factory, plant or business, to give the other party to the contract a claim for damages against the Vendor, and hereby indemnifies The American Tobacco Company against any claim on account thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Vendor has caused its corporate name to be hereto subscribed, and its corporate seal to be hereto affixed and attested by officers duly authorized so to do.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY.

(SEAL) By PERCIVAL S. HILL, President.

Attest:

J. T. WILCOX, Secretary.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.

On this first day of December, 1911, before me personally came Percival S. Hill, to me known, who being by me duly sworn, did depose and say, that he resides in New York City, New York; that he is the Vice-President of The American Tobacco Company, the corporation described in and which executed the above instrument; that he knew the seal of said corporation; that the seal affixed to said instrument is such corporate seal; that it was so affixed by order of the Board of Directors of said corporation, and that he signed his name thereto by like order.

R. J. BOYLAN,
Notary Public.

I, G. T. Minnigerode hereby certify that I am the Secretary of P. Lorillard Company, Inc., a corporation created under the laws of the State of New Jersey and Custodian of its records; that the foregoing indenture is a true and complete copy of the original thereof, which said original is in my possession.

Given under my hand and seal of said company this 19th day of December, 1924.

G. T. MINNIGERODE, (SEAL) Secretary.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 19th day of December, 1924.

S. E. SPENCE,
(SEAL) Notary Public, New York Co., No. 425.
New York Register No. 5085.

(Endorsed.)

ASSIGNMENT OF BUSINESS
THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.
TO
P. LORILLARD CO.
Dated: Dec. 1st, 1911.

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 37—PACKAGE OF BAGLEY'S "HAZEL NUT" TOBACCO.

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 45—LORILLARD SPECIMEN WRAPPER DESIGN FOR BEECH-NUT CIGARETTES.

Part IV.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY EXHIBITS

In United States Patent Office Trade-Mark Opposition No. 2805, P. Lorillard Company vs. Beech-Nut Packing Company.

[Incorporated by stipulation as a part of the record herein (Transcript, Vol. I, p. 871).]

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 1—STATEMENT OF SALES OF BEECH-NUT TOBACCO PRODUCTS BY LUHRMAN & WILBERN TOBACCO COMPANY AND P. LORILLARD CO. FROM 1904 TO 1919.

MIDDLETOWN BRANCH, P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

STATEMENT OF "BEECH NUT" SCRAP MANUFACTURED AND SHIPPED

"1904"	Manufactured	Shipped
January	1250	1200
February	——	——
March	1960–15	1800
April	814– 1	1025
May	800	800
June	800–15	800–15
July	200– 5	200– 5
August	2150	2150
September	1350	1350
October	1000	900
November	150	250
December	300	300
"1905"
January	500	500
February	475	475
March	210	210
April	200	200
May	650	650
June	300	300
July	850	850
August	300	300
September	400	400
October	420	420
November	600	497– 3
December	225	327–13

"1906"
January	200	200
February	525	525
March	400	400
April	300	300
May	400	400
June	25	25
July	200	200
August	500	500
September	300	300
October	300	300
November	325	325
December	125	125
"1907"
January	400	400
February	——	——
March	400	400
April	525	525
May	125	125
June	300	300
July	225	225
August	——	——
September	130	130
October	200	200
November	100	100
December	200	200

"1908"

January	400	400
February	——	——
March	——	——
April	——	——
May	100	100
June	——	——
July	——	——
August	25	25
September	——	——
October	300	300
November	100	100
December	100	100

"1909"

January	——	——
February	——	——
March	200	200
April	——	——
May	——	——
June	100	100
July	125	125
August	——	——
September	——	——
October	——	——
November	——	——
December	——	——

"1910"
January	——	——
February	——	——
March	——	——
April	25	25
May	——	——
June	——	——
July	——	——
August	——	——
September	——	——
October	——	——
November	——	——
December	——	——
"1911"	None
"1912"	None
"1913"	None
"1914"	None
"1915"
January	——	——
February	14720– 7½	11251–11½
March	50885	49353– 7
April	309161– 9	296673–12
May	589443– 9½	596956–11½
June	768207–13	746806–14
July	1073073– 7	1062765
August	651914– 1¼	688985– 7½
September	713090–15¾	806894– 6
October	1042167– 6	1053655– 2¾
November	1034236– 8¾	1035380– 6¼
December	1115694–13½	1029055– 3½

"1916"

January	1007550– 3	1079725–11
February	1021429– 2	1018382– 1
March	1335668	1343017–10
April	1264470– 7½	1231666–14
May	1290522– ¾	1325275– 8¾
June	1212898–14¾	1199746– 4¼
July	1449981– 1¼	1446125–15¾
August	1688961–10½	1688371– 9½
September	1457303–11½	1478014– 6½
October	1572224– 7	1574509– 1
November	1438814– 2¾	1425644–10¾
December	1467044–12	1485590–14

"1917"

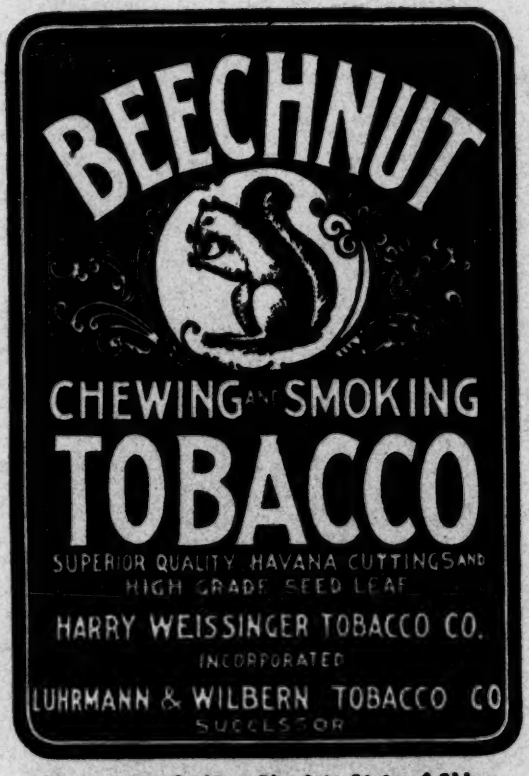
January	1607050– 1	1580759–12
February	1624617– 1¾	1637521–12
March	1867594–12½	1491763–12¼
April	1180203–15½	1444834– 2
May	1064526–13¾	1081891– 2¾
June	1556537	1495414– 8
July	1426579– 5½	1466712– ½
August	2568842–10	2459672– 7
September	1896577–14½	1997955– 7½
October	2115929– 1½	2109208– 8½
November	1572090– 2½	1599131–15½
December	1678775–10	1531816–11½

"1918"
January	1127283– 9½	918236– 4
February	1882759– 1¼	2103950–12¼
March	2162745– 6¾	2037787– 2¾
April	2592644– 5½	2197612– 6½
May	1441968– 7½	1828721–13
June	1514477–13¾	1355845–13¼
July	1287322– 5	1518517– 2
August	1362235–14¼	1564699–14¼
September	1202413–14¾	1203866–13¾
October	1410611–10	1402560– 6¾
November	1371557–10¾	1364299–14
December	1679579– 7	1640674– 2
"1919"
January	2072387– 4	2043954– 9
February	2275585–14	2300512–14
March	2364108– 4	2340144– 4
April	2027236	1913614
May	1599027–10	1623405–10
June	1612712–13¾	1737767–13¾
July	1983683– 1¾	1953166– 5¾
August	2069723–12¾	2118789– 8¾
September	2144352–12¾	2090899– 8¾
October	2166714– 4½	2192269–12½
November	2289646– 4¼	2329451– ¼
December	2798669–10¾	2628866–10¾

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT NO. 2—PACKAGE OF LORILLARD'S BEECH-NUT SCRAP TOBACCO.

[NOTE: Identical with Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 1—which see, supra, p. 161.]

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT NO. 5—LUHRMAN & WILBERN "BEECHNUT" TOBACCO BAG.



Factory No. 6, First District, State of Ohio.

NOTICE.—The manufacturer of this Tobacco has complied with all the requirements of Law. Every person is cautioned under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again.

2972
264

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT NO. 6—PACKAGE OF LORILLARD'S BEECH-NUT CIGARETTES.

[NOTE: Photograph of the wrapper:]

2974

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 7—LETTER DATED AUGUST 25, 1916, FROM WALCUTT BROTHERS COMPANY TO P. LORILLARD CO.

LEXINGTON BUILDING TELEPHONE MADISON SQUARE 3714-5-6

WALCUTT BROTHERS COMPANY

Embossing Specialists
Hot Pressing, Stamping, Color Printing
Paper, Cloth and Leather Covers
141-155 East 25th Street

CHICAGO OFFICE
1138-39-40 Unity Building

NEW YORK August 25, 1916.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:

We will be pleased to furnish you with one million Beechnut Cigarette shells to be printed in three colors and embossed, as per sketch submitted for your O. K., size and specifications to be about 2 7/8 x 5 7/16, printed, cut and scored on 13 pt. stock, but not to include the making of the shell, as we are not equipped for this kind of work, and if it is possible for you to have this part of the work attended to, we furnishing you with the printed, cut and scored sheets, the first million will cost $1.67 per thousand. Two million will cost $1.45 per thousand.

Hoping to be favored with your valued order, we are,

Yours very truly,

AAS/B WALCUTT BROTHERS CO.

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT NO. 8—ORDER FOR BEECH NUT CIGARETTE SHELLS.

SUPPLY DEPT. ORDER NO. .....

No. 1721 9/14/16

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT
P. LORILLARD COMPANY
Incorporated
119 West 40th St., New York, N. Y.

Please ship us by .....(freight or express) the following:

1000 M Beech Nut 10 3/11 shells as per sample submitted & approved @ $1.18 per M.

Delivery in 5 to 6 weeks.

Amount used past six months ..... Am't on hand .....
Will last until .....

Yours truly,

CIGARETTE DEPT.
P. LORILLARD CO.
By J R HILL Manager

OK WJB 9/14/16 O.K. C. C. G.

☞ Do not include more than one kind of wrapping or casing material on each order. Can use entire blank for repair and renewal supplies.

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 9—"BROECKER" CORRESPONDENCE.

May 27, 1915.

THE BROECKER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New Albany, Indiana.

Dear Sirs:

Our attention has just been called to the statement in the "Western Tobacco Journal" of May 24th, 1915, that you have registered in the Western Tobacco Journal Registration Bureau the name of "BEECH NUT" for twist tobacco.

We are writing to call your attention to the fact that this Company and its predecessors in interest have for many years past, and still are manufacturing tobacco under the name of "BEECHNUT."

We therefore request that you refrain from using this name, and will be obliged if you will write us that you will do so.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED W. HAYWOOD, JR.

June 10, 1915.

THE BROECKER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New Albany, Indiana.

Dear Sirs:

I wrote you under date of May 27th, with reference to the statement appearing in the "Western Tobacco Journal" of May 24th, 1915, that you had registered in the Western Tobacco Journal Registration Bureau the name of "BEECH NUT" for twist tobacco.

I called your attention to the fact that this Company and its predecessors in interest had for many years past and still are manufacturing tobacco under the name

"BEECHNUT," and requested that you refrain from using this name, and asked that you write us that you would do so.

I have not yet heard from you in reply, and would be obliged if you would write me in accordance with my request.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED W. HAYWOOD, JR.

June 19, 1915.

THE BROECKER TOBACCO COMPANY,
New Albany, Indiana.

Dear Sirs:

I wrote you under date of May 27th, and also under date of June 10th, with reference to your registration in the Western Tobacco Journal Registration Bureau of the name "BEECH NUT" for twist tobacco. I enclose copies of both of these letters herewith.

I have not yet received a reply from you and will be very much obliged if you will write me as requested at once.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED W. HAYWOOD, JR.

Enclosures.

THE BROECKER TOBACCO CO.
309-311 West Sixth St.
NEW ALBANY, IND.

Manufacturers of Twist and Smoking Tobacco.

MR. ALFRED W. HAYWOOD JR.
New York N. Y.

Dear Sir:

We are receipt of your favors of May 27, June 10 & June 19 respecting your claim to the name "Beechnut" for twist tobacco, requesting that we refrain from the use of same. That is sufficient.

Yours Respectfully,
THE BROECKER TOB. CO.
per F. J. B.

July 14, 1915.

THE BROECKER TOBACCO COMPANY,
309 West Sixth Street,
New Albany, Indiana.

Dear Sirs:

I have received your recent favor, undated, reading as follows:

> "We are receipt of your favors of May 27, June 10 & June 19 respecting your claim to the name 'Beechnut' for twist tobacco, requesting that we refrain from the use of same. That is sufficient," and I thank you for the same.

I understand from your letter that you will refrain from using the name "BEECHNUT" for tobacco, and will be obliged if you will write me that my understanding is correct.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED W. HAYWOOD, JR.

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 10—"SCHUTZ" CORRESPONDENCE.

October 1, 1915.

C. E. SCHUTZ, ESQ.,
Evansville, Indiana.

Dear Sir:

I wrote you under date of September 16th, with reference to the "BEECH-NUT" twist tobacco which you have been making, but have not yet heard from you.

This is a matter of considerable importance to us, and I would be obliged if you would write me that you will discontinue using this name in view of our prior rights.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED W. HAYWOOD, JR.

TELEPHONE 592 615 MAIN STREET

C. E. SCHUTZ
Jobber in Cigars and Tobacco
Pipes Snuff
Cigarettes

EVANSVILLE, IND. Oct. 9, '15.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
New York City, N. Y.

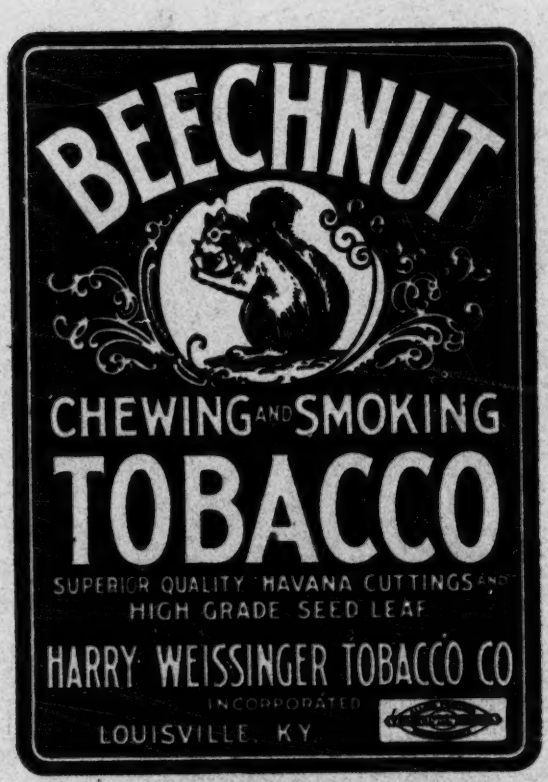
Dear Sirs:

In reply to your letter of Oct. 1st in regards to the Beech-Nut twist tobacco, wish to say we have discontinued the manufacture of this tobacco and will not have any more for sale after we have sold what we have on hand.

We would have replied sooner but have been moving to a new location.

Respectfully,
C. E. SCHUTZ.

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 14—HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO CO. "BEECHNUT" TOBACCO BAG.



Factory No. 26, Fifth District of Kentucky.

NOTICE.—The manufacturers of this Tobacco have complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again

982
274

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT NO. 16—PACKAGE OF LORILLARD'S BEECH-NUT SCRAP TOBACCO.

NOTE: Identical with Defendant's Cross-Exhibit No. 1—which see, supra, p. 161.

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT NO. 17—PACKAGE OF LUHRMANN & WILBERN TOBACCO CO.'S "BEECHNUT" TOBACCO..

NOTE: The wrapper of this Exhibit package is identical with P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 5—which see, supra, p. 263.

P. LORILLARD CROSS-EXHIBIT NO. 20—CERTIFIED COPY, CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION OF IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY

We the undersigned do hereby certify:

That we have associated ourselves together as a manufacturing corporation pursuant to the provisions of chapter 40 of the laws of 1848 of the State of New York, and the several acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto:

That the corporate name of said corporation is Imperial Packing Company:

That the time of existence of said corporation is to be ten (10) years:

That the object for which said corporation is formed is the smoking, curing and packing of hams, bacon and beef:

That the amount of capital stock of said corporation is Ten Thousand Dollars:

That the number of shares of which the capital stock of said corporation shall consist is one hundred of one hundred dollars each:

That the number of trustees of said corporation is three (3) and that the following are the names of the trustees who are to manage the concerns of the said corporation for the first year: David Zieley, Jr., Bartlett Arkell and Walter H. Lipe: who are respectively stockholders in said corporation, and all of whom are residents of the State of New York:

That the operations of said corporation are to be carried on at the village and town of Canajoharie, Montgomery County, New York.

Dated January 31st, 1891

DAVID ZIELEY JR
BARTLETT ARKELL
WALTER H LIPE
JOHN W ZIELEY

State of New York County of Montgomery ss

On this thirty-first day of January, 1891, before me personally appeared David Zieley, Jr., Bartlett Arkell, Walter H. Lipe and John W. Zieley, to me known to be the same persons described in and who executed the foregoing instrument, and severally acknowledged that they executed the same.

HIRAM L. HUSTON
Notary Public Mont. Co.

[Endorsed]

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY
CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

Tax for privilege of organization of this corporation

$12 $\frac{50}{100}$

Under Chapter 143, Laws of 1886,
Paid to State Treasurer before Filing.

STATE OF NEW YORK
Office of SECRETARY OF STATE
Filed and recorded Feb 10 1891
TH E BENEDICT
Deputy Secretary of State

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State. ss:

I have compared the preceding with the original Certificate of Incorporation of Imperial Packing Company filed and recorded in this office on the 10th day of February, 1891, and do hereby certify the same to be a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

Witness my hand and the seal of office of the Secretary of State, at the City of Albany, this twelfth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

E. W. TAFT,

[SEAL] Second Deputy, Secretary of State.

P. LORILLARD CO. CROSS EXHIBIT NO. 21.
Renewed to
Beech-Nut Packing Company, a corporation of New York

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY, OF CANAJOHARIE AND NEW YORK, N. Y.

TRADE-MARK FOR HAMS AND BACON.

STATEMENT and DECLARATION of Trade-Mark No. 19,838, registered July 7, 1891.

Application filed June 9, 1891.

STATEMENT.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that the IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY, a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and located at Canajoharie, in the county of Montgomery, in said State, and doing business at Canajoharie and at New York city, New York, has adopted for its use a Trade-Mark for Hams and Bacon, of which the following is a full, clear, and exact specification.

The trade-mark of said company consists of the word-symbol "Beech-Nut." This has generally been arranged as shown in the accompanying fac-simile, which represents a ham upon a frescoed panel. Upon the ham appears the word symbol "Beech-Nut" and underneath it a representation of the leaf of the beech-tree. Across the upper portion of the panel appear the words "The Sweet Beech Nut Ham," and across the bottom of the panel are the words "The Imperial Packing Company, Canajoharie, N. Y.;" but these words, with the exception of the word "Beech-Nut," may be omitted, and the various accessories of the picture may be varied or altogether omitted without materially altering the character of the said trade-mark, the essential feature of which is the word "BEECH-NUT."

This trade-mark has been continuously used by said corporation since the 1st of January, 1891.

The class of merchandise to which the trade-mark is appropriated is cured pork, and the particular description of goods comprised in such class on which it is used by said company is hams and bacon.

It has been the practice of the company to brand the trade-mark upon each article of its production. It may, however, be branded upon the boxes, barrels, or casks in which the goods are packed, or it may be applied to the goods or packages in the form of a label.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY.
By BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

Witnesses:
GEORGE H. BENJAMIN,
F. K. BUDD.

DECLARATION.

City, county, and State of New York, ss:

BARTLETT ARKELL, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the president of the IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY, of Canajoharie, New York, a corporation, the applicant named in the foregoing statement; that he verily believes that the foregoing statement is true; that the said corporation has at this time a right to the use of the trade-mark thereinin described; that no other person, firm, or corporation has a right to such use, either in the identical form or in any such near resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive; that the trade-mark is used by said corporation in commerce between the United States and foreign nations, and particularly with Great Britain, Germany, and Canada, and that the description and fac-similes presented for record truly represent the trade-mark sought to be registered.

BARTLETT ARKELL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 23d day of April, 1891.

[L. S.] THOMAS M. ROWLETTE,
Notary Public, New York County.

TRADE-MARK.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY.

HAMS AND BACON.

No. 19,838. Registered July 7, 1891.

WITNESSES:
Millard F. Steltman
E. W. Cady

INVENTOR
Imperial Packing Company
BY
Geo. H. Benjamin
ATTORNEY.

Renewed to
Beech-Nut Packing Company, a corporation of New York.

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY, OF CANAJOHARIE AND NEW YORK, N. Y., AND CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

TRADE-MARK FOR PORK LARD.

STATEMENT and DECLARATION of Trade-Mark No. 24,978, registered July 3, 1894.

Application filed June 6, 1894.

STATEMENT.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that the IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY, a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and located in the village of Canajoharie, in the county of Montgomery, in said State, and doing business in said village of Canajoharie, and also at the city of New York, in said State, and at the city of Chicago, in the county of Cook, in the State of Illinois, has adopted for its use a Trade-Mark for Lard, of which the following is a full, clear, and exact specification.

The trademark of said company consists of a representation of a leaf of the beech tree and the word-symbol "Beech Nut." These have generally been arranged as shown in the accompanying fac-simile, consisting of an oblong card in the lower left-hand corner of which is a representation of the leaf of the beech tree resting on an oval, and above and to the right of the oval appear the words "'Beech Nut' Lard. Imperial Packing Co., Canajoharie, N. Y." But these words, with the exception of the word "Beech Nut," may be omitted, and the various accessories of the picture may be varied at pleasure, or omitted altogether, without materially altering the character of the said trademark, the essential features of which are the words "BEECH NUT," and the representation of the leaf of the beech tree.

This trademark has been continuously used by said corporation since the 1st day of March, 1894.

The class of merchandise to which the trademark is appropriated is pork, and the particular description of goods comprised in such class on which it is used by said company is pork lard.

It has been the practice of the company to apply the trademark to the barrels, casks or cases in which the lard is packed, in the form of a label. It may however be branded upon the barrels or casks or cases in which the lard is packed.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY,
By BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

Witnesses:
WILLIAM J. MERRILL,
F. J. GALVIN.

DECLARATION.

City, county and State of New York, ss.

BARTLETT ARKELL, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the president of the IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY of Canajoharie, New York, a corporation, the applicant named in the foregoing statement, that he verily believes that the foregoing statement is true; that the said corporation has at this time a right to the use of the trademark therein described; that no other person, firm or corporation has a right to such use, either in the identical form or in any such near resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive; that the trademark is used by said corporation in commerce between the United States and foreign nations, and particularly with Great Britain, Germany, Canada and the Island of Cuba, and that the description and fac-similes presented for record truly represent the trademark sought to be registered.

BARTLETT ARKELL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, a notary public, this 18th day of May, 1894.

[L. S.] FREDK. J. WINSTON
Notary Public, (No. 226,) N. Y. County.

TRADE-MARK.

IMPERIAL PACKING COMPANY.

PORK LARD.

No. 24,978. Registered July 3, 1894.

Witnesses
Fred. J. Winston
Geo. L. Cook

Proprietor
Imperial Packing Company
by
Herbert Allen President

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, OF CANAJOHARIE AND NEW YORK, N. Y.

TRADE-MARK FOR CURED, DRIED, AND SMOKED BEEF.

STATEMENT and DECLARATION of Trade-Mark No. 35,731, registered January 8, 1901.

Application filed December 13, 1900.

STATEMENT.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that the BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, (successor to the Imperial Packing Company,) a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and located at Canajoharie, in the county of Montgomery, in said State, and doing business at said place and also at New York city, in said State, has adopted for its use a Trade-Mark for Cured Meats, of which the following is a full, clear, and exact specification.

The trade-mark of said company consists of the word-symbol "Beech-Nut." This has generally been arranged as shown in the accompanying facsimile, which represents the fruit and leaves of the beech-nut tree. This is inclosed in a circle, and adjacent to the design appears the word-symbol "Beech-Nut." The circle may be omitted and the design of the beech-nut and its leaves may be omitted or may be varied without materially altering the character of said trade-mark, the essential feature of which is the word-symbol "BEECH-NUT."

This trade-mark has been continuously used by said corporation and the corporation of which it is successor since the 1st of June, 1893.

The class of merchandise to which the trade-mark is appropriated is cured meats, and the particular description of goods comprised in such class on which it is used by said corporation is cured, dried, and smoked beef.

It has been the practice of the company to brand the trade-mark upon each article of its production or upon the receptacles containing such articles—that is, upon the jars, boxes, barrels, or other packages in which the goods are packed—or it may be applied to the goods or packages in the form of a label.

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
By BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

Witnesses:
F. E. DOUBLEDAY,
J. WANKERL.

DECLARATION.

Town of Canajoharie, county of Montgomery, State of New York, ss:

BARTLETT ARKELL, being duly sworn, deposes and says: that he is the president of the BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY of Canajoharie, New York, a corporation, the applicant named in the foregoing statement; that he verily believes that the foregoing statement is true; that said corporation has at this time a right to the use of the trade-mark therein described; that no other person, firm or corporation has a right to such use, either in the identical form or in any such manner or resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive; that the trade-mark is used by said corporation in commerce between the United States and foreign nations, and particularly with colonies of South Africa; and that the description and facsimile presented for record truly represent the trade-mark sought to be registered.

BARTLETT ARKELL.

Sworn to and subscribed this 4th day of December, 1900.

[L. S.] NORMAN J. BRUMLEY,
Notary Public.

TRADE-MARK.

No. 35,731. Registered Jan. 8, 1901.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY.

CURED, DRIED, AND SMOKED BEEF.

(Application filed Dec. 13, 1900.)

Witnesses:

Jos. Merritt

Chas. P. Schmelz

Proprietor:

Beech-Nut Packing Company

per William A. Lorenz

Attorney

2994

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, OF CANAJOHARIE, NEW YORK.

TRADE-MARK FOR CANNED GOODS.

STATEMENT and DECLARATION of Trade-Mark No. 36,444, registered May 21, 1901.

Application filed April 29, 1901.

STATEMENT.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that the BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New York, and located and doing business at Canajoharie, county of Montgomery, in said State, has adopted for its use a Trade-Mark for Canned Goods, of which the following is a full, clear, and exact description.

The said trade-mark consists of the word-symbol "Beech-Nut." This has generally been arranged, as shown in the accompanying facsimile, in connection with the representation of a beech-nut and some leaves of the beech-tree. Different styles of letters may be employed for the word-symbol and the design of the beech-nut and leaves may be varied or omitted altogether without materially altering the character of the trade-mark, the essential feature of which is the word-symbol "BEECH-NUT."

This trade-mark has been continuously used in the business of the said corporation and of its predecessors since June 1, 1893, and in connection with canned goods since May 18, 1898.

The class of merchandise to which this trade-mark is appropriated is groceries, and the particular description of goods comprised in the said class upon which it is used is canned goods. It is usually displayed on the cans, jars, boxes, and other packages containing the goods by placing thereon a printed label on which the described trade-mark is shown.

[L. S.] BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
By BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

Witnesses:
NORMAN J. BRUMLEY,
J. H. COOK.

DECLARATION.

State of New York, county of Montgomery, ss:

BARTLETT ARKELL being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the president of the corporation BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, the applicant named in the foregoing statement; that he verily believes that the foregoing statement is true, that said corporation has at this time a right to the use of the trade-mark therein described, and that no other person, firm or corporation has the right to such use, either in the identical form or in any such near resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive; that the said trade-mark is used by the said corporation in commerce between the United States and foreign countries, and particularly with Canada, Mexico, France and Sierra Leone, and that the description and facsimile presented for record, truly represent the trade-mark sought to be registered.

BARTLETT ARKELL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, a notary public, this 26th day of April, 1901.

[L. S.] J. H. COOK,
Notary Public.

TRADE-MARK.

No. 36,444. Registered May 21, 1901.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY.

CANNED GOODS.

(Application filed Apr. 29, 1901.)

Witnesses:
William A. Lorenz.
H. Mallon

Proprietor
Beech-Nut Packing Company
By W. H. Hollis. Atty.

2998

P. LORILLARD CO. CROSS EXHIBIT NO. 22—
Proposed BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY'S "BEECH-NUT CIGARETTES" LABEL.

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT A—BOOK SHOWING REVENUE STAMPS USED ON TOBACCO BRANDS 1904-1906.

[NOTE: The exhibit is a two-hundred page "Day Book" of stamp records and weights for Polar Bear, Old Nut, Cutlass, Bag Pipe, Beechnut, Honest, etc. All entries are in lead pencil. Only the entries relating to Beechnut are here printed.]

Page 88. March 1904.

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 1960 lbs. 15 oz.

. . . . . .

Page 89. March 1904.

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 2 627 S 10 st 627 S 10 st us 1960 lbs 15 oz

. . . . . .

Page 90. April 1904.

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 814 lbs 1 oz.

. . . . . .

Page 91. April 1904.

. . . . . .

Beechnut 13 252 S 10 st 252 S 10 st us 789 lbs 1 oz
15 8 Sheets us 8 us 25 lbs

814 lbs 1 oz

Page 92. May 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 800 lbs

. . . . . .

Page 93. May 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 256 256 us 800 lbs

Page 95. June 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 800 lbs

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	20	32 Sheets	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	16	32 Sheets	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	14	96 Sheets	96 us	300 lbs
Beech Nut	9	32 Sheets	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	2	64 Sheets	64 us	200 lbs
			Total	800 lbs

Page 96. July 1904.

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 200 lbs

. . . . . .

Beech Nut Samples 5 oz

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	20	32 Sheets	32 us	100 lbs
	26	32 Sheets	32 us	100 lbs
				200 lbs

Page 98. July 1904.

. . . . . .

16 1 – 2½ oz Beech Nut Sample 2½ oz

. . . . . .

23 1 – 2½ oz Beech Nut Sample 2½ oz

Beech Nut Samples 5 oz

. . . . . .

Page 100. August 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 2149 – 13½ oz

. . . . . .

	30	112	112 us	350 lbs.
	24	32	32 us	100 lbs
	23	64	64 us	200 lbs
	19	96	96 us	300 lbs
	18	63 Sheets 19 st us	63 S19st us	199 lbs	13½ oz
	15	64	64 us	200 lbs
	12	96	96 us	300 lbs
Beech Nut	8	160 Sheets	160 us	500 lbs
				2149 lbs	13½ oz

Page 102. Sept 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 1350 lbs

. . . . . .

	29	32 Sheets us		100 lbs
	28	96 Sheets us		300 lbs
	22	32 Sheets us		100 lbs
	21	32 Sheets us		100 lbs
	14	32 Sheets us		100 lbs
	12	96 Sheets us		300 lbs
	8	16 Sheets us		50 lbs
	6	64 Sheets us		200 lbs
Beech Nut	3	32 Sheets us		100 lbs
			Total	1350 lbs

Page 110. Oct 1904.

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 1000 lbs

. . . . . .

	26	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	25	64 Sheets us	64 us	200 lbs
	13	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	10	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	8	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	7	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	4	96 Sheets us	96 us	300 lbs
			Total	1000 lbs

Page 112. Nov 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 150 lbs

. . . . . .

	28	32 Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	3	16 Sheets us	16 us	50 lbs
			Total	150 lbs

Page 116. Dec 1904

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 300 lbs

. . . . . .

	16	32 –		32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	2	64	Sheets us	64 us	200 lbs
				Total	300

Page 118. January 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 500 –

. . . . . .

	20	32	Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	17	32	Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	12	32	Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
Beech Nut	11	64	Sheets us	64 us	200 lbs
				Total	500 lbs

Page 122 February 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 470 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	27	64	Sheets us	64 us	200 lbs
	23	32	Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	17	32	Sheets us	32 us	100 lbs
	7	8	Sheets us	8 us	25 lbs
	2	16	Sheets us	16 us	50 lbs
					470 lbs

Page 125 March 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 210 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	18	35	Sheets 4 stamps us		110 lbs
	21	32	Sheets us		100 lbs
				Total	210 lbs.

Page 128. April 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 200 lbs

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	18	32	Sheets	us	100 lbs
	28	32	"		100 lbs
				Total	200 lbs

Page 132. May 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 650 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	5	48	us		150 lbs
	11	32	us		100 lbs
	23	128	us		400 lbs
				Total	650 lbs

Page 134 June 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 300 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	10	32	Sheets	us	100
	19	32	"	"	100
	28	32	Sheets	us	100
				Total	300 lbs

Page 138 July 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 850 –

. . . . . .

		Sheets received	Sheets used	lbs	oz
Beech Nut	10	160	160	500
	14	48	48	150
	24	32	32	100
	28	32	32	100
			Total	850 lbs

Page 140 August 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 300 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	3	32	32	100
	28	64	64	200
			Total	300	lbs

Page 144 Sept 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 400 –

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	5	64	64	200
	15	32	32	100
	18	32	32	100
			Total	400	lbs

Page 146 October 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 420 –

. . . . . .

	28	32	32	100
	9	6 S 8 st	6 S 8 st	20
Beech Nut	2	96	96	300
			Total	420

Page 150 November 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 600 –

. . . . . .

	29	32	32	100
	28	32	32	100
	22	32	32	100
	18	32	32	100
	14	32	32	100
Beech Nut	13	32	32	100
			Total	600	lbs

Page 152 Dec 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 225

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	13	8	Sheets	25
	27	32		100
	28	32		100
			Total	225 lbs

Page 156 Jan 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 200

. . . . . .

	Date	Sheets Received	Sheets used	Lbs. oz.
Beech Nut	4	32		100
	26	32		100
				200

Page 158 Febr 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 525

. . . . . .

	12	8		25
	9	32		100
	3	32		100
Beech Nut	2	32		100
	16	32		100
	26	32		100
			Total	525 lbs

Page 162 March 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 400

. . . . . .

Page 164 March 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	5	32		100
	14	32		100
	27	32		100
	30	32		100
			Total	400 lbs

Page 165 April 1905

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	6	32		100
	9	32		100
	24	32		100
			Total	300

Page 166 April 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 300 –

. . . . . .

Page 170 May 1903

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 400 –

. . . . . .

Page 173 May 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	5	32		100
	10	64		200
	28	32		100
			Total	400

Page 174 June 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 25

. . . . . .

Page 177 June 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	18		8 Sheets	25
			Total	25

Page 180 July 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut			200 –

. . . . . .

Page 181 July 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	16	32		100
	25	32		100
				200 lbs

Page 187 August 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	1st	64		200
	2	32		100
	10	32		100
	20	32		100
				500 lbs

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT B—BOOK SHOWING REVENUE STAMPS USED ON TOBACCO BRANDS, 1906-1910.

(NOTE: The Exhibit is a three-hundred page "Day Book" of stamp records and weights for Polar Bear, Old Nut, Honest, Bag Pipe, Beechnut, Cutlass, Scrap Iron, Natural Leaf, etc. All entries are in lead pencil. Only the entries relating to Beechnut are here printed.)

Page 2. Sept 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut		300

. . . . . .

Page 5. Sept 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 1st 96 300

Page 6. Oct 196

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 300

. . . . . .

Page 9. Oct 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	12	32	100
	16	32	100
	27	32	100
			300

Page 11 Nov 1906

	Date	Sheets received	Sheets used	Lbs. oz.
				.
	23	32		100
	21	64		200
Beech Nut	6	8 Sheets		25
				325

Page 15. Nov 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 325

Page 17. Dec 1906

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 125

. . . . . .

Page 20 Dec 1906

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	1st	8 Sheets	25
	12	32	100
			125

. . . . . .

Page 27 Jan 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 400

. . . . . .

Page 29. Jan 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	3	32	32	100
	21	64	64	200
	29	32	32	100
				400

Page 39. March 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 400

. . . . . .

Page 40. March 1907

	Date	Sheets received	Sheets used	Lbs. oz.
Beech Nut	5	32	32	100
	9	32	32	100
	23	32	32	100
	29	32	32	100
				400

Page 46 Apr 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	4	40	40	125
	8	32	32	100
	11	32	32	100
	22	32	32	100
	29	32	32	100
				525

Page 49 April 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 525

. . . . . .

Page 55 May 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	13	8	8	25
	18	32	32	100
			Total	125	lbs

Page 57 May 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 125

. . . . . .

Page 60. June 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	6	32	32	100
	24	64	64	200
				300

. . . . . .

Page 63. June 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 300

. . . . . .

Page 65. July 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 325

. . . . . .

Page 66. July 1907

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	10	8	8	25
	11	32	32	100
	26	32	32	100
				325	lbs

[NOTE: error in addition as in the original]

Page 75 August 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 78. Sept 1907

Beech Nut	5	9 – 12 st	9 – 12 st	30
	9	32	32	100
				130

Page 81. Sept 1907

2½ oz Beech Nut			130

Page 84. Oct 1907

Beech Nut	7	32	32	100
	16	32	32	100
				200

Page 87. Oct 1907

2½ oz Beech Nut			200

Page 90. Nov 1907

Beech Nut	25	32	32	100

Page 93. Nov 1907

2½ oz Beech Nut			100

Page 96 Dec. 1907

Beech Nut	18	64	64	200

Page 99 Dec 1907

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 200

. . . . . .

Page 102 Jan 1908

. . . . . .

Beech Nut	20	32	32	100
	22	32	32	100
	27	64	64	200
				400	lbs

. . . . . .

Page 105 Jan 1908

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 400

. . . . . .

Page 114 March 1908

. . . . . .

Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 126. May 1908

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 15 32 32 100

. . . . . .

Page 129 May 1908

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 100

. . . . . .

Page 144 Aug 1908

. . . . . .

Beech Nut 17 8 Sheets 8 25

. . . . . .

Page 147 Aug 1908

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 25

. . . . . .

Page 156 Oct 1908

Beech Nut	1	32		32	100
	9	32		32	100
	26	32		32	100
					300

Page 159 Oct 1908

2½ oz Beech Nut			300

Page 162 Nov 1908

Beech Nut	3	32		32	100

Page 165 Nov 1908

2½ oz Beech Nut			100

Page 168 Dec 1908

Beech Nut	7	32		32	100

Page 171 Dec 1908

2½ oz Beech Nut			100

Page 186 March 1909

Beech Nut	9	64		64	200

Page 189 March 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut			200

Page 195 April 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut

Page 197 May 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut

Page 203 June 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut 100

Page 204 June 1909

Beech Nut	23	32	32	100

Page 209 July 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut 125

Page 210 July 1909

Beech Nut	19	8	8	25
	29	32	32	100
				125

Page 228 Oct 1909

2½ oz Beech Nut

Page 234 Nov 1909

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 242 Dec 1909

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 248 Jan 1910

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 256 Febr 1910

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut

. . . . . .

Page 260 March 1910

. . . . . .

2 4-2 oz Beech Nut Samples to Mr. Hutchings with Bag Pipe tob 4 8 oz

. . . . . .

Page 261 March 1910

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 5 oz

. . . . . .

Page 262 March 1910

. . . . . .

2½ oz Beech Nut 12 2 st as sample Bag Pipe 2 st 5 oz

. . . . . .

Page 269 April 1910

2½ oz Beech Nut 25

Page 270 April 1910

2½ oz Beech Nut 11 8 Sheets 8 25

Page 276 May 1910

2½ oz Beech Nut

Page 284 June 1910

2½ oz Beech Nut

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT C—SALES SHEETS SHOWING SHIPMENTS BEECHNUT, 1904-1910.

Sheet 1.

SALES 1901

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Total
Sept.	325835-10		325835-10
Oct.	603197-2	63245	666442-2
Nov.	287550-10	23005	310555-10
Dec.	689189	24600	713789
Total	1905772-6	110850	2016622-6

SALES 1902

			Bag Pipe	Cutlass
Jan.	191520	9711-4
Feb.	280907-13	7900		4805	201231-4
March	527390	13615		2850	293612-13
April	705040	14030		1350	543855
May	358704-1	16495-12		2100	720420
June	625327-8	31150	65369-4	104498	377299-13
July	195281-4	12000	298602	94008	826344-12
Aug.	434201-4	11950	169044	81325-14	599891-4
Sept.	441833-4	14700	176976	64080	696521-2
Oct.	655873-10	14518-12	227712	65448	697589-4
Nov.	396785-15	10600	181392	23904	963552-6
Dec.	447349-3	7600	173928	2832	612681-15
Total	5260213-14	164270-12	1293023-4	447200-14	631709-3
					7164708-12

SALES 1903

Jan.	344111-14	8400	37866	11856
Feb.	679885-10	12600	40590	18360	402233-14
March	602870	13100	70002	26520	751435-10
Apr.	485705	12365	149646	25200	712492
May	477515	13940	163569-9	34824	672916
June	677763-12	25770	166956	32952	689848-9
July	258577-8	8500	153378	96105	903441-12
Aug.	306250	13200	281088	132025	516560-8
Sept.	461075-8⅓	18300	41812	30100	732563
Oct.	419915	11275	63221-12	32750	551287
Nov.	470978-7	13101-14	84972-9	15525	527161-12
Dec.	306705-9⅓	10281-14	80052	32325	584577-14
Total	5491353-5	160833-12	1333153-14	488542	429364-7⅓
					7473882-15

3019

Sheet 2.

SALES 1904

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Bag Pipe	Cutlass	Beechnut
Jan.	462040	23000	127566	12925	1200		626731
Feb.	374256-2	14582-13	90012	26100			504950-15
Mch.	414280	25275	113682	35425	1800		590462
April	514367-13	20357-13	150237-9	38500	1025		724488-3
May	498062-8	19211-4	149784	49700	800		717557-12
June	480002-7	24027-3	142969-2	27625	800-15		675424-11
July	481446-6½	23876-1½	135180	45750	200-5		686452-13
Aug.	484032-13	25275-10	126186	135750	2150		773394-7
Sept.	567555	25685	149928	30900	1350		775418
Oct.	502261-4	23851-6½	137662-5	26825	900		691499-15½
Nov.	481492-4	27910-10	153912-12	19100	250		682665-10
Dec.	471866-3½	25825-12½	144228-15	7625	300		649845-15
Total	5731662-15	278878-9½	1621348-11	456225	10776-4		8098891-5½

SALES 1905

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Bag Pipe	Cutlass	Beechnut
Jan.	570620-11	30750-10	137934-12	3350	500		743156-1
Feb.	527486-4	24611-4	135805-14	1650	475		690028-6
March	579425-4½	27325-10	141954-12	2500	210		751415-10½
April	402197-3	24420-2½	151884-15	5775	200		584477-4½
May	400226-4	27190-10	172788-12	4025	650		604880-10
June	582692-11½	22846-6½	187152-14	8900	300		801893
July	565579-5	21655-10	203796-15	10325	850		802206-14
Aug.	559428-7	23021-9	187104-12	12250	300		782104-12
Sept.	552269-6	26379-8	191894-4	7675	400		778618-2
Oct.	558830-11 1/6	25262-9½	184679-12	5725	420		774918-⅔
Nov.	616030	20225-12½	181316-10	6550	497-3		824619-9½
Dec.	363462-8 5/6	20640-10½	116353-2	9000	327-13		509784-2⅓
Total	6278248-12	294330-6½	1992668-1	77725	5130		8648102-3½

SALES 1906

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Honest	Bag Pipe	Cutlass	Beechnut	Col. Long Leaf
Jan.	681419-3	19856-6½		219294-6	10825	200		931594-15½
Feb.	701145-1	16270-10		252380-10	14925	525		985246-5
March	954451-15	16410-12½		293493-6	4825	400		1269581-1½
April	334869-2½	13980-7½		136282-5	5800	300		491231-15
May	504184-4	17500-10	39937-3	165260-13	4650	400		731932-14
June	515883-7	21225-12½	79594	209338-5	8875	25		834941-8½
July	565116	16517-10	114537	251358-12	6725	200		954454-6
Aug.	541701-4	17690-10	168001-11½	294627-12	5850	500		1028371-5½
Sept.	598077-7	15984-12½	140524-½	285459-3	5100	300		1045445-7
Oct.	435210-11	17265-10	197579-6	338211-3	6900	300		995466-14
Nov.	447866-4	13565-10	216107-5½	296175-14	9750	325		983790-1½
Dec.	559287-1	15670-12½	359979-13½	283325-4½	3225	125	1005	1191612-15½
Total	6819211-11½	201939-12	1316260-8	3015207-13½	87450	3600	1005	11443669-13

SALES 1907

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Honest	Cutlass	Bag Pipe	Beech Nut	Hats Scrap	Col. Long Leaf	Total
Jan.	618399-2	14735-7½	216603-2	7200	271588-5	400		10798-10	1139724-10½
Feb.	497927-1	11705-10	265989-13½	4825	221920-2			39038-10	1041406-4½
Mch.	443331-4	16895-12½	342808-2	4300	175703-5½	400		28849-6	1012287-14
Apr.	502784-12⅜	18641-4	350452-8	5800	193562-8	525		2708-4	1074474-4⅜
May	522103-4	19040-10	518600-12½	3400	196010-15½	125		650-10	1259931-4
June	435982-2	14550-12½	377603-14½	3850	141070-10	300		125	973482-7
July	463848-10	16890-10	534132-8	6800	139791-9	225	30		1161718-5
Aug.	443177-8	16390-12½	480779-11	5400	133469-6				1079217-5½
Sept.	424691	14745-10	596782-8	4950	132629-1	130			1173928-3
Oct.	418813-4	12665-10	590002-8	6300	101849-6	200			1129830-12
Nov.	303913-4	12579-13½	425326-3	2100	84972-5½	100			828991-10
Dec.	330109-⅜	11250-10	591922-8	3350	64932-5½	200			1001764-8 1/6
Total	5405080-4⅛	180092-10½	5291004-2½	58275	1857499-15	2605	30	82170-8	12876757-8⅛

SALES 1908

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Honest	Cutlass	Bag Pipe	Beech Nut
Jan.	343027-4	14640-10	663882-8	5925	87987-8	400			1015862-14
Feb.	286388-4	11190-12½	674405	1550	75407-13				1048941-13½
Mch.	320714	12580-10	757118-2	6775	68877-10				1166065-6
Apr.	350983-14	14360-10	825067-10½		68050				1258462-2½
May	336758-12	14190-12½	889204-8½		78105-12½	100			1318369-13½
June	383868	14985-10	1039265-7½		64868-3				1502987-4½
July	371636	17110-10	1038983-4½		71345-10				1499075-8½
Aug.	328195-2	13435-12½	1084591-9		58951-6½	25			1485198-14
Sept.	333857-8	15490-10	1088888-2		56035-2				1494271-6
Oct.	308174-4	11735-12½	1174020-7½		49066-4½	300			1543296-12½
Nov.	297459-8	13120-10	1103687-8		46860-10	100			1461218-4
Dec.	323824-2	12640-10	1199505-2½		42840-10	100			1578910-8½
Total	3984886-10	165483-2	11538619-6	14250	768396-9½	1025			16472660-11½

SALES 1909

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Honest	Natural Leaf	Bag Pipe	Beech Nut	Scrap Iron
Jan.	280877-2	14730-12½	1152395-15	Cutlass	39727-10½			1487731-8
Feb.	236597-4	9515-10	1079374-6		32185-15			1357673-3
Mch.	279438-8	17562-8	1278947-13		59264-11	200		1635413-8
Apr.	257785-2	10809-6	1270924-6		36127-3			1575646-1
May	284417-14	16599-6	1320388-14½	1862-13	34466-3			1657735-2½
June	271104	14459-12½	1506448-2	3002-14⅜	33233-10½	100		1828348-1⅜
July	288909-6	17189-6	1537019-13½	2220	36160-3½	125		1881623-13
Aug.	275106	18844-15½	1553402-13	3330-6⅜	26895-8½			1877579-11⅜
Sept.	262951-4	19114-13	1426279-13½	4680-13⅛	56811-4			1769837-15 5/6
Oct.	250828-4	23130	1430323-2	6901-10⅜	17170-10			1728353-10⅜
Nov.	240634-14	19045-2½	1495858-7 5/6	4710-13⅛	22607-12		64816-6	1847673-7⅜
Dec.	225877-12	29630-15	1510618-2	2551-7⅛	20660-15		32964-14	1822304-1⅛
Total	3154527-6	210632-11	16561981-12⅛	29260-15	415312-10	425	97781-4	20469921-10⅛

PATENT OFFICE LORILLARD EXHIBITS.

1203

Sheet 4.

SALES 1910

	Polar Bear	Old Nut	Honest	Natural Leaf	Bag Pipe	Beech Nut	Scrap Iron
Jan.	237829-12	15177-6	1500370-7½	4620 13⅛	23752-4		21255-11	1803006-5 5/6
Feb.	205130-8	11343-4	1278326-11½	4290-13⅛	18052-4		17114-8	1534258-5/6
Mch.	243637-12	14106-4	1642021-14	4080-13⅛	21426-14		15793-2	1941066-11⅛
Apr.	230334-12	15171-2	1512266-1½	4442-4⅜	23461-9	25	25798-8	1810899-12 1/6
May	269251-8	21087-3	1688776-6½	3076-2⅛	23051-4		22753-11	2027996-2 5/6
June	255684-9⅜	19691-4	1894032-8	4020-10	26526-4		31211-6	2231166-9⅜
July	207738-12	19719-11	1266214-13½	2620-1½	23716-9		22665-14	1542675-13
Aug.	229524	21335-10	1768087-8	4739-6	19866-4		34147-8	2077700-4
Sept.	242142	21360-4	1670575-1	4388-14	24106-4		36116-8	1998688-15
Oct.	234559-6	17185-14¾	1471471-14	4607-14¾	21082-3		43671-1	1792578-6½
Nov.	230256-4	14605-14	1439169-¼	3081-14	20087-8		44191-12	1751392-4¼
Dec.	226924-4	21398-14½	1400001-6¾	1804-1½	24934-13½		27664-6	1702727-14¼
Total	2813013-7⅜	212183-2¼	18531313-12½	45773-12¾	270064-½	25	341783-15	22214157-2⅜

SALES 1911

Jan.	232056	15974-14	1488784-14	2616-11	21542-3		35798-4	1796773-3
Feb.	215148	14420	1370246	2384-4¼	17006-14		28897-6	1648102-8¼
Mch.	238270-14	17757-4½	1534152-12	3150-7	19185-5		30284-10	1842801-4½
Apr.	220420-6	17017-14½	1408625-¾	1071-8¾	18546-9		30295-14	1695977-5
May	250517-12	13956-10	1618278-2¼	4057-15	17926-4		26346-12	1931083-7¼
June	253184-14	18245-12	1658968-6	1921-15	20723-12		27637-8	1980682-3
July	230811-12	16836-9½	1631870-2¾	1791-8¾	17662-13		29477-6	1928450-4
Aug.	235074-6	17770-8	1521656-1	2551-15	17745		28863-8	1823661-6
Sept.	231899-8	18192-10½	1522432-11¼	2016-8¾	18905-5		26043-6	1819490-1½
Oct.	236641-4	15865-8	1471153-2	1228-15	18123-12		29078-12	1772091-5
Nov.	205872-12	15947-14	1279390-2	1512-7	13776-4		27380-1	1543879-8
Dec.	193985	16630-½	1210385-12¾	1350-¾	18114-1		23194-14	1463660-5
Total	2743882-8	198615-9½	17715943-2¾	25654-12¼	219258-7		343298-5	21246652-12½

SALES 1912

		Tomahawk					Panhandle
Jan.	219820-12		16278-10	1451869-7½	2336-11	14225		24679-8	1729210-½
Feb.	190540-1		12727-6½	1319070-15½	856-3	12256-4		19607-5	1555058-3
Mch.	195567-4	50420-4	19198-11½	1275691	693-8¾	13591-4		15853-2	1571015-2¼
Apr.	192724	42904-15½	20169-10	1308241-¼	1323-7	16322-8		21103-14	1602789-6¾
May	228641-8	33229-½	25900-5½	1414580-12½	757-5	17491-9		21993-9	1472594-1½
June	179104-2	37327-1¼	16396-6	1377141-4	1370-2¼	12593-2	29313-10½	18963-12	1672209-8
July	254463-14	44557-7	22048-11½	1580950-9¼	2557-13½	21519-3	294955-1	23525-12	2244578-2¼
Aug.	212731-12	43387-9½	24900-7½	1405051-10	2008-3¾	17855-5	221861-12	23937-6	1951734-1¾
Sept.	187349	44529-3	16072-14	1408931-2	745-15	11146-4	179527-8	17038-8	1865340-6
Oct.	190269-15¼	41007-15	16737-12	1344276-11	1100-5	14292-8	198327-6	19216-8	1825239-¼
Nov.	177467-2	36955-15½	18614-10¾	1296183-2½	586-⅛	9537-13	162966-4½	20899-14	1723210-14¾
Dec.	178781-3	24077-4	16353	1262557-6½	1169-14	11167-2½	127648-3½	21966	1643720-1½
Total	2407460-9¼	398396-11¼	225398-9¼	16444545-1	15505-8¾	171997-14½	1214599-13½	248785-2	21126689-5½

[Note: Sheets 5 and 6, "Sales 1913," show no "Beech Nut" entries.]

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT D—MEMORANDUM BOOK OF SHIPMENTS.

[Note: Only those pages showing "Beech Nut" entries are here printed.]

BEECHNUT.

1904.

		Ave
Jan	1200
Feb	——	—
Mar	1800	67
Apr	1025	39
May	800 4825
June	800–15/ 5625–15/	31
July	200–5/16 5826–4/16	8
Aug	2150 7976–4/	80
Sept	1350 9326–4/	54
Oct	900 10226	35
Nov	250 10476	10
Dec	300 10776	12

1905.

Jan	500	20
Feb	475 975	21

Mch	210 1185	8
Apr	200 1385	8
May	650 2035	26
June	300 2335	12
July	850 3185	34
Aug	300 3485	11
Sep	400 3885	16
Oct	420 4305	16
Nov	497–3/ 4802–3/	20
Dec	327–13/ 5130	13

BEECHNUT.

1906.

Jan	200	08
Feby	525 725	23
Mar	400 1125	15
Apr	300 1425	12
May	400 1825	15
Jun	25 1850	01

July	200	08
	2050
Aug	500	19
	2550
Sept.	300	13
	2850
Oct	300	11
	3150
Nov	325	13
	3475
Dec	125	05
	3600

1907.

BEECHNUT.

Jan	400	15
Feby	——	—
	400
Mar	400	15
	800
Apr	525	20
	1325
May	125	5
	1450
June	300	12
	1750
	225	9
	1975
	——
	1975
	130	5
	2105

	200	7
	2305
	100	4
	2405
	200	8
	2605
	1908.
Jan	400	15
Feb	——	—
	400
Mar	——	—
	400
Apr		—
	400
May	100	4
	500
Jun	——	—
	500
July	——	—
	500
Aug	25	1
	525
Sept		—
	525
Oct	300	11
	825
Nov	100	4
	925
Dec	100	4
	1025

1909.

BEECHNUT.

Jan	——	—
Feby	——	—
Mar	200 200	7
Apr	200	—
May	200	—
June	100 300	4
July	125 425	5
Aug	—— 425	—
Sept	—— 425	—
Oct	—— 425	—
Nov	425	—
Dec	425	—

1910.

Jan	——	—
Feby	——	—
Mar	——	—
Apr	25 25	1

May	25	—
June	25	—
July	25	—
Aug	25	—
Sept	25	—
Oct	25
Nov	25
Dec	25	—

BEECH NUT 1915.

Jan		July	1062765 2763807–8
Feb	11251–11½ 11251–11½	Aug	688985–7½ 3452792–15½
Mar	49353–7 60605–2½	Sept	806894–6 4259687–5½
April	296673–12 357278–14½	Oct	1053655–2¾ 5313342–8¼
May	596956–11½ 954235–10	Nov	1035380–6¼ 6348722–14½
June	746806–14 1701042–8	Dec	1029055–3½ 7377778–2

BEECH NUT 1916.

Jan	1079725–11	July	1446125–15¾ 8643940–¾
Feb	1018382–1 2098107–12	Aug	1688371–9½ 10332311–10¼
Mar	1343017–10 3441125–6	Sept	1478014–6½ 11810326–¾
Apr	1231666–14 4672792–4	Oct	1574509–1 13384835–1¾
May	1325275–8¾ 5998067–12¾	Nov	1425644–10¾ 14810479–12½
June	1199746–4¼ 7197814–1	Dec	1485590–14 16296070–10½

BEECH NUT.

1917.

Jan	1580759–12	July	1466712–½ 10198897–1½
Feb	1637521–12 3218281–8	Aug	2459672–7 12658569–8½
Mar.	1491763–12¼ 4710045–4¼	Sept	1997955–7½ 14656525
Apr.	1444834–2 6154879–6¼	Oct	2109208–8½ 16755733–8½
May	1081891–2¾ 7236770–9	Nov	1599131–15½ 18364865–8
June	1495414–8 8732185–1	Dec	1531816–11½ 19896682–3½

BEECH NUT.

1918.

Jan.	918236–4	July	1518517–2
			11960671–5¾
Feb	2103950–12¼	Aug	1564699–14¼
	3022187–¼		13525371–4
Mar	2037787–2¾	Sept	1203866–13¾
	5059974–3		14729238–1¾
Apr	2197612–6½	Oct	1402560–6¾
	7257586–9½		16131798–8½
May	1828721–13	Nov	1364299–14
	9086308–6½		17496098–6½
June	1355845–13¼	Dec	1640674–2
	10442154–3¾		19136772–8½

BEECH NUT.

1919.

[NOTE: No entries on the page headed "Beech Nut 1919."]

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT E—COPIES OF BEECH-NUT INVOICES, P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

No Claims or return of goods allowed unless made within five days after receipt of Goods.
No insurance on goods unless so ordered.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY

Established 1760. Incorporated.

[Cut]

TOBACCO—CIGARETTES—CIGARS
119 WEST 40TH STREET

MS Mid 9749 NEW YORK, May 1st, 1915.

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse
South Side, Pittsburgh, Pa

Terms Cash:

We allow a discount of 2 % for cash in 10 days from date of bill, payable in New York exchange

No Payment (except at this office) or Advances of any Nature on our Account are Authorized except on our written order.

Goods sold upon the express condition that transportation is at purchasers risk.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio			Order of April 22nd.
281–4 10-1¼ gr Beechnut 5¢ pkg	12½ Gro	5.76	72.00
31–4 Free	Less 10%		7.20
				64.80
200 pkgs Beechnut #90786	Free

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

19654-a NEW YORK, July 8th, 1915.

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
S. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio — Order of J June 26th

150–1¼ gro Honest Scrap	5¢ pkg.	187½ gr	6.00	1125.00
50–1¼ gro Beechnut	"	62½ gr	5.76	360.00
				1485.00
1000 pkgs Beech Nut Free		Less 10%		148.50
				1336.50

Order No. 93488
Balance of order will follow.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 49791 NEW YORK, Jan 14/16

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Terminal Warehouse Sta S. S.
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio — Order of Jan 8

1– 1⅓ Gro Bag Pipe	5¢ Pkg	1⅓ Gro	5.88	7.80
50– 1¼ Gro Beechnut	"	62½ Gro	6.00	375.00
100– 1¼ Gro Honest Scrap	"	125 Gro	6.00	750.00
25– ½ Gro Honest Scrap	"	12½ Gro	6.00	75.00
20– 1¼ Gro Polar Bear	"	25 Gro	5.76	144.00
5– ½ Gro Polar Bear	"	2½ Gro	5.76	14.40
				1366.24
		Less 10%		136.62
#5525				1229.62

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 76128 NEW YORK, July 11. 1916

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J June 22

4– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 5¢ pkg	5 Gro	6.00	30.00
	Less 10%		3.00
				27.00

To E Strong Cadiz Ohio

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

108295-A NEW YORK, Jan 5/17

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouses
So. Side Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J Dec. 23

100– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut	5¢ pkg	125 gro	6.00	750.00
25– ½ gro Beech Nut	"	12½ gro	6.00	75.00
20– 1¼ gro Polar Bear	"	25 gro	6.00	150.00
10– ½ gro Polar Bear	"	5 gro	6.00	30.00
				1005.00
		Less 10%		100.50
					904.50

#24135
Balance of order will follow.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 22205-B NEW YORK, July 12/17

Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse S. S.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J June 12

100– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	125 Gro	6.00	750.00
	Less 10%		75.00
				675.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 62005 NEW YORK, Jan 5-1918
Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS,
Pittsburgh Term Warehouse Co.
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Dec 29-

100–	½ Gro Beechnut 10¢ pkg.	50	gro	11.52	576.00
200–	1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢ pkg.	250	gro	11.52	2880.00
200–	½ Gro Honest 10¢ pkg.	100	gro	11.52	1152.00
200–	1¼ Gro Honest Scrap 10¢	250	gro	11.52	2880.00
25–	1¼ Gro Polar Bear 10¢ pkg.	31¼	gro	11.52	360.00
50–	½ Gro Polar Bear 10¢ pkg.	25	gro	11.52	288.00
					8136.00
				Less 10%	813.60	7322.40

#38498

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 89025 NEW YORK, July 8-18
Sold to THOMAS C. JENKINS Co.,
Pittsburgh Term Warehouse S. C.
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Jun 29

50–10	Pl Climax 35¢ thn 3x12 w. b.	500	pl.	.28	140.00
15– 6	Pl Climax 70¢ thk	90	pl.	.56	50.40
100–	1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢	125	gro	11.52	1440.00
					1630.40
				Less 7% on claim	13.33
						1473.07

#44244

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 14040 A NEW YORK, Jan 14, 1919.
Sold to THOS. C. JENKINS Co.,
Pittsburgh Term. Warehouse, So. Side
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J 11/30

150–	1¼ Gro Beech Nut	10¢	187½	Gro	11.52	2160.00
100–	½ Gro Beech Nut	10¢	50	Gro	11.52	576.00
100–	1¼ Gro Hon Scrap	10¢	125	Gro	11.52	1440.00
						4176.00
	Order #49334.		Less 10%			417.60
						3758.40

Balance of Order will follow.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 63064 NEW YORK, July 12, 1919
Sold to THOS. JENKINS Co.,
Pittsburgh Term. Warehouse, S. S.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

150–	2 Gro Beech Nut	10¢	300	Gro	11.52	3456.00
75–	⅔ Gro Beech Nut	10¢	50	Gro	11.52	576.00
150–	1¼ Gro Hon Scrap	10¢	187½	Gro	11.52	2160.00
75–	½ Gro Hon Scrap	10¢	37½	Gro	11.52	432.00
25–	2 Gro Polar Bear	10¢	50	Gro	11.52	576.00
25–	⅔ Gro Polar Bear	10¢	16⅔	Gro	11.52	192.00
						7392.00
	Order #5720		Less 10%			739.20
						6652.80

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

City-4561 NEW YORK, June 3, 1915

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of A. E. H. 5-27-15

281– 4	Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	12½ Gro	5.76	72.00
31– 4	Free Beechnut "	Less 10%		7.20
		200 pkgs Free			64.80

L. & W. #3014
Delivered by our Mr. S. H. Handy, 5-24-15.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

22827 NEW YORK, July 27/15

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 16

5– 1¼ gr Beech Nut	5¢ pkg	6¼ gr	5.76	36.00
10 5/9 gr Beech Nut	"	5 5/9 gr	5.76	32.00
50– ¼ gr Honest Scrap	"	62½ gr	6.00	375.00
50– ½ gr Honest Scrap	"	25 gr	6.00	150.00
				593.00
		Less 10%		59.30	533.70

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 48096 NEW YORK, Jan 4, 1916

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J Dec. 24

10– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 10c	5¢ pkg	12½ Gro	6.00	75.00
5– 1¼ Gro Polar Bear	"	6¼ Gro	5.76	36.00
10– ¼ Gro Polar Bear	"	5 Gro	5.76	28.80
				139.60
		Less 10%		13.98
					125.82

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 82066 NEW YORK, Aug. 12, 1916

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 25

15– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 5¢ pkg	18¾ Gro	6.00	112.50
	Less 10%		11.52
				101.25

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

110876 NEW YORK, Jan 18/17

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, O. Order of J Jan. 8

30– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	37½ Gro	6.00	225.00
30– 1¼ Gro Honest Scrap "	37½ Gro	6.00	225.00
30– ½ Gro Honest Scrap "	15 Gro	6.00	90.00
			540.00
	Less 10%		54.00
				486.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 20630-B NEW YORK, July 21/17

Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, O Order of J May 21

10– 1¼ Gro Honest Scrap 5¢ pkg	12½ Gro	6.00	75.00
15– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut "	18¾ Gro	6.00	112.50
			187.50
	Less 10%		18.75
				168.75

Balance of order will follow.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/C Mid 61507 NEW YORK, Feb. 5-18-
Sold to S. EWART & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J Jan 3

10–	1¼	Gro Polar Bear 10¢	12½ gro	11.52	144.00
50–	1¼	Gro Honest Scrap 10¢	62½ gro	11.52	720.00
50–	½	Gro Honest 10¢	25 gro	11.52	288.00
50–	1¼	Gro Beechnut 10¢	62½ gro	11.52	720.00
50–	½	Gro Beechnut 10¢	25 gro	11.52	288.00
					2160.00
			Less 10%		216.00 944.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mis 6600 NEW YORK, NOV. 16-1918
Sold to S. EWART Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J Oct. 5-20-

50–	1¼	Gro Beechnut 10¢	62½ gro	11.52	720.00
10–	6	Pl Climax 70¢ thk.	60 pl.	.56	33.60
5–10		Pl Climax 35¢ thn	50 pl.	.28	14.00
					767.60.
			Less 7% on Climax		3.33
					764.27
			Less 10% on Scrap		72.00 692.27

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 12344 D NEW YORK, Jan 6, 1919
Sold to S. EWART,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of S 11/16

25–	½	Gro Beech Nut 10¢	12½ Gro	11.52	144.00
			Less 10%		14.40
					129.60

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 71731 A
Sold to S. EWART Co., NEW YORK Sept. 16, 1919
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

5–2	Gro	Polar Bear	10¢	10	Gro	11.52	115.20
10–⅔	Gro	Polar Bear	10¢	6⅔	Gro	11.52	76.80
50–2	Gro	Beech Nut	10¢	100	Gro	11.52	1152.00
50–⅓	Gro	Beech Nut	10¢	33⅓	Gro	11.52	384.00
16–2	Gro	Hon Scrap	10¢	32	Gro	11.52	368.64
10–⅔	Gro	Hon Scrap	10¢	12⅔	Gro	11.52	145.92

Balance of Order will follow. 2242.56
Less 10% 224.26
2018.30

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

19069 NEW YORK June 30th, 1915.
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J June 24th

112–8	4–1¼Gr Beech Nut	5¢ pkg	5 gr	5.76	28.80
12–8	Free 80 pkgs Beechnut	Free		Less 10%	2.88
					25.92

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

20239 NEW YORK July 8th, 1915.
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Terms Cash:

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 2nd

4–1¼ gr	Beechnut	5¢ pkg	5 gr	5.76	28.80
	Beechnut "	80 pkgs	Free	Less 10%	2.88
					25.92

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 50120 NEW YORK Jan 14. 1916
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Jan 8

15–1 ¼ Gro Beechnut 5¢Pkg	18¾ Gro	6.00	112.50
		Less 10%	11.52
				101.25

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

EW Mid 79146 NEW YORK July 19. 1916
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J July 10

2–1
20–1¼ Beechnyt 5¢ pkg	25 Gro	6.00	150.00
		Less 10%	13.00
Balande of order will follow				135.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 209–A NEW YORK Feb. 7/17
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J Jan 22

25–1 ¼ Gro Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	31¼ Gro	6.00	187.50
		Less 10%	18.75
Balance of order will follow.				168.75

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 21001–B NEW YORK July 21/17
Sold to ARBUCKLES & COMPANY,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, O Order of J May 21

20–1¼ Gro Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	25 Gro	6.00	150.00
15–1¼ Gro Polar Bear "	18–¾ Gro	6.00	112.50
			262.50
(Balance of order will follow)		Less 10%	26.25
				236.25

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 64579 NEW YORK Feb. 2–1918
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh Pa.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of S Jan 26-

50–1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢	62½gro	11.52	720.00
50–1¼ Gro Honest 10¢	62½gro	11.52	720.00
			1440.00
#7		Less 10%	144.00	1296.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 94968 NEW YORK, Aug. 16/18
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of S Aug 6

50–1¼ Gro	Honest	10¢	62½ Gro	11.52	720.00
200–1¼ Gro	Beechnut	10¢	250 Gro	11.52	2880.00
					3600.00
			Less 10%		360.00	3240.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

A Mid 18325 NEW YORK Jan 14, 1919
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J 1/2

100–	1¼ Gro	Beech Nut	10¢	125	Gro	11.52	1440.00
125–	1¼ Gro	Hon Scrap	10¢	156¼	Gro	11.52	1800.00
25–	1¼ Gro	Polar Bear	10¢	31¼	Gro	11.52	360.00
							3600.00
						Less 10%	360.00	3240.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 75239 A NEW YORK Aug 26, 1919
Sold to ARBUCKLES & Co.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

50–	2 Gro	Beech Nut	10¢	100	Gro	11.52	1152.00
30–	2 Gro	Hon Scrap	10¢	60	Gro	11.52	691.20
							1843.20
Balance of Order will follow.						Less 10%	184.32	1658.88

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

2252 NEW YORK July 12, 1915.
Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORE Co.,
44 W. 19th St.,
New York City, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 3

2–1⅓ Gro	Bag	Pipe	5¢ pkg	2⅔	gr	5.88	15.68
4–1¼ gr	Beech	Nut	"	5	gr	5.76	28.80
							44.48
#N–57507						Less 10%	4.45	40.03

[P. Lorillard Co. Pill Head.]

22844 NEW YORK July 24, 1915
Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORES Co.,
44 West 18th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 17

2–1⅓ gr Bag Pipe	5¢ Pkg	2⅔ gr	5.88	15.68
8–1¼ gr Beech Nut	"	10 gr	5.76	57.60
				73.28
		Less 10%		7.33
#N 60293					65.95

Depot c/o Bush Terminal Co., 36th St. Sta. Brooklyn, N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 47494 NEW YORK Jan 3. 1916
Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORES Co.
314 W. Superior St.
Chicago Ill.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of S Jan 3

10– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 5¢ Pkg	12½ Gro	6.00	75.00
40– 1¼ Gro Polar Bear	50 Gro	5.76	288.00
			363.00
	Less 10%		36.30
681996
81997				326.70

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 57574-B NEW YORK July 6/16
Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORES Co.
44 West 18th St.,
New York N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of S June 17

40– ¼ Beechnut 5¢ pkg	50 Gro	300.00
	Less 10%	30.00
N 49570
Depot c/o Bush Terminal Co. 36th St. Sta. Brooklyn N Y			270.00

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 101132 NEW YORK Jan 8th/17

Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORES Co.,
44 West 18th St.,
New York City.

Shipped from Middletown, O Order of J Nov 11th

80– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut 5¢ pkg	100 Gro	6.00	600.00
	Less 10%		60.00
				540.00

N 81694

Depot Bush Term. Bldg 35th Sts. & 2nd Ave. Brooklyn, N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 19560 NEW YORK July 7/17

Sold to UNITED CIGAR STORES Co.,
44 W. 18th St.,
New York City.

Shipped from Middletown, O Order of J May 15

2– 1¼ Gro Bag Pipe 5¢ pkg	2½ Gro	6.00	15.00
80– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut "	100 Gro	6.00	600.00
			615.00
	Less 10%		61.50
				553.50

P 21943

Depot c/o Bush Term. Co., 36th St. Sta. Bldg. 4 Brooklyn, N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 62837 NEW YORK Feb. 20-18
Sold to UNITED CIG. STORES
44 W. 18th St.,
New York N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of

80– 1¼ Gro Polar Bear 10¢ Order # P 73070	100	gro	11.52	1152.00
80– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢ Order # P 73060	100	gro	11.52	1152.00
				2304.00
		Less 10%		230.40	2073.60

To Depot Bush Terminal Co., 36th St. Sta. Bldg. #4 Bklyn N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 5930 NEW YORK Nov. 21-1918
Sold to UNITED CIG. STORES CO. OF AMERICA,
44 West 18th St.,
New York City.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Oct. 7-

160– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢	200	gro	11.52	2304.00
2– 1¼ Gro Bag Pipe 10¢ pkg.	2½	gro	11.52	28.80
				2332.80
		Less 10%		233.28
					2099.52

To U. C. S. Co., 39th St., & 1st Ave., Bush Terminal Brklyn N. Y.
23291

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

Mid 26880 NEW YORK Mar 20, 1919

Sold to UNITED CIG. STORES CO. OF AMERICA,
44 West 18th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J 2/18

150– 2	Gro Beech Nut 10¢	300 Gro 11.52	3456.00
		Less 10%	345.60
	Order # B45088			3110.40

To Depot 39th St & 1st Ave., Bush Term. Bklyn, N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 70104 NEW YORK Aug. 7, 1919

Sold to UNITED CIG. STORES CO. OF AMERICA
44 W. 18th St.,
New York, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

25– 2	Gro Beech Nut 10¢	50 Gro 11.52	576.00
		Less 7%	40.32
	Order # B 80596			535.68

To Depot 39th St & 1st Ave., Bush. Term., Brklyn, N. Y.

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

LW 29386 NEW YORK Aug. 11, 1917

Sold to METROPOLITAN TOB. CO., Yonkers Brch.,
Yonkers, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J July 3

4– 1¼	Gro Beech Nut 10¢ pkg	5 Gro 11.52	57.60
		Less 10%	5.76
	# 11Y			51.84

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 64056 NEW YORK Apr. 9-1918
Sold to METROPOLITAN TOB. Co.,
Yonkers Br.,
Yonkers N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Jan 25-

4– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢ pkg.	5	gro	11.52	57.60
			Less 10%	5.76	51.84

Order # 104Y

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

R/S Mid 92145 NEW YORK Aug. 1-18
Sold to METROPOLITAN TOB. Co.,
Brooklyn Br.,
649 Warren St.,
Brooklyn N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown Ohio Order of J Jul-19

4– 1¼ Gro Beechnut 10¢	5	gro	11.52	57.60
8– 1¼ Gro Honest 10¢	10	gro	11.52	115.20
				172.80
			Less 10%	17.28	155.52

Order # 87B

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 19479 NEW YORK Jan 21, 1919
Sold to METROPOLITAN TOB. Co.,
Yonkers Brch.,
Yonkers, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of J 1/3

8– 1¼ Gro Hon Scrap 10¢	10	Gro	11.52	115.20
8– 1¼ Gro Polar Bear 10¢	10	Gro	11.52	115.20
8– 1¼ Gro Beech Nut 10¢	10	Gro	11.52	115.20
				345.60
			Less 10%	34.56	311.04

Order # 17Y

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

AC Mid 67927 NEW YORK Aug. 7, 1919
Sold to METROPOLITAN TOB. Co.,
2234 4th Ave. Cor. Astor Pl. & Lafayette St.,
New York, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

25– 2	Gro Hon Scrap 10¢	50	Gro	11.52	576.00
25– 2	Gro Beech Nut 10¢	50	Gro	11.52	576.00
					1152.00
				Less 7%	80.64
	Order # 27					1071.36

[P. Lorillard Co. Bill Head.]

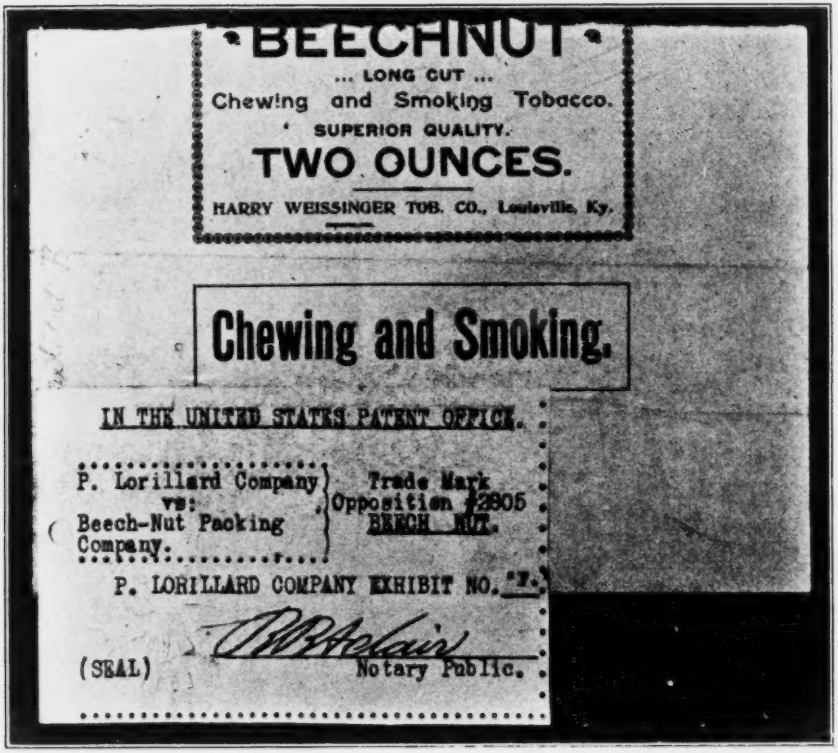
AC Mid 2909 NEW YORK Nov. 28, 1919
Sold to D. A. SCHULTE, Inc.,
384 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.

Shipped from Middletown, Ohio Order of

2– 2	Gro Beech Nut 10¢	4	Gro	11.52	46.08
1– 2	Gro Hon Scrap 10¢	2	Gro	11.52	23.04
					69.12
				Less 10%	6.91	62.21

To—Columbus, Ohio.

P. LORILLARD EXHIBIT F—PORTION OF THE ORIGINAL WEISSINGER "BEECHNUT" TOBACCO WRAPPER.



P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT H—WEISSINGER FORMULA BOOK.

(NOTE: 200 page Memoranda Book, of which only the front outside cover and the entry headed "Beechnut" are printed.)

[On outside front cover.]

JAS. F. SUMMERS.

H. W. TOB. Co.

[On a page about three-quarters way through the book:]

Beechnut
Chewing & Smoking (Cigar Clippings)

Sugar	110
Licorice	35
Salt	7
Glycerine	5
	157

Dip @ 22°
Cost .05⅓ ¢ per lb.

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT I—ORDERS TO SUMMERS FROM WEISSINGER.

NEW YORK Jan 12/03
H. W. TOB. Co.

Copy
Jim Summers

After filling orders for Beechnut on hand & those we may mail you today—pack Beechnut only in 1 size case of 100#

CONTINENTAL TOB. Co.

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT J—LETTERS PRODUCED BY SUMMERS.

HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO COMPANY.

INCORPORATED.

HARRY WEISSINGER, President.
JOHN MIDDLETON, Vice President.
F. E. PHILLIPS, Superintendent.
H. D. KINGSBURY, Treasurer.
H. Y. WEISSINGER, Secretary.
GEO. E. RAWSON, Asst. Secy.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Feb. 6, 1903.

Copy
Dictated to

HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO CO.,
Louisville, Ky.

Gentlemen:—

Referring to the box of advertising matter you sent us some days ago, we will request that you destroy the following:

2,000 Manila envelopes addressed to "Harry Weissinger Tob. Co."
5,300 BEECHNUT paper signs (white)
800 CLEAVER paper signs (Manila)
28,000 circulars addressed to Consumer, Nov 1st, 1902, (white)
56,000 circulars addressed to Consumer, Nov 1st, 1902, (yellow)
28,000 premium circulars No. 1 (yellow)
20,000 premium circulars No. 2 (yellow)
138,000 premium circulars No. 3 (yellow)
320,000 BURR OAK samples wrappers
50 New Hope, 15oz., sample boxes (red)
1,500 OUR FLAG cards reading "A Man Murdered" (Blue Card-board)
20,000 Yellow notices reading "This tobacco is made by an independent factory not in the trust."

2,500 BURR OAK box strips, (white card-board)
300 AUTUMN box strips (white card-board)
2,000 OLD KENTUCKY box strips (white card-board)
1,300 PEACE & GOOD WILL box strips (white card-board)
3,000 HOLD FAST box strips. (white card-board)
2,500 New HOPE box strips (white card-board)
4,400 CHECK show cards (yellow)
42,000 OLD KENTUCKY show cards (yellow)
38,500 BURR OAK show cards (yellow)
21,000 PEACE & GOOD WILL show cards (yellow)
3,400 premium hangers (tin top and bottom)
1,900 H. W. T. Co. Premium Books, 1902, containing complete list of premiums, (Retain 100)

Yours very truly,

CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO.
W. H. MCALISTER,
Secretary.

[In pencil.]
Copy
Jim Summers

HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO COMPANY.

INCORPORATED.

HARRY WEISSINGER, President.
JOHN MIDDLETON, Vice President.
F. E. PHILLIPS, Superintendent.
H. Y. WEISSINGER, Sey. & Treas.

Dictated by LOUISVILLE, KY., December 11, 1903.

COL. HARRY WEISSINGER,
%Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co., Copy.
Louisville, Ky.

Dear Sir:—

You will kindly send all of thw Burley strips you have to the National, at 18th and Broadway, with the exception of the K.K.'s, which will go to St. Louis, and the K.U.'s to Rich ond. Seed-Leaf strips hold until I can hear from Sorg. Bill all Bueley Leaf and strips to the Louisville Leaf Dept., of C T Co., but sent them to 17th and Broadway. Send all wrappers to the National, 18th and Broadway, except "C" extra bright, which they will be unable to use there. I will write Mr. H A Walker today, as it might be possible to place these wrappers in the West. If not, we will ship them to Richmond. Bill wrappers to the National Tobacco Works Branch, as we will take them into the factory. We will also take your 5,000 lbs. of Burley siftings at the National. They can be billed to the National direct.

As we decided in our conversation this morning, it will not be necessary to move any of the wrappers or strips in our own storage warehouse, but simply to bill them as directed as above and will take them out as needed.

Me. Hanlon says he is ready to take hold of your Licorice, sugar and other materials anytime you are ready to send them.

Yours very truly,

R. K. SMITH.

[In pencil.]
Col Phillips

[Underlining in lead pencil. Opposite underlining in right margin are some pencilled words:]

Beechnut only scrap—send seed leaf for Beechnut.
HCB

P. LORILLARD CO. EXHIBIT K—BOX LIST.

[NOTE: Italics indicate items written in pencil.]

HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO CO.

SMOKING BOXES.

1	Smokers	11¾ x 11½ x 9	10#	1⅔ oz	Flag 11¢
2	"	11½ x 9⅝ x 6	5#	1⅔ oz.	Flag 10¢
3	"	18 x 17⅛ x 11¼	30#	" "	" 25¢
4	" Bat.	34⅛ x 18 x 11¼	60#	" "	" 40¢
5	" "	29 x 22¼ x 17⅞	100#	" "	" 41¢
6	"	11¼ x 9 x 8¼	10#	3⅓ oz.	" 9¢
7	"	9 x 6½ x 7⅜	6#	16 oz.	" 8¢
8	"	12⅞ x 9 x 7⅜	12#	" "	" 10¢
9	" Bat.	22½ x 13 x 12	50#	" "	" 30¢
#10	"	11⅜ x 9⅝ x 5⅝	5#	1⅓ oz.	Kip 10¢
#11	"	11¼ x 11⅜ x 9¾	10#	" "	" 12¢
#12	"	12⅜ x 8⅜ x 7⅜	5#	" "	B.R. 10¢
#13	"	10¾ x 9¾ x 9½	5#	3⅓ oz.	3 St. 10¢
#14	"	19⅛ x 10¾ x 9½	10#	" "	" 16½¢
15	"	25⅜ x 14⅛ x 11	20#	2½ oz	B Nut 24¢
16	"	12¾ x 14⅛ x 11	10#	2½	" " 17½¢
17	"	31½ x 28 x 22	100 lbs	B.N.	" " 85¢
18	"	14⅜ x 11⅛ x 9⅛	10 lbs.	1st cabin	12¢
19	"	28⅝ x 11⅛ x 9⅛	20	" "	"
20	"	35½ x 22¼ x 18⅛	100 lbs	"	" 67¢
21	" G. I.	14⅜ x 11⅛ x 9⅛	10 lbs	R. I.	x
22	" G. I.	28⅝ x 11⅛ x 9⅛	20	" " "	x
23	" G. I.	35½ x 22¼ x 18⅛	100 lbs	" "	x
24	"	11½ x 9¾ x 5¾	6#	Cleaver
25	"	11⅞ x 11½ x 9⅝	12	"	12¼¢
26	"	19½ x 11½ x 11¼	24	"
27	"	14 x 10¼ x 8⅝	10	3½ oz. 1st Cabin	11½¢

New Smokers.

#1	10 lb.	Flag	1⅔ oz.	11 x 10⅛ x 8⅞	10¢
#	20 "	"	1⅔ oz.	20¼ x 11 x 8⅞	17¢

#1	10 lbs.	Flag	1⅔ oz.	11⅛ x 10¼ x 9	11¢
#2	20 "	"	"	20½ x 11⅛ x 9	17½¢

CLERK'S CERTIFICATE.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA,
THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT. } Sct.:

I, Saunders Lewis, Jr., clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Third Circuit, DO HEREBY CERTIFY the foregoing to be a true and faithful copy of the original transcript of record, Vol. VI, Exhibits, in the case of: Beech-Nut Packing Company, appellant, vs. P. Lorillard Co., appellee, No. 3282, on file, and now remaining among the records of the said Court, in my office.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the seal of the said Court, at Philadelphia, this 30th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and fiftieth.

SAUNDERS LEWIS, JR.,
Clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

ORDER ALLOWING CERTIORARI—Filed January 11, 1926

The petition herein for a writ of certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit is granted. And it is further ordered that the duly certified copy of the transcript of the proceedings below which accompanied the petition shall be treated as though filed in response to such writ.

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1926.

273

9

No. 249.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

On Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Petition for Certiorari Filed December 8, 1925. Certiorari Granted January 11, 1926.

INDEX OF EXHIBITS.

INDEX OF EXHIBITS.

Part I.—Plaintiff's Exhibits.

[NOTE: The absence of a page number in the last column indicates that exhibit is not printed.]

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, Package of Beech-Nut Cigarettes	I–	32	1
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 2, Photograph, West Haven Drug Store Window Display	I–	325	3
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3, Package of Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	I–	330	5
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 4, Package of Beech-Nut Cough Drops	I–	333	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 5, Beech-Nut Strawberry Jam Label	I–	240	.....
[No Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 6 and 7.]
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 8, Wesling Memorandum	I–	535	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 9, Fairfield Illustrative Collection Anti-Cigarette Literature	I–	641	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 10, Fairfield Illustrative Collection of Letters Received by Anti-Cigarette League	I–	644	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 11, Allied Tobacco Industries Exposition Letter	I–	645	5
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 12, Scrap-Book of Circulars, Letters, etc., A to A-24, Inclusive	I–659 I–860 I–876 V–165		7
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 13, Photograph, Pennell's Cigar Store Window Display	I–	706	55
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 14, Receipt Signed "E. L. Larson"	I–	759	57

J4 5970

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 15, Photograph, Collection of Beech-Nut Packing Company Products, 1922	I–801		59
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 16, Portion of Shipping Carton Used by Beech-Nut Packing Company	I–801		61
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 17, P. Lorillard Company Beech-Nut Cigarettes Carton	I–801		61
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 18, Publication Bon Jour of Dec. 4 and 5, 1891	I–801		63
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 19, Photograph, Scrap-Books of Beech-Nut Packing Company Periodical Advertising, 1911-1915	I–802		65
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 20, Book of Data re Plaintiff's Advertising	I–803		.....
Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 21-26, Scrap-Books Nos. 1-6 of Plaintiff's Advertising Material	I–812		.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 27, Beech-Nut Chewing Gum Display Box	I–824		67
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28, Board: Beech-Nut Labels Displayed Before the Public, 1891-1921	I–857 V–165		70 .....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 29, Imperial Packing Company's Glass Jar	I–838		.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 30, Open Neck Jar of 1900	I–838		.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 31, Imperial Packing Company Box of 1891	I–858		73
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 32, Collection of Lorillard Posters and Signs	I–862 V–165		75
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 33, Scrap-Book, Collection of Labels Used by Defendant	I–863 V–165		.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 34, Scrap-Book Collection of Specimens of Defendant's Publication Advertising	I–864 V–165		.....

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 35, Summary of Beech-Nut Packing Company Products	V	70	77
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 36, Advertisement of Beech-Nut Cigarettes, New York Evening Sun	V	83	108
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 37, Package of Charles & Co. "Bon Voyage" Cigarettes	V	90	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 38, Berry Photograph of Auster Window Display, Baltimore	V	93	109
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 39, P. Lorillard Company Bathing Girl Poster	V	93	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 40, The National Financial News of May 28, 1923	V	98	111
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 41, Certified Copy Decision of Examiner of Interferences, Opposition No. 2805	V	166	114
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 42, Certified Copy, Decision of Assistant Commissioner of Patents, Opposition No. 2805	V	166	123
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 43, Box of Helmar Cigarettes	V	223	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 44, Box of Egyptian Deities Cigarettes	V	227	.....
Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 45, Collection of Beech-Nut Packing Company Products	V	256	.....

Part II.—Beech-Nut Packing Company Exhibits.

In the United States Patent Office Trade-Mark Opposition No. 2805, P. Lorillard Company v. Beech-Nut Packing Company.

	Offered Vol.	Offered Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Beech-Nut Exhibit, Certified Copy, Certificate of Incorporation of Beech-Nut Packing Company	IV-	8	127
Beech-Nut Exhibit, Summary of Products	IV-	10	.....
Beech-Nut Exhibit, Collection of Labels	IV-	10	.....
Beech-Nut Exhibit, Stationery of 1892, Imperial Packing Company	IV-	28	131
Beech-Nut Exhibit, Correspondence	IV-	39	133
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 1, P. Lorillard Company "Polar Bear" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV-	173	142
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 1-A, Luhrman & Wilbern "Polar Bear" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV-	175	143
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 2, P. Lorillard Company "Scrap Iron" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV-	174	146
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 2-A, Luhrman & Wilbern "Scrap Iron" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV-	176	147
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 2-C, P. Lorillard Company "Scrap Iron" Scrap Tobacco Bag, Bearing Words "Stock Owned by P. Lorillard Co." in Rubber Stamp	IV-	183	150
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 2-D, P. Lorillard Company "Scrap Iron" Scrap Tobacco Bag, Bearing Words "Stock Owned by P. Lorillard Co." Printed	IV-	183	151
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 3, P. Lorillard Company "Old Nut" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV-	175	153

	Offered Vol. Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit No. 4, P. Lorillard Company "Bag Pipe" Scrap Tobacco Bag	IV–177	155
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit, Lorillard Beech-Nut Cigarettes Wrapper	IV–235	157
Beech-Nut Cross Exhibit, Trade-Mark Registration No. 89,613 of Dec. 31, 1912	IV–235	159

Part III.—Defendant's Exhibits.

Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 1, Package of Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	I–35, I–873	161
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 2, Package of Beech-Nut Chewing Gum	I–37, I–873	163
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 3, Sheet Bearing Beech-Nut Packing Company's Label (Chewing Gum Flap)	I–47, I–873	.....
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 4, Carton Beech-Nut Cigarettes	I–86, I–873	.....
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 5, Advertisement of Beech-Nut Cigarettes, Boston Herald of Aug. 18, 1921	I–138 I–873	165
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 6, Package of Beech-Nut Peppermints	I–145 I–873	167
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 7, Beech-Nut Peanut Butter	I–301 I–873	.....
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 8, Beech-Nut Bacon Label	I–430 I–874	169
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 9, Open Carton Beech-Nut Cigarettes	I–518 I–874	.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 10, P. Lorillard Company Order Blanks, A, B and C	II–479	171
Defendant's Exhibit No. 11, Photograph West Haven Drug Store Display	II–1213	173

[No Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 12, 13 and 14.]

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 15, Four Advertisements of Beech-Nut Packing Company Products from Ladies Home Journal of Nov., 1920, Jan., March, and May, 1921	I–811 I–874		.....
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 16, Beech-Nut Packing Company's Erie Brand Label	I–846 I–874		175
Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 17, Beech-Nut Packing Company's Holly Brand Label	I–847 I–874		177
Defendant's Exhibit No. 18, Pamphlet Entitled "Correspondence — Beech-Nut Packing Company and P. Lorillard Company in re 'Beech-Nut' Trade-Mark"	V–124		179
Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 19-29, Defendant's Exhibit Books Nos. I-XI	V–130		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 30, Newton's List of Trade-Mark Registrations	V–136 V–155		217
Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 31, 32, and 33, Books of Trade-Mark Registrations, Vols. I, II and III, respectively	V–136 V–155
Defendant's Exhibit No. 34, Patent Office Pamphlet Showing Trade-Marks Classification	V–136 V–155		234
Defendant's Exhibit No. 35, List of Brands	V–147		235
Defendant's Exhibit No. 36, Assignment, American Tobacco Company to P. Lorillard Company, Dec. 1, 1911	V–148		249
Defendant's Exhibit No. 37, Package of Bagley's "Hazel Nut" Tobacco	V–174		253
Defendant's Exhibit No. 38, Package of "Bag Pipe" Scrap Tobacco	V–175		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 39, Package of "Honest" Scrap Tobacco	V–180
Defendant's Exhibit No. 40, Package of "Polar Bear" Scrap Tobacco	V–182		.....

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
Defendant's Exhibit No. 41, Package of "Murad" Cigarettes	V–217		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 42, Package of "Turkish Trophies" Cigarettes	V–218		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 43, Package of "London Life" Cigarettes	V–218		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 44, Package of "Windsor Castle Fags" Cigarettes	V–218		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 45, Lorillard Specimen Wrapper Design for Beech-Nut Cigarettes	V–222		255
Defendant's Exhibit No. 46, Package of "Zubelda" Cigarettes	V–222		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 47, Package of "Sweet Caporal" Cigarettes	V–222		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 48, Collection of P. Lorillard Company Products	V–255		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 49, Collection of Mogul, Omar, and Camel Products	V–256		.....
Defendant's Exhibit No. 50, Lorillard Window Display Advertising	V–257		.....

Part IV—P. Lorillard Company Exhibits.

In the United States Patent Office Trade-Mark Opposition No. 2805, P. Lorillard Company v. Beech-Nut Packing Company.

P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 1, Statement of Sales of Beech Nut Tobacco Products by Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Co. and P. Lorillard Co. from 1904 to 1919	IV–107		257
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 2, Package of Lorillard's Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	IV–107		262
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 3, Carton for Lorillard's Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	IV–108		.....

	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 4, Posters Advertising Lorillard's Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	IV–108		.....
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 5, Luhrman & Wilbern "Beechnut" Tobacco Bag	IV–110		263
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 6, Package of Lorillard's Beech-Nut Cigarettes	IV–114		265
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 7, Letter, Aug. 25, 1916, from Walcutt Brothers Co. to P. Lorillard Co.	IV–114		267
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 8, Order for Beech Nut Cigarette Shells	IV–114		268
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 9, "Broecker" Correspondence	IV–116		269
P. Lorillard Exhibit No. 10, "Schutz" Correspondence	IV–166		272
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 11, Weissinger "Beechnut" Invoices	IV–123		.....
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 12, Continental Tobacco Co. "Beechnut" Invoices	IV–124		.....
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 13, Luhrmann & Wilbern Tobacco Co. "Beechnut" Invoices	IV–124		.....
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 14, Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. "Beechnut" Tobacco Bag	IV–136		273
[No P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 15.]
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 16, Package of Lorillard's Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco	IV–149		275
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit No. 17, Package of Luhrmann & Wilbern Tobacco Co.'s "Beechnut" Tobacco	IV–137		275
[No P. Lorillard Co. Exhibits Nos. 18 and 19.]

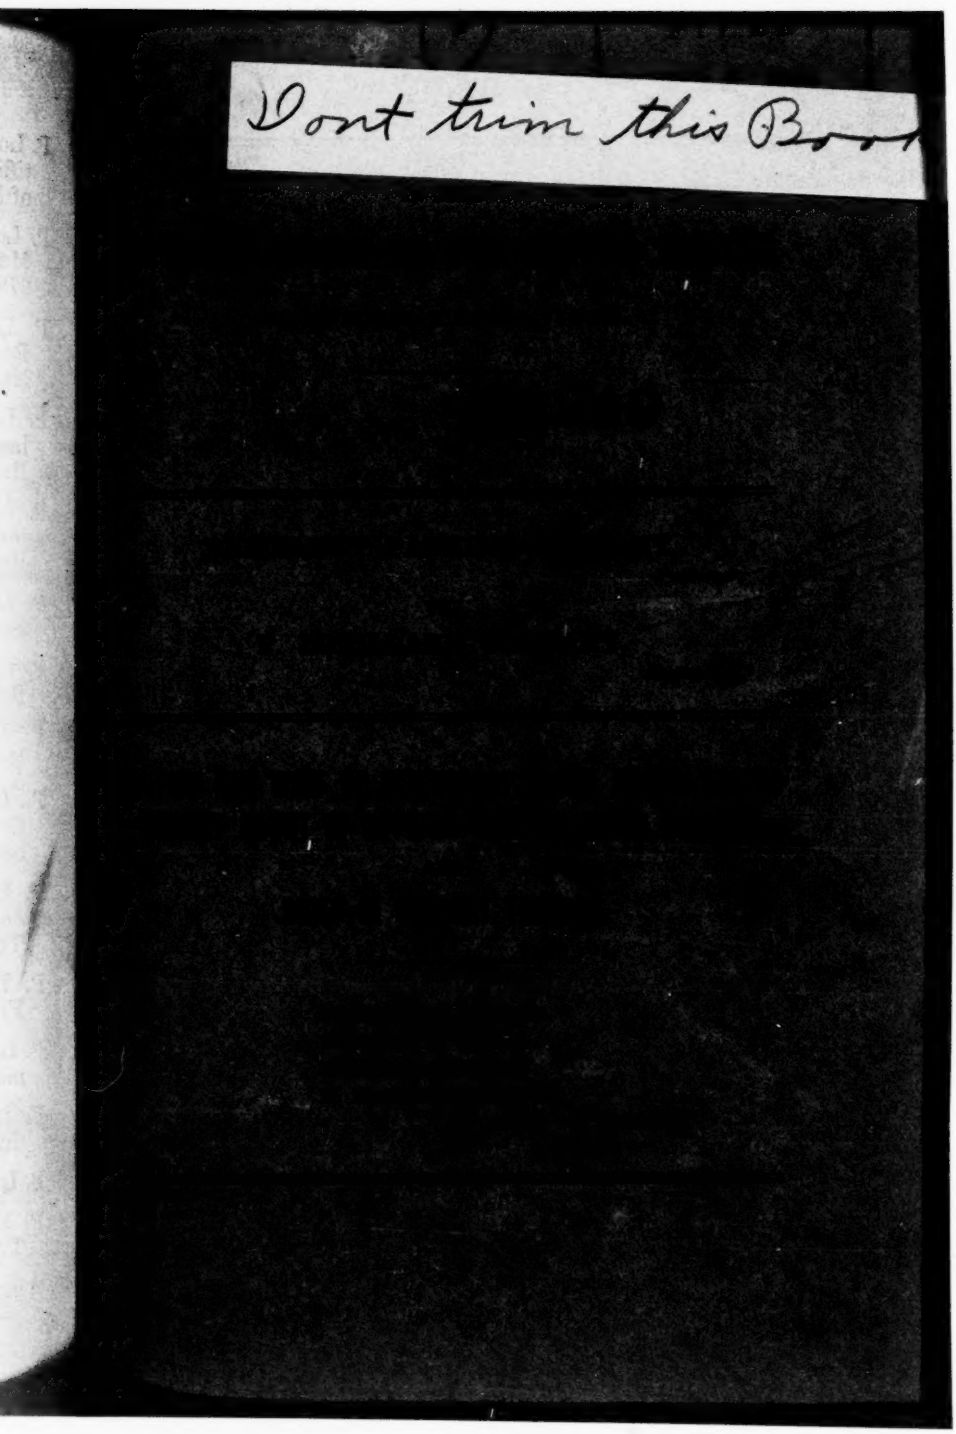
	Offered Vol.	Page	Printed Vol. VI Page
P. Lorillard Co. Cross Exhibit No. 20, Certified Copy, Certificate of Incorporation of Imperial Packing Company	IV-	14	275
P. Lorillard Cross Exhibit No. 21, Trade-Mark Registrations No. 19,838; No. 24,978; No. 35,371; and No. 36,444	IV-	26	279
P. Lorillard Co. Cross Exhibit No. 22, Beech-Nut Packing Company's "Beech-Nut Cigarettes" Label	IV-	26	291
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit A, Book Showing Revenue Stamps Used on Tobacco Brands, 1904-1906	IV-	171	293
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit B, Book Showing Revenue Stamps Used on Tobacco Brands, 1906-1910	IV-	171	301
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit C, Sales Sheets Showing Shipments Beechnut, 1904-1910	IV-	171	311
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit D, Memorandum Book of Shipments	IV-	171	315
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit E, Copies of Beech-Nut Invoices, P. Lorillard Co	IV-	171	323
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit F, Portion of the Original Weissinger "Beechnut" Tobacco Wrapper	IV-	210	340*a*
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit G, Package of John Finzer & Brothers "Five Bros." Tobacco	IV-	203	.....
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit H, Weissinger Formula Book	IV-	212	341
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit I, Orders to Summers from Weissinger	IV-	213	341
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit J, Letters Produced by Summers	IV-	213	342
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit K, Box List	IV-	214	345
P. Lorillard Co. Exhibit L, Connorton's Tobacco Directory, 1903	IV-	225	.....



Dont trim this Book

INDEX.

	Page
PETITION:	1
Reasons for petition	2
Questions involved	3
This case	4
Conflicting decisions	5
The English cases	6
The rule of law established by the Court of Appeals in this case	7
The conflict	9
Conclusion	9
BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION:
Reference to opinions below	13
The facts	14
The decision	19
Conflicting cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits	19
The Vogue case in the Sixth Circuit	20
The Penslar case in the Sixth Circuit	24
The Aunt Jemima case in the Second Circuit	26
The law in England	28
Previous decisions of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals	30
Conclusion	32
Appendix: Specimens of labels	34-37

Table of Cases Cited.

AMERICAN CASES.

Akron Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., 273 Fed. 674 30

Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 Fed. 407 ..... 6, 26

Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson, 247 Fed. 658 ..... 5, 24

Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. John F. Elliott, — Fed. — 31
Vogue Co. v. Thomson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509; 6 Fed. (2nd) 875 ..... 5, 20
Wall v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., 4 Fed. (2nd) 333 30

ENGLISH CASES.

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Lubricant Co., 16 Reports Patent Cases, 12 ..... 6, 28
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop-Truffault Cycle & Tube Mfg. Co., 12 Times Law Reports, 434 ..... 7, 29
Eastman Co. v. Kodak Cycle Co., 15 Reports Patent Cases, 105 ..... 6, 28
Premier Cycle Co. v. Premier Tube Co., 12 Times Law Reports, 481 ..... 7, 29
Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 17 Reports Patent Cases, 673 ..... 6, 29
Walter v. Ashton, [1902] 2 Chancery, 282 ..... 6, 29

Statute Cited.

Judicial Code, Section 240(a), as amended by Section 1 of the Act of Feb. 13, 1925 11

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1925.

No. .

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,

Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,

Respondent.

PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT.

To the Honorable, the Supreme Court of the United States:

Petitioner, the Beech-Nut Packing Company, prays for a writ of certiorari requiring that the above-entitled cause be certified to this Court for determination.[1]

---

[1] The opinions delivered in the courts below appear:

Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit: —— Fed. ——; Transcript of Record, Vol. V, pp. 308-319.

District Court of the United States, District of New Jersey: 299 Fed. 834; Transcript, Vol. V, pp. 259-291.

The case is a suit in equity brought by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, a New York corporation, against the P. Lorillard Company, a New Jersey corporation. The bill charged that the P. Lorillard Company was infringing the trade-mark rights of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and was also violating rights secured to the Beech-Nut Packing Company by the principles of law known as the law of unfair competition, and asked for an injunction and other relief. The bill was filed June 17, 1921, in the United States District Court for New Jersey. Relief was denied and the bill dismissed June 17, 1924, by the District Court without costs to either party. Upon appeal the decree of the District Court was affirmed September 11, 1925, by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Judicial Circuit.

Reasons for Petition.

The grounds upon which this petition is based are the importance of the principle of law established in the Third Judicial Circuit by the decision of the court below, and the fact that that principle of law is in direct conflict with the law established by prior decisions of the Circuit Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Judicial Circuits.

The case at bar was decided by the court below upon a question of law. The ruling of the court below upon this question of law affects the business interests of the country generally and the interests of the purchasing public as vitally as it affects the interests of the parties brought before this Court by this petition. Twice in the Sixth Judicial Circuit and once in the Second Judicial Circuit the same question has been adjudicated, and in each of these three prior cases the decision of the Court of Appeals has been in direct conflict with the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Judicial Circuit in the case at bar. In a number of cases in the English courts also the same question has been litigated, and decided as decided here in the Sixth and Second Circuits, and contrary to the decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the case at bar.

Question Involved.

The question involved is this: Where the good-will of an established and expanding business, and its trade-mark, trade name, corporate name or label have become so widely known that the public accepts as the products of that business new commodities not previously dealt in by it, but bearing its trade-mark, trade name or label,—is it a fraud, or is it the exercise of a legal right, for a stranger to put upon the market some commodity not previously dealt in by the established business, affix thereto and make advertising use of the trade-mark, trade name or label of the established business, and by that means deceive the purchasing public, appropriate and injure the good-will of the established business, and bar the expansion of the established business to commodities upon which its trade-mark, trade name or label will signify to the public that such commodities are its product? Is relief in such situations to be limited by an artificial rule that the courts will not interfere where such a stranger selects goods that are "not of the same class" as those dealt in by such previously established business, even though the whole consuming public be deceived and the prior party's reputation and good-will be thus placed at the mercy of a person over whom it has no control?

This Case.

Upon a state of facts identical with that set forth in the preceding paragraph the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit held in the case at bar that, because the Beech-Nut Packing Company does not deal in tobacco or cigarettes, the P. Lorillard Company was within its legal rights in applying to chewing tobacco and cigarettes the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark and trade name "Beech-Nut," and held that the act complained of violated neither the law of trade-marks nor that body of law known as the law of unfair competition.

This ruling was made in the face of undisputed evidence of universal deception of the purchasing public and of injury to petitioner's reputation and good-will. The Court based its decision upon its finding that there can be neither trade-mark infringement nor violation of the principles of law known as the law of unfair competition if the defendant does not sell goods which directly compete with or belong to "the same class" of merchandise as those sold by plaintiff.

The Beech-Nut Packing Company deals throughout the country in upwards of sixty products all bearing its Beech-Nut trade-mark, and deals to some extent in many other commodities similarly marked, most of which it manufactures in its own plants. It does not deal in tobacco products but has seriously considered doing so. In volume of business the principal product of the Beech-Nut Company is chewing gum. Other products are hard candy tablets, peanut butter, condiments, conserves, beverages, ham, bacon and a large variety of food products. Prior to the end of the year 1921, in which year the bill of complaint herein was filed, the Beech-Nut Packing Company had expended three million dollars in advertising its Beech-Nut products.

Conflicting Decisions.

In the following-named cases involving facts parallel to those in the case at bar, the Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits have made rulings of law in direct conflict with the law as laid down by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the instant case:

Vogue Company v. Thompson-Hudson Company et al., 300 Fed. 509; 6 Fed. (2nd) 875; Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Defendants were dealers in women's hats. Plaintiff was the publisher of a monthly magazine called "Vogue" and did not deal in hats. Defendants were enjoined from using upon their hats plaintiff's trade-mark, which consisted of a large capital letter "V" with a picture of a woman between the sides of the letter.

Peninsular Chemical Company v. Levinson et al., 247 Fed. 658, Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Plaintiff was a manufacturer of and dealer in drugs, medicines and drug store supplies and sundries which it sold to a chain of 3500 retail drug stores. Plaintiff used upon its goods the coined word "Penslar" as a trade-mark, and the drug stores through which the goods reached the public were known as "Penslar" drug stores. Plaintiff did not deal in cigars or other tobacco products. Defendants made and sold cigars to which they applied the word "Penslar" as a trade-mark. The Court held such use of the word "Penslar" to be a fraud and enjoined defendants therefrom.

Aunt Jemima Mills Company v. Rigney & Company, 247 Fed. 407, Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Plaintiff manufactured and sold a self-rising flour to which it applied its trade-mark. The conspicuous elements of the trade-mark were the words "Aunt Jemima" and a picture of a colored woman. Defendant applied the same mark to syrup. Plaintiff did not make or deal in syrup. The Court enjoined further use of the Aunt Jemima trade-mark by defendant. Though the Court referred to the fact that flour and syrup are both food products the Court did not base its decision upon this classification of these commodities but upon the fact that purchasers were caused to believe that the Aunt Jemima syrup was made or sold by plaintiff.

The English Cases.

Following are references to English cases decided in harmony with the three cases above cited and involving facts parallel to the facts in those cases and in the case at bar:

Walter v. Ashton, [1902] 2 Chancery, 282. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Byrne, J.)

Eastman Company v. Kodak Cycle Co., 15 Reports Patent Cases, 105. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Romer, J., 1898.)

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v Dunlop Lubricant Co., 16 Reports Patent Cases, 12. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Romer, J., 1898.)

Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 17 Reports Patent Cases, 673. (Court of Appeal: Lords Alverstone, Rigby, and Collins.)

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop-Truffault

Cycle & Tube Manufacturing Co., 12 Times Law Reports, 434. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Chitty, J., 1896.)

Premier Cycle Company v. Premier Tube Company, 12 Times Law Reports, 481. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Chitty, J., 1896.)

These cases will be considered in the adjoined brief.

The Rule of Law Established by the Court of Appeals in This Case.

The court below summed up its conclusion on the trade-mark branch of the case at bar in the following passage quoted from its opinion (—— Fed. ——; Transcript, Vol. V., pp. 314-315):

> "The merchandise of the plaintiff and defendant belonged, therefore, to different classes. As the owner of a trade-mark, both on authority and reason, may not be restrained from its use on goods of one class, notwithstanding the identical trade-mark is used on goods of another class, we conclude that the defendant did not infringe plaintiff's trade-mark and so may not be restrained from using its trade-mark on tobacco products."

In discussing the unfair competition aspect of the case, the Court said (—— Fed. ——; Transcript, Vol. V., p. 315):

> "Generically, the term 'unfair competition,' presupposes competition of some kind. Borden Ice Cream Company v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 201 Fed. 510, 514. And so courts have held that there must be a real, present or prospective competition; that is, an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time; and that endeavor must on the defendant's part be unfair. National Picture Theatres v. Foundation Film Corporation, 266 Fed. 208, 211."

> "There is no evidence that the defendant ever intended presently or prospectively to compete for the trade of the plaintiff. It could not have done so as long as they continued their distinct and unrelated lines of business and there is no evidence that a change was ever contemplated by either. There was, therefore, no competition between them unfair or otherwise."

After referring, in its discussion of the question of unfair competition, to the injury suffered by plaintiff, the Court announced the following conclusion (—— Fed. ——; Transcript, Vol. V., p. 317):

> "This [the injury] resulted from the similarity of trade-marks on distinct and unrelated classes of merchandise. But from confusion and injury caused by similarity of names, courts will not relieve."

Inasmuch as the Court decided the instant case upon its interpretation of the law applicable to the same state of facts in all cases, the following proposition is now a principle of law in the Third Judicial Circuit:

> The good-will of an established and expanding business may be legally appropriated and injured, and the purchasing public may be deceived with impunity by anyone who sees advantage in using the trade-mark, trade name, corporate name or label of such established business in connection with the sale of goods, provided only that the goods so sold are not of the same class as those dealt in in the operation of the previously established business.

The Conflict.

The accompanying brief (bound herewith) contains an analysis of the opinions of the Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits in the three cases hereinbefore referred to in which those courts made rulings in conflict with the decision of the Court of Appeals in the case at bar.

That the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit based its denial of relief in the instant case upon its dissent from the law as established in the Sixth and Second Circuits appears not only from the parallelism of the facts, but from the circumstance that the injury to the plaintiff and the deception of the public were of greater extent and much more clearly apparent in the case at bar than in the cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits, and from the further fact that the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit made its decision in the instant case after full presentation in brief and argument of the cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits, and held, contrary to the Sixth and Second Circuit Courts, that the difference between the goods dealt in by the parties precluded the grant of relief.

Conclusion.

The decision of the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit gives the sanction of legality to the P. Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's name and identity as a disguise whereby Lorillard products are passed off on the public as Beech-Nut Packing Company products, and whereby the business good-will and the millions of dollars of advertising prestige of the Beech-Nut Packing Company are converted to the uses of the P. Lorillard Company. The exclusion of the Beech-Nut Packing Company from the protection of those principles of equity which forbid and enjoin fraud is based upon the Court's reasoning that the Beech-Nut Packing Company's right to protection is limited to fraud and injury resulting from the unauthorized use of its trade-mark, trade name or label upon goods either identical with or belonging to the same class as the goods in which it deals. The reasoning of the court below substitutes a survey of the artificial boundary lines of an arbitrary system of classification of merchandise for an inquiry into the presence or absence of actual fraud and injury. The conflict between the mode of reasoning of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals and that of the Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits is as marked as the conflict between their conclusions.

A reason for review of the instant case additional to the conflicting rules of law in the different judicial circuits lies in the importance of the issue to the business interests of the country, and the interests of the consuming public.

The far-reaching effect of the ruling of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, and the obvious fact that unscrupulous dealers in all lines of trade will be alert to invoke its protection for their fraudulent business practices, make the case at bar one that should not stand as an authoritative statement of the law in the absence of some absolutely compelling reason. The court below has found no such compelling reason for its conclusion that a fraud of this character is beyond the reach of a court of equity, and the reasoning in all other cases involving parallel states of fact leads infallibly to the opposite conclusion.

It is of vital importance to American business that the development of the law of unfair competition, which is protective of honest business, should not be checked by the decision of the court below, a decision in violation of the principles of equity which have underlain the entire development of the law in this field.

Wherefore petitioner prays that a writ of certiorari be issued under the seal of this Court directed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, commanding said Court to certify and send to this Court a full and complete transcript of the record including all proceedings in said Circuit Court of Appeals in the case entitled: Beech-Nut Packing Company, Appellant, versus P. Lorillard Company, Appellee, No. 3282, to the end that this cause may be reviewed and determined by this Court, as provided by Section 240 (a) of the Judicial Code as amended by Section 1 of the Act of Congress of February 13, 1925, "To amend the Judicial Code, and to further define the jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts of Appeals and of the Supreme Court"; that the decree of said Circuit Court of Appeals in this cause be reversed by this Court, and that petitioner have such other and further relief as this Court may deem appropriate;

And your petitioner will ever pray.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
By BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
WALTER A. SCOTT,
JAMES R. OFFIELD,
H. MCCLURE JOHNSON,
Counsel for Petitioner.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
STATE OF NEW YORK,
COUNTY OF NEW YORK. } ss:

BARTLETT ARKELL, being duly sworn, says that he is president of Beech-Nut Packing Company, petitioner; that he has read the foregoing petition by him subscribed and knows the contents thereof, and that the facts therein stated are true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief.

BARTLETT ARKELL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 8th day of December, 1925.

ELEANOR F. CASEY, [SEAL.] Notary Public.

We hereby certify that we have examined the foregoing petition, and that in our opinion the petition is well founded, and that the case is one in which the prayer of the petitioner should be granted by this Court.

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
WALTER A. SCOTT,
JAMES R. OFFIELD,
H. MCCLURE JOHNSON.

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1925.

No. .

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,

Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,

Respondent.

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

The facts relied upon in the foregoing petition are here stated more in detail and with foot-note references to the testimony of the witnesses, following which is an analysis of the conflicting cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits and the English cases mentioned in the petition.

Reference to Opinions Below.

The opinions delivered in the courts below appear:

Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit: —— Fed. ——; Transcript of Record, Vol. V, pp. 308-319.
(Opinion and Decree Affirming filed September 11, 1925,—see Transcript, Vol. V, p. 318.)

District Court of the United States, District of New Jersey; 299 Fed. 834; Transcript, Vol. V, pp. 259-291.

The Facts.

Following is a statement of the facts in the case at bar. Although the opinion of the Court of Appeals does not contain a full statement of the facts, no issue of fact has arisen, and it is manifest from the Court's opinion that its decision turned upon the point of law upon which its ruling conflicts with the rulings of the Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits; namely, its ruling that in a trade-mark or unfair competition case a plaintiff has no legal remedy against a defendant who has appropriated the plaintiff's trade-mark, trade name, corporate name or label unless the defendant has used such mark, name or label in connection with commodities of the same class as those dealt in by the plaintiff.[1]

---

[1] The District Court found that the P. Lorillard Company was justified in its use of the word "Beech-Nut" by reason of the fact that the word "Beechnut" had once been used on tobacco (but beginning years later than the adoption by Beech-Nut Packing Company's predecessor of its trade-mark "Beech-Nut") by the Weissinger Company and its successor, the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, the ownership of which the P. Lorillard Company had acquired in 1911. The Luhrman & Wilbern Company had ceased using the word "Beechnut" in 1910 owing to the absolute termination of any demand for the tobacco to which it had previously applied that word. This old brand had been completely forgotten in 1915 as shown by the fact that no ultimate consumer was found who even remembered that there ever had been such a brand in existence and only three or four dealers retained any memory of it. The Beech-Nut tobacco put out by the P. Lorillard Company in 1915 was in no sense a continuance of the discontinued Luhrman & Wilbern brand. The Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco was a new mixture having a new flavor especially designed to meet the demand of the public for a flavor different from that of the old mixtures which no longer suited tobacco users, and the Lorillard Beech-Nut

The Beech-Nut Packing Company is well known throughout the United States as the producer of an extensive and constantly expanding line of commodities of the best quality obtainable.[1] It sells these commodities in packages, bottles or wrappers bearing the word "Beech-Nut" framed generally by a blue oval which also incloses a picture of a beech-nut cluster, and is itself surrounded by a red oval border.[2] The business was started in a small way in 1891 at Canajoharie, New York, and developed into a nation-wide industry. In 1912 the number of products extensively dealt in was forty-one and in the same year the company registered its Beech-Nut trade-mark for sixty-seven products which it had sold to a greater or less extent. Prior to the end of the year 1921, in which year the bill of complaint herein was filed, it had expended three million dollars in advertising its name "Beech-Nut," its varilabel is essentially a reproduction of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark and bears no resemblance to the long disused and forgotten Luhrman & Wilbern Beechnut label. The Court of Appeals ignored the Lorillard Company's claim of right based on the Luhrman & Wilbern label and decided the case solely upon the point of law discussed in this petition and brief.

---

[1] Barbour, Transcript, Vol. I, p. 781 et seq. A summary of products prepared from price lists of goods extensively sold since 1902 appears in Vol. VI of the Transcript, pp. 77 to 107. The testimony of all of the hundreds of witnesses for both parties shows the familiarity of the Beech-Nut Company's products to ultimate consumers throughout the country.

[2] Specimens of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark and labels are presented on pages 163, 167 and 169 of Vol. VI of the transcript. Duplicates of these exhibits and of the Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap chewing tobacco and cigarette labels are attached to the last pages of this brief.

ety of goods, and the high quality of all its goods. In 1923 the number of products extensively sold was sixty. The principal product in volume of business is chewing gum; among the other products are hard candy, mints and fruit tablets put up in small packages sold largely on tobacco stands, peanut butter, condiments, conserves, beverages, ham, bacon and a large variety of food products. The Beech-Nut Packing Company does not deal in cigarettes or tobacco, though it has seriously considered doing so.[1]

In the year 1915, at which time the Beech-Nut goods and trade-mark were known throughout the entire country as an expanding line of products of the highest quality, the P. Lorillard Company put upon the market a

---

[1] Following are references to the testimony of some of the witnesses who testify regarding the founding and early history of the Beech-Nut Packing Company: Vol. I, p. 827; Vol. IV, pp. 6 to 8.

The number and variety of products is shown in the summary of products at pp. 77 to 107 of Vol. VI.

At page 159 of Vol. VI there is a reproduction of the Patent Office certificate of registration in 1912 by the Beech-Nut Packing Company of its trade-mark for use on sixty-seven commodities.

The expenditures of the Beech-Nut Packing Company for advertising are shown by the testimony of Walter H. Lipe, who, in response to Q. 35, Vol. IV, p. 10, produced the tabulated statement appearing at page 55 of Vol. IV, and also by the testimony of Van Wie, Vol. I, p. 818, Qs. 6 to 9.

The total sales of the Beech-Nut Packing Company year by year from 1903 to 1921, and the total annual sales of Beech-Nut chewing gum from 1911 to 1921 are set forth on page 868 of Vol. 1 of the Transcript.

The Beech-Nut Packing Company's consideration of the question of including cigarettes in its line of products is described by F. E. Barbour, vice-president and manager of the company, Vol. I, pp. 785-786, Qs. 15, 16 and p. 792, X-Qs. 55 to 59.

brand of chewing tobacco of the kind known as "scrap tobacco," and adopted for this tobacco the name "Beech-Nut" and affixed to the packages containing it a label bearing the word "Beech-Nut" framed in a blue oval which also incloses a picture of a beech-nut cluster and is surrounded by red, all of these details corresponding closely to the label of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.[1] In 1921 the P. Lorillard Company put a new cigarette on the market upon which also it used the word "Beech-Nut" with an oval border and picture of a beech-nut cluster and the surrounding red.[2]

Petitioner's Beech-Nut chewing gum and hard candies, mints and fruit-drops are sold alongside of respondent's Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes in tobacco stores, drug stores, hotel and office-building lobbies, and wherever tobacco is sold. In groceries, delicatessens, general stores, variety stores, etc., all of petitioner's Beech-Nut products are displayed and sold alongside of respondent's tobacco products. The same wholesalers and jobbers handle and distribute the products of both. Thus there is the maximum opportunity for deception to result. Also it is apparent that merchandising tobacco products is in the direct and natural line of expansion of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business.

The use of the Beech-Nut name and label by the P. Lorillard Company has caused the entire body of ultimate purchasers, without a single exception so far as known or shown by the record, to believe that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes are products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The cheap grade and inferior quality of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes have injured the business good-will of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, which heretofore has been universally known as a producer of commodities of the highest quality only; and the reputation and business of the Beech-Nut Packing Company have also suffered from the antagonism of that large class of people who are opposed to the use of cigarettes and tobacco and prejudiced against the Beech-Nut Packing Company by their belief that it is the producer of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes and chewing tobacco.[1]

---

[1] A photograph of the Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap tobacco package appears at page 161 of Vol. VI of the Transcript. A specimen of the wrapper is attached to the bill of complaint (Vol. I, p. 17) and a duplicate thereof is presented on page 34 of this brief.

[2] A specimen of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette label with its translucent paper covering is mounted on page 1 of Vol. VI of the Transcript, and a duplicate thereof is inserted on page 36 of this brief.

---

[1] Though the record contains the testimony of hundreds of witnesses there is but one instance of an ultimate consumer testifying that he was not caused by the Lorillard Beech-Nut labels to believe that the tobacco and cigarettes so labeled were part of the general line of Beech-Nut products and put on the market by the same manufacturer or merchant. This one consumer who was not deceived was given a package of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes by a Lorillard salesman (Transcript, Vol. II, pp. 194-195, Qs. 5, 6 and pp. 196-197, X-Qs. 1 to 9).

Following are references to the testimony of sixty-five of the witnesses for the Beech-Nut Packing Company who, as consumers or as proprietors of or salesmen in tobacco stores, drug stores, delicatessen stores, wholesale or retail groceries, or news or tobacco stands, either purchased, used or dealt in Lorillard Beech-Nut chewing tobacco or cigarettes in the belief that they were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company or of the party who marketed the general line of Beech-Nut goods. In many instances the deception extended over periods of many months and in other instances over periods of several years: Transcript, Volume I, pages 56, 62-63, 68, 76, 77-78, 108, 120, 127, 131, 148-149, 167, 201-203,

The Decision.

Though other issues were discussed by the District Court, the Court of Appeals based its decision squarely upon its ruling that the P. Lorillard Company has a legal right to use the Beech-Nut name and label by reason of the fact that the Beech-Nut Packing Company had not used it on goods of the class to which tobacco was considered by the Court to belong.

Conflicting Cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits.

Following is an outline of the cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits which are referred to in the petition, and a comparison of those cases with the case at bar.

210-211, 228-229, 232-233, 237, 241, 263-264, 268-269, 276-277, 285-286, 310, 316-317, 318, 329-330, 334, 335, 336-337, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343-344, 376-377, 378-379, 387, 412-414, 418, 423-424, 437, 445, 470, 474-475, 479, 485-486, 491, 502-503, 550, 555-556, 560-561, 565, 612-613, 617-618, 622-623, 625-627, 628-629, 633 to 635 (five witnesses), 755-759; Volume V, pp. 97-98, 105-106, 113-114.

Many of the witnesses whose testimony is cited in these foot-notes were retailers and salesmen for retailers, and their own erroneous belief that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company naturally had the effect of confirming the deception of the ultimate purchasers. Following are references to the testimony of dealers who, being themselves deceived, innocently deceived their customers by express statement: Vol. I, pp. 277-278, Qs. 11, 12; Vol. I, p. 330, Q. 12; Vol. I, p. 334; Vol. I, pp. 412-413, Qs. 13 to 15; Vol. I, p. 419, Qs. 13, 14; Vol. I, p. 424, Qs. 11, 12; Vol. I, p. 759, Qs. 48, 49.

Following are references to the testimony of witnesses who, thinking that the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes were products belonging to the general line of commodities produced by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, state

The Vogue Case in the Sixth Circuit.

Vogue Company v. Thompson-Hudson Co. et al., 300 Fed. 509; 6 Fed. (2nd) 875 (Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, 1924-1925). The Vogue Company, publisher of the "Vogue" Magazine, claimed ownership of the word "Vogue" as a trade-mark, and also of a mark consisting of a large capital letter "V" having between its sides the figure of a woman, the latter mark being called by the plaintiff the "V-Girl." Both the word "Vogue" and the "V-Girl" mark were displayed on the magazine and on plaintiff's advertising literature.

---

either that they found the cigarettes inferior to the other Beech-Nut products, or that they never bought any more of the cigarettes after their first purchase: Vol. I, p. 51, Q. 11; Vol. I, p. 149, Q. 10; Vol. I, p. 202, Qs. 9 to 11; Vol. I, p. 237, Qs. 5 to 7 and p. 238, X-Qs. 12 to 14; Vol. I, p. 269, Q. 15; Vol. I, p. 339, bottom of page; Vol. I, p. 340, bottom of page; Vol. I, p. 341, bottom of page; Vol. I, p. 286, Qs. 11, 12; Vol. I, p. 479, Qs. 9 to 12; Vol. I, p. 486, Qs. 8, 9; Vol. I, pp. 555, 556, Qs. 8 to 11; Vol. V, pp. 113-114. The inferiority of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes is also shown by the testimony of J. J. Creevan, Vol. I, p. 136, Qs. 7, 8.

Following are references to the testimony of witnesses who because of their opposition to the use of cigarettes or chewing tobacco became antagonistic to the Beech-Nut Company because of their belief that it was the producer of the Lorillard tobacco products: Volume I, pp. 181-185; p. 441, Qs. 3 to 9; pp. 244-245, Qs. 11 to X-Q. 17; pp. 771-774. F. M. Fairfield describes the activities of the International Anti-Cigarette League, Transcript, Vol. I, p. 636.

Following are references to the testimony of thirty-one of the witnesses called by the Lorillard Company, from each of whom the fact was elicited that he had observed instances of the deception of the purchasing public caused by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark: Transcript, Volume II, pages 102 to 103; 134; 170 to 171; 189, 191 to 192; 205 to 207; 211;

The defendants sold women's hats, to each of which was affixed a label bearing the words "Vogue Hats" and a mark consisting of a large capital letter "V" having between its sides the representation of a woman's head. The Vogue Company did not deal in hats. The Court found that the use by defendants of the mere word "Vogue" violated no right of plaintiff for the reason that the word is descriptive, but ordered an injunction restraining the defendants from using the "V-Girl" mark, and held the use of that mark by the defendants to constitute unfair competition. Upon the subject of unfair competition the Court said that the term "unfair competition" was merely a convenient name for the doctrine that no one should be permitted to sell his goods as those of another, but that "there is no fetish in the word 'competition'." The Court found that "the invocation of equity rests more vitally upon the unfair-

---

215 to 216; 241, 244 to 245; 254, 255; 318; 374 to 375; 560; 578 to 580; 621 to 622; 641 to 642; 723, 738; 767 to 768; 774 to 775; Volume III, pages 838 to 839, 842 to 843; 902 to 903; 993; 1024 to 1025; 1042; 1073; 1094 to 1095; 1179; 1227; 1259. All of these Lorillard witnesses referred to in the preceding list of page numbers, with the exception of five who were Lorillard salesmen, were either owners of or employees in tobacco stores, drug stores or other stores selling tobacco. One of the Lorillard salesmen, Burgeson, not only admitted his knowledge of the deception caused by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut name, but said that was natural on account of the similarity of name, but that the confusion was "not as much as we did expect" (Transcript, Vol. II, p. 775, X-Q. 25). Along the same line is the testimony of Bieringer, another Lorillard witness (Vol. II, pp. 45 to 50, X-Qs. 13, 23 to 26, 32, 36 to 42).

The name "Lorillard" is almost unknown to the consuming public as an identification of particular tobacco products. Cigarettes, cigars and tobacco are known to ness," and illustrated its meaning by stating that "If B. represents that his goods are made by A., and damage therefrom to A. is to be seen, we are aware of no consideration which makes it controlling whether this damage to A. will come from market competition with some article which A. is then manufacturing or will come in some other way" (300 Fed. 512). The articles involved in the Vogue Company case—a monthly magazine and women's hats—are as distinct and different as the goods involved in the case at bar—the Lorillard cigarettes and chewing tobacco and the Beech-Nut Packing Company's chewing gum, hard candies, peanut butter, condiments and food products. While the idea of fashion may be associated with both the "Vogue" Magazine and Vogue hats, the two articles are not dealt in by the same wholesalers or jobbers, and are not sold in the same retail the public by their brand names, such as the names "Murad," "Egyptian Deities" and "Moguls" for cigarettes and "Honest," "Union Leader" and "Beech-Nut" for chewing tobacco. Ordinarily the public does not notice or identify the product by the manufacturer's name. Following are references to the testimony of fifteen Lorillard witnesses from whom evidence on this point was elicited, and to the testimony of seventeen of the witnesses for the Beech-Nut Packing Company who testified to the same effect: Lorillard witnesses—Transcript, Volume II, pages 88-89; 234-235; 263, 266; 282-284; 292-293; 490-491; 657-658; 685; Volume III, pp. 798; 809; 824-825; 843-844; 855; 863; 869, 871, 877; Beech-Nut Packing Company's witnesses—Volume I, pages 53; 69; 169; 173, 175; 443; 459; 487; 493; 497; 515; 542; 552; 669; 689; 698; 726; 763.

---

The P. Lorillard Company does not even put its own name or even the word "Lorillard" on many of its leading brands (Transcript, Vol. V, pp. 190-192; pp. 197-198; pp. 223-224; pp. 226-227).

Following are references to the testimony of retail dealers in tobacco and salesmen for the Beech-Nut Packing Company who in the course of their business ob-stores unless it be in a few large department stores where practically everything is sold. In the case at bar the goods of the two parties are handled by the same jobbers and wholesalers, and are displayed and sold alongside of each other in retail grocery stores, delicatessen stores, tobacco stands of all kinds, drug stores, news stands, etc. The controlling fact, however, is that in both cases the purchasing public was deceived with resulting diversion of and injury to plaintiff's business good-will. Furthermore, in the case at bar the word "Beech-Nut" is an arbitrary word, and the Court's ruling in the Vogue Company case exempted the mere word "Vogue" from its injunction only because the word "Vogue" is descriptive instead of being arbitrary. The Court's reasoning in the Vogue Company case would have led to an injunction forbidding the use of the mere served wide-spread deception of the purchasing public caused by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark: Vol. I, p. 32, Q. 9 and p. 33, Q. 17; p. 81, Qs. 12 to 14; p. 90, Q. 10; p. 99, Qs. 12, 13; p. 108, Q. 7; p. 120, Q. 10; p. 136, Qs. 8, 9; pp. 159, 160, Qs. 5 to 8; pp. 251, 252, Qs. 18 to 20; pp. 277, 278, Qs. 11, 12; p. 311, Qs. 15 to 18; pp. 323, 324, Qs. 9 to 11; p. 330, Q. 12; p. 334; pp. 345 to 349; pp. 360 to 363; p. 370; pp. 374 to 375, Qs. 4 to 8; pp. 380 to 382, Qs. 8 to 19; pp. 391 to 394, Qs. 4 to 16; pp. 399, 400, Qs. 3 to 13; p. 419, Qs. 13, 14; pp. 528, 529, Qs. 29 to 35; pp. 570, 571, Qs. 5 to 8; pp. 612, 613, Qs. 8 to 10; p. 618, Qs. 12 to 15; pp. 731 to 733, Qs. 20 to 30.

---

The deception caused by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark extended to the editors of prominent city newspapers, the Quarter Master Department of the United States Army and the promoters of public exhibitions and conventions of the tobacco industry. Beech-Nut Exhibit 12 (Transcript, Vol. VI, pages 7 to 53) consists of correspondence showing the deceit referred to and letters from dealers in tobacco to the Beech-Nut Packing Company ordering shipments of Beech-Nut cigarettes and chewing tobacco.

word "Beech-Nut" as well as the use of that word when printed in the distinctive manner and with the distinctive surroundings employed by the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

The Penslar Case in the Sixth Circuit.

Peninsular Chemical Company v. Levinson et al., 247 Fed. 658 (Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit—1917). The Peninsular Chemical Company dealt in medicines, drugs, and drug store supplies and sundries, under the trade-mark "Penslar," a contraction of the word "Peninsular." It conducted its business through a chain of 3500 drug stores which were known as Penslar Drug Stores. The Peninsular Chemical Company did not deal in cigars or tobacco. Defendant, Samuel Levinson, manufactured and sold cigars which he marked with the word "Penslar" and "Made by the Penslar Co.", thus conveying to the purchasing public the erroneous belief that the cigars were made by the Peninsular Chemical Company and that they were a part of the line of goods sold by the Penslar Drug Stores. The evidence showed that one of the defendants, S. W. Levinson, had expressly represented that the cigars were made by the Peninsular Chemical Company, but it did not appear that the other defendant, Samuel Levinson, had made such express misrepresentations. The Court held that the fact of misrepresentation was fully established by the mere marking of the cigars with the word "Penslar" even though unaccompanied by express misrepresentation. The Court ordered an injunction restraining defendants from representing that their cigars were plaintiff's product and from using in connection with such cigars the word "Penslar" as previously used by them. The Court expressly refrained from considering the argument that since the Peninsular Chemical Company did not deal in cigars there was no competition at all between the parties and hence no unfair competition, and based its decision upon the proposition that "the good-will of a business and the good reputation of an output, when considered in connection with the business itself, are a species of property which may not be destroyed with impunity," and the Court added that it knew "of no principle which will forbid malicious destruction of this kind to a competitor and permit it to a stranger" (247 Fed. 661).

The Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit finds appropriation of and injury to business good-will a sufficient reason for the intervention of equity. The Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in the case at bar finds no illegality in or remedy for such fraud unless it is effected by the sale of a commodity of a particular class, the bounds of the class being dependent solely upon the arbitrary selection of some particular system of classification and totally unrelated to the possibility or fact of fraud.

The identity of all of the essential facts in the Peninsular Chemical Company case and the case at bar is complete. The word "Penslar" and the word "Beech-Nut" are arbitrary words; each was used as a trade-mark; each is a trade name, the former denoting the Penslar goods and the Penslar Drug Stores and the latter the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business and line of goods; the use of each by a stranger caused deception of the purchasing public and diversion of and injury to the good-will of the business in connection with which the word was originally used. No distinction between the Peninsular Chemical Company case and the case at bar is found in a comparison of the goods dealt in by the parties to the two suits. The relation between the Levinsons' cigars and the medicines and drug store supplies dealt in by the chemical company is no closer than or different from the relation between the Lorillard cigarettes and tobacco and the Beech-Nut Packing Company's chewing gum, packaged hard candies, peanut butter and food products. In each case the goods of the two parties are displayed in the same retail stores, and in each case the plaintiff was dealing in an extensive line of products which the purchasing public knew was being extended from time to time to include new products. There is no distinction between the Peninsular Chemical Company case and the case at bar other than in the conflicting principles of law applied to essentially identical facts.

The Aunt Jemima Case in the Second Circuit.

Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 Fed. 407 (Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit—1917). In this case the plaintiff, Aunt Jemima Mills Co., had used and registered in the Patent Office a trade-mark for use on packages of self-rising flour. The most conspicuous features of the trade-mark were the words "Aunt Jemima" and a picture of a colored woman. At a later date the defendant, Rigney & Co., started to use and registered in the Patent Office the same trade-mark for syrups and sugar creams. The Aunt Jemima Company asked that Rigney & Co. be enjoined from using the Aunt Jemima trade-mark. While self-rising flour and syrup are both food products, and belong to the same class, if the use to which articles are put be made the basis of classification, the two commodities are not competitive; one cannot be substituted for the other and neither can be palmed off as the other.

The Court enjoined Rigney & Co. from using the Aunt Jemima trade-mark for syrup. This ruling conflicts with the decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the instant case not only in its adoption of the principle that the law forbids deceptive use of a trade-mark or label upon a non-competing commodity, but there is a conflict between the underlying principles upon which the two Courts based their conclusions. The Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit ruled that the Lorillard Company was within its rights in using the Beech-Nut trade-mark for cigarettes and tobacco because cigarettes and tobacco belong to a different class of merchandise from the goods dealt in by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. While the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit referred to the fact that "syrup and flour are both food products," it did not base its injunction upon that fact, but upon the fact that "obviously the public, or a large part of it, seeing this trade-mark on a syrup would conclude that it was made by the complainant" (247 Fed. 410). The Court said that perhaps the public might not have thought that flatirons bearing the Aunt Jemima trade-mark were products of the Aunt Jemima Company, thus clearly showing that the Court considered deception of the public the ruling fact regardless of whether the deception took place in connection with syrup, or flatirons, or any other article or commodity. This involves the basic difference and conflict between the Second and Third Circuit Courts of Appeals. The Second Circuit Court of Appeals finds and enjoins fraud in deception of the public accompanied by diversion of and injury to the plaintiff's business good-will, regardless of the nature of the commodity through the deceptive sale of which the fraud is accomplished. Under precisely the same circumstances the Third Circuit Court of Appeals finds no remediable fraud unless the plaintiff and defendant deal in goods of the same class. In the Second Circuit the bounds of the remediable wrong are the bounds of the actual fraud. In the Third Circuit the bounds of the remediable wrong are the bounds of a vaguely and artificially defined "class" which may or may not be coincident with the bounds of the actual fraud and injury.

The Law in England.

The English cases which we have referred to as in harmony with the law in the Sixth and Second Circuits were discussed by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the opinion in the Aunt Jemima case (247 Fed. at pages 410 to 412), and reference to them is also found in the opinion of the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the Peninsular Chemical Company case (247 Fed. at page 662). Following is a brief statement of the facts and of the relief granted by the court in each of the English cases:

In Eastman Company v. Kodak Cycle Co. (15 Reports Patent Cases, 105), the plaintiff manufactured cameras and the defendant made bicycles. The plaintiff did not make or deal in bicycles. The Court enjoined the defendant from carrying on business under the name "Kodak Cycle Company, Limited," or any name comprising the word "Kodak" that would be likely to mislead the public into the belief that defendant company was the same as or connected with the plaintiff company, and also enjoined the defendant from selling its cycles as Kodak cycles or selling other goods designated by the word "Kodak."

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Lubricant Co. (16 Reports Patent Cases, 12), involved the right of the plaintiff, a manufacturer of bicycle tires, rims, pumps, etc., to an injunction restraining the defendant, who dealt in oils and lubricants for bicycles, from using the word "Dunlop." Plaintiff had never dealt in oils or lubricants. The use of the word "Dunlop" by defendant was held to be deceptive and was enjoined.

In Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co. (17 Reports Patent Cases, 673—Court of Appeal) plaintiff used the word "Valentine" upon liquid meat juice for medicine, and defendant used the same word on beef extract in capsule form used for more general food purposes. An injunction was granted.

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop-Truffault Cycle & Tube Manufacturing Company (12 Times Law Reports, 434). In this case a preliminary injunction was asked to restrain the defendant from using the name "Dunlop" as a part of its corporate style. Plaintiff manufactured pneumatic tires known as "Dunlop tyres" and defendant was a manufacturer of bicycles and steel tubes used in the manufacture of bicycles. Plaintiff did not make or deal in bicycles or steel tubes. An injunction was granted, Mr. Justice Chitty holding that the name "Dunlop" had been chosen by defendant to confuse the public and to make the public think that the defendant company was connected with the plaintiff company.

In Premier Cycle Company v. Premier Tube Company (12 Times Law Reports, 481) plaintiff made and sold bicycles, and incidentally made and used in its bicycles a special type of tubing formed of metal wound round helically. Defendant was a manufacturer of cold-drawn weldless tubes and stated that it had no intention of competing with the plaintiff in the manufacture of bicycles. An injunction was granted.

In Walter v. Ashton ([1902] 2 Chancery, 282) the defendant was enjoined from calling its bicycle "The Times" bicycle and leading the public to believe that it was made by or for or had any connection with the newspaper of that name.

Previous Decisions of Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

In each of two earlier cases the Third Circuit Court of Appeals has enjoined the defendant from conducting its business under a name closely resembling the plaintiff's corporate name notwithstanding that the parties dealt in goods of different classes. Following are the cases referred to:

Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., 273 Fed. 674 (June 13, 1921);

The Akron-Overland Tire Company, defendant, was engaged in the business of retreading and selling tires. The Willys-Overland Company makes and sells complete automobiles but has never made or dealt in tires, and equips its automobiles with tires made by others. The court enjoined the Akron-Overland Tire Company from using the word "Overland" in its name, in the transaction of its business and in the threatened sale of its stock and securities.

Howard Wall, doing business under the name Rolls-Royce Tube Co. v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., 4 Fed. (2nd) 333. (March 5, 1925.)

Howard Wall, defendant, dealt in radio tubes under the name "Rolls-Royce Tube Co." Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., makes and sells automobiles and does not make or deal in radio tubes. The court enjoined Wall from using the name "Rolls-Royce."

There was no competition between the goods dealt in by plaintiff and defendant in either the Overland or the Rolls-Royce case; and upon plain reasoning these cases, decided by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, appear to be complete authority for the relief asked of the same court in the instant case.

In its opinion in the case at bar the Court of Appeals makes no mention of either the Overland or the Rolls-Royce case; and the court in no way distinguishes the instant case from those cases. It refers in its opinion to Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. John F. Elliott (—— Fed. ——; not yet reported), a trade-mark and unfair competition case, in which the opinion was handed down by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals on September 11, 1925, the same day as the opinion in the instant case. That court in the instant case quotes a definition of trade-mark property from the Rosenberg v. Elliott case. In the same opinion in the Rosenberg case appears the following passage:

> "We pause to note that these cases [Overland and Rolls-Royce cases] are not authority on the law of trade-mark infringement at all, for each was tried and decided on the single issue of unfair competition, and then not unfair competition in the sale of goods but in the unfair appropriation and use of a competitor's trade-name with the intention, of course, thereby to profit in the sale of goods of a related character. Such an act is not infringement of a trade-mark but is a trespass of the same nature as is committed by one who applies another man's name to his own goods. It is a wrong which equity will enjoin even when the goods of the two men do not strictly enter into competition."

From the foregoing quotation it appears that the court found the vice in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases to lie in the defendants' appropriation of the plaintiffs' names as their own corporate or firm names, and intended to exclude from the doctrine of the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases any case in which the defendant had not appropriated the plaintiff's name as a part of its corporate or firm name.

If the denial of relief in the instant case was predicated upon the fact that the Lorillard Company did not adopt the word "Beech-Nut" as a part of its corporate name, then the denial of relief in the instant case rests upon the proposition that the corporate and trade name of any established business may be put to deceptive use upon non-competing commodities by any stranger who does not use that name as his own corporate or firm name, however extensively he may make deceptive use of it upon his goods or in his advertising. Such a distinction ignores the fraud, and rests the judicial reasoning entirely upon a refined distinction regarding the manner of use of the word by which the fraud is effected. This distinction would accentuate the conflict between the Third Circuit Court of Appeals and the decisions in the Sixth and Second Circuits. In neither the Penslar nor Vogue case nor the Aunt Jemima case was the injunction restricted to the defendant's use of the plaintiff's trade-mark word or trade name as a part of the defendant's corporate or firm name.

Conclusion.

Although the court below in its opinion in the case at bar refers (Transcript, Vol. V, p. 315) to Vogue Company v. Thompson-Hudson Company and Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney, and states that there are cases in which redress may be granted in the absence of direct competition between the goods dealt in by the plaintiff and defendant, this statement is followed by and applied in a paragraph (Transcript, Vol. V, p. 316) in which the Court reasoned that the case at bar does not present facts establishing a right to relief because there is no direct competition between the goods dealt in by the P. Lorillard Company under the Beech-Nut trade-mark and the goods dealt in by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The court below made no mention of the Penslar case. The conflict of law involved in the decisions in the case at bar and the cases in the Sixth and Second Circuits is conclusively shown by the Court's failure to distinguish the case at bar from the Sixth and Second Circuit cases other than by assigning a legal effect to the absence of direct competition directly opposite to the effect given to that fact in the Sixth and Second Circuits. In both the case at bar and the Second and Sixth Circuit cases there was deception of the purchasing public and resulting diversion of and injury to good-will and reputation. In the case at bar the absence of direct competition was held to bar the grant of relief. In the Sixth and Second Circuits the absence of direct competition was held to be no reason for refusing relief for the diversion of and injury to good-will and reputation. The Court makes no explanation of its conclusion that facts which constitute an infraction of law in other circuits do not violate the law in the Third Circuit. The conclusion is irresistible that the law as established in the Third Circuit in the case at bar conflicts with the law as interpreted and applied in the Sixth and Second Circuits.

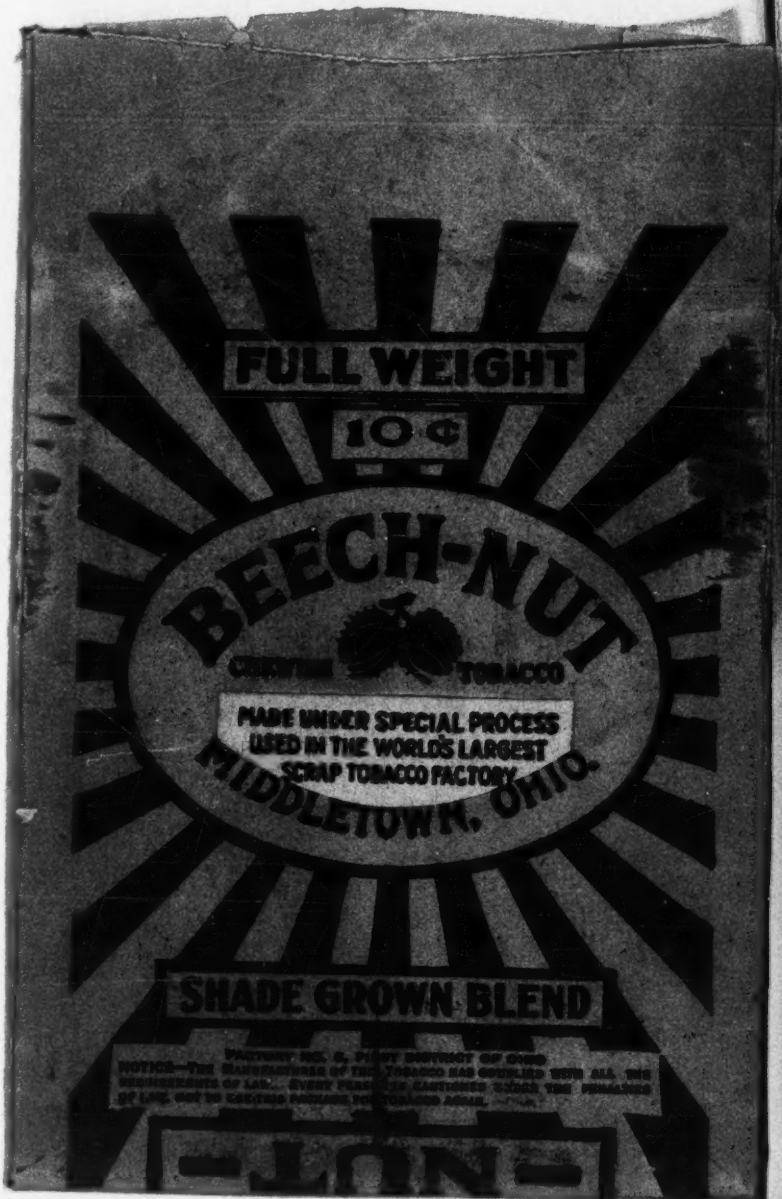
Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
WALTER A. SCOTT,
JAMES R. OFFIELD,
H. MCCLURE JOHNSON,
Counsel for Petitioner.

December, 1925.

APPENDIX: SPECIMENS OF LABELS.



Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap tobacco label.

First used in 1915.

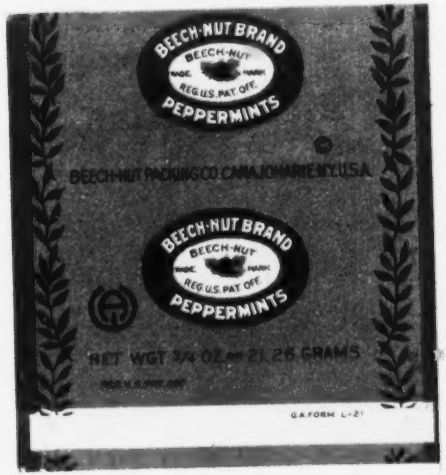
Beech-Nut Packing Company's standard Beech-Nut label.

Used on great variety of products.

Essential features used since about 1891.

Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes label.

First used about 1921.



Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut labels.
Used on goods sold largely on tobacco stands.

FEB 26 1927
WM. R. STANSBURY
CLERK

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1926.

No. 249.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

On Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Petition for Certiorari Filed December 8, 1925. Certiorari Granted January 11, 1926.

BRIEF FOR PETITIONER.

(Plaintiff below.)

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
WALTER A. SCOTT,
JAMES R. OFFIELD,
E. McCLURE JOHNSON,
Counsel for Petitioner.

Rudnick Bros., Inc., Law Printers, 343 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Subject Index iii
Table of Cases Cited xxix
Text-Books Cited xxxiii
Statutes Cited xxxiii

Brief 1
Nature and history of case 1
Jurisdiction of this Court 2
Decision below and conflicting decisions in other circuits 2
Statement of the case 4
Outline 4
Part I. History of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business and of its Beech-Nut trade-mark 16
Part II. The Lorillard Company's adoption of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, the protest made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company in 1915, the Lorillard Company's reply, and discovery in 1920 that the reply was a misrepresentation of the facts 26
Part III. History of the Weissinger Beechnut brand and business 45
Part IV. Deception of the public caused by Lorillard Company's use of Beech-Nut trade-mark 75
Part V. Damage 102
Errors of the Circuit Court of Appeals 123
Argument 124
Summary of argument 124
Decision of the court below 125
The law (discussion of the authorities) 175
Principles established by previous cases and application to the instant case 228

Use of same trade-marks upon different commodities by several persons, all strangers to this case, not relevant here. (Discussion of Defendant's Exhibits 19-24, inclusive, and 30-33, inclusive) 233
The Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark abandoned 236
Alleged acquiescence was temporary inaction of the Beech-Nut Company induced by the Lorillard Company's misrepresentation of the facts 255
Damage 262
Conclusion 279
Appendices ..... App. 1-112

SUBJECT INDEX.

Nature and history of case 1
Reference to opinions below 2
Reference to decree of Circuit Court of Appeals 2
Jurisdiction of this Court 2
Decision below and conflicting decisions in other circuits 2

Statement of the case 4

Outline 4
Outline of Part I—History of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business and of its Beech-Nut trade-mark 4
Exhibit: Specimens of Beech-Nut Packing Company's labels 5
Outline of Part II—The Lorillard Company's adoption of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, the protest made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company in 1915; the Lorillard Company's reply; and the discovery in 1920 that the reply was a misrepresentation of the facts 7
Exhibit: Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco label used by P. Lorillard Co. 8
Exhibit: Weissinger Beechnut Tobacco label as used by Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. 9
Exhibit: Beech-Nut cigarettes label used by P. Lorillard Co. 12
Outline of Part III—History of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark and business 14
Outline of Part IV—Deception of the purchasing public and of dealers 14
Outline of Part V—Damage 15
Statement 16

Part I—History of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business and of its Beech-Nut trade-mark.. 16
Early history—Foundation and development of company 16
Increase in number of commodities dealt in—Present magnitude of Beech-Nut Packing Company's business—Use of standard Beech-Nut trade-mark 17
Reference to yearly statements of sales and to specimens of Beech-Nut trade-marks on exhibit board, etc. 18
Exhibit: Photograph of Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28, Label Board 18*a* Reference to exhibits showing use of Beech-Nut trade-mark prior to 1903 19
Nellis' testimony regarding use of oval label 21
Number of products in 1912 and 1923 21
Manufacture of chewing gum begun in 1911 and now the principal product of the company in volume of business 21
Other products 21
Over seven billion labels bearing the Beech-Nut trade-mark used by the Beech-Nut Packing Company prior to the end of the year 1921 22
Three million dollars expended in advertising Beech-Nut products prior to the end of the year 1921 22
Policy of the Beech-Nut Company to sell under the Beech-Nut trade-mark only goods of the highest quality and choicest variety, and to thereby gain for new products the benefit of the high reputation of the goods previously sold.. 23
Word "Beech-Nut" in both corporate name and trade-mark 24
Mr. Barbour's testimony on policy of company 24

Other brands used to slight extent on by-products, goods of less choice variety, so as to preserve significance of the company's identifying word "Beech-Nut" as a symbol of goods of the choicest quality only 25

Part II—The Lorillard Company's adoption of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, the protest made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company in 1915, the Lorillard Company's reply, and discovery in 1920 that the reply was a misrepresentation of the facts 26

Beech-Nut scrap tobacco first put out by P. Lorillard Company in 1915 26

Immediate protest by Beech-Nut Company 26

Lorillard letter alleging continuous use of "Beech-Nut" on tobacco since 1898 27

Lorillard letter referring to price lists 28

Lorillard letter tells of assignments of Weissinger business and dissolution of American Tobacco Co. 28

Beech-Nut letter informs Lorillard Company that orders and inquiries for Beech-Nut tobacco had been received by Beech-Nut Co. 29

No conflict between Beech-Nut Company and Weissinger Company in 1898, and not until several years later could confusion have arisen 29

Lorillard misrepresentation made 1898 facts determinative instead of 1915 facts 31

Lorillard's contention that Beech-Nut Co. had acquiesced by forwarding orders. Orders referred to in detail, post, page 88 et seq 32

During years following 1915 Lorillard had knowledge that Beech-Nut Co. continued to assert its rights against all tobacco dealers other than Lorillard, which fact demonstrates

Lorillard's knowledge that its misrepresentation had been effective 33
Beech-Nut Stogie Company 34
Controversy in 1919 and 1920 regarding extension of Lorillard Company's use of Beech-Nut trademark to cigarettes leads to discovery of falsity of representation made in 1915 by the Lorillard Company 36
Mr. Lipe's testimony regarding conference with Mr. Maloney 36
"Never got to" question of word "Beech-Nut," but discussed style of label 37
Mr. Belt says P. Lorillard Company ready to market Beech-Nut cigarette in 1919 37
But did not do so until the spring of 1921 38
Reference to "old" and "new" Beech-Nut cigarette packages 38
Cost of changing package 38
Mr. Barbour's suggestion that cigarette label be made like scrap tobacco label 39
Mr. Maloney writes to Mr. Arkell saying that P. Lorillard Company was going to file an opposition to Beech-Nut Company's application for registration of "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for cigarettes, and stated that he had understood from interviews and correspondence prior to the filing of the application that the Beech-Nut Company would not press it 39
Circumstances of Beech-Nut Company's application for registration of "Beech-Nut" for cigarettes 40
Beech-Nut Company letter declining to reimburse Lorillard Company, and stating that regardless of Lorillard Company's rights in the name "Beech-Nut" Lorillard Company had no right to entire oval trade-mark 40

In the opposition proceeding Beech-Nut Company's general denial put in issue Lorillard's allegation of continuous use of Weissinger Beechnut trademark since 1898 42
Testimony taken in 1920 in the Patent Office opposition proceeding showed Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark not used after 1910 42
Grounds of decisions of Examiner of Interferences and Commissioner of Patents 43
Part III—History of the Weissinger Beechnut brand and business 45
History—origin of brand 45
Assignments of Weissinger business 45
Dissolution of American Tobacco Company and incorporation of new company "called P. Lorillard Company" 46
First disclosed by Patent Office opposition testimony in 1920 that manufacture of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was discontinued prior to 1909, that last sale was in April, 1910, and that none was offered for sale after 1910 46
Statement of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco sales annually from 1904 to 1910 47
Mr. Spence's testimony as to Weissinger Beechnut brand 48
No Lorillard price list in evidence—merely referred to in letter of Sept. 15, 1915, as inclosed price lists dated January 2, 1904, May 6, 1907, July 1, 1910, and November 3, 1910 49
Boykin, factory manager, testified no Beechnut tobacco made in the years 1909 to 1914 49
Lorillard letter of July 8, 1915, misrepresenting the facts again quoted with comment 50 Reasons given by Lorillard Company for adoption of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for a new tobacco mixture show knowledge of disuse of Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark and of the fact that in 1915 it no longer was known to the public as a trade-mark for tobacco..... 51

Mr. Ball's testimony about unpopularity of old tobacco mixtures, decreasing sales of Honest, preparation of a new sweeter mixture, and his search of "list" for a brand that was "dormant"..... 51
Abstract of testimony showing what the "list of brands" is 52
Lorillard Company's purpose to introduce a new tobacco mixture to replace the old and unpopular brands would have been defeated by giving the new mixture a name known to the public as the name of one of the old brands; the word "Beech-Nut" had the double advantage of being unknown as a tobacco brand and of being well known as a symbol of excellence in connection with merchandise generally..... 53
In 1915 no ultimate consumer of tobacco even remembered that the Weissinger Beechnut brand of tobacco had ever existed, and hence there was no survival in 1915 of any trade-mark rights therein..... 54
No testimony of any ultimate consumer who in 1915 or thereafter even remembered the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco 54
Weissinger Beechnut tobacco remembered only by a few veterans of the tobacco trade..... 54
Decreasing sales of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco from 1905 to 1910 and cessation of sales in 1910 resulted in complete obliteration of the brand from the memory of the public..... 55

Facts showing Lorillard Company's intention to abandon, and knowledge of abandonment of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark 57
Discontinued so long that it was completely forgotten by consumers 57
Selection of Beech-Nut name in 1915 because, as stated by Mr. Ball, the Weissinger Beechnut brand was "dormant" 57
The necessity of introducing a tobacco having a new flavor to suit buyers who were dissatisfied with the old tobacco mixtures carried with it the necessity of giving the new tobacco a name that would by no possibility be identified by the public with any of the old and unpopular tobacco mixtures previously on the market 57
The Lorillard Company eliminated from the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark every element except the one that could be used in constructing a copy of the Beech-Nut Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark, namely, the word "Beech-Nut" 57
The Lorillard Company continued to use the labels of the six active brands acquired from Luhrman & Wilbern without change. Of the brands previously owned by Luhrman & Wilbern the only one in which the label was not preserved precisely as previously used was the Weissinger Beechnut brand 57
Summary of facts showing abandonment of Weissinger Beechnut brand, and showing that if it had not been forgotten by the public as a tobacco trade-mark its use would have defeated Lorillard's purpose to introduce a new tobacco mixture to recapture the trade of tobacco users who would no longer buy the old mixtures 59

Exhibits: Specimens of tobacco labels as used by Luhrman & Wilbern Co. and later by P. Lorillard Co. for the same brands:
Scrap Iron labels 61
Polar Bear labels 63
Old Nut labels 65
Honest Scrap labels 67
Bag Pipe labels 69
Natural Leaf (no labels in evidence) 71
Exhibit: Specimens of labels: 73
Weissinger Beechnut tobacco label, Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co.
Weissinger Beechnut tobacco label, Luhrman & Wilbern Co.
Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco label, P. Lorillard Co.
Beech-Nut Cigarettes label, P. Lorillard Co.
Beech-Nut Packing Co.'s Beech-Nut labels
Part IV—Deception of the public caused by Lorillard Company's use of Beech-Nut trade-mark 75
Entire purchasing public deceived 75
Defendant's witnesses all connected with tobacco trade 75
Testimony of retail tobacco dealers that they were not deceived is immaterial 75
The relevant fact is that Lorillard put into the hands of the retailers the means of deceiving the ultimate purchasers 76
As a matter of fact many tobacco retailers and even wholesalers were deceived 76
Universal deception of ultimate purchasers and of many dealers shown by testimony of both plaintiff's and defendant's witnesses 77
Summary of Appendix A 77
Quotations from testimony of 35 of plaintiff's witnesses who in their capacity of wholesaler, retailer, salesman or consumer either bought, sold or used Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes in the belief that they were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and continued in this erroneous belief for periods ranging from a few days to several years.

Summary of Appendix B 78

List of 72 of plaintiff's witnesses, including most of those quoted in Appendix A, who dealt in or used Beech-Nut tobacco products in the belief that they were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company 78

Some of these dealers and salesmen expressly stated to their customers that the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Company 79

Summary of Appendix C 79

Quotations from the testimony of 28 of defendant's witnesses. All of defendant's 300 witnesses were connected with the tobacco business. Most of them said their customers had not made comments to them indicating that their customers thought the Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, but the 28 witnesses quoted in Appendix C admitted that they had heard such comments 79

Summary of Appendix D 80

Quotations from the testimony of 16 of defendant's witnesses showing that the ultimate purchasers identify tobacco products solely by the brand name and do not know or notice the name of the manufacturer.

Close association in trade of plaintiff's and defendant's goods—sold in same stores—window displays—defendant's advertising 95
Plaintiff's and defendant's goods flow through same channels of trade from the moment they leave the factories where they are produced—They are distributed by the same wholesalers and jobbers, and are sold by the same retailers 95
Window displays 97
They are jointly displayed in show windows.
Lorillard Company's advertising 99
All of the Lorillard advertising features the word "Beech-Nut" and subordinates and in most instances completely suppresses the name "Lorillard."
Common custom for manufacturers of and dealers in groceries, drugs, etc., to own their own exclusive tobacco trade-marks and to manufacture and have others manufacture for them tobacco products 100
Such well-known companies as Park & Tilford and Charles & Co., grocers of New York, Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers of Chicago, Stickney & Co., wholesale grocers of St. Louis, and Liggett Drug Co., of eastern cities all have or have had their own brands of tobacco products 100
Appropriation of the trade-mark of another is not justified by the addition thereto of the appropriator's name 101

Part V—Damage 102
Beech-Nut Company's business good-will at mercy of Lorillard Company 102
This section is confined to a discussion of special damage. The question of general damage is discussed in the Argument, post, page 262 102
Specific damage resulting from the inferior quality of the Beech-Nut cigarette 103
(Many witnesses quoted in this section.)
Designed to be cheapest cigarette on the market .. 103
Inferior quality as described by the witnesses 106
Defendant's witness testifies as to close interrelationship of Beech-Nut tobacco and other Beech-Nut products 112
Damage resulting from opposition of people who condemn use of cigarettes and chewing tobacco .. 115
Quotations of testimony showing antagonism to Beech-Nut Company of individuals, and extent of opposition to tobacco and cigarettes shown by testimony regarding the large and influential membership and widespread propaganda of the International Anti-Cigarette League 116
Considerations hitherto influencing Beech-Nut Company to postpone taking the natural step of selling tobacco products 120
The Beech-Nut Company many years ago seriously considered adding cigarettes and tobacco to its line of products, but was influenced to postpone doing so by the danger of its other business being injured by the antagonism of the large class of people who are opposed to the use of cigarettes and tobacco 120

Errors of the Circuit Court of Appeals 123

Argument 124

Summary of argument 124

Decision of the court below 125

Error in making "class" and "descriptive properties" of the goods the test of the rights of the parties 125

The court below bases its decision upon its finding that plaintiff's and defendant's goods belong to different "classes" and are of "different descriptive properties" 125

Court below finds that plaintiff deals only in food products. As a matter of fact chewing gum, plaintiff's principal product, is no more an article of food than is chewing tobacco 126

Examination of basis of reliance of court below on classification and description properties of merchandise 126

These words in the trade-mark statute—No possible effect where jurisdiction is from diversity of citizenship 126

The statutory references to classes of merchandise and descriptive properties of goods cannot apply to actions where jurisdiction does not rest exclusively on trade-mark statute 126

In equity no arbitrary rule based on character of goods 127

Statutory suits in equity are not limited to cases in which both parties deal in goods of the same class or same descriptive properties, and suits in equity where jurisdiction rests on diversity of citizenship are not controlled by the statutory limitations, but only by the general principles of equity. In the instant case the jurisdiction rests upon both registration under the statute and diversity of citizenship 127

Court below applies conflicting rules to the trade-mark and unfair competition aspects of the same facts 129
Conflicting doctrines approved by the lower court; namely, that equity may be invoked without market competition, and that there is no remediable wrong unless there is "an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time" 129
No inconsistency possible if misappropriation of good-will be made the test 130
Lower court's emphasis of importance of classification of goods 131
Howe Scale case and Canal Co. case, cited by court below, are not authority for its decision .. 132
Howe Scale case relates to proper use of a surname 132
Canal Co. case relates to geographical terms 133
The court below in error regarding combination in same business of manufacture and sale of food and tobacco products 135
Possibility of substituting one product for another is not the legal test in the suit at bar 136
After erroneously adopting the "descriptive properties" of the goods as the test of the rights of the parties the court below applies that test in a way that would be erroneous in any case, and to assumed facts which do not exist in this case 137
Commercial custom and association in trade are the proper basis of classification for the purposes of the law of unfair competition 137

Fundamental error of fact in erroneous finding of the court below that the Beech-Nut Company deals in food products only 140
Chewing gum is the principal product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and the company also produces non-alcoholic beverages 140
Reference to Patent Office classification and the trade-mark statute providing therefor—fallacy of attaching any weight here to that classification 141
Irrelevant cases cited by the court below in support of its theory of classification as a test of infringement of trade-mark rights 143
It is only when deception of the public is not proved that the fact that the parties deal in different commodities is material, and then only as an evidential fact bearing upon the probability of deception resulting from use of the same mark by both parties 143
National Picture Theatres case 144
Does not support decision below .....
Borden Ice Cream case 145
Relates to narrow protection accorded to a surname, and is analogous to cases in which it is held that only narrow protection can be accorded to commonly used and suggestive words 146
Some cases showing varying extent of protection given by courts to trade-mark words of different character 147
The Pabst Blue Ribbon case 147
The Budweiser case 147
Pease v. Scott Milling Co. (the Noxall case) 149
The Gold Medal case 151

Testimony of defendant's witness, Mr. Newton, former Commissioner of Patents, shows that many words are commonly used as trade-marks, but that the word "Beech-Nut" is not in common use 152
Error of court below in disregarding conclusive proof of universal deception of the public by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, and considering only testimony regarding matters not of determinative importance 154
Error of court below in finding that the Lorillard Company did not try "to palm off its products as those of the plaintiff" 154
Mere use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by the Lorillard Company shows intent to deceive and palm off its products as those of the Beech-Nut Company; even instructions to salesmen against oral misrepresentation would not rebut presumption that deception was intended 155
No cautions to Lorillard salesmen 156
The testimony fairly shows express misrepresentation by Lorillard salesmen 159
Review of the testimony and reference to Appendix H 159
Erroneous finding of the court below regarding the resemblance between Beech-Nut labels used by the Lorillard Company and by the Beech-Nut Packing Co. 162
Comparison of Lorillard and Beech-Nut Packing Company labels 163
The law on the degree of resemblance between trade-marks necessary to constitute infringement 165
Quotations from cases 165–169

Error of the court below in its assumption that the Lorillard Company had no motive to appropriate the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company, and that the magnitude of the Lorillard business justified its appropriation of the Beech-Nut trade-mark and eliminated the element of damage therefrom 169

The law 175

Cases involving the use of the same trade-mark on different commodities 175

General statement as to the authorities 175

The extent to which the owner of a trade-mark may prevent its use by others on goods to which he has not applied it has never been decided by this Court or by the House of Lords in England 176

Quotation from Mr. Schechter's book 177

The Simplex case 179

Comparison of Simplex case with the instant case 182

Distinction between trade-mark use of commonly used words having a suggestive meaning and arbitrary words not in common use 183

"Beech-Nut" is an arbitrary word and has not been used by others 184

Cases in which the law as stated in the Simplex case has been applied to facts parallel to the facts in the case at bar 186

The Penslar case 186

The violation of the property right in good-will held to be sufficient ground for injunction regardless of whether the wrong can be classified as infringement of a trade-mark or as unfair competition 189

The Aunt Jemima case 192
The court discusses the English cases 194
The English cases 197
The Vogue case 201
The use of a word in a fraudulent manner may deprive a party of the right to use that word in a way that would have been innocent and harmless but for the original fraudulent use 204
Lorillard Company's fraudulent use of the word "Beech-Nut" as a part of a simulation of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark has worked a forfeiture of any right the Lorillard Company might ever have had in the word 205
The Overland and Rolls-Royce cases in the Third Circuit 205
The Overland case 206
The Rolls-Royce case 208
Rosenberg v. Elliott 210
The court discusses the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases, but its discussion does not reconcile the instant case with those cases and with the cases in other circuits, but accentuates the conflict 211-215
Collins v. Ames 215
Aluminum Company v. Sargoy 217
France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co. (The Gold Medal case) 219
Decision based upon three grounds: acquiescence, character of the goods and character of the trade-mark 220
The court distinguishes between a trade-mark used on a single article and one used on a varied line of products 221

The statutory phrases "same class" and "same descriptive properties" as interpreted by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.... 222
In trade-mark registration appeals from the Patent Office, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia works under the trade-mark statutes and necessarily reasons out such cases in the terms of the statutes, including above phrases 222
It rules that goods are of the "same class" and "same descriptive properties" in the meaning of the statute if, when sold under the same trade-mark, the public believe them to be of the same origin..... 223
Oppenheim et al v. President Suspender Co..... 223
Anglo Amer. Light Co. v. General Electric Co..... 224
Lord & Taylor v. Wolf..... 224
Simplex Electric Heating Co. v. Ramey Co..... 224
Boston Rubber Shoe Co. v. Abramowitz..... 226
Canton Culvert & Silo Co. v. Consolidated Car Heating Co. 226
Williams v. Kern 226
G. & J. Tire Co. v. G. & J. Motorcar Co. 227
Principles established by previous cases in which parties dealt in different commodities, and application to the instant case..... 228
Previous cases enjoin misappropriation of and injury to business good-will, and treat such misappropriation the same whether the instrumentality by which the good-will and business are identified is a trade-mark, trade name, or corporate or firm name..... 228
Use of same trade-marks upon different commodities by several persons all strangers to this case, not relevant here 233

Collections of labels and trade-mark registrations for many trade-marks used by other persons, put in evidence by P. Lorillard Co. (Defendant's Exhibits 19-24, inclusive, and 30-33, inclusive) are totally irrelevant and have no place in the consideration of the instant case. Nothing at all proved concerning these many other marks. Entirely irrelevant even if uses and ownerships were proved 233

The Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark was abandoned prior to 1915 when the Lorillard Company put its Beech-Nut tobacco on the market 236

Abandonment question here different from usual. The trade-mark that was discontinued (the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark) has never been resumed 236

Neither the Lorillard Company nor its predecessors ever owned a trade-mark symbolic of its business as an entirety or of a line of products; each of their trade-marks identified merely a single product 237

The Lorillard Company acquired no title to the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark for the reason that the good-will of the business previously symbolized thereby had passed out of existence before the date of the assignment of the Weissinger business to the Lorillard Company 238

Even if the Lorillard Company had obtained title to the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark the Lorillard Company's failure ever to use it would have worked an abandonment 240

Mr. Ball's statement that he examined the "list of brands" for the purpose of finding a "dormant" brand and in pursuance of that purpose selected the Weissinger Beechnut brand is an admission that the latter was abandoned and no longer represented the good-will of any going business 241

The "list of brands" was merely a memorandum list of names copied from the records of old companies 242
The record contains no testimony tending to indicate that the good-will or even the public's memory of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco continued after 1910 when the business in that brand ceased—It was only because the Weissinger Beechnut brand had been forgotten that the word "Beech-Nut" was suitable as the name of a new tobacco mixture compounded for the express purpose of capturing the trade of customers who would not buy the old mixtures..... 243
The Lorillard Company invariably preserved the exact design and appearance of the labels of active brands that were being manufactured and sold 245
The Lorillard Company made no change in the labels of the six active brands acquired from Luhrman & Wilbern, but made a complete transformation in the label of the forgotten and abandoned Weissinger Beechnut brand..... 245
Incident of the small letter "G" on the label of the "Duke's Mixture" brand..... 246
Intent to abandon the Weissinger Beechnut mark clearly and unmistakably proved by the circumstances 246
Judge Showalter's opinion in the Royal Baking Powder case holding that a trade-mark cannot be assigned after the good-will which it had previously symbolized has expired..... 248

In the Patent Office opposition proceeding the Examiner of Interferences held that the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark had been abandoned..... 250
The Levering Coffee Company case..... 251
The Court of Appeals in the instant case gave no weight to the Lorillard Company's contention that its present use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark is a continuation of the use of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark 253
Conclusions established by the history of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark..... 253

Alleged acquiescence of the Beech-Nut Company in the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark was temporary inaction of the Beech-Nut Company induced by the Lorillard Company's misrepresentation of the facts..... 255

The Beech-Nut Company informed the Lorillard Company in 1915 that the public was being deceived by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark and cited specific instances of such deception..... 255
The Lorillard Company would have had the right to make proper trade-mark use of the word "Beechnut" if the facts had been as represented by the Lorillard Company in 1915..... 257
The forwarding of orders for tobacco sent to the Beech-Nut Packing Company was not evidence of acquiescence, but of the fact that the parties sending the orders were deceived and that the Beech-Nut Company relied on the representation made by the Lorillard Company..... 259
The reliance of the Beech-Nut Company on the representation made by the Lorillard Company is shown not only by the suspension of its protest against the Lorillard Company, but also by the fact that the Beech-Nut Company asserted its rights against another tobacco manufacturer and sought and obtained the co-operation of the Lorillard Company in so doing 260

The Beech-Nut Company learned the truth regarding the abandonment of the Weissinger Beech-nut trade-mark from the testimony in the Patent Office opposition proceeding in the year 1920 261

Damage 262

The Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark converts the Beech-Nut Company's exclusive enjoyment of its good-will and reputation into a mere occupancy in common 262
The Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark and name is a symbol of its business and line of products as an entirety—not simply a symbol of origin of an individual product or of several products separately 262
Both the Hanover Star Milling case and the Simplex case recognize the principle that a trade-mark may symbolize a business generally or a line of products 263
Business good-will is property of the highest order in that it is absolutely created by the party to whose business it attaches 264
The rules that the same trade-mark may be used by different parties on different goods and that where there is no competition there can be no unfair competition were framed to meet conditions of trade that existed in former times, and not as limitations upon the just regulation of other and different conditions which have since come into existence 264
Injury to good-will may be caused otherwise than by direct competition—Where there is direct competition there will be special damage in the loss of sales in addition to the damage to good-will and the forestalling of the expansion of the business to which the good-will properly attaches 266

Mr. Justice Pitney's opinion in the Hanover Star Milling case (240 U. S. 412) 268
The Columbia Law Review on special and general damage in trade-mark and unfair competition cases 270
Section 19 of the Trade-Mark Act of 1905 provides for injunctions and for the award of profits and damages for "the violation of any right of the owner of a trade-mark" without limitation to injury caused by direct competition or resulting in special as distinguished from general damage.... 273
Property right as fully involved in unfair competition cases as in trade-mark cases 274
Instances of special damage have been proved in the instant case, and this is all that is required or that it is possible to do whether the commodities sold by the parties are alike or different.... 275
No hard and fast rule for defining the range of goods included within a trade-mark right 277
Conclusion 279

Appendices.

Appendix Page

APPENDIX A.—Deception proved by plaintiff's witnesses 1
APPENDIX B.—List of plaintiff's witnesses who dealt in or used Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes in the belief that these articles were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company 50

APPENDIX C.—Deception of public proved by defendant's witnesses 57

APPENDIX D.—Quotations from testimony of defendant's witnesses showing that the name "Lorillard" is practically unknown as an identification of tobacco products 75

APPENDIX E.—Plaintiff's witnesses showing Lorillard name unknown to many classes of people 89

APPENDIX F.—A few veteran tobacco dealers are the only witnesses who even remember that the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco brand ever existed—Not one ultimate consumer remembers 91

APPENDIX G.—United States Trade-Mark Statutes—Excerpts 95

Act of Feb. 20, 1905, ch. 592; 33 Stat. L. 724 (as amended).—Sections 5, 6, 9, 13, 16, 17, 18 19 and 23 95

Act of May 4, 1906, ch. 2081; 34 Stat. L. 168.—Section 2 100

APPENDIX H.—Deceptive practices of salesmen selling Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes 101

TABLE OF CASES CITED.

Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co. (C. C. A., 3rd), 273 Fed. 674.....
203, 205, 206, 207, 208, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 227, 271
Aluminum Cooking Utensil Co. v. Sargoy Bros. & Co., 276 Fed. 447.....217, 218, 219, 234
American Steel Foundries v. Robertson, Comr. of Patents, and Simplex Electric Heating Co. (Simplex case), 269 U. S. 372.....
127, 146, 175, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 263
Anglo-American Incandescent Light Co. v. General Electric Co., 43 App. D. C. 385..... 224
Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. Budweiser Malt Products Corp., 295 Fed. 306 (C. C. A., 2nd—Budweiser case) 144, 147, 148, 149, 150, 184
Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 234 Fed. 804 (E. D., N. Y.); 247 Fed. 407 (C. C. A., 2nd).....
144, 150, 152, 169, 176, 177, 178, 192, 193, 198, 203, 228, 229, 230, 232, 271
Beech-Nut Packing Co. v. P. Lorillard Co., 7 F. (2d) 967 (C. C. A., 3rd).....2, 129
Beech-Nut Packing Co. v. P. Lorillard Co., 299 Fed. 834 (Dist. Ct. N. J.)..... 2
Battle et al. v. Finlay et al., 50 Fed. 106..... 101
Borden Ice Cream Co. v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 201 Fed. 510.....145, 150
Boston Rubber Shoe Co. v. Abramowitz, 47 App. D. C. 199 226
Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311.....132, 133, 134
Canton Culvert & Silo Co. v. Consolidated Car Heating Co., 44 App. D. C. 491..... 226
Church & Dwight v. Russ, 99 Fed. 276..... 150
Collins Co., The v. Oliver Ames & Sons Corp., 18 Fed. 561.....193, 215, 216, 217

Coca-Cola Co. v. Gay-Ola Co., 200 Fed. 720..... 204
De Voe Snuff Co. v. Wolff, 206 Fed. 420..... 168
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Lubricant Co., 16 Rep. Pat Cas 12 (English case).....
.....152, 195, 197, 231
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop-Truffault Cycle & Tube Mfg. Co., 12 Times Law Rep. 434 (English case) 196, 198, 231
Eastman Co. v. Kodak Cycle Co., 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 105 (English case).....
.....152, 176, 177, 190, 194, 197, 198, 203, 230, 231, 271
Elgin National Watch Co. v. Loveland, 132 Fed. 41.. 271
Enterprise Manufacturing Co. v. Landers, Frary & Clark, 131 Fed. 240..... 159
Fairbank Co., N. K., v. R. W. Bell Mfg. Co., 77 Fed. 869 76
Fairbank Co., N. K., v. Central Lard Co., 64 Fed. 133 101
Florence Manufacturing Co. v. Dowd, 178 Fed. 73.....
.....150, 193
France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co., 7 F. (2d) 304 (C. C. A., 2nd—Gold Medal case).....
.....138, 151, 152, 177, 178, 184, 215, 219, 220, 221
Gold Medal Case: See France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co.
Globe-Wernicke Co. v. Brown & Besly, 121 Fed. 90.... 76
G. & J. Tire Co. v. G. & J. Motor Car Co., 39 App. D. C. 508..... 227
Hanover Star Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403....
.....197, 263, 268, 269, 274, 275, 276
Heileman Brewing Co. v. Independent Brewing Co., 191 Fed. 489 (quoting many Federal Court cases) 168
Hostetter Co. v. Conron, 111 Fed. 737..... 161
Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict, 198 U. S. 118.....132, 133
Kostering v. Seattle Brewing & Malting Co., 116 Fed. 620 167

Levering Coffee Co. v. Merchants Coffee Co., 39 App. D. C. 151 ..... 251, 252
Lord & Taylor v. Wolf & Son, 3 T. M. R. (Com'r of Pats), 41 App. D. C. 514 ..... 223, 224
McDonald & Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Mueller Mfg. Co., 183 Fed. 972 168
McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245 ..... 167, 196
Menendez v. Holt, 128 U. S. 514 101
Morgan's Sons v. Troxell, 23 Hun N. Y. 632 169
Morgan's Sons (Enoch) v. Wood, 152 Fed. 690 150
National Pictures Theatre v. Foundation Film Corp., 266 Fed. 208 144
New England Awl & Needle Co. v. Marlborough Awl & Needle Co., 168 Mass. 154; 46 N. E. 386 155
Oppenheim, Oberndorf & Co. v. President Suspender Co., 3 Fed. (2nd) 88 223
Overland Case: See Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co. (C. C. A., 3rd), and Willys-Overland Co. v. Akron-Overland Tire Co. (Dist. Ct., Del.)
Pabst Brewing Co. v. Decatur Brewing Co., 284 Fed. 110 (C. C. A., 7th—Pabst Blue Ribbon case) 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 184
Pease et al. v. Scott County Milling Co., 5. F. (2d) 524 (Noxall case) 149, 184
Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson et al., 6 T. M. R. (S. D. Ohio); 247 Fed. 658 (C. C. A., 6th) 150, 176, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 198, 203, 229, 232, 271
Pennsylvania Rubber Co. v. Dreadnaught Tire & R. Co., 225 Fed. 138 76
Pillsbury v. Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., 64 Fed. 841 165
Premier Cycle Co. v. Premier Tube Co., 12 Times Law Rep. 481 (English case) 196, 198, 231
Re Dunn's Trade-Mark, 7 Rep. Pat. Cas. 311 (English case) 152

Rolls-Royce Case: See Wall v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc.
Rosenberg v. Elliott, 3 F. (2d) 682 (E. D. Pa.); 7 F. (2d) 962 (C. C. A., 3rd)..... 178, 206, 210, 211, 212
Royal Baking Powder Co. v. Raymond, 70 Fed. 376..... 248, 249
Rushmore v. Badger Brass Mfg. Co., 198 Fed. 379.. 166
Saxlehner v. Eisner & Mendelson Co., 179 U. S. 19.... 166
Scriven v. North, 134 Fed. 366..... 76
Sharpless Co. v. Lawrence, 213 Fed. 423..... 266
Simplex Case: See American Steel Foundries v. Robertson, Commissioner of Patents et al.
Simplex Electric Heating Co. v. Ramey Co., 46 App. D. C. 400..... 224, 225
Stuart v. F. G. Stewart Co., 91 Fed. 243..... 165
United States v. American Tobacco Co., 191 Fed. 371 (Circ. Ct., S. D. New York)..... 14, 28, 46, 170, 242
United States v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 106..... 14, 28, 45, 46
Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 17 Rep. Pat. Cas. 673 (English case)..... 195, 196, 198
Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co. et al., 300 Fed. 509; 6 F. (2d) 875 (Mandate of C. C. A., 6th)..... 150, 169, 178, 201, 202, 203, 204, 229, 230, 266, 270, 271, 272
Wall v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., 4 F. (2d) 333 (C. C. A., 3rd—Rolls-Royce case)..... 178, 205, 206, 208, 209, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215
Walter v. Ashton [1902], 2 Ch. 282 (English case)..... 176, 177, 190, 197, 198, 199, 200, 203, 231, 271
Williams v. Kern, 47 App. D. C. 441..... 223, 226
Willys-Overland Co. v. Akron-Overland Tire Co., (Dist. Ct., Del.), 268 Fed. 151..... 187, 205, 206
Wolf Bros. v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 206 Fed. 611..... 76

TEXT-BOOKS CITED.

Columbia Law Review, February 1925, page 200, Appropriation of Trade Symbols by Non-Competitors 270, 271, 272
Hopkins, J. L., The Law of Trademarks, Tradenames and Unfair Competition (3rd Ed.—1917) 101
Schechter, F. I., Historical Foundations of the Law Relating to Trade-Marks (1925) 176–179

STATUTES CITED.

Sec. 240(a), Judicial Code as amended by The Act of Feb. 13, 1925, ch. 229; 43 Stat. L. 938 2

Act of Feb. 20, 1905, ch. 592; 33 Stat. L. 724 (as amended) 2, 126
[See Appendix G for full text of the following sections:]
Section 5 (33 Stat. L. 725, as amended by 34 Stat. L. 1251, 36 Stat. L. 918, 37 Stat. L. 649, and 41 Stat. L. 535) ..... 179, 181, 222, App. 95
Section 6 (33 Stat. L. 726, as amended by 34 Stat. L. 1252) ..... 41, 222, App. 96
Section 9 (33 Stat. L. 727) ..... 222, App. 97
Section 13 (33 Stat. L. 728) ..... 222, 235, App. 97
Section 16 (33 Stat. L. 728) ..... 127, 189, 273, App. 98
Section 17 (33 Stat. L. 728) ..... 2, App. 98
Section 18 (33 Stat. L. 729) ..... 2, App. 99
Section 19 (33 Stat. L. 729) ..... 128, 189, 273, 281, App. 99
Section 23 (33 Stat. L. 730) ..... 126, App. 99

Act of May 4, 1906, ch. 2081, Sec. 2 (Stat. L. 169) ..... 141, App. 100
[See Appendix G for full text of Section 2.]

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1926.

No. 249.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY.

On Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Petition for Certiorari Filed December 8, 1925. Certiorari Granted January 11, 1926.

BRIEF FOR PETITIONER.

(Plaintiff below.)

Nature and History of Case.

Petitioner filed its bill of complaint herein in the United States District Court for New Jersey on June 17, 1921, charging infringement of its registered trade-mark and unfair competition and praying for an injunction and an accounting of damages and profits. The District Court dismissed the bill without costs to either party, and the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit affirmed the decree of the District Court. Following are references to the reports of the opinions of the courts below:

Opinion of the District Court, 299 F. 834. (The opinion appears in the Record of this case at page 2645 of Volume V.)

Opinion of the Court of Appeals, 7 F. (2nd) 967. (The opinion appears in the Record of this case at page 2694 of Volume V.)

The opinion and decree of the Court of Appeals were filed on September 11, 1925 (R., Vol. V, pp. 2694 and 2704).

Jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of this court was invoked by petition for a writ of certiorari filed December 8, 1925, under the provisions of Section 240 (a) of the Judicial Code as amended by the Act of February 13, 1925, ch. 229 (43 Stat. L. 938). The petition was granted by this court on January 11, 1926. The basis of federal jurisdiction is the diversity of citizenship of the parties and the registration of petitioner's trade-mark under the provisions of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, ch. 592 (33 Stat. L. 724). Petitioner, the Beech-Nut Packing Company, plaintiff and appellant below, is a New York corporation. Respondent, the P. Lorillard Company, is a New Jersey corporation.

Decision Below and Conflicting Decisions in Other Circuits.

The ground for the petition for a writ of certiorari was that the decree of the Court of Appeals in the instant case rests on a decision on a question of law which is in conflict with previous decisions of the Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits, and also the importance of the question of law upon which the conflicting decisions had been made.

The Courts of Appeals of the Sixth and Second Circuits have decided that the appropriation by a stranger of the trade-mark or name of an established business with resulting appropriation of and injury to the good-will of that business is a fraud which equity will enjoin, even though the stranger deals in goods not identical with or of the "same descriptive properties" or "same class" as those dealt in by the party whose mark or name he has appropriated. The Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit bases its decision in the instant case upon its ruling that the P. Lorillard Company's use of the trade-mark and salient part of the trade and corporate name of the Beech-Nut Packing Company in the sale of tobacco and cigarettes, with resulting appropriation of and injury to the good-will of the business of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, is not a violation of law because the Beech-Nut Packing Company does not deal in tobacco or cigarettes or in commodities which the court considered of "the same class" or "same descriptive properties." The foregoing interpretation of the law is not only expressly stated by the Court of Appeals in its opinion, but it is implicit in its decision by reason of the undisputed and indisputable proof that the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark and name has caused universal belief by the purchasing public that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes are products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and has thereby diverted the good-will of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business to the uses and benefit of the Lorillard Company.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

Outline.

Following is a brief summary of the principal facts of the case in the form of an outline of the subject-matter of each of the five parts into which the Statement of the Case is divided.

OUTLINE OF PART I. HISTORY OF THE BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY'S BUSINESS AND OF ITS BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK. (POST, P. 16.)

The business was founded and the Beech-Nut trade-mark was adopted in or shortly prior to the year 1891 (post, p. 16). Several specimens of the Beech-Nut Company's labels used on different products are mounted on pages 5, 6, post. The products first produced were hams and bacon. In 1899 the original name of the company, Imperial Packing Company, was changed to Beech-Nut Packing Company in order to identify the corporate name as well as the trade-mark with the Beech-Nut products. The business grew steadily and by 1902 the company had added beef and grape jam to its products. In 1907 the number of products had grown to over forty. In 1912 the company registered its Beech-Nut trade-mark in the United States Patent Office for sixty-seven products and in that year was selling over forty products on a nation-wide scale. In 1911 the manufacture and sale of chewing gum was started (post, p. 22). Chewing gum is now the principal product of the company in volume of business, constituting over half of the total (post, p. 21). Over seven billion Beech-Nut trade-mark labels have been put before the public on goods sold, and the company had expended three million dollars for advertising prior to the end of the year 1921 (post, p. 22).

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY LABELS.

The four labels below are similar to labels in Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28.

A collection of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut labels is in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28. In this collection the labels are mounted on a large board, a photograph of which on a much reduced scale appears at pages 2777 to 2778 of Volume VI of the Record and a duplicate of which is inserted on pages 18*a* and 18*b* of this brief. The details of many of the smaller labels cannot be distinguished in these photographs on account of the reduction in size, but the photographs show the larger labels in detail and the general appearance of all of them. The dates of use of the different labels are shown at the top of Exhibit 28. Owing to the destruction of the Company's files by fire in 1903 (post, p. 18) and the fact that only about a half-dozen different commodities were produced prior to 1900 there are but few specimens shown of labels used prior to the last mentioned year.

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT NO. 27—BEECH-NUT CHEWING GUM DISPLAY BOX.

BOX INCLOSED IN OUTSIDE COVER.

BOX WITH FLAP DOWN—COVER REMOVED.

BOX WITH FLAP UP.

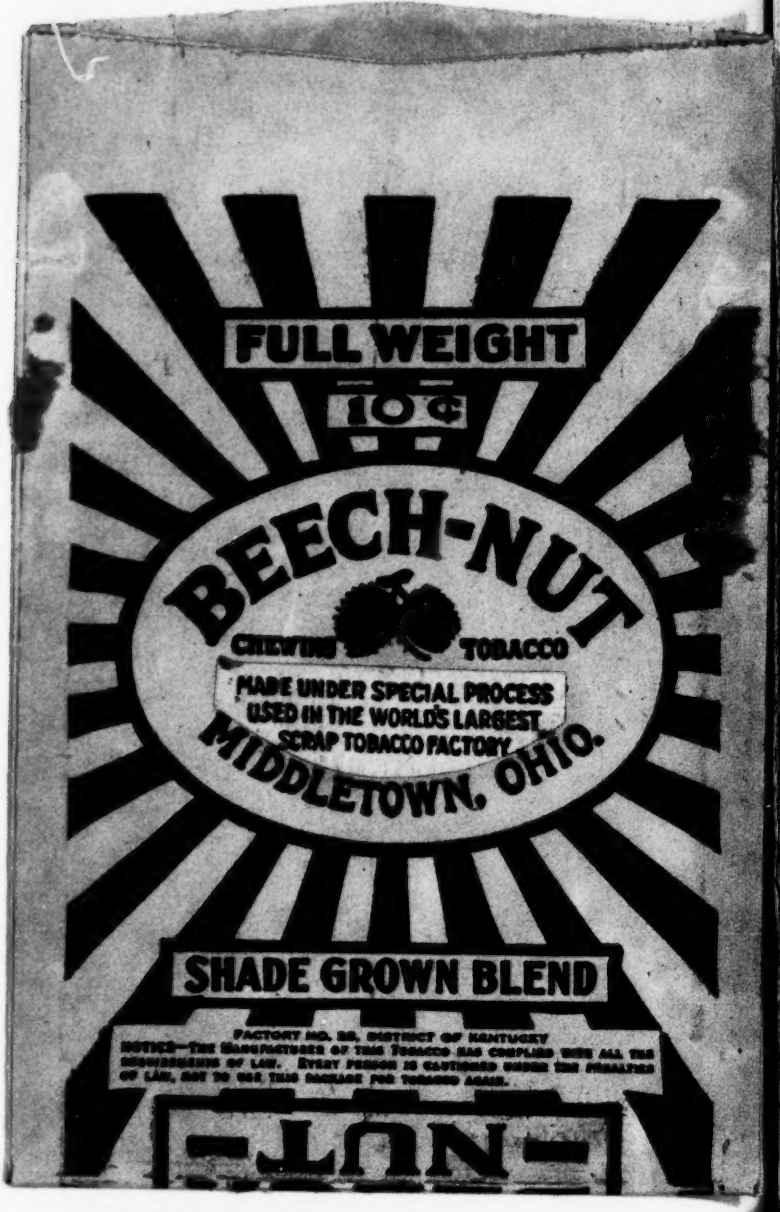
Above gum box contains twenty packages of five sticks each. Thus each box of gum, when sold, contains not only all the markings shown in above pictures but also 100 individual gum-stick wrappers and 20 package wrappers inside, all featuring the name Beech-Nut in its famous oval setting. Over ten million of these boxes of gum, over a billion sticks, were sold in 1921 (R. Vol. I, p. 850). The demand for Beech-Nut gum has been so enormous that it could not always be supplied. (Ibid. Q. 33.)

The company reserves the Beech-Nut trade-mark for goods of the highest quality and choicest variety, and uses other trade-marks upon less choice commodities incidentally produced in its business, such as the less choice but wholesome cuts of meat (post, p. 25). This policy has been followed for the purpose and with the effect of causing the purchasing public to buy new commodities bearing the Beech-Nut trade-mark by reason of their knowledge of the high quality of previous Beech-Nut products (post, p. 24).

OUTLINE OF PART II. THE LORILLARD COMPANY'S ADOPTION OF THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK, THE PROTEST MADE BY THE BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY IN 1915, THE LORILLARD COMPANY'S REPLY, AND THE DISCOVERY IN 1920 THAT THE REPLY WAS A MISREPRESENTATION OF THE FACTS. (POST, P. 26.)

The Lorillard Company in 1915 placed a new chewing tobacco mixture on the market in a wrapper bearing an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark. A specimen of the Lorillard Company's Beech-Nut tobacco wrapper is mounted on page 8, post. The Beech-Nut Company immediately wrote a letter of protest to the Lorillard Company. In reply the Lorillard Company represented that it and its predecessors, the Luhrman & Wilbern Company and the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, as shown by their office records, had used the word "Beech-Nut" on tobacco continuously since prior to the year 1898, in which year, or prior thereto, the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company of Louisville, Kentucy, had adopted the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for chewing and smoking tobacco. A reproduction of the Harry Weissinger Beechnut tobacco wrapper is mounted on page 9, post.

BEECH-NUT SCRAP TOBACCO LABEL
Used by
P. LORILLARD CO.

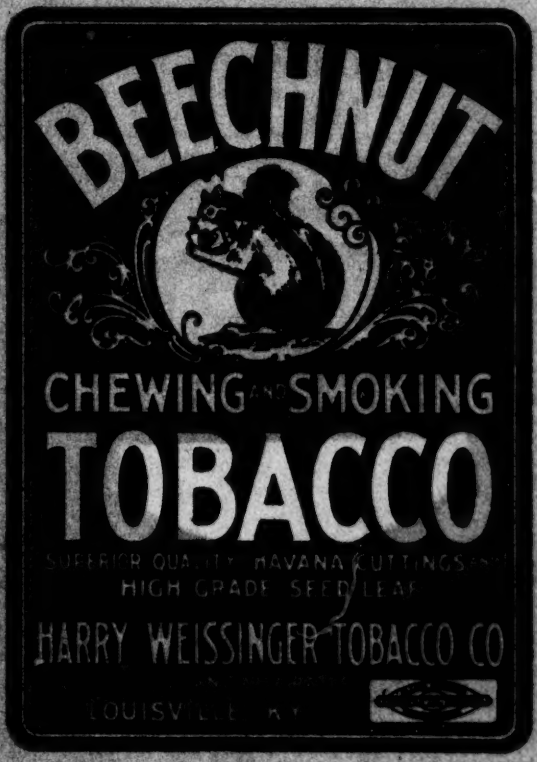


Above label appears in Bill of Complaint, Exhibit 2 (R. Vol. I, p. 17);

WEISSINGER BEECHNUT TOBACCO LABEL

As Used by

HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO CO.



Factory No. 28, Fifth District of Kentucky.

NOTICE.—The manufacturers of this Tobacco have complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again

Above label is a reproduction of Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No

There is nothing to indicate, and no likelihood, that any confusion or deception of purchasers was caused by Harry Weissinger's use of his Beechnut label on scrap tobacco in his small business at Louisville, Kentucky, in 1898 and thereafter and the Beech-Nut Packing Company's use of the word "Beech-Nut" on an entirely different label on the half-dozen food products it was then manufacturing in a small way at Canajoharie, New York. If, as represented, the Lorillard Company's use of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for tobacco was a continuation of Harry Weissinger's use of that word, and if that use had been continued without simulation of the Beech-Nut Company's label in arrangement and form, then any confusion in trade that might subsequently have arisen would have been due to the growth of the business of one or both of the parties, and not to any flaw in the original or continued right of either of them to use its label. The Lorillard Company's representation made it appear that it had a legal right to use on tobacco products a label of which the word "Beechnut" was the dominating element, and that the Beech-Nut Company could not possibly prevent its use of that word. The most the Beech-Nut Company could have hoped to accomplish would have been to induce or compel the Lorillard Company not to accompany the word "Beech-Nut" with the oval border and other elements of the design used by the Beech-Nut Company.

Relying on the Lorillard Company's representation and seeing no possibility of preventing that company from using the word "Beech-Nut" on tobacco products, the Beech-Nut Company did not prosecute its protest further. During the years following 1915 the Lorillard Company knew that the Beech-Nut Company continued to assert its right to prevent any tobacco dealer other than the Lorillard Company from using the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for tobacco products, and accepted and followed the Beech-Nut Company's suggestion to proceed against another tobacco dealer who was using the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark.

Defendant's Beech-Nut cigarettes label. First used in 1921.

In the spring of 1921 the Lorillard Company placed on the market a cheaper cigarette than it had theretofore made and at a price lower than that charged by its competitors for their cigarettes. To this cheap cigarette the Lorillard Company applied the name "Beech-Nut," presented on the label in the familiar oval design of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark. A specimen of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette label is mounted opposite this page. In 1919, when the Lorillard Company was preparing to put its Beech-Nut cigarette on the market, the Beech-Nut Company protested against this extension of the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, and, as a measure of defense, applied to the Patent Office for registration of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for cigarettes (post, p. 39). The Lorillard Company opposed the Beech-Nut Company's application for registration. The evidence taken in the Patent Office opposition proceeding in 1920 divulged for the first time that the manufacture and sale of the old Weissinger Beechnut tobacco had been discontinued by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, Weissinger's successor, before the Lorillard Company had acquired any interest in the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, and that the Lorillard Company itself had never made any use whatever of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark (post, pp. 46-50). Shortly after learning that the Lorillard Company had misrepresented the facts the Beech-Nut Company instituted the suit now at bar.

OUTLINE OF PART III. HISTORY OF THE WEISSINGER BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK AND BUSINESS. (POST, P. 45.)

The last sale of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was in April, 1910 (post, p. 47). None of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was manufactured after some undetermined date prior to the year 1909 (post, p. 49). Since the year 1903 the Weissinger tobacco business had been owned by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company and all of the stock of the latter company was owned by the American Tobacco Company. In accordance with the decision of this Court (221 U. S. 106) the American Tobacco Company was dissolved by decree of the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York (191 Fed. 371, decree at page 417). The decree of dissolution directed the organization of "a new corporation called P. Lorillard Company" (p. 423) and the conveyance to the new company of all of the stock of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (p. 424). The decree was dated November 16, 1911 (p. 431). On September 1, 1913, the Lorillard Company as sole stockholder of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company assigned all of the assets of that company to itself. The Lorillard Company never used the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark, nor was it ever used by anyone subsequent to 1910 when its use was discontinued by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company.

OUTLINE OF PART IV. DECEPTION OF THE PURCHASING PUBLIC AND OF DEALERS. (POST, P. 75.)

The Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark has caused the entire purchasing public to believe that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes are products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, or of the company which produces the extensive line of Beech-Nut products, and even many of the retailers and even wholesalers have been similarly deceived. In several instances the deception of consumers and of dealers extended over periods of several years and in most instances continued until the truth was learned from representatives of the Beech-Nut Company (post, p. 75, et seq.).

OUTLINE OF PART V. DAMAGE. (POST, P. 102.)

The use by the Lorillard Company of the trade-mark and trade-name "Beech-Nut" converts the Beech-Nut Company's right to the exclusive enjoyment of its reputation and good-will into the mere right to enjoy its reputation and good-will in common with the Lorillard Company and with anyone who desires to use the name "Beech-Nut" in connection with the sale of any commodity not previously dealt in by the Beech-Nut Company. Damage is inherent in the conversion of an exclusive title into a mere tenantry in common. Special damage, however, of a serious character and of ever widening extent is shown as the result of the cheap grade and inferior quality of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette, and in the opposition to, and withdrawal of patronage from the Beech-Nut Company by people who are opposed to the use of chewing tobacco and cigarettes. The effect of the decision below legalizing the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark will, if it stands, establish a legal principle that will authorize anyone and everyone to use the Beech-Nut Company's name and reputation in the sale of any commodities that have not theretofore been dealt in by the Beech-Nut Company.

STATEMENT.

PART I.

History of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Business and of Its Beech-Nut Trade-Mark.

EARLY HISTORY.

The business now conducted by the Beech-Nut Packing Company was started on a very small scale at Canajoharie, New York, some two or three years prior to 1891, in which year the enterprise was incorporated as the Imperial Packing Company (R. Vol. I, pp. 800-801; 827, X-Q. 18; Vol. IV, pp. 2155-2157, 2163; Vol. VI, p. 2983). The conditions under which the business was established are described by Marshall Davis, one of the original employees who is still with the company as foreman of the meat department. The following is from his testimony:

> "X-Q. 26. When you first came with the Imperial Packing Co., how many men did they employ?
>
> "A. I was the first one. We cured our hams in a cellar and took them back of the barn and smoked them in a barrel. Then we had a smoke house a story and a half high. Before the fire we had moved into the Soles building. There was a clam stand downstairs—they sold booze, cider and had a bar. We had one room upstairs and started with three men. I was a boy cleaning out the office, carrying out the waste paper, etc., and going to school. From that time on it has grown to where it is now." (R. Vol. I, p. 828.)

Walter H. Lipe, vice president and general manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company in 1920 when he testified in this case, and Bartlett Arkell, the present president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, were the incorporators of the Imperial Packing Company in 1891 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2983-2984). Since its inception the business has been managed and controlled by the men who founded it.

In 1891 the products of the company were ham and bacon (R. Vol. IV, p. 2156, Q. 4). At first these products were labeled "Imperial" ham and bacon, but after the first few months the name "Beech-Nut" was adopted (R. Vol. IV, p. 2156, Qs. 6-8), and used thereafter on all of the products of the company with the slight exception of some of the less choice cuts of meat, to which latter the names "Mohawk," "Holly," and "Erie" were applied in order to preserve the significance of the name "Beech-Nut" as a symbol of products of the highest quality and choicest variety. Testimony regarding the use of these brands will be found in the Record, Vol. I, p. 16, X-Q. 733, and pages 817 and 853, and Vol. IV, p. 2165, X-Q. 73. Specimens of the Erie and Holly trade-marks are inserted in the Record at pages 2882 and 2884 of Volume VI.

In 1899 the name of the business was changed to Beech-Nut Packing Company by incorporation of a new company under that name and transfer to it of all the assets of the Imperial Packing Company (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2156-2157). This change was made by reason of the fact that the word "Beech-Nut" had been used as a trade-mark since 1891, and the owners of the business desired to have its corporate name as well as the trade-mark identify its products as "Beech-Nut" products (R., Vol. I, p. 786, Q. 16).

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF COMMODITIES DEALT IN—PRESENT MAGNITUDE OF BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY'S BUSINESS —USE OF STANDARD BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK.

In 1902 the company produced and sold under the Beech-Nut trade-mark hams, bacon and beef in bulk, beef in glass jars, bacon in glass jars and one pound boxes, and grape jam (R., Vol. VI, p. 2784). The growth and present magnitude of the business are shown by Plain-tiff's Exhibits 35 and 28, and by the yearly sales of the company's products. Plaintiff's Exhibit 35 (R., Vol. VI, pp. 2784 to 2814) is a summary of Beech-Nut products year by year from 1902 to 1923. This summary was prepared from the Beech-Nut Packing Company's price lists by W. H. Maichle, the company's New York division manager. (R., Vol. V, p. 2457.) Plaintiff's Exhibit 28 is a collection of labels used by the Beech-Nut Packing Company between 1891 and 1923. The original of Exhibit 28 is a large board bearing specimens of the labels. On the following pages, 18*a* and 18*b*, there is a photograph of Exhibit 28. The yearly sales of the Beech-Nut Company from 1903 to 1921 are shown in the following tabulated statement which is in evidence. Owing to the burning of the plant the records of the Beech-Nut Company prior to the year 1903 are not in existence (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2157-2158, Qs. 21-22).

PLAINTIFF'S EXHIBIT NO. 28—BOARD: BEECH-NUT LABELS DISPLAYED BEFORE THE PUBLIC, 1891-1921.

PLAYED TO THE PUBLIC 1891-1921

1910-1915—

1915-1919

1919-

TABLE OF SALES STATISTICS, BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, 1903-1921.

	Total Sales.	Reg. Line.	Gum.	Comp. Tab. Misc. Conf. Bev.
1903	$ 563,764.37	$ 563,764.37	$	$
1904	832,906.10	832,906.10
1905	1,000,986.83	1,000,986.83
1906	1,267,877.81	1,267,877.81
1907	1,293,059.92	1,293,059.92
1908	1,408,481.33	1,408,481.33
1909	1,950,534.60	1,950,534.60
1910	2,555,315.85	2,555,315.85
1911	2,838,384.99	2,819,441.56	18,943.43
1912	3,179,337.79	2,778,822.00	400,515.79
1913	4,112,592.99	2,681,110.07	1,431,482.92
1914	4,966,337.76	2,484,854.93	2,480,023.48	1,459.35
1915	5,703,945.39	2,258,356.76	3,288,521.35	157,067.28
1916	6,598,385.15	2,681,685.97	3,632,127.15	284,572.03
1917	7,363,678.56	3,407,467.30	3,594,864.53	361,346.73
1918	6,754,967.21	4,502,462.68	1,853,038.28	399,466.25
1919	8,979,586.35	5,378,607.40	2,233,860.24	1,367,118.71
1920	11,138,226.51	5,435,324.37	3,955,902.00	1,747,000.14
1921	12,109,573.68	4,618,207.28	6,281,945.41	1,209,420.99

(R. Vol. I, pp. 867, 868.)

A stipulation of facts explanatory of the foregoing tabulated statement appears at page 869 of Volume I of the Record. The figures in the first column represent the total sales, in the second column the sales of the "regular line" of goods produced by the company, the third column the sales of chewing gum, and the fourth column the sales of compound tablets (candy), miscellaneous confectionery, beverages, etc.

Owing to the fire in 1903 above referred to, but little documentary or physical evidence of any kind relating to the period prior to 1903 has survived. Following are references to a few things which have been preserved.

Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 31 is a specimen of a sample box in which the Imperial Packing Company packed samples of Beech-Nut bacon in the year 1891. A photographic copy of this box appears at page 2780 of Volume VI of the Record, and the testimony of the witness who had preserved it is upon pages 857 and 858 of Volume I of the Record. The word "Beech Nut" is the most conspicuous feature of the label on this box.

Beech-Nut Exhibit Stationery of 1892 is one of the business letter sheets used by the Imperial Packing Company in 1892. A photographic copy of the letter-head on this sheet appears at page 2839 of Volume VI of the Record. The testimony of the witness who produced it is on page 2177 of Volume IV of the Record. The phrase "Beech-Nut Hams and Bacon" is a conspicuous part of this letter-head, and upon it appear the names of Bartlett Arkell as president of the company and Walter H. Lipe as treasurer. Mr. Arkell is still president of the company and Mr. Lipe was vice-president and general manager of the company when he testified in this case in 1920.

Upon pages 2987 to 2997 of Volume VI of the Record are copies of four certificates of registration by the Imperial Packing Company and Beech-Nut Packing Company of the word Beech-Nut as a trade-mark, as follows: No. 19,838 for hams and bacon in 1891; No. 24,978 for pork lard in 1894; No. 35,731 for cured, dried and smoked beef in 1901; and No. 36,444 for canned goods in 1901. These early registrations do not show the trade-mark in its present form, but show the word "Beech-Nut" and the picture of a beech-nut cluster with a circular or oblong border. Certain of these four trade-marks were used as brands burned into the hams and bacon (W. H. Lipe, R. Vol. IV, pp. 2163, 2164). Mr. Lipe was unable to produce specimens of the labels originally used by the Imperial Packing Company on account of the destruction of their old records by a fire in 1903 (R. Vol. IV, p. 2164, X-Q. 70). He stated (X-Qs. 71-72, Vol. IV, pp. 2164-2165) that his memory was that the oval border had been used as part of the trade-mark since 1892. He was corroborated in this by a witness who has been continuously in the employ of the Imperial Packing Company and Beech-Nut Packing Company since 1891 (R. Vol. I, p. 826, X-Q. 15).

Earl A. Nellis, sales manager of the Beech-Nut Company since 1906, testified to his personal knowledge of the use since 1906 of all of the labels appearing on Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28 under date of 1906 and subsequently (R. Vol. I, p. 848, Qs. 9, 10). He testified that all of the Beech-Nut goods during the time of his employment by the company had been put out under the "regular oval label" (R. Vol. I, p. 848, Qs. 6 to 10).

In the year 1912 the number of products listed by the Beech-Nut Packing Company on its price lists and being extensively made and sold was forty-one (Plaintiff's Exhibit 35, R. Vol. VI, pp. 2797-2798). In the same year, 1912, the company registered its Beech-Nut trade-mark in the Patent Office for sixty-seven products, all of which it sold to a greater or less extent. (The 1912 Patent Office certificate of registration is reproduced at page 2867 of Vol. VI of the Record). As shown by Exhibits 35 and 28 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2784 to 2814, and pp. 2777-2778) above referred to, and by the tabulated statement reproduced above (ante, p. 19), the volume of business and number of products have continued to increase up to the time of the trial of this suit.

In 1923 (the latest year regarding which the record contains evidence) the number of products extensively sold was sixty. The principal product in volume of business is chewing gum as shown by the statement (ante, p. 19), the business in chewing gum in the last year reported, 1921, amounting to more than the combined business in all other products. The manufacture and sale of chewing gum was commenced in 1911 as shown by the yearly price lists (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2795 to 2814) and Mr. Barbour's testimony (R. Vol. I, p. 788). The tabulated statement of sales, ante, p. 19, shows that the chewing gum business has increased rapidly and continuously during all of the time since 1911 with the exception of two of the war years. Among the other products are hard candy lozenges, mints and fruit tablets (put up in small packages and sold largely on tobacco stands), peanut butter, condiments, conserves, jellies, beverages, ham, bacon and a large variety of food products.

OVER SEVEN BILLION LABELS BEARING THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK USED BY THE BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY PRIOR TO THE END OF THE YEAR 1921.

Christina Carswell, statistician of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, produced from the records of the company a statement showing the number of Beech-Nut labels used year by year from 1903 to 1921 upon packages of goods sold by the company, the total number for the period covered being over seven billion (R. Vol. I, p. 839). She testified that the statement of the number of labels produced by her included only "the Beech-Nut labels with the red band" (R. Vol. I, pp. 845-846, X-Q. 28).

THREE MILLION DOLLARS EXPENDED IN ADVERTISING BEECH-NUT PRODUCTS PRIOR TO THE END OF THE YEAR 1921.

Prior to the end of the year 1921, in which year the bill of complaint herein was filed, the Beech-Nut Packing Company had expended three million dollars in advertising its name "Beech-Nut," its variety of goods and the high quality of all of its goods. (Testimony of Walter H. Lipe, who in response to Q. 35, R. Vol. IV, p. 2159, produced the tabulated statement appearing at page 2204 of Vol. IV, and also testimony of Van Wie, R. Vol. I, p. 818, Qs. 6 to 9.)

In all of their advertising the company emphasizes the high quality and character of its products (Barbour, R. Vol. I, p. 782, Q. 5). The advertising appropriation for 1920 was $500,000, for 1921 $550,000, and a still larger expenditure was anticipated for 1922, the testimony of the witness on this point having been taken before the expiration of the last-named year (Van Wie, R. Vol. I, p. 818, Qs. 6, 7, 8). The mediums of advertising are newspapers, periodicals, billboards, posters and the distribution of samples of the various products as fully described in the testimony of officers and employees of the company. (Barbour, R. Vol. I, p. 782, Q. 3; p. 787, Q. 19; Kearns, R. Vol. I, p. 801; Plaintiff's Exhibits 21 to 26, scrap-books containing samples of advertisements; Van Wie, R. Vol. I, p. 818; Carswell, R. Vol. I, p. 838.)

POLICY OF BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY TO SELL UNDER THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK ONLY GOODS OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY AND CHOICEST VARIETY, AND TO THEREBY GAIN FOR NEW PRODUCTS THE BENEFIT OF THE HIGH REPUTATION OF THE PRODUCTS PREVIOUSLY SOLD.

The acceptance by the public of new products bearing the word "Beech-Nut"—referred to in detail in Part IV of this statement—as of the same origin as the goods previously marketed under the Beech-Nut trade-mark was due not only to the public knowledge of the fact that new commodities had been and were being from time to time added to the line of goods bearing the Beech-Nut trade-mark, but was also due to a considerable extent to the fact that a large part of the public, especially jobbers and wholesalers, were acquainted with the fact that the Beech-Nut goods were produced and dealt in by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Both the corporate name and the trade-mark served to identify the company's products as "Beech-Nut" products.

The company's fixed policy of instilling in the public mind the belief that new products bearing the Beech-Nut trade-mark would be of the same high quality as the products previously marketed is described in the following passage quoted from the testimony of Francis E. Barbour, vice-president and manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company:

> ". . . We have determined never to offer for sale any article under the Beech-Nut label until we are satisfied that it is better than any similar article." (R. Vol. I, p. 782, Q. 3.)

Mr. Barbour continues:

> ". . . We expect that our reputation of the past will help make an easy market for us in the future with whatever new lines we may bring out from time to time." (R. Vol. I, p. 782, Q. 5.) . . .
>
> "We have sold, for so many years, on our reputation; in selling the trade not only the individual articles which we make, but also the name of Beech-Nut, its reputation for character and flavor, that when we bring out any new article, the consuming public, retailers and jobbers, are willing to accept any new articles we bring out under the name 'Beech-Nut,' and give us an opportunity to demonstrate to them that it is going to satisfy them—that is, the jobbing trade. They are mighty good to us; when we bring out a new product, they give our boys an order. After they have once tried it, we have got to make it good enough so they will continue to buy it." (R. Vol. I, p. 783, Q. 6.) . . .
>
> "Well, we have spent over twenty-five years in building up the present good-will and reputation for character and high quality that it is absolutely obligatory that we make everything we bring out of a high character which will compare favorably with what people have enjoyed in the past, so that when they take any new article we bring out they will feel full assurance that it will match up in character and quality with what has given them satisfaction under the Beech-Nut name in the past." (R. Vol. I, p. 783, Q. 7.) . . .

". . . We have been six or seven years in developing a salted peanut, and we have not mastered the production of salted peanuts to our satisfaction yet. There are a number of salted peanuts on the market, put out under some very well known brands, which have been well advertised and highly exploited, and which are enjoying a very large trade, as we understand it, but none of them, in our estimation, is good enough to bear the Beech-Nut trademark." (R. Vol. I, p. 784, Q. 9.)

In order to avoid impairing the significance of the Beech-Nut trade-mark as a symbol of goods not only of the best quality but also of the choicest variety, the Beech-Nut Company used other trade-marks—"Mohawk," "Holly" and "Erie"—on the less choice but wholesome cuts of meat, although of negligible quantity. The policy of the Beech-Nut Company in this regard is explained by Earl A. Nellis, sales manager of the company (R. Vol. I, pages 852-853, X-Qs. 50 to 53), and Walter H. Lipe, one of the founders of the company and its vice-president and general manager at the time he testified (R. Vol. IV, p. 2165, X-Q. 73).

PART II.

The Lorillard Company's Adoption of the Beech-Nut Trade-Mark, the Protest Made By the Beech-Nut Packing Company in 1915, the Lorillard Company's Reply, and Discovery in 1920 That the Reply Was a Misrepresentation of the Facts.

In the year 1915 the P. Lorillard Company commenced the manufacture of a new scrap tobacco mixture which it marketed under the trade-mark "Beech-Nut." A specimen of the package as put out for the first time in 1915 appears on page 8, ante, the original exhibit having been attached to the bill of complaint (R. Vol. I, p. 17). The label as used ever since by the Lorillard Company is identical with that first used in 1915 except that the word "Scrap" has been replaced by the word "Chewing."

When, in 1915, the Beech-Nut Packing Company first learned that P. Lorillard Company was marketing scrap tobacco under the Beech-Nut label, Mr. F. E. Barbour, vice-president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, under date of June 11, 1915, wrote a letter of protest to P. Lorillard Company. This letter and the ensuing correspondence are contained in Defendant's Exhibit No. 18 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2886 to 2923). In this letter (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2888-2890) Mr. Barbour explained the long use and widespread recognition upon products of all kinds of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. He stated that the Beech-Nut Packing Company had not yet manufactured tobacco, but that "the taking on of such manufacture in the future is by no means impossible or improbable." In this letter Mr. Barbour set forth the fact that the use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by the Lorillard Company seemed explainable to the Beech-Nut Packing Company only on the ground of an intention on the part of the Lorillard Company that the public should be deceived. He expressed his confidence that the Lorillard Company would recognize the justice of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's position and that no necessity would arise for following any harsher course to enforce recognition of its rights. Under date of June 23, 1915 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2891), the Lorillard Company acknowledged receipt of the letter above mentioned, and asked that the Beech-Nut Packing Company state when they first began the use of the name Beech-Nut.

Under date of July 2, 1915 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2892-2893), the Beech-Nut Packing Company wrote to the Lorillard Company informing them that the Beech-Nut trade-mark had been used by the Beech-Nut Company and its predecessors since and prior to 1891, and adding that the Beech-Nut Packing Company knew as an absolute truth that the public was in fact deceived, and that the Lorillard "salesmen and agents deliberately push your goods and trade under this identity of use of their mark and name."

On July 8, 1915, the Lorillard Company wrote a letter to the Beech-Nut Packing Company in which the following statement occurs:

> "You seem to proceed upon the assumption that we have recently begun to use the name on the tobacco. This is not the case. This Company and its predecessor in ownership of this brand have used it continuously since prior to the year 1898, as shown by records in my office." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2893.)

In his letter of July 26, 1915, addressed to the Lorillard Company, Mr. Barbour states that his company

> "will greatly appreciate it if you will send us samples of your product showing the manner of use of the word 'BEECH-NUT' since the year 1898, copies of advertisements or of letter-heads showing your use of this name." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2895.)

Under date of September 15, 1915, the Lorillard Company through its counsel, Thos. S. Fuller, wrote to the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Following is the opening paragraph of the letter:

> "I have been able to locate some old price lists which contain our Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, and enclose them herein. I am also sending you an old package showing the use of the name 'Beech-Nut' and our present package." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2897.)

A reproduction of the "old package" referred to is mounted on page 9, ante. Mr. Fuller's letter continues with a statement that "Beech-Nut chewing and smoking tobacco (scrap) was made by Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company," with an explanation of the assignment of the Weissinger business to the Luhrman & Wilbern and American Tobacco Companies and the acquisition of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company by the Lorillard Company by decree of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York [in pursuance of the judgment of this Court that the American Tobacco Company was a combination in restraint of trade, 221 U. S. 106. The decree of the Circuit Court appears at the end of its opinion (191 Fed. 371, 417)]. This explanation was given in order that the Beech-Nut Packing Company might understand the bearing of the price lists in the name of Luhrman & Wilbern and the package in the name of Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, as stated in the next paragraph of Mr. Fuller's letter.

Under date of September 20, 1915 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2901), the Beech-Nut Packing Company acknowledged receipt of the letter last mentioned, stating that the letter was a very interesting one and that before giving a definite reply they desired to review the matter, and concluding with a repetition of their statement that widespread deception of the public was taking place. In a previous letter to the Lorillard Company, dated September 2, 1915 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2896), the Beech-Nut Packing Company had informed the Lorillard Company that the Beech-Nut Packing Company had that day received an inquiry from The New River Grocery Co. at Hinton, W. Va., asking the best jobbing price on Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, and the letter of September 20, 1915, concludes with a further reference to this occurrence and with the statement that since writing their last letter the Beech-Nut Company had received another inquiry, this time from Wm. Edwards Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, asking them to ship five cases of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco.

The 1915 correspondence came to an end with this letter. The significant points of this correspondence are that the Lorillard Company definitely and distinctly stated that that company and its predecessors had used the Beech-Nut trade-mark continuously since prior to the year 1898 as shown by the records in their office, and that in response to the Beech-Nut Company's inquiry as to the "manner of use" of the word "Beech-Nut" the Lorillard Company sent the Beech-Nut Company one of the Harry Weissinger Beechnut tobacco packages. This representation made by the Lorillard Company constituted a statement of complete and perfect right to use the word BEECH-NUT in any proper way as a trade-mark for scrap tobacco unless the Beech-Nut Packing Company could show the existence of a superior right extending back to the year 1898. The Beech-Nut Packing Company could prove no such superior right in the year 1898 and, well knowing this fact, did not press its protests further and made no further communication to the Lorillard Company after Mr. Barbour's letter of September 20, 1915.

As shown by the testimony hereinbefore referred to, the Beech-Nut Packing Company was a relatively small enterprise in the year 1898. As late as the year 1903, its total sales of the eight Beech-Nut products then produced amounted to only about half a million dollars. (R. Vol. I, p. 867; Vol. VI, p. 2784.) It was not until several years later than 1903 that the business of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and its reputation had become sufficiently widespread to lead the public to the belief that any packaged consumable product carried by retail grocers, delicatessen dealers, drug stores, cigar-stands, tobacco merchants, etc., and bearing the Beech-Nut name, was its product. In the year 1898 when the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company in Louisville Kentucky, was putting out scrap tobacco under its BEECHNUT label, and the Beech-Nut Packing Company was dealing in a half dozen food products in a relatively small way at Canajoharie, N. Y., each of these parties in all probability, and so far as shown by the record, was unknown to the other and there was little possibility of deception of the public. Geographically they were widely separated. They were putting out different products. The labels used by them had no resemblance other than in the fact that each of the labels bore the word "beech nut," and even this word was differently represented on the two labels, the word being hyphenated upon the Beech-Nut Packing Company label and written continuously upon the Weissinger label.

It is not at all likely that in 1898 there was any confusion in the public mind between the local scrap chewing tobacco business of Harry Weissinger in Louisville Kentucky, and the relatively small packing business conducted by the Beech-Nut Packing Company at Canajoharie, New York, and in 1915 there certainly would have been no possibility of adducing evidence to prove the presence or absence of confusion in 1898. But in the year 1915, long after the Beech-Nut Packing Company's name and its Beech-Nut trade-mark had become familiarly known throughout the entire country, confusion in business of the most widespread character was caused by the Lorillard Company's adoption of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark. The representation made by the Lorillard Company in 1915 had the effect of making the facts that existed in 1898 determinative of the rights of the parties instead of the facts existing in 1915.

If the Lorillard Company and its predecessors in title had in fact used the original, unchanged Weissinger label continuously since 1898 as a trade-mark for tobacco, it might be that confusion still would have arisen in the minds of purchasers as to whether or not the Beechnut tobacco and the extensive line of Beech-Nut products were produced by the same company. But in that case there would have been no legal remedy for the confusion caused by the Lorillard use of the word Beech-Nut. In 1898 there was no clash of legal rights between Harry Weissinger's use of his "Beechnut" label on scrap tobacco in a small business conducted at Louisville, Kentucky, and the Beech-Nut Packing Company's use of the word "Beech-Nut" on an entirely different label and for different commodities in a small business at Canajoharie, New York. Each party in its business as conducted in 1898 would have had a perfect legal right at that time to use its label, and if confusion subsequently arose from the continued use of the Weissinger label in its original form, i. e., without change to simulate the Beech-Nut Company's label, such confusion would have been by reason of the growth of the business conducted by one or both of the parties. Such confusion, arising in a perfectly innocent and legal way, though unfortunate, could not be remedied by the law.* And the Lorillard Company represented that this was the situation which actually did exist.

In brief and argument below the Lorillard Company contended that the Beech-Nut Company had acquiesced in the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark and in support of this contention referred to the fact that orders for Beech-Nut Scrap Chewing tobacco sent to the Beech-Nut Packing Company were forwarded by the latter to the Lorillard Company. The only significance in this circumstance is that it shows that the Beech-Nut Packing Company so completely relied upon the truthfulness of the representation made in 1915 by the Lorillard Company that it courteously forwarded to the Lorillard Company orders for Beech-Nut tobacco which were sent to the Beech-Nut Company. The orders for Beech-Nut tobacco which were sent to the Beech-Nut Packing Company are referred to more in detail in connection with the deception of the public (Part IV of this Statement of the Case, post, p. 88).

* Inasmuch as the law of trade-marks and unfair competition, insofar as questions of interstate commerce are not involved, is state law as distinguished from United States law the conflicting claims of different parties to the right to use a trade-mark within the limits of any state would depend upon priority of adoption in that state, and if, as between two parties, one was the first to adopt the trade-mark in one state, and the other the first to adopt it in another state, the trade-mark would belong to one of the parties in one state and to the other in the other state. If the subsequent growth of the business of either or both of the parties brought about a conflict in other states, not involving interstate commerce, the conflict in each of such other states could be resolved only by the law of such other states. A situation of this kind existed in the Hanover Star Milling Co. case, 240 U. S. 403, and the foregoing is in consonance with both the opinion of the entire court and the separate concurring opinion. The point is not involved in the case at bar, and is referred to only as indicating that situations might arise to which the statement in the text to which this note is appended would not apply without the qualification that if the confusion between the two businesses arose from their extension into states previously unoccupied by them, then the conflict, in intrastate commerce, would be governed by the law of the newly occupied states.

The Lorillard Company's statement that its office records showed that it and its predecessors had used the word Beech-Nut as a trade-mark for tobacco continuously since 1898 had its intended and perfectly natural effect, namely, the effect of silencing the protest made in 1915 by the Beech-Nut Packing Company against the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. The Beech-Nut Company remained silent on the subject until 1920 when the officers of the Beech-Nut Company learned that the Lorillard Company had in 1915 misrepresented the facts in stating that it and its predecessors had used the word Beech-Nut on tobacco continuously since 1898. But during all the years following 1915 the Lorillard Company had full knowledge of the fact that the Beech-Nut Packing Company claimed and asserted its right to the Beech-Nut trade-mark to the exclusion of all tobacco manufacturers and dealers other than the Lorillard Company. The Lorillard Company's knowledge of this fact carried with it knowledge of the fact that the Beech-Nut Company had suspended its opposition to the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark solely on account of the Beech-Nut Company's belief of the Lorillard Company's statement that its rights dated continuously from the year 1898. The alleged continuous use since 1898 was the sole circumstance that differentiated the status of the Lorillard Company from that of other tobacco manufacturers and dealers, and during the years subsequent to 1915, when the Beech-Nut Company suspended its protest, the Lorillard Company knew that the Beech-Nut Company was objecting to the use of the word Beech-Nut as a trade-mark by other tobacco manufacturers and dealers, and the Lorillard Company at the suggestion of the Beech-Nut Company instituted legal proceedings to suppress the use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by another tobacco manufacturer and dealer.

On July 7, 1919, the Beech-Nut Packing Company informed the P. Lorillard Company by letter of that date (R. Vol. VI, p. 2904) that a firm in Pittsburgh was trading under the name "Beech-Nut Stogie Co." By letter of July 9, 1919, the Lorillard Company acknowledged receipt of the information regarding the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, expressed its thanks for the information and stated that the matter would have prompt attention. Under date of July 25, 1919, Mr. B. Arkell, president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, wrote to Mr. Thomas J. Maloney, president of the P. Lorillard Company (the letter appears at page 2910 of Vol. VI of the Record), inclosing a letter concerning the Beech-Nut Stogie Company which had been written by James R. Offield, counsel for the Beech-Nut Company, to Mr. W. C. Arkell, Mr. B. Arkell's son. (Mr. Offield's letter appears at p. 2909, R. Vol. VI.) In his letter Mr. Offield stated that the fact that the Beech-Nut Company had filled orders (for chewing gum) for the Beech-Nut Stogie Company without making any complaint would have a bearing upon the Beech-Nut Company's right to recover damages, but that he doubted if it would have any bearing upon the Beech-Nut Company's right to stop the use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by the Beech-Nut Stogie Company. Mr. Offield concluded his letter with a recommendation that the matter be called to the attention of the Lorillard Company so that they could take action against the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, as he thought the Lorillard Company was in a better position to take such action than the Beech-Nut Company. By letter of July 28, 1919 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2911), the president of the Lorillard Company acknowledged receipt of Mr. B. Arkell's letter of July 25 inclosing Mr. Offield's letter regarding the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, and stated that the Lorillard Company was "now opposing in Washington an attempted registration by this concern of the name 'Beech-Nut' for some tobacco products," and that this was the beginning of measures "which we hope will result in stopping the use of the name by this concern for tobacco products."

Nothing could be more clear than that at the time of this correspondence the Beech-Nut Company was asserting its right to stop the use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by any tobacco manufacturer or dealer other than the Lorillard Company, and that the Lorillard Company was fully informed of that fact and co-operated with the Beech-Nut Company in its desire to enforce its rights against tobacco dealers other than the Lorillard Company. As above stated, the only circumstance that differentiated the Lorillard Company from the Beech-Nut Stogie Company or any other tobacco dealer was the fact that the Lorillard Company had represented to the Beech-Nut Company in 1915 that the Lorillard Company had a right in the trade-mark use of the word "Beech-Nut" based upon continuous use since 1898. The Lorillard Company necessarily knew that its representation of continuous use since 1898 was what gave it a favored position among tobacco dealers. What the Lorillard Company has urged as the Beech-Nut Company's acquiescence was inaction induced by the Lorillard Company's misrepresentation of the facts.

CONTROVERSY IN 1919 AND 1920 REGARDING EXTENSION OF LORILLARD COMPANY'S USE OF BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK TO CIGARETTES LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF FALSITY OF REPRESENTATION MADE IN 1915 BY THE LORILLARD COMPANY.

As stated by Mr. Belt, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, the latter considered for a long time putting on the market a cigarette of the blended type, but deferred doing so on account of the difficulty of getting the necessary materials during the war "and did not actually get the cigarette in question, Beech-Nut, on the market until in the spring of 1921." (R. Vol. V, p. 2593.) The label used appears as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1 herein (R. Vol. VI, p. 2708) and is reproduced on page 12, ante. Mr. Lipe, who was then vice-president and general manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, testified that he knew of the intention of the Lorillard Company to put a Beech-Nut cigarette on the market, and gave the date of his learning this fact as within two years, maybe a little over a year before August 3, 1920, when he testified (R. Vol. IV, p. 2172, X-Qs. 122, 123).

In July, 1919, a conference was held between Mr. Lipe and Mr. Bartlett Arkell, representing the Beech-Nut Company, and Mr. Maloney president of the Lorillard Company (R. Vol. IV, p. 2172, X-Q. 119). Mr. Lipe gave the following account of this conference:

> "I remember Mr. Maloney said they had ordered a lot of labels. We talked about their changing the label. It was some sort of a conversation like this. We said the labels on the Beech-Nut cigarettes, for instance, looked like a Beech-Nut label, had same style of letters. There was some talk as to if or not they would change, at least the lettering, and the same color of label so that they did not copy our letters, copy our color and should change their slogan so that it did not mean 'Beech-Nut' to the average person.

"X-Q. 126. It was not a question of the word 'Beech-Nut'?

"A. We never got to that. We had doubts about it, but I do not remember there was anything said about it. We had a long talk but I do not remember every word.

"X-Q. 127. The main discussion in your interview, as you remember it, was the label?

"A. Style of letters, color, etc. When we came away we felt that we had not gained anything—that we had not found a common ground. I think my memory is pretty clear on this that Mr. Maloney inferred if we would consider reimbursing them for the amount they had paid out for the labels, they would change the label or discontinue. That is the impression he gave me. I would not say that was really spoken, but I gathered if we said to him we would make good for the money put into these labels, he would have said they would quit. Possibly he did not intend that at all.

"X-Q. 128. As you understand it, if you had reimbursed them for the labels he would have changed the style of labels?

"A. I would not say that he said that, but that was the inference—he would change it or something like that." (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2173-2174.)

Mr. Maloney in his letter of July 15, 1919, to Mr. Arkell (R. Vol. VI, p. 2907) said that "Pursuant to our interview, I am sending you by registered mail, under separate cover, a sample of the old package for Beech-Nut cigarettes, also one showing color scheme for the new package." He also stated that the cost of this change would be $10,231.36 and that he felt sure the Beech-Nut Company would not permit the Lorillard Company to suffer such a loss. At this time the Lorillard Company had not put its Beech-Nut cigarette on the market. Mr. Belt, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, said (R. Vol. IV, p. 2262) that prior to May, 1919, the Lorillard Company was "in a position of entire readiness to make this brand and place it on the market" and that, though many of the cigarettes had been made and packed in packages, the company considered the time unfavorable for marketing this brand. He produced a specimen of the packages in which these Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes were inclosed in 1919, a photograph of which appears at page 2973 of Vol. VI of the Record. In his testimony appearing at page 2593 of Volume V of the Record, Mr. Belt says that the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette was first put on the market in the spring of 1921.

The "old package" referred to by Mr. Maloney in his letter of July 15, 1919, is that represented by the photograph on page 2973 of Volume VI of the Record. No specimen of the "new package" referred to by Mr. Maloney is in evidence and it does not appear ever to have been used. The original package shown on page 2973 of Volume VI (the "old package" referred to by Mr. Maloney) bore at the left-hand end of the wrapper, as there shown unfolded, the inscription or slogan: "Cigarettes of Beech-Nut quality have never before been offered to the public." This obvious reference to the Beech-Nut Packing Company's reputation as a producer of goods of the highest quality does not appear on the package in which the cigarette is now sold, a specimen of which is mounted on page 12, ante.

Mr. Arkell, under date of July 17, 1919, acknowledged receipt of Mr. Maloney's letter of July 15 and stated that payment by the Beech-Nut Company for the cost of the proposed change in the package was not in accord with his recollection of their interview. Mr. Maloney in his letter of July 28, 1919, to Mr. Arkell (R. Vol. VI, p. 2911) adhered to his position that the Beech-Nut Company should defray the cost of the proposed change in the Lorillard cigarette package.

Upon August 7, 1919, Mr. Barbour, vice-president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, wrote to the Lorillard Company stating that Mr. Arkell had no recollection of any mention of the advertising matter or wrappings and that Mr. Lipe, also a member of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, while remembering some mention of it, did not remember any mention of the quantity and that "neither of these gentlemen gained the inference that you would expect the Beech-Nut Packing Company to absorb the cost of these supplies." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2913.) In this letter of August 7 Mr. Barbour also suggested that the Lorillard Company use for the cigarette a wrapper like that on the Lorillard Beech-Nut Tobacco in order to "apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company making the popular Beech-Nut tobacco." In the following paragraph of the same letter (R. Vol. VI, bottom of page 2912) Mr. Barbour states that if the Lorillard Company does not care to follow the suggestion offered above he hopes the Lorillard Company will abandon the red background and change the same to blue or some other color and will also change the style of printing.

On September 17, 1919, Mr. Maloney, president of the Lorillard Company, wrote to Mr. Arkell, president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, stating that the Lorillard Company was about to file in the Patent Office an opposition to the registration by the Beech-Nut Packing Company of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for cigarettes, and stating that he, Mr. Maloney, had understood from the interviews and correspondence with Mr. Arkell prior to the filing of the application for registration that the Beech-Nut Packing Company "did not intend to press this application." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2917.)

On June 25, 1919, the Beech-Nut Packing Company had filed its application in the Patent Office for registration of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for cigarettes (R. Vol. VI, p. 2821), having previously had the American Tobacco Company put up some cigarettes in boxes bearing the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark (R. Vol. I, p. 791, X-Qs. 49-53).

These few boxes of cigarettes put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company before applying for trade-mark registration bore the word "Beech-Nut" but not the oval border and picture of a beech-nut cluster (R. Vol. IV, p. 2169, X-Qs. 96-103), but later the witness, Mr. Lipe, produced two Beech-Nut cigarette labels of the same oval design as used by the Beech-Nut Company upon its other products and stated that his memory was that they "could not get those labels for ten days or two weeks." Mr. Lipe also said that if the Beech-Nut Company had sold any more cigarettes they would have sold them with the standard oval label. (Witness' statement following his answer to X-Q. 108, R. Vol. IV, p. 2170). The standard oval cigarette label was offered in evidence (R. Vol. IV, p. 2175) and appears at page 2999 of Vol. VI of the Record. These few boxes of cigarettes sold by the Beech-Nut Company as a foundation for the application for registration were the only cigarettes ever sold by the Beech-Nut Company.

After some further correspondence the Beech-Nut Packing Company informed the Lorillard Company in its letter of October 8, 1919, that the Beech-Nut Company did not feel disposed to reimburse the Lorillard Company "for losses sustained by reason of adopting trade-mark and common law property which rightfully belongs to this company." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2920.) This is followed by the statement that the position of the Beech-Nut Packing Company is "that regardless of the trade name or mark 'Beech-Nut' your company adopted our oval trade-mark and our general color scheme and other embellishments for your cigarette package, and this your company had no right to do regardless of any rights that you may have had in so far as the name Beech-Nut is concerned." The distinction which Mr. Barbour makes, in the statement just quoted, between the Lorillard Company's use of the word "Beech-Nut" and their use of "our oval trade-mark and our general color scheme and other embellishments" clearly shows that the attitude of the Beech-Nut Packing Company was based squarely upon its belief that the Lorillard Company had a legal right to use the word "Beech-Nut," that word having formed a part of the old Weissinger Beechnut trademark which the Lorillard Company represented had been used continuously by it and its predecessors since the year 1898. Mr. Barbour's reliance on the Lorillard Company's representation is explicitly shown by his reference to the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's entire trade-mark and his statement that "this your company had no right to do regardless of any rights that you may have had in so far as the name Beech-Nut is concerned."

The correspondence comes to an end with the letter of October 15, 1919 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2922), written by Mr. Maloney, to the Beech-Nut Packing Company, which letter concludes with a statement to the effect that if they had failed to arrive at an amicable settlement the Lorillard Company would like the return of the sample packages which had been sent to the Beech-Nut Company.

The application of the Beech-Nut Packing Company for registration of the word Beech-Nut was published in the Patent Office Gazette of September 9, 1919, and within thirty days of that date, as required by Section 6 of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, Ch. 592 (33 Stat. L. 724), the Lorillard Company filed in the Patent Office a notice of opposition to the registration applied for by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The testimony taken in the ensuing opposition proceeding has by stipulation (R. Vol. I, p. 871) been admitted as part of the evidence in the suit at bar and forms Volume IV of the Record in this case.

In the notice of opposition by which the Lorillard Company instituted the opposition proceeding in the Patent Office it was alleged, in the second and fourth paragraphs thereof (R. Vol. IV, p. 2244), that "since about 1899, or prior thereto, the word symbol Beech Nut, has been continuously used by the opposer, P. Lorillard Company, or its predecessors in business and title as a trade-mark for tobacco products." The Beech-Nut Packing Company's answer to the notice of opposition was in the usual form, admitting the truth of both formal and material allegations which it knew of its own knowledge to be true and denying all other allegations (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2150 to 2154), among the allegations denied being that of continuous use since 1899 of the word symbol Beech-Nut by the Lorillard Company and its predecessors. This question of continuous use since 1899 thus became an issue of fact in the opposition proceeding solely because counsel for the Beech-Nut Company followed the usual course of incorporating in the answer denials of all allegations lying exclusively within the knowledge of the opposing party. Thus it came that the facts were brought out in the Patent Office proceeding. The testimony revealed the fact that the use of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark was discontinued in April, 1910, by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, over a year and a half before the Lorillard Company acquired any interest in the Luhrman & Wilbern business, and that the Lorillard Company itself had never manufactured the Weissinger tobacco mixture and had never used the Weis-singer Beechnut trade-mark. These facts, with references to the record, are set out in Part III of this statement.

The Patent Office Examiner of Interferences decided (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 41, R. Vol. VI, p. 2821) in the opposition proceeding that the statutory provision under which the Patent Office acted precluded him from taking cognizance as a basis of his decision of any question other than the question whether plaintiff or defendant had first applied the Beech-Nut trade-mark to tobacco products, and refused to grant plaintiff's application for registration of its trade-mark for cigarettes because the Lorillard Company had applied that brand to scrap tobacco before the Beech-Nut Company had applied it to cigarettes.

The Examiner held that he could not under the statute take cognizance of the question of the legality of the Lorillard Company's use of the trade-mark upon scrap tobacco, but was bound to base his decision upon the bare fact of priority of use upon a tobacco product. The Examiner referred plaintiff to the United States courts for an adjudication of the real question at issue (R. Vol. VI, p. 2827). In developing his reasoning the Examiner ruled that the old Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark had been abandoned and that the Lorillard Company had no rights extending back of the year 1915 (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 41, R. Vol. VI, pp. 2823-2825).

The Beech-Nut Packing Company appealed from the decision of the Examiner to the Commissioner of Patents. The Assistant Commissioner of Patents held (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 42, R. Vol. VI, p. 2830) that the sales of cigarettes made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company were merely formal, did not constitute any real business and were not sufficient to support an application for trade-mark registration. In this proceeding in the Patent Office the Beech-Nut Packing Company contended, as it does here, that it had the right to extend the use of its trade-mark to cigarettes and the right to prevent others from so using it, but the Assistant Commissioner of Patents concluded his opinion as follows (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 42, R. Vol. VI, p. 2832):

> "In the argument and in the briefs many other interesting questions are urged, but since applicant has no business on which to base its registration, the Patent Office has no jurisdiction of its case and anything we may say with respect to the other questions which might otherwise be involved would seem inappropriate."

As appears from the foregoing quotation the proceedings in the Patent Office terminated by reason of the Commissioner's ruling that because of the merely formal character of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's sales of cigarettes the Patent Office had no jurisdiction of any of the questions here in controversy.

PART III.

History of the Weissinger Beechnut Brand and Business.

HISTORY—ORIGIN AND ASSIGNMENTS.

In or about the year 1897 the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company of Louisville, Kentucky, adopted for scrap tobacco the label offered in evidence in the Patent Office opposition proceeding as Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No. 14, a reproduction of which appears on page 9, ante (R. Vol. IV, p. 2360, Qs. 32-34, R. Vol. VI, p. 2987). Following is a statement of the several assignments of the business of the Weissinger Company as shown by the substance of the assignments which is in evidence by stipulation (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2251-2252), and by the testimony of S. E. Spence and W. R. Perkins, representing the Lorillard Company (R. Vol. IV, p. 2258 and R. Vol. V, p. 2530).

In 1903 the Weissinger Company assigned its business and tobacco brands to the Continental Tobacco Company, and the latter in that year assigned the same to the Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company. Both the Continental Company and the Luhrman & Wilbern Company were at the time controlled by the American Tobacco Company, as appears from the opinion of this Court in U. S. v. American Tobacco Co., 221 U. S. 106. The American Tobacco Company owned outright all of the stock of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (221 U. S. p. 144). In the instruments effecting the assignments above mentioned the Weissinger Beechnut brand was specifically mentioned. The Luhrman & Wilbern Company made no change in the Weissinger Beechnut label other than adding its own name as shown in the reproduction (page 73, post) of the label as used by Luhr-man & Wilbern (Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No. 5, R. Vol. VI, p. 2971).

In 1911 the American Tobacco Company was adjudged by this Court (221 U. S. 106) to be a combination in restraint of trade and all of the capital stock of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company was on November 16, 1911, conveyed by decree of the United States Circuit Court (191 Fed. 371, 417, 424) from the American Tobacco Company to the P. Lorillard Company. The P. Lorillard Company to which this transfer was decreed was a new corporation "called P. Lorillard Company" which was organized by order of the Circuit Court for the purpose of receiving part of the distributed assets (Decree, 191 Fed. p. 423). The corporate existence of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company was continued after its acquisition by the P. Lorillard Company. September 1, 1913, the P. Lorillard Company as sole stock-holder of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company assigned all of the assets of that company to itself, no specific mention being made in the assignment of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco or trade-mark (R. Vol. IV, p. 2252).

FIRST DISCLOSED BY PATENT OFFICE OPPOSITION TESTIMONY IN 1920 THAT MANUFACTURE OF WEISSINGER BEECHNUT TOBACCO WAS DISCONTINUED PRIOR TO 1909, THAT LAST SALE WAS IN APRIL, 1910, AND THAT NONE WAS OFFERED FOR SALE AFTER 1910.

Mr. David Ball, one of the vice-presidents of the Lorillard Company, testifying as a witness in the Patent Office opposition in 1920, produced a statement of sales showing the sales of the old Weissinger Beechnut tobacco. The statement produced by Mr. Ball is in evidence as Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No. 1. Mr. Ball's reference to this exhibit is upon page 2255 of Volume IV of the Record, and the exhibit is printed upon pages 2965 to 2970 of Volume VI of the Record. Ralph Bowman, bookkeeper, cost clerk and assistant cashier of the Middletown, Ohio, factory where the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was manufactured by the several successors of the Weissinger Company, produced a record book which also contains a record of the sales of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco. Mr. Bowman's testimony on this point extends from near the bottom of page 2317 to page 2319 of Volume IV of the Record, and the pages of the book, Exhibit D, relating to the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco are reproduced at pages 2023 to 2028 of Volume VI of the Record.

The facts shown by the statement produced by Mr. Ball, Exhibit No. 1, and those shown in the book, Exhibit D, are the same though somewhat differently arranged. Exhibit D is a statement of the sales each month, and, with the exception of the first few months in 1904, there is entered opposite the name of each month the number of pounds sold in that month and also the total sales since the beginning of the calendar year. Following are the total sales of the old Weissinger Beechnut tobacco year by year as shown by the Lorillard shipment book, Exhibit D above referred to:

1904	10,776
1905	5,139
1906	3,600
1907	2,605
1908	1,025
1909	425
1910	25

The 25 pounds sold in 1910 was sold in the month of April, 1910, as shown by the two entries "25" in April of that year (R. Vol. VI, p. 2027), one entry showing the amount sold in April and the other showing the total since the first of the year 1910. In each of the succeeding months of 1910 there is a single entry of the numeral "25" after the name of the month, this being the total since the first of the year and remaining the same as no sales were made of the Weissinger Beechnut brand after April, 1910.

Mr. S. E. Spence, secretary and auditor of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company from 1904 to 1911, and since then connected with the Lorillard Company, testified as follows in the Patent Office proceeding:

> "During the early years that Luhrman & Wilbern were putting out this Beechnut tobacco, after taking over the business of Harry Weissinger Tob. Co., it sold what was quite a quantity for those days, although the same might appear small today. The brand was sold in those days particularly through such states as Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It was sold in Pittsburgh to such concerns as Jenkins, Ewart, Arbuckles and others, and in Cumberland, Md., to J. C. Orrick & Sons Co. I refer to the table of sales forming part of the stipulated deposition of Mr. Ball, Vice-President of the Lorillard Company, Exhibit 1, and make particular reference to that portion of the table covering the years 1904-1911 when I was Secretary and Auditor of Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company. This table was made from the books forming the records of the Luhrman & Wilbern Tob. Co., and it will be noted that the sales gradually diminished until 1910 but twenty-five pounds were made and sold. Luhrman & Wilbern did not make and sell any Beechnut Tobacco during the years 1911-1914, as shown by said table, for the brand was not pushed during those years, as other brands were being actively marketed, and in the tobacco business, as in any other business it is necessary to actively push a brand and keep it before the public in order to keep up the sales." (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2258-2259.)

Mr. Spence added that the trade-mark was not abandoned "for Luhrman & Wilbern during those years had on hand the necessary materials such as the formula, tobacco, wrappers and packages necessary to fill any order'' and that he ''as Auditor and Credit man for this concern, would have O. K'd. any genuine order'' for this tobacco. The attaching of his ''O. K.'' to an order as auditor and credit man would have involved nothing other than his approval of the credit standing of the party giving the order, and his statement that wrappers and the formula were in existence and tobacco in stock has no force except on the untenable theory that trade-mark rights survive as long as wrappers endure and the raw material of manufacture is obtainable.

None of the Lorillard Company's price lists are in evidence. In the letter of September 15, 1915, of the Lorillard Company to the Beech-Nut Company (R. Vol. VI, p. 2897), reference is made to the inclosure of price lists containing entries of the old Beechnut tobacco, the letter containing the statement that the price lists said to be inclosed are dated January 2, 1904, May 6, 1907, July 1, 1910, and November 3, 1910. The last named date is the latest upon which there is any indication that the old Beechnut tobacco brand even appeared on a price list, and the price list is not in evidence.

Testimony regarding the manufacture of the Weissinger Beechnut scrap tobacco mixture was given by Herbert C. Boykin, general manager of the Middletown, Ohio, factory where this brand was manufactured after the Weissinger Company gave it up. Mr. Boykin has been employed at the Middletown factory since 1902 (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2303-4). He testified that no Beechnut tobacco was made in the years 1909 to 1914 (R. Vol. IV, p. 2310, X-Q. 49, and p. 2305, Qs. 8, 9). It appears, therefore, that the 25 pounds which was sold in April, 1910, was some old tobacco manufactured prior to the year 1909.

The testimony above referred to of Messrs. Ball, Spence, Bowman and Boykin, given in the Patent Office opposition in 1920, shows that the Lorillard Company misrepresented the facts in 1915. As set forth above (ante, p. 27), when in 1915 the Beech-Nut Company protested against the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark on scrap tobacco the Lorillard Company replied as follows:

> "You seem to proceed upon the assumption that we have recently begun to use the name on the tobacco. This is not the case. This Company and its predecessor in ownership of this brand have used it continuously since prior to the year 1898, as shown by the records in my office." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2893.)

The facts as revealed in the Patent Office opposition were that the manufacture of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was stopped prior to the year 1909, that the last sale was made in April, 1910, and that it was never offered for sale after 1910. The Lorillard Company did not acquire ownership of the capital stock of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company until November 16, 1911 (ante, p. 46). Therefore the manufacture of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco had ceased at least two years and ten months, and the last sale of that tobacco was made over a year and a half before the Lorillard Company acquired the ownership of or any interest in the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, and the Lorillard Company itself never, at any time, made or sold any of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco mixture, and never sold any tobacco of any kind under the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark. Promptly upon learning that the Lorillard Company had misrepresented the facts in 1915 the Beech-Nut Company instituted this suit.

REASONS GIVEN BY LORILLARD COMPANY FOR ADOPTION OF THE WORD "BEECH-NUT" AS A TRADE-MARK FOR A NEW TOBACCO MIXTURE SHOW KNOWLEDGE OF DIS-USE OF WEISSINGER BEECHNUT TRADE-MARK AND OF THE FACT THAT IN 1915 IT NO LONGER WAS KNOWN TO THE PUBLIC AS A TRADE-MARK FOR TOBACCO.

Mr. David Ball, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, gave the following explanation of the reasons that impelled him, acting on behalf of the Lorillard Company, to adopt the word Beech-Nut as a trade-mark in 1915:

"A. At the time of the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company in December, 1911, the bulk of what we term the scrap business was turned over to the Lorillard Company, and their big brand was 'Honest.' The year before the dissolution, or rather the year of the dissolution, which was 1911, the brand of 'Honest' started to decline, and for three or four succeeding years, the decline was gradual all the time, and that also applied to some of our other brands, and I went out myself to make a personal investigation to ascertain the cause of this decline. And after looking the field over very carefully I decided that the taste of the consumer was changing somewhat; that brands that were somewhat sweeter than ours seemed to be growing, and our brands that were less sweet were declining, so I came back and reported it to our president and suggested that we endeavor to get up a new formula that would be better suited to the taste that seemed to be changing at the present time; and after experimenting quite a while he brought over a sample package of a piece of goods that struck me as being an ideal product to put out. So we decided to put out another brand, and in looking around for a brand, as is our usual custom, I referred to our list of brands to see what were in a way dormant, and that had been turned over to us as our property by the American Tobacco Company, and one of the first brands I noticed was the brand of Beech-Nut, and that seemed to me to be a very appropriate name for this article, and we decided to use this brand for that purpose." (R. Vol. V, pp. 2557-2558.) (Italics are ours.)

. . . . . .

". . . and in this investigation that I made when I went out in the territory, I found a great many people, consumers I interviewed largely, because he is the man you have got to get in the tobacco business—I found a great many consumers that were very much dissatisfied with the brands that they were using. One of the most common expressions of a consumer who is dissatisfied with the brand that he has been using, 'Well,' he says, 'it ain't as good as it used to be.' Well, when a man gets that idea into his head that it isn't as good as it used to be, he is looking around for something else. That was one of the causes that made me so enthusiastic in getting our president to originate a little different formula, and the fact that this formula that he originated suited the taste, hit that change that so many people were seeking at that time, was one cause backed up by the manner in which the brand was marketed." (R. Vol. V, p. 2564.)

The "list of brands" (Defendant's Exhibit No. 35, R. Vol. VI, pp. 2942-2955) to which Mr. Ball referred consists of sixteen closely typewritten pages containing over a thousand names said to have been applied to tobacco products by companies the assets or stock of which were allotted to the present Lorillard Company upon the dissolution by court decree of the American Tobacco Company. Mr. William R. Perkins testified (R. Vol. V, pp. 2528-2538) that he has been one of the counsel of defendant since 1911 and of the American Tobacco Company prior to 1911, and that after the decree of dissolution had been entered in November, 1911, he made a list of all the tobacco brand names appearing on the records of the companies whose assets or stock went to the Lorillard Company under the decree. From the testimony of Mr. Perkins it appears that the list contains the name of every brand appearing on the records of these companies. The list is simply a memorandum. Its preparation was merely a clerical act involving the listing of all brands that had ever been used regardless of whether they were dead or alive. The inclusion of the word Beechnut in this list along with over a thousand other words signifies nothing other than that the word was still legible in the old books of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company.

The necessities of the situation made it impossible for the Lorillard Company to apply to their new 1915 tobacco mixture any trade-mark that was known to the purchasing public as the symbol and identification of an old tobacco mixture. The Lorillard 1915 mixture was compounded, as stated by Mr. Ball, with a different and sweeter flavor for the sole purpose of appealing to tobacco users who had ceased to buy the old mixtures. Hence Mr. Ball's care to select what he calls a "dormant" brand. In order to eliminate any possibility of the new 1915 mixture being associated by the public with the old Weissinger brand the Lorillard Company took nothing from the Weissinger Beechnut label but the word "Beechnut," and then changed that word to "Beech-Nut" and made it a part of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark. The absence from the Lorillard scrap tobacco label of the picture of a squirrel, which had formed so conspicuous an element of the Weissinger label, in itself showed the intention to repudiate and abandon the Weissinger trade-mark. That Mr. Ball was correct in his conclusion that the Weissinger Beechnut brand was "dormant" is shown by the facts next reviewed, which facts show that no ultimate purchaser even remembered in 1915 that any such tobacco as the Weissinger Beechnut brand had ever existed.

IN 1915 NO ULTIMATE CONSUMER OF TOBACCO EVEN REMEMBERED THAT THE WEISSINGER BEECHNUT BRAND OF TOBACCO HAD EVER EXISTED, AND HENCE THERE WAS NO SURVIVAL IN 1915 OF ANY TRADE-MARK RIGHTS THEREIN.

The record contains no testimony that any ultimate consumer of tobacco even remembered in 1915 or at any subsequent time that the old Weissinger Beechnut brand had ever been on the market. The only witnesses who did testify regarding the previous existence of the Weissinger Beechnut brand, outside of Lorillard Company officials and men connected with its manufacture, were a few veterans of the tobacco trade who had been connected with the business for periods ranging from fifteen to forty-five years, and some of these had no independent recollection but merely produced records and read them. We outline this testimony in Appendix F, post (App., p. 91). Its character and weight is fairly indicated by the fact that they were veterans and experts in the tobacco business and therefore in a better position than the ultimate consumers to remember obscure historical facts of the tobacco trade.

None of these witnesses produced any record or remembered any fact indicating sales of the Weissinger Beechnut brand later than 1908. One of them, Charles C. St. Clair, thought the reason the sale of the Weissinger Beechnut brand had ceased was because it was no longer manufactured (R. Vol. IV, p. 2281, X-Q. 34). The last purchase of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco made by the firm for which Mr. St. Clair worked was in 1903 as testified to by another witness (Nichol, R. Vol. IV, p. 2276, and note following X-Q. 17 on page 2279).

The only specimen packages of the Weissinger Beechnut brand that were produced were obtained by the witness Gormly from an old drawer of fifteen year old samples (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2285-2290), and by the witness Orrick from an eighteen or twenty year old carton (R. Vol. IV, pp. 2272-2273). The Gormly samples bore revenue stamps canceled in 1905, the latest date at which the evidence shows that Mr. Gormly's company had dealt in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco. Mr. Gormly said they had offered several times to give away the contents of the sample drawer containing these Weissinger Beechnut packages but "no person would take it on account of its age." (R. Vol. IV, p. 2288, X-Q. 62; p. 2283, X-Q. 74.) At the time, 1915, when the Lorillard Company adopted the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark these old packages produced by Gormly had lain for ten years in the sample drawer and were the last packages shown by the evidence to have been bought by the firm in whose sample drawer they were interred; while the packages described by Orrick had already lain forgotten for some thirteen to fifteen years.

As above stated, the evidence of the witnesses here briefly referred to is digested in Appendix F, post (App., p. 91).

The insignificant sales of the old Weissinger "Beechnut" tobacco in the years from 1905 to 1910, and the complete cessation of sales or of even any offer or efforts to sell it after 1910 resulted in the complete obliteration of the Weissinger Beechnut brand from the memory of the purchasing public. The good-will of a business is the favorable regard in which that business is held by the public. The public cannot favorably regard a thing which it does not even remember. Therefore it is an obvious fact of this case that the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco had expired prior to the year 1915. Inasmuch as no property right in a trade-mark can exist except by association of the mark with the good-will of a business, it is an equally obvious fact of this case that in the year 1915 the Lorillard Company had no property right or right of any kind or nature in the word "Beechnut." It is conceivable that the good-will of a business, and the property right in the trade-mark which symbolizes and identifies the business, may in some instances continue to exist after, and sometimes, perhaps, long after, the business itself has been discontinued. But upon no possible theory can the good-will and trade-mark rights of a business continue after the very existence of the business and of the trade-mark as an identification of the business has been forgotten.

FACTS SHOWING LORILLARD COMPANY'S INTENTION TO ABANDON, AND KNOWLEDGE OF ABANDONMENT OF THE WEISSINGER BEECHNUT TRADE-MARK.

Facts already reviewed showing the Lorillard Company's intention to abandon, and knowledge of the abandonment of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark are: (1) the fact that the Luhrman & Wilbern Company and the Lorillard Company had discontinued the Weissinger Beechnut brand for so long a time that it was completely forgotten by the ultimate consumers; (2) Mr. Ball's selection of the Weissinger Beechnut brand because in 1915 it was "dormant"; (3) the fact that the Lorillard Company in 1915 was under the necessity of applying to the newly flavored 1915 tobacco mixture a name that would attract tobacco users who would no longer buy the old tobacco mixtures, thus making the word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut" unavailable except for the Lorillard Company's knowledge that this word was not known to tobacco users as a symbol or identification of any old tobacco mixture; and (4) the elimination from the Lorillard 1915 Beech-Nut scrap tobacco label of every distinguishing feature of the Weissinger Beechnut label other than the word "Beechnut," and the transformation of this word to "Beech-Nut," and its use as part of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut trade-mark of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

Further evidence of the Lorillard Company's intention to abandon, and knowledge of the abandonment of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark is found in the contrast between the Lorillard Company's attitude toward the Weissinger Beechnut brand and its attitude toward six other brands which were acquired by the Lorillard Company from the Luhrman & Wilbern Company by the decree of court (ante, p. 46) which transferred the Luhr-mixture that had previously been on the market would obviously have defeated the express purpose of the Lorillard Company to get the trade of consumers who were dissatisfied with and would not buy the old tobacco mixtures. The contention that the Weissinger Beechnut brand was a live brand and not abandoned involves a contradiction of Mr. Ball's testimony, is inconsistent with the elimination of every distinctive element of the Weissinger label and the substitution therefor of every distinctive element of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut label, and is inconsistent with the purpose for which the Lorillard Company used the Beech-Nut trademark, namely, to designate a tobacco mixture the value and drawing power of which lay in the fact that it was a new mixture having a flavor different from the old mixtures theretofore on the market.

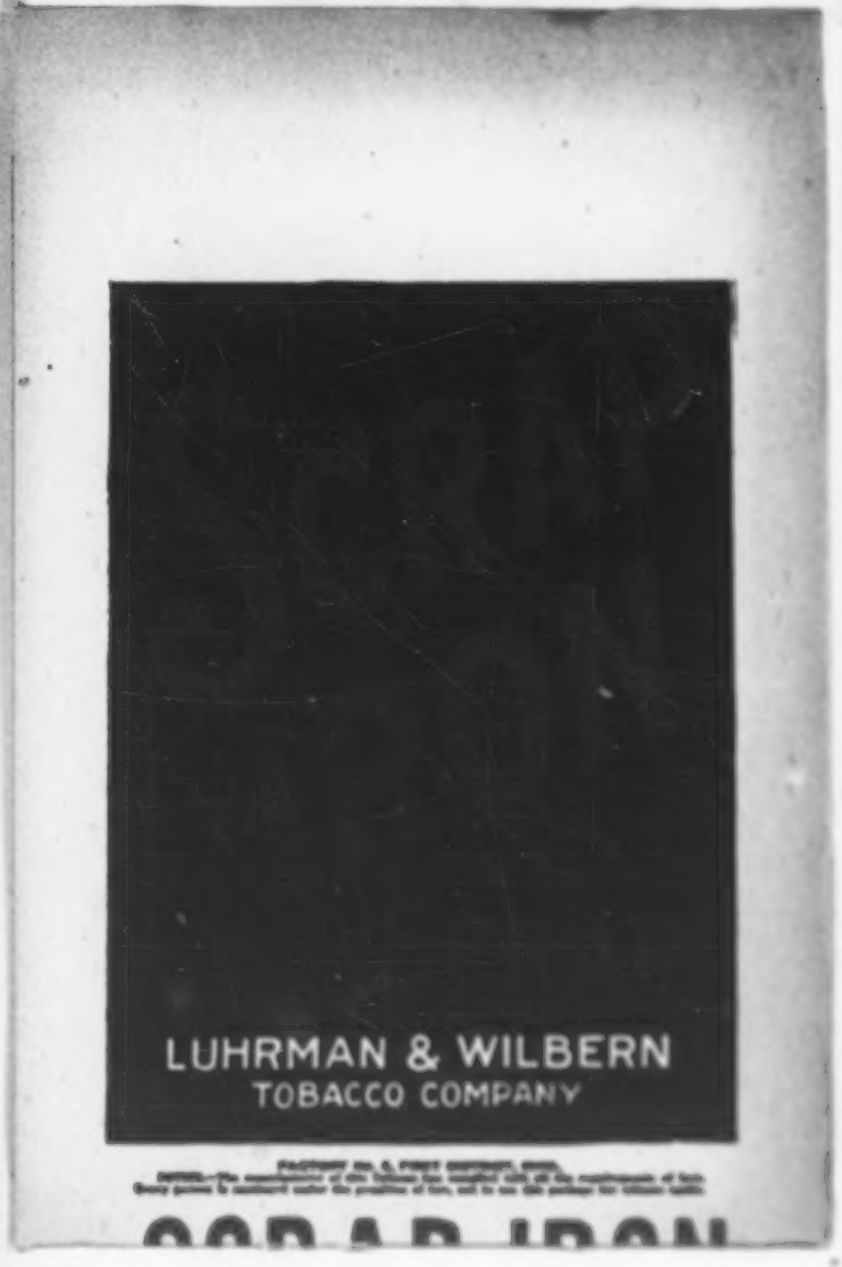
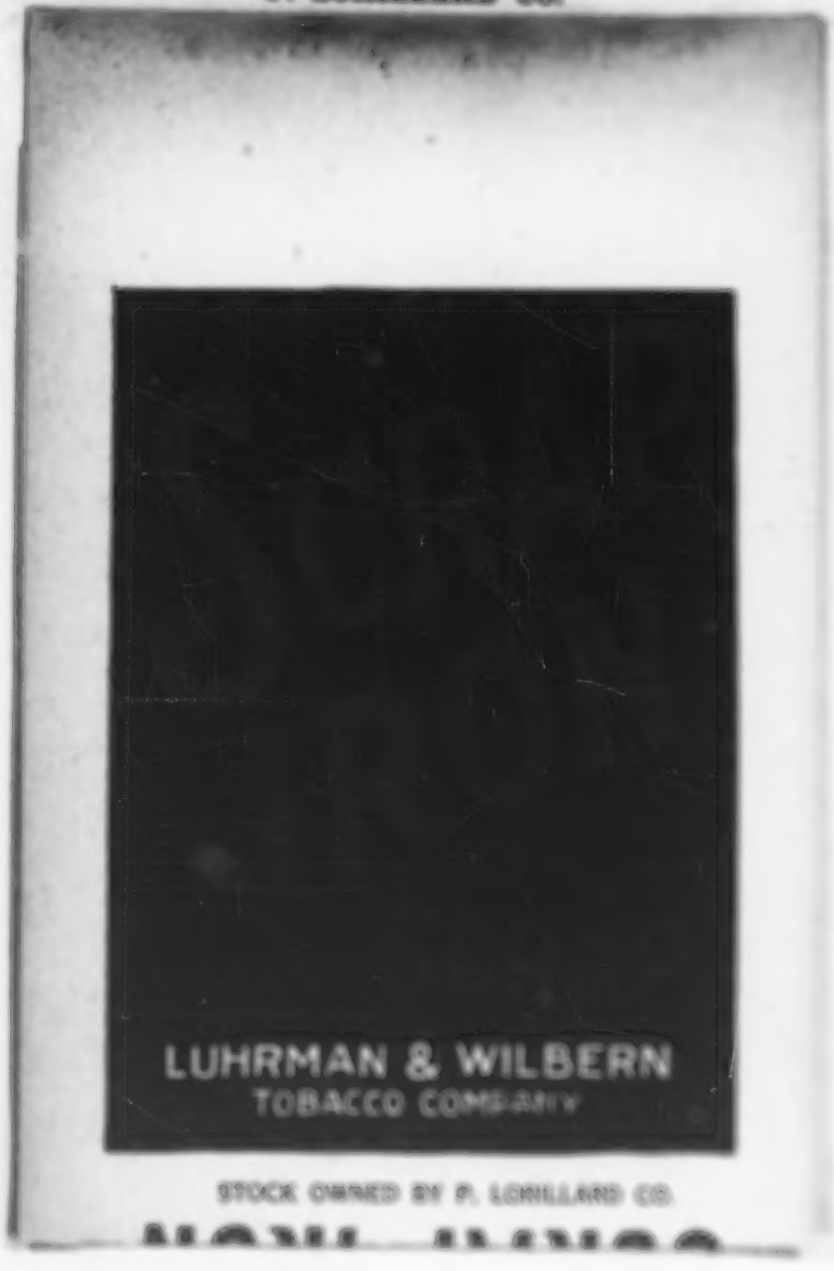
Screw Iron Label Used by
LUHRMAN & WILBERN.



Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 2-A.
(R. Vol. IV, p. 2324, X-Q. 33; VI, p. 2855.)

Screw Iron Label First Used by
P. LORILLARD CO.

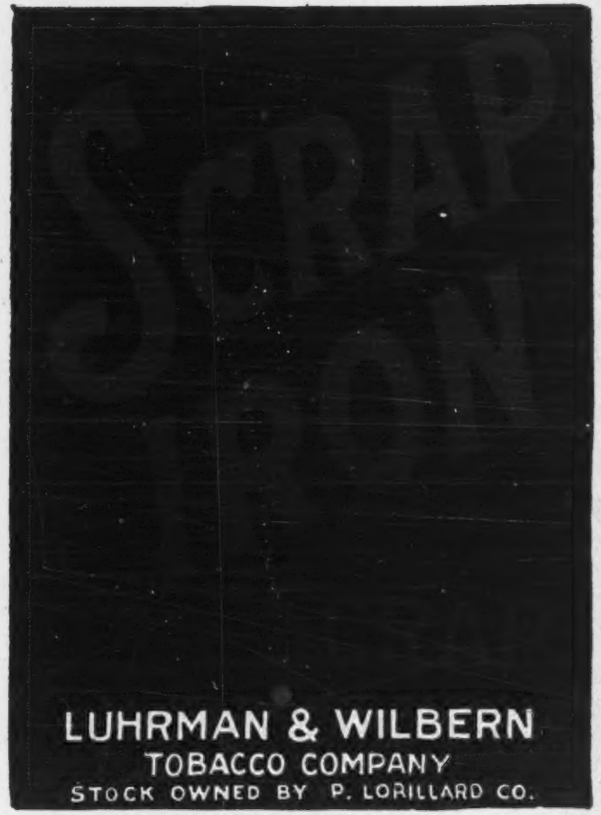


Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 2-C.

P. LORILLARD CO.

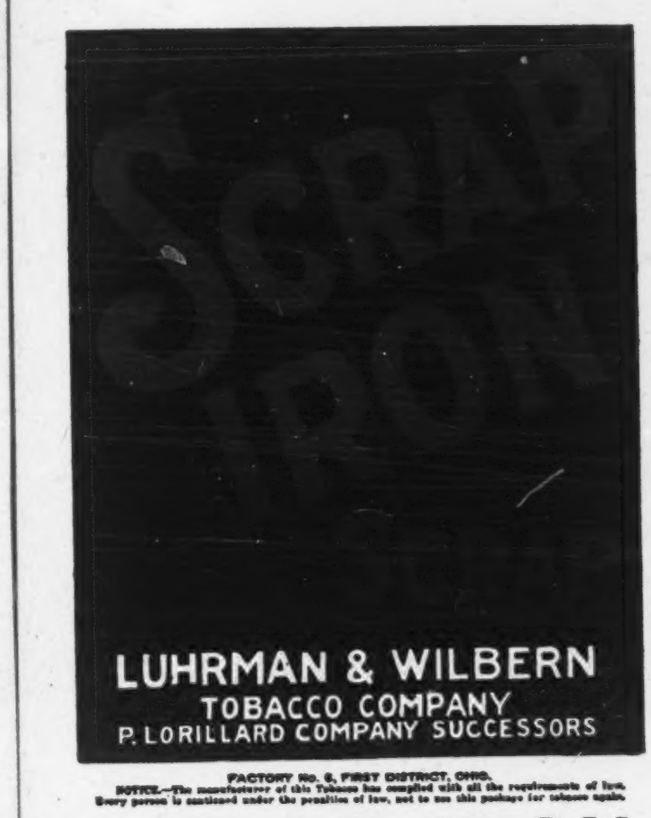
Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 2-C.
(R. Vol. IV, p. 2331, X-Qs. 71-72; VI, p. 2858.)

P. LORILLARD CO.



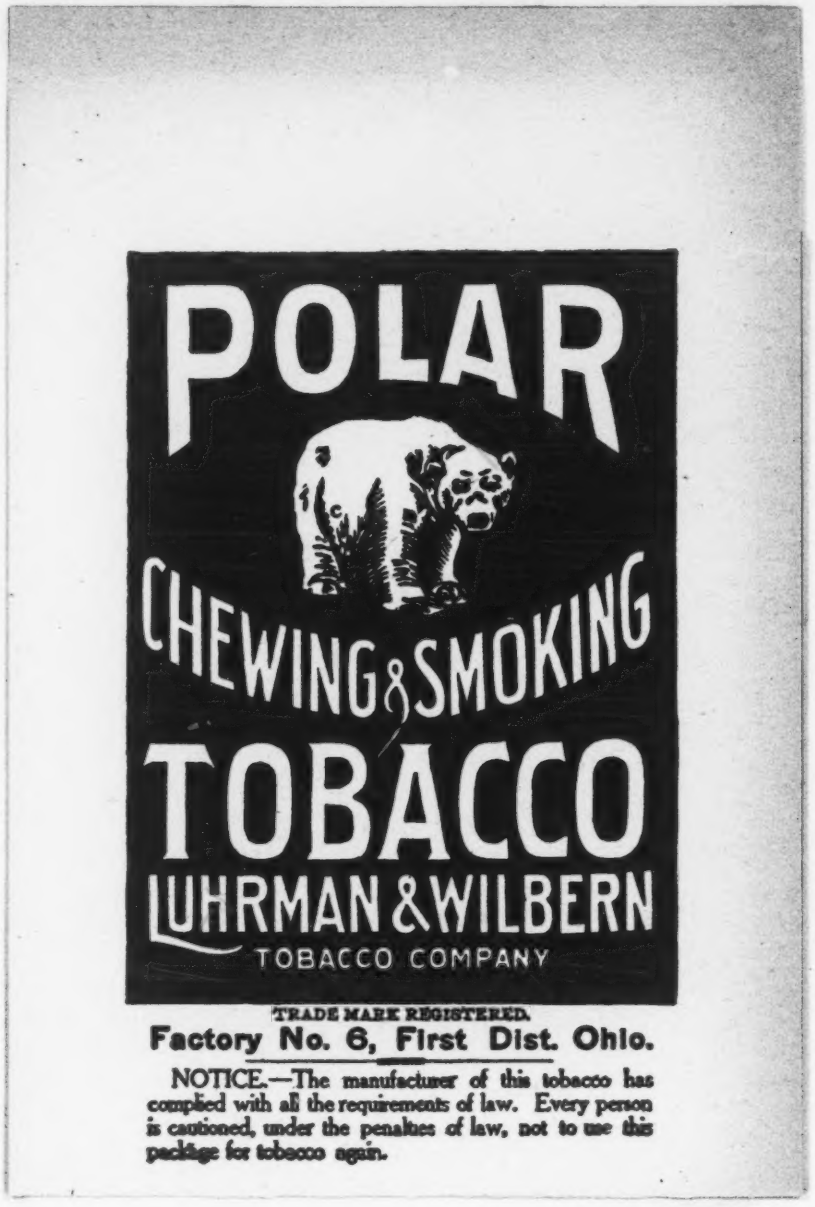
Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 2-D.
(R. Vol. IV, p. 2331, X-Q. 72; VI, p. 2859.)

Scrap Iron Label Finally Used by
P. LORILLARD CO.



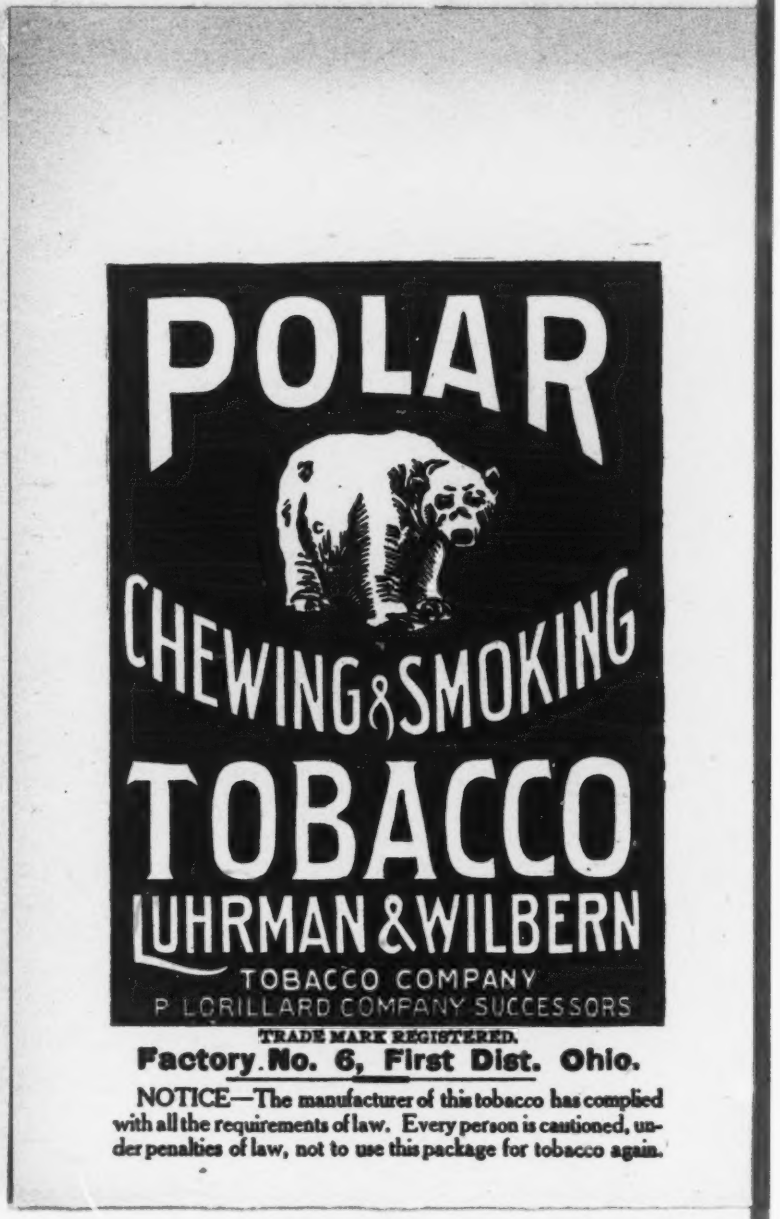
Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 2.
(R. Vol. IV, pp. 2321-2322, X-Q. 24; VI, p. 2854.)

Polar Bear Label Used by
LUHRMAN & WILBERN.



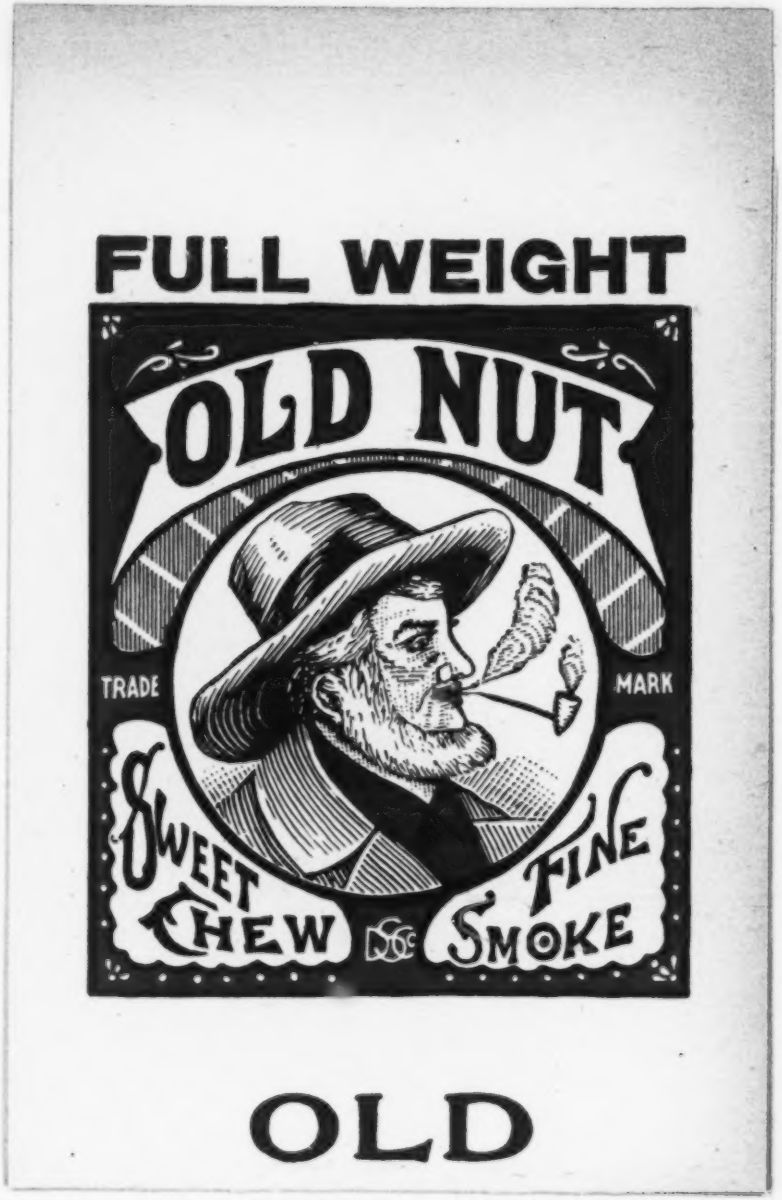
Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 1-A.
(R. Vol. IV, p. 2323, X-Q. 32*a*; VI, p. 2851.)

Polar Bear Label Used by
P. LORILLARD CO.

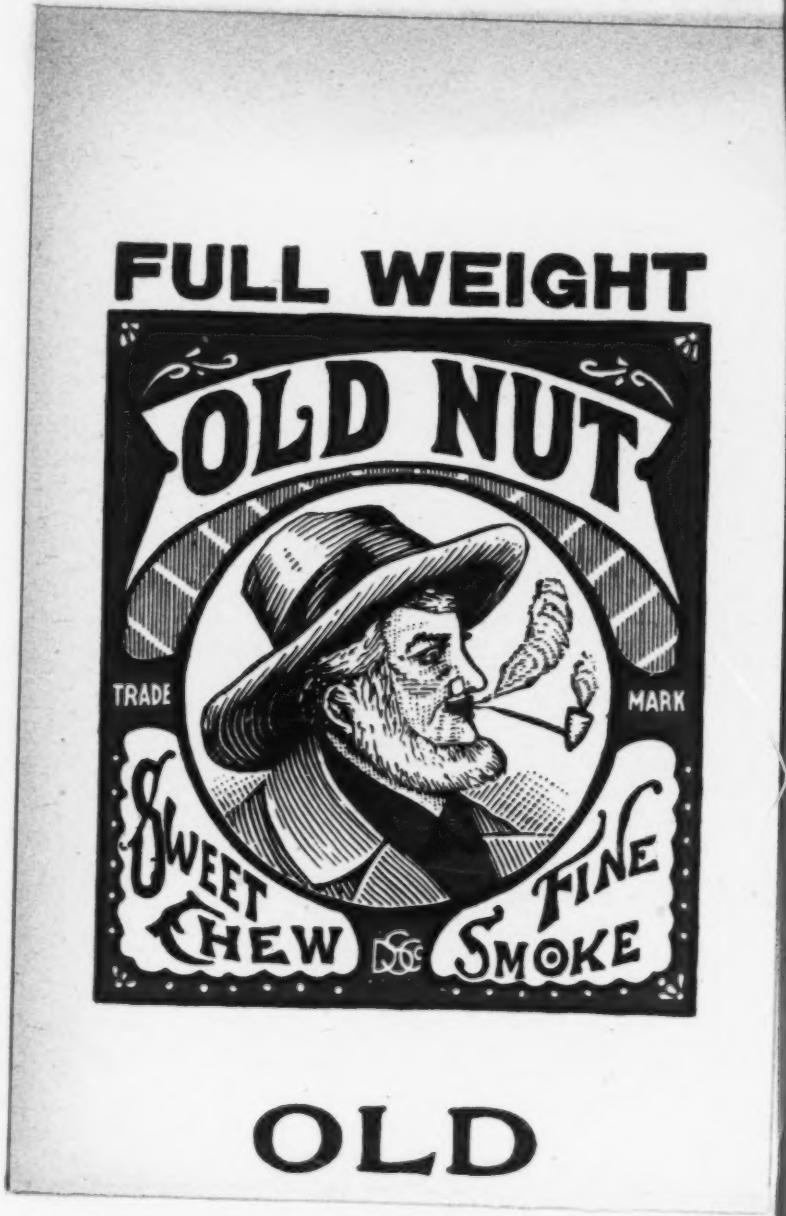


Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 1.
(R. Vol. IV, p. 2320, X-Qs. 20-22; VI, p. 2850.)

Old Nut Label Used by
LUHRMAN & WILBERN.



Old Nut Label Used by
P. LORILLARD CO.



Both of above labels are reproductions of Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 3, which appears at page 2861 of Vol. VI of the Record. Cross-Exhibit No. 3 is a specimen of the Old Nut label as used by P. Lorillard Co. and is identical with the label used by Luhrman & Wilbern (R. Vol. IV, p. 2325, X-Qs. 38-39).

Honest Scrap Label As Used by LUHRMAN & WILBERN.

Honest Scrap Label Used by P. LORILLARD CO.

Above two labels are identical and are reproductions of Defendant's Exhibit No. 39 (offered R. Vol. V, p. 2567). See Record, Vol. IV, p. 2327, X-Q. 54, and Vol. V, p. 2581, for use of same label by both companies. See Record, Vol. V, p. 2577, for the fact that P. Lorillard Company did not even place its name in the margin or elsewhere on the Honest Scrap label.

Bag Pipe Label As Used by LUHRMAN & WILBERN.

Bag Pipe Label Used by P. LORILLARD CO.

Above two labels are identical and are reproductions of Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibit No. 4, which is a specimen of the Bag Pipe scrap tobacco label used by P. Lorillard Co. and identical with the label previously used by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (R. Vol. IV, p. 2325, X-Qs. 40-42).

NATURAL LEAF.

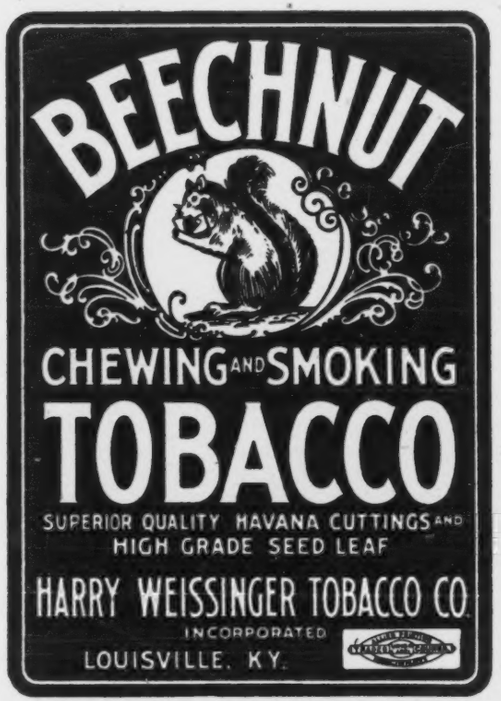
No specimen of the "Natural Leaf" scrap tobacco label is in evidence, but the testimony shows that P. Lorillard Co. used for this brand the same label that previously had been used by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (R. Vol. IV, p. 2327, X-Qs. 54-56).

WEISSINGER BEECHNUT LABEL

As Used by Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co.

Used from 1897 to 1903.

In 1903 the Weissinger Co. business was assigned to Continental Tobacco Co. and by the latter to Luhrman & Wilbern (ante, page 45).



Factory No. 26, Fifth District of Kentucky.

NOTICE.—The manufacturers of this Tobacco have complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again

Above label is a reproduction of Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No. 14 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2981; offered Vol. IV, p. 2273).

WEISSINGER BEECHNUT LABEL

As Used by Luhrman & Wilbern.

NOT USED AFTER APRIL, 1910.

None of this brand made since prior to 1909, and none sold since April, 1910 (ante, pp. 47-50).

Factory No. 6, First District, State of Ohio.

NOTICE.—The manufacturer of this Tobacco has complied with all the requirements of Law. Every person is cautioned under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again.

Above label is a reproduction of Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit No. 5 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2971; offered Vol. IV, p. 2258).

P. LORILLARD CO. LABEL.

Beech-Nut Cigarettes.

First Used in 1921.

Above label is a duplicate of wrapper on Plaintiff's Exhibit (R. Vol. VI, p. 2708; offered Vol. I, p. 32).

P. LORILLARD CO. LABEL.

Beech-Nut Cigarettes.

First Used in 1921.

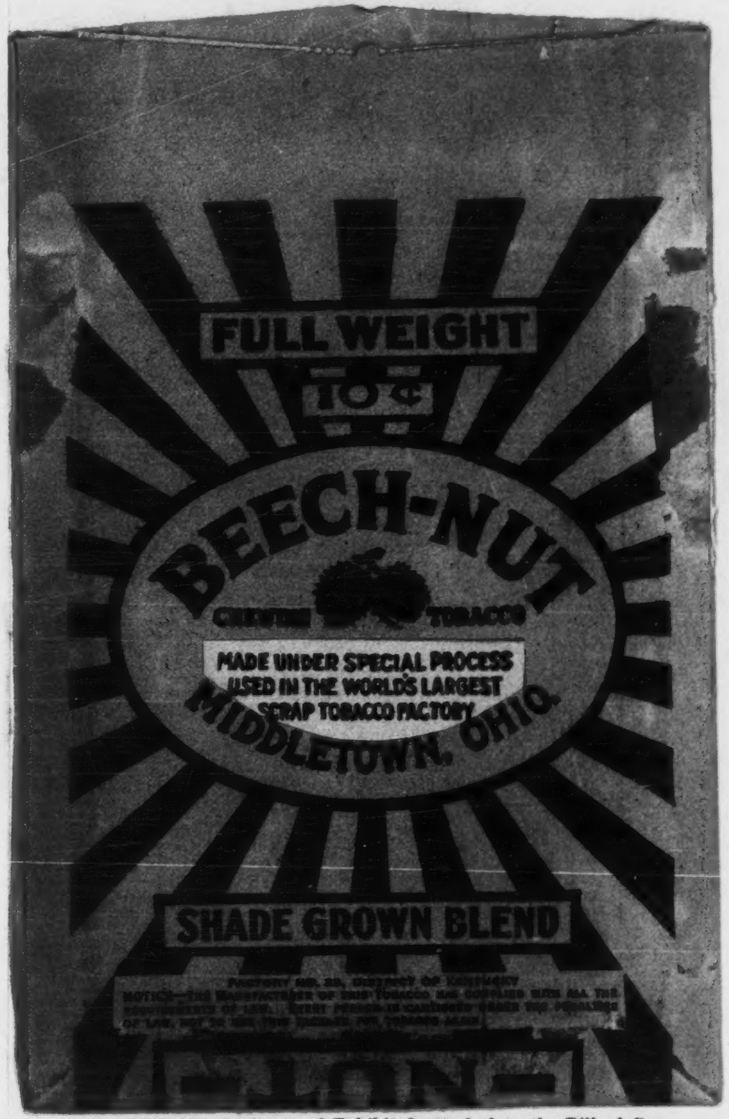
Above label is a duplicate of wrapper on Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2708; offered Vol. I, p. 32).

P. LORILLARD CO. LABEL.

Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco.

(Chewing tobacco.)

FIRST USED IN 1915.



Above label is a duplicate of Exhibit 2 attached to the Bill of Complaint (R. Vol. I, p. 17); also of wrapper on Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3 (Vol. VI, p. 2712) and Defendant's Cross-Exhibit No. 1 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2710; offered Vol. I, p. 32).

BEECH-NUT P

Standard Beech-Nut Labels.

Used on great variety of products.

Essential features used since about 189

Above labels are among large collection of labels in Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28,—photograph, ante, pages 18a and 18b (R. Vol. 9777-8; offered I, p. 857; V, p. 2552).

Standard Beech-Nut Labels.

Used on great variety of products.

Essential features used since about 1891.

Above labels are among large collection of labels in Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28,—photograph, ante, pages 18a and 18b (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2777-8; offered I, p. 857; V, p. 2552).

Beech-Nut Chewing Gum Labels.

Beech-Nut Gum, also Mints and Candies, sold largely on tobacco stands.

Over billion sticks Beech-Nut gum sold in 1921.

Upper two of above labels are similar to labels in Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 28. Lowest label is from chewing gum box, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 27,—photograph, ante, page 6 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2774; offered I, p. 834).

PART IV.

Deception of the Public Caused by Lorillard Company's Use of Beech-Nut Trade-Mark.

ENTIRE PURCHASING PUBLIC DECEIVED.

That absolutely the entire purchasing public of the United States has been and is being deceived by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark and believes that the Lorillard Beech-Nut products are produced by the Beech-Nut Packing Company or by the company which produces the extensive line of Beech-Nut goods is indisputably established by the evidence. The evidence includes the testimony of over five hundred witnesses, two hundred of them plaintiff's witnesses and the remainder defendant's, residing in New England, the Eastern, Southern and Middle Western States. The witnesses are drawn from practically all levels of business and social life. Among all of these witnesses defendant was able to produce only one ultimate purchaser who was not caused by the Lorillard Beech-Nut labels to believe that the goods bearing such labels were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company or of the company, whatever its name might be, that produces the extensive line of Beech-Nut products. This single ultimate purchaser who was not deceived was given a sample package of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes by a Lorillard salesman. (R. Vol. II, pp. 1069-1070, Qs. 5, 6, and pp. 1071-1072, X-Qs. 1 to 9.)

Defendant examined over three hundred witnesses, each of whom was connected in some capacity with the tobacco industry, either as proprietor or employee of a manufacturing, wholesale, retail or jobbing tobacco business. That many of these tobacco dealers were not deceived is immaterial. In each of the many cases in which this point has come up the courts have ruled that the manufacturer is not relieved of liability by the fact that the retailer is not deceived, and that the liability attaches to the manufacturer if he puts into the hands of the retail dealers the means of deceiving the ultimate purchasers.* But while non-deception of the retailer does not relieve the manufacturer of liability, deception of retailers or other dealers is evidence of the highest order that possibly can be adduced to show that a trade-mark is being used deceptively. An act which is so deceptive as to mislead many retailers and wholesalers, who are in the position of experts having superior means of access to the truth and having a relatively large interest at stake, is certain to deceive the casual ultimate purchaser who has no special experience or means of information and whose interest is only that attaching to a small transaction. It is, therefore, of the utmost significance that many of the witnesses in this case were retail tobacco dealers who bought and sold the Lorillard Beech-Nut chewing tobacco and cigarettes for periods varying from a few weeks to several years in the belief that these commodities were produced by the Beech-Nut Packing Company or the company which produces the extensive line of Beech-Nut goods, and that many wholesalers have ordered Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes from the Beech-Nut Packing Company at Canajoharie, New York.

Because there is not and cannot be any dispute as to the sufficiency of the evidence to establish the fact that the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark has caused universal deception of the ultimate purchasers and even of a large proportion of the tobacco dealers, we avoid unnecessary interruption of the continuity of this narrative by presenting our references to and quotations from the testimony in five appendices, the contents of each of which is set forth below:

* Fairbank Co. v. Bell, 77 Fed. 869, 875; Scriven v. North, 134 Fed. 366, 375; Pennsylvania Rubber Co. v. Dreadnaught Tire & R. Co. 225 Fed. 138, 148, and 229 Fed. 560; Wolf Bros. v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 206 Fed. 611, 617-618; Globe-Wernicke Co. v. Brown & Besly, 121 Fed. 90, 92.

UNIVERSAL DECEPTION OF ULTIMATE PURCHASERS AND OF MANY DEALERS SHOWN BY TESTIMONY OF BOTH PLAINTIFF'S AND DEFENDANT'S WITNESSES.

SUMMARY OF APPENDIX A.

Appendix A (App., page 1) consists of quotations from the testimony of thirty-five of plaintiff's witnesses who in the capacity of wholesaler, retailer, salesman or consumer either bought, sold or used Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes in the belief that they were the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The deception of these witnesses continued for periods varying from a few days to several years, in many cases extending to the time they testified, or until a few days before testifying when they were correctly informed by representatives of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. That they were influenced to buy and sell and use Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes by their knowledge of the high quality and popularity of the products previously put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company is apparent from their testimony and the statements of some of them on this point are most emphatic and critical of the deception imposed upon them.

Summary of Appendix B.

Appendix B (App., page 50), is an alphabetically arranged list of seventy-two of plaintiff's witnesses, including most of those quoted from in Appendix A and others who dealt in or used Beech-Nut tobacco products in the belief that they were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

The letter D in parenthesis before the names of witnesses in the list indicates that the witness is a dealer who bought and sold Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes in the regular course of his business. The letter C in parenthesis before the names of witnesses indicates that the witness bought the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes for his own personal use, or used them, i. e., was the ultimate consumer.

Following the names of many of the dealers in the list we have inserted citations by page and question number (in parentheses) to the parts of the testimony in which the witnesses refer to the relations between themselves and their customers. The testimony so referred to shows that these witnesses, either by direct statement or acquiescence by silence, confirmed their customers in the belief that Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The effect of the spurious Beech-Nut labels was to make these retail dealers unwitting accomplices in spreading and confirming the deception created by the label appearing upon the Lorillard products. The mere fact of a dealer or salesman hearing a customer make a statement showing that the customer believed the scrap tobacco and cigarettes to be the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company without any denial or correction by the dealer or salesman put the latter distinctly in the position of confirming the false impression so expressed to him. Some of the dealers and salesmen, however, directly stated to their customers that the scrap tobacco and cigarettes were the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Their names are stated in the first paragraph of Appendix B.

Summary of Appendix C.

Appendix C (App., p. 57) consists of quotations from the testimony of twenty-eight of defendant's witnesses. Defendant examined over three hundred witnesses, all of them engaged in some capacity in the tobacco business and, by reason of their employment, informed of the fact that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products were made by the Lorillard Company. These witnesses were asked by defendant's counsel whether their customers had asked questions or made remarks indicating that the customers thought that the Beech-Nut chewing tobacco and cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company or of the company which put out Beech-Nut chewing gum and the general line of Beech-Nut products. Most of these dealers replied that they had not heard their customers make such inquiries or comments, but twenty-eight of them admitted, as shown by their testimony quoted in Appendix C, that some of their customers did make remarks indicating that they were deceived or confused regarding the origin of the Beech-Nut chewing tobacco and cigarettes. There is nothing to indicate that the customers who made no comments or inquiries were not deceived. The other evidence in the case indicates that they took it for granted that the Beech-Nut tobacco products had the same origin as the other Beech-Nut products and saw nothing to comment on or to inquire about. One of the witnesses quoted from in Appendix C (Burgeson, App., p. 69) was a Lorillard salesman who said that deception of the public was expected and was natural on account of the identity of the name.

Summary of Appendix D.

Appendix D (App., p. 75), consists of quotations from the testimony of sixteen of defendant's witnesses. Each of these witnesses testifies that tobacco products are not sold or known to the ultimate purchasers by the name of the manufacturer. They all state that the ultimate purchasers identify the goods they want solely by the brand name, such as Camels or Chesterfields or Beech-Nut for cigarettes, or Honest, Beech-Nut, Bull Durham or Climax for tobacco. So small a part does the name "Lorillard" play in the final marketing of the products that many dealers cannot even state which brands are made by the Lorillard Company. The seven retailers, witnesses for defendant, whose testimony appears at pages 81 to 88 of Appendix D could not name the manufacturers of leading brands of cigarettes and tobacco.

Other testimony which is described and quoted upon the pages beginning at the bottom of the next page hereafter, shows that the Lorillard Company, realizing that tobacco products are sold exclusively upon the brand name or trade-mark, does not place the name of the company or even the word "Lorillard" on the label of many of its most important brands, and as to other brands the matter of putting the name "Lorillard" on the labels is of so little moment that the high officials and managers of the Lorillard Company could not remember whether or not the name "Lorillard" appears on the labels. Such testimony was given by David H. Ball, vice-president and one of the active managers of the company (R. Vol. V, p. 2577; pp. 2584-2585), and by Benjamin L. Belt, another of the vice-presidents of the Lorillard Company who also is actively engaged in the management of the company's business (R. Vol. V, pp. 2611 to 2613). The dominant importance of the brand name or trade-mark and the style of the package was emphasized by vice-president Ball who stated that a small letter "C" surrounded by a circle not much larger than a pea had at one time been placed on some of the Duke's Mixture packages to indicate at the factory whether or not they contained coupons, and that the subsequent omission of this little symbol "caused the loss of quantities of business" by reason of the consumers thinking that the tobacco was not the same (R. Vol. V, p. 2578).

Summary of Appendix E.

Appendix E (App., p. 89) is a list of nineteen of plaintiff's witnesses whose testimony shows that the name "Lorillard" is unknown to large classes of people including many retail dealers who sell tobacco products.

EVERY LORILLARD PRODUCT IS LABELED AND KNOWN BY A BRAND NAME OR TRADE-MARK WHICH DOES NOT INCLUDE THE NAME "LORILLARD"; THE NAME "LORILLARD" DOES NOT APPEAR ANYWHERE ON THE LABELS OF MANY OF THE MOST IMPORTANT OF THE LORILLARD PRODUCTS. AND ON THE PRODUCTS WHERE THE NAME "LORILLARD" DOES APPEAR IT IS SUBORDINATED TO THE BRAND NAME OR TRADE-MARK—GENERALLY IN FINE PRINT, SOMETIMES INSIDE THE PACKAGE AND NEVER AS THE CONSPICUOUS ELEMENT OF THE LABEL.

The testimony of two of the vice-presidents of the Lorillard Company, Mr. David H. Ball and Mr. Benjamin L. Belt, demonstrates conclusively that the management of the company is fully aware of the fact that the name "Lorillard" is so little known to the general public, i. e., the millions of ultimate purchasers upon whom the business depends, that it is a matter of no moment whether the word "Lorillard" does or does not appear on the packages of the company's products. Mr. Ball testified (R. Vol. V, p. 2577) that the Lorillard Company advertised 25 or 50 of its products, and Mr. Belt stated the total number of products of the company as "50-75-80, extreme aggregate" (R. Vol. V, p. 2620). The quotations from their testimony set forth below show that with the exception of a very few of these products neither Mr. Ball nor Mr. Belt could tell without looking at the packages whether the name "Lorillard" was on them or not. Among the brands which Mr. Ball remembered do not have the name "Lorillard" on the package are "Honest" and "Union Leader." It also appears that the brands "Old Nut" and "Bag Pipe" do not bear the word "Lorillard" (Specimens of the labels of "Old Nut," "Honest" and "Bag Pipe" appears at pages 65-70, ante).

The record does not contain a complete enumeration of all of the Lorillard products which do and do not bear the word Lorillard, but in every instance where the record shows that the name "Lorillard" does appear on a label it appears subordinately, in relatively small type, frequently in minute type difficultly readable, and sometimes on the inside of the cigarette box where it cannot be seen at all until after the cigarettes have been bought and the box opened and the inside of the cover carefully examined. But more significant than the relative number of Lorillard products upon which the name "Lorillard" does and does not appear is the fact, shown by the testimony quoted below, that two of the managing vice-presidents of the company had regarded the use of the name "Lorillard" as of so little importance that they omitted it from the labels of some of their most important products and could not remember whether it was on the others or not.

The brand "Honest," to which Mr. Ball refers in his testimony quoted below, was what he termed the "big brand" (R. Vol. V, p. 2557) of the old American Tobacco Company, and was, upon the dissolution of that company by court order, transferred to the P. Lorillard Company. The enormous sales of "Honest" scrap tobacco are shown by Mr. Ball's testimony appearing at the bottom of page 2567 and top of page 2568 of Volume V of the Record. The predominant importance of the brand name or trademark, and the absolute lack of any significance, to the ultimate purchaser, of the name of the Lorillard Company or of the American Tobacco Company is conclusively shown by Mr. Ball's testimony, quoted below, that the name "Lorillard" does not and never did appear on the "Honest" package and that no name of the manufacturer has ever appeared on it.

Mr. David H. Ball's testimony on cross-examination:

"Q. You have referred to and read some figures, regarding the sales of Honest Scrap. This is a tobacco made by the Lorillard Company?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And marketed by the Lorillard Company itself?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Not supplied to some one else to market?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. Marketed by the Lorillard Company?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Is the name Lorillard to be found upon that package?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. Does this occur in the name of any of your other brands, that the name 'Lorillard' is not put on?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. What other brands?

"A. I think the brand of Union Leader, if I recall correctly.

"Q. Do you recall any more?

"A. I don't have any at mind right now.

"Q. Do you remember about Polar Bear, whether Lorillard's name is on there or not? I ask you whether you remember or not?

"A. No, I don't remember.

"Q. You don't remember one way or the other?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. This question, then, of whether the Lorillard name is on a package is a matter with which you don't think it is worth while to charge your mind, I suppose?

"A. Well, if I had thought a question of that kind would have come up, I would have familiarized myself with it. . . . (R. Vol. V, p. 2577.)

. . . . . .

"Q. You made a statement that at the present time the name Lorillard is on all of the Lorillard brands, I think.

"A. Did I say that?

"Q. Well, I am asking you. I think you did.

"A. If I said that I was in error, because some of these brands that were taken over by the American Tobacco Company did not bear any name, and we have not put our name on—such as in the case of Honest.

"Q. That is a contemporary package right there?

"A. Yes. We haven't put our name on that.

"Q. That is Honest Scrap, the name Lorillard is not on it today (indicating)?

"A. No, sir; they never have—there never has been, to my knowledge, a name on Honest Scrap tobacco. We haven't any hard and fast rule to go by of putting the name on the package. It has been, as I say, the custom was, up to the time of the dissolution, to leave it off, but since that time it has been put on and generally on all of our brands that we have revamped or new brands that we might put out.

"Q. The name of the brand, I imagine, is the important thing about it?

"A. Yes, we put a great deal of stress on the fact that the Lorillard Company has been in business since 1760, in fact, we got out a brand called '1760' and when we sample a man we impress that upon him in most instances.

"Q. Can you name any other brands than you have mentioned that the Lorillard Company is putting out today without the name Lorillard on the package?

"A. I believe this brand of Comet, I am not quite sure; it looks as though we didn't put in on the brand of Bag Pipe.

"Q. Can you remember any more?

"A. No, I don't know that I can.

"Q. But I suppose there are a great many of these brands that you would be unable to say one way or the other about, whether or not it was on, aren't there?

"A. There would be quite a few.

"Q. You would be unable to say?

"A. Yes, that is right.

"Q. Whether or not it was on in the case of a great many?

"A. Yes." (R. Vol. V, pp. 2584, 2585.)

Mr. B. L. Bell's testimony on cross-examination:

"Q. The place where you have read the words 'Capital stock owned by P. Lorillard Company,' being on the inside of the package of the Helmar box, inside of the cover?

"A. Yes.

"Q. That is the only place, is it not, where the name Lorillard appears upon this Helmar box, that is right?

"A. I think so.

"Q. So that from the exterior of the box when sealed according to the Government regulation with a Revenue stamp, there is no place where the name Lorillard would be visible?

"A. It is not visible as applied to the package on its exterior.

"Q. Not in any place?

"A. Not in any place.

"Mr. Scott: I would like this marked for identification, to be offered later as plaintiff's exhibit.

"Mr. Milton: Mark it in evidence, if you like.

"Mr. Scott: All right I offer that as Plaintiff's Exhibit P. 43.

"(Package marked Exhibit P. 43.)

"The Witness: I would like—am I permitted to make a statement?

"Mr. Scott: You may.

"The Witness: I don't know what the law is but the reason, Mr. Scott, that the 'Capital stock owned by P. Lorillard Company,' appears as it does, is due to the fact that those brands were gotten out under the name of S. Anargyros when S. Anargyros was a corporation owned by the American Tobacco Company before its disintegration, and it was transferred or made a part of the assets of the new Lorillard Company . . . and we did not think it would be judicious to affix P. Lorillard on the outside of those packages, because they were transferred without it, or to change the appearance of them, and we did not make an original place for it as we did not feel the necessity for doing so. It wasn't done and I think you will find that same thing applies to all the Anargyros brands owned by the Lorillard Company.

"Q. The idea, as I understand you in short, was to have this information regarding the stock ownership conveyed?

"A. As a legal proposition.

"Q. In some part of the package but without at all interfering with the appearance of the exterior of the package? Is that right?

"A. It was. The brand was in existence when that was decided to be applied. It had been on the market for some years.

"Q. And I am right in my question?

"A. Yes.

"Q. You said that you thought that also applied, Mr. Belt, to the other brands?

"A. I think it applies to all the Anargyros brands, Murad, Helmar, Deities, Moguls, Trophies —I think it is applicable to all of them." (R. Vol. V. pp. 2611, 2612, 2613.)

The foregoing testimony of Messrs. Ball and Belt and that of the witnesses quoted in Appendices D and E (App., pp. 75, 89) shows that the Lorillard Company puts each of its products on the market as a separate and distinct line of trade, and not as a part of the general line of tobacco products of the Lorillard Company. Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 33, which is a large scrap-book containing specimens of the labels used by the Lorillard Company on its different tobacco products, shows the slight, practically negligible, extent to which the name "Lorillard" appears on the company's goods. The same thing is shown by Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 34, a scrap book containing specimens of the Lorillard Company's advertising in newspapers and periodicals. Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 32, photograph at page 2782 of Volume VI of the Record, is a collection of Lorillard Beech-Nut posters, also showing the slight use of the name "Lorillard." The reputation of the Lorillard Company is not involved in the sale of its goods to the ultimate purchasers; the good-will attaching to each of its products is independent of the good-will of the other products and of that of the company; and, so far as concerns the ultimate purchasers, the production and sale of the 50 or 75 tobacco products of the Lorillard Company is the conduct of 50 or 75 independent businesses, each with its separate reputation and good-will, and each unaffected by the success or failure of the others. The setting was perfect for the public's identification of the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products with the Beech-Nut Company rather than with the Lorillard Company.

ORDERS FOR BEECH-NUT TOBACCO AND CIGARETTES AND COMPLAINTS AND CRITICISMS REGARDING THE SAME AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS CONCERNING THE TOBACCO BUSINESS SENT TO THE BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY.

The Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark has not only caused universal deception of the ultimate purchasers and of many retail dealers but has also deceived many people who occupy responsible positions in the business world and in journalism and official life. In some instances these people, by reason of their connection or contact with the tobacco trade had every reason and facility for being correctly informed, but still without question drew the seemingly obvious inference that Beech-Nut tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Among the parties so deceived were editors and advertising managers of newspapers who wrote to the Beech-Nut Packing Company soliciting advertising of the Beech-Nut cigarettes and tobacco, and calling attention to articles and editorials in their papers opposing anti-cigarette legislation.

Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-D, 12-E, 12-F and 12-G (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2719 to 2723) are letters written in the year 1921 from the publisher and president of the Oakland Enquirer of Oakland, California, and editorials for that paper inclosed with the letters. The editorials denounce and urge the defeat of proposed anti-cigarette legislation in Utah and the writer states that he was instrumental in having similar legislation defeated in the State of Washington. The letters are addressed to "Mr. Stanton E. Van Wie, Beechnut Cigarettes, Canajoharie, N. Y" and to "Mr. Stanton E. Van Wie, Beechnut Cigarette Co. Canajoharie, N. Y." Mr. Van Wie is resident advertising manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company (R. Vol. I, p. 818). The general offices and principal plant of the Beech-Nut Packing Company are at Canajoharie, N. Y., and the name of this town appears conspicuously in all of the trade-mark labels of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The Lorillard Company does not have a plant, office or branch of any kind in or near Canajoharie, N. Y., or in or near any town of similar name. While the publisher of the Oakland Enquirer offers in one of the letters referred to above to help in the defeat of anti-tobacco legislation "irrespective of any advertising" his letters are quite evidently written for the purpose of showing that his paper would be an appropriate medium of publicity for tobacco products.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-H (R. Vol. VI, p. 2724) is a letter written July 19, 1921, by the Pittsburgh Post and the Pittsburgh Sun to Mr. Bartlett Arkell, President Beech-Nut Packing Co., Canajoharie, N. Y., for the purpose of explaining, and soliciting the Beech-Nut Packing Company's participation in an advertising campaign. Following is the first paragraph of the letter:

> "Your many products suitable for our plan prompted me writing you. Particularly, Beech-Nut Cigarettes and Beech-Nut Gum. These two articles, if entered at once would be exclusive in their line."

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-I (R. Vol. VI, p. 2726) is a letter written July 26, 1921, by the advertising manager of the New York Evening Journal to "Beech-Nut Cigarettes, Canajoharie, New York," exploiting the virtues of a plan of advertising whereby advertisements inserted in the New York Evening Journal appear also in the Drug Trade News. The Canajoharie address of this letter shows the deception imposed upon a man whose prominent connection with the advertising department of a large metropolitan daily paper must have made him exceptionally well informed in business matters and alert against deception and error.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-J (R. Vol. VI, p. 2727) consists of an advertising card and the envelope in which it was mailed. Pasted to the card is a newspaper clipping of an advertisement of Beech-Nut cigarettes. The article advertised by the card is some kind of a window lock designed to bear an advertisement. The address on the envelope is "Beech Nut Co., Canajoharie, N. Y."

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-13 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2751) is a letter addressed by the Quartermaster Supply Officer of the United States Army at Washington, D. C., to the "Beech-Nut Packing Co., Canajoharie, N. Y.," asking for price quotations on Beech-Nut scrap tobacco.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-16 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2754) is a letter inclosing a blank form of contract (Exhibit 12-A-17, R. Vol. VI, p. 2755) from the Allied Tobacco Industries Exposition addressed to the "Beech-Nut Packing Co., Canajoharie, N. Y.," inviting the latter to take space and make an exhibit in the exposition of tobacco products to be held in the Chicago Coliseum.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-7 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2745) is a letter from the business representative of the George M. Cohan Theater, New York, to "The Beechnut Products, New York." The Beech-Nut Packing Company has an office in New York City and received this letter. The letter contains a proposition for the naming of a cigar or cigarette after one of the Cohan attractions.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-22 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2757) is a letter to the Beech-Nut Packing Company from a firm of commercial agents of Paris, France, soliciting the business of introducing the Beech-Nut cigarettes in France.

Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-K to 12-Y inclusive (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2728 to 2738), and Exhibits 12-A-12, 12-A-20, 12-A-21, 12-A-23 and 12-A-24 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2750, 2756-2760) are letters from twenty different dealers, mostly wholesalers, addressed to the Beech-Nut Packing Company and ordering shipments of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or cigarettes. Some similar letters are printed in Vol. VI of the Record at pages 2841-2847. These are from men who are far better informed even than the retailers and are in a far better position to know who are the makers of the goods they handle. This relatively large number of orders from wholesalers who were deceived by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark shows that the name Beech-Nut, whether on chewing gum, peanut butter or tobacco means to every sort of person only one company, the Beech-Nut Packing Company. The deception of parties who are accustomed to deal directly with the manufacturer is even more significant than the deception of those who purchase farther down the line.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-T (R. Vol. VI, p. 2735) is interesting in that the dealer orders not only Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco from the Beech-Nut Packing Company but also orders "Honest Scrap." "Honest Scrap" was the Lorillard Company's leading brand of this kind of tobacco for many years, the sales in the year 1921 being over three million pounds (R. Vol. V, bottom of page 2567 and top half of page 2568). As shown by this letter the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark caused the writer of the letter to believe that the Beech-Nut Packing Company made not only the Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco but also the Lorillard Company's brand "Honest Scrap."

The writer of the letter, Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-Z (R. Vol. VI, p. 2738) a wholesale grocer asks the Beech-Nut Packing Company what he shall do about some Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco "which is in a moldy condition."

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-9 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2747) is a letter from a man who appears by his letter-head to be in the automobile tire business in Milwaukee. He tells the Beech-Nut Packing Company that he has been "a real booster for 'Beech-Nut' merchandise" but that he and his friends "after smoking three or four" of the Beech-Nut cigarettes have "reached the conclusion that the 'Beech-Nut' standard has been greatly reduced." He concludes with an expression of his belief that his criticism will be accepted from a constructive viewpoint.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-11 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2749) is a letter in which the writer, a dealer in fancy groceries on Long Island, tells the Beech-Nut Packing Company that he "cannot believe your wonderful firm has come down to the low, beggarly business of making cigarettes"; that though he has heard of Beech-Nut cigarettes he has yet "to believe that the wonderful 'Beech-Nut Packing Co.' have come down to that greasy, dirty, body killing cigarette business."

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-8 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2746) is a letter from the advertising manager of the Driver-Harris Company of Harrison, N. J., which company deals in metals, alloys, electrical resistance wires, etc. He asks the Beech-Nut Packing Company "whether your company is in any way connected with Beech-Nut cigarettes." He says: "I bought one package of these cigarettes on the strength of your Beechnut trade-name, being under the impression that these cigarettes were one of your products, although, I must confess, it was surprising to me that you should add a cigarette to your products" and adds that "the cigarettes, in my mind do not come up to the high standard of your Beechnut products." He concludes with an inquiry whether the Beech-Nut Company is going to "attempt to capitalize the name which has a very high commercial value."

Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-A-1 and 12-A-2 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2739) are letters in which the writers ask the Beech-Nut Packing Company for price lists and samples of Beech-Nut cigarettes.

Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-A-3 and 12-A-4 (R. Vol. VI, pp.

2740, 2741) are letters in which business firms tell the Beech-Nut Packing Company that Beech-Nut tobacco posters have been pasted on the writers' buildings and asking that the practice be discontinued and the posters removed.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 12-A-5 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2742 to 2744) is a series of three letters. The writer of the first letter is a representative of Arbuckle Brothers of New York, and he complains to the Beech-Nut Packing Company that Beech-Nut chewing gum signs have been pasted over the Arbuckle signs. In the second letter of the series the Beech-Nut Packing Company informs the representative of Arbuckle Brothers that the Beech-Nut Company was not aware that their representatives had any material for advertising Beech-Nut gum, and states that if the offending posters are for BeechNut Scrap Chewing Tobacco the Beech-Nut Packing Company would like to know it. In the third and concluding letter of the correspondence the representative of Arbuckle Brothers says he has discovered he was mistaken as it was Beech-Nut Chewing Tobacco signs instead of Chewing Gum signs that he had seen. This correspondence shows that the presence of the word "Beech-Nut" on a sign immediately directs the observer's mind to the Beech-Nut Packing Company regardless of the nature of the product advertised, and that this effect extends not only to the casual purchasers who constitute the class of ultimate consumers, but extends also to men whose business demands careful observation of advertisements and trade-marks.

Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-A-6 and 12-A-15 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2744 and 2753) are requests for advertising literature addressed to the Beech-Nut Packing Company by parties who sell Beech-Nut cigarettes and tobacco.

ARTICLE IN "NATIONAL FINANCIAL NEWS."

Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 40 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2818-2820) is an article from the issue of May 28, 1923, of "The National Financial News," a weekly financial periodical published in New York City. The article is a history and description of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business and contains the statement that "the company has more recently added the manufacture of cigarettes and smoking tobacco and candy." The testimony of the writer of this article appears at pages 2483 to 2491 of Volume V of the Record.

EXPERIENCES OF BEECH-NUT COMPANY'S SALESMEN.

Thirteen of the salesmen and district managers of the Beech-Nut Packing Company testify to the fact that in the discharge of their duties they are subject to numerous comments and inquiries regarding the extension of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business to include tobacco products. These witnesses state the number and frequency of such inquiries in various terms, such as "innumerable" (R. W. Blanchard, R. Vol. I, p. 90, Q. 10; O. A. Hubbard, p. 99, Q. 12); "hundreds of times" (R. H. Horne, R. Vol. I, p. 160, Q. 6; H. W. Avery, p. 346, Q. 12; E. I. Ray, p. 360, Q. 5); "five or six hundred times" (J. A. Peters, R. Vol. I, p. 252, Q. 24); "about five or six hundred and I am hearing them every day yet" (J. F. Griffin, R. Vol. I, p. 324, Q. 11); "I have been asked many times for Beech-Nut cigarettes" (H. W. Avery, R. Vol. I, p. 346, Qs. 7 to 11); "I should say a thousand times easy" (W. P. Melia, R. Vol. I, p. 381, Q. 11); "ten or fifteen times a day" (R. B. Southern, R. Vol. I, p. 393, Q. 14); "several hundred" (A. B. Lewis, R. Vol. I, p 399, Q. 4); "couldn't give you a definite number on that. A couple of hundred times, if once" (O. M. Wesling, R. Vol. I, p. 529, Q. 35); "two or three hundred" (E. R. Lewis, R. Vol. I, p. 570, Q. 5); estimate of "five hundred times" (W. P. Jennings, R. Vol. I, p. 731, Q. 22).

Several of these salesmen were themselves deceived when they first saw the Beech-Nut cigarettes (R. W. Blanchard, R. Vol. I, p. 89, Q. 7; O. A. Hubbard, p. 98, Qs. 9 and 10; E. I. Ray, p. 362, Qs. 18, 19).

The extent to which plaintiff's business reputation throughout the country has been made dependent on defendant's conduct of its tobacco business is convincingly demonstrated by the thousands of instances of confusion which these men encountered among retail tradesmen and the consuming public.

CLOSE ASSOCIATION IN TRADE OF PLAINTIFF'S AND DEFENDANT'S GOODS—SOLD IN SAME STORES—WINDOW DISPLAYS—DEFENDANT'S ADVERTISING.

An important element of the deception caused by defendant's use of plaintiff's trade-mark lies in the close association in trade of plaintiff's products with the commodities to which defendant has wrongfully applied plaintiff's trade-mark. Plaintiff's extensive line of products and the commodities to which defendant has applied plaintiff's trade-mark flow through precisely the same channels of trade from the moment they leave the factory in which they are produced until they reach the ultimate consumer, and they are associated together by the consumers themselves in their dining rooms and in restaurants.

Testimony of every one of the many witnesses interrogated upon the subject shows that both plaintiff's products and defendant's are handled by the same jobbers and wholesalers, including wholesale grocers, and that plaintiff's products are sold to precisely the same retail dealers who handle defendant's tobacco products. The testimony shows that in many parts of the country the retail grocers handle tobacco products; that tobacco stores deal in defendant's chewing gum and packaged candies such as mints, lemon-drops, etc.; that the same is true of delicatessen stores, they handle defendant's tobacco alongside plaintiff's goods; that drug stores handle both defendant's tobacco products and plaintiff's chewing gum and packaged candies; that in general stores and the small variety stores all kinds of plaintiff's products are displayed and sold alongside of Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes, and that in all of these retail stores plaintiff's and defendant's goods are displayed in close proximity upon the shelves and show-cases, and in many instances are used as the material for joint displays in the show windows.

This testimony runs through the entire record, it appearing from almost every witness for both sides. Practically all the dealer witnesses, of whom several hundred have testified in this case, handled the products of both plaintiff and defendant in their stores. Instances of this are shown in the testimony of:

Charles P. Cook, grocer, Paris, Ky.—R. Vol. I, pp. 695-7, Qs. 4-7 and 10-18.

Jefferson D. Hayden, grocer, Columbia, S. C.—R. Vol. I, pp. 755-6, Qs. 6-22; p. 759, Qs. 47-49; pp. 761-2, X-Qs. 62-68, 74-76.

W. C. Pennell, news agent and tobacconist, Asheville, N. C.—R. Vol. I, p. 713, Qs. 7-12.

Joseph S. Aisenberg, wholesale grocer, Worcester, Mass.—R. Vol. I, pp. 151-5, X-Qs. 30-31 and 62-63.

George L. Carlton, grocer, Holyoke, Mass.—R. Vol. I, pp. 232-4, Qs. 3-6 and X-Qs. 24-25.

James J. Marrinan, druggist, New Haven, Conn.—R. Vol. I, pp. 282-4, Qs. 11-14, X-Qs. 29-31.

Alexander C. Gardner, confectioner and grocer, Milford, Conn.—R. Vol. I, pp. 310-13, Qs. 4-7, X-Qs. 21-25, X-Qs. 32-33 and X-Qs. 39-41.

John E. Watson, druggist, Chicago, Illinois.—R. Vol. I, pp. 412-15, Qs. 7-10, Qs. 28-30 and X-Qs. 6-8.

William C. Weigel, grocer, Milwaukee, Wis.—R. Vol. I, pp. 560-2, Qs. 4-6 and 16-17.

Window Displays.

Retailers readily perceived the opportunity of selling Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes by taking advantage of the obvious fact that customers would ascribe to these tobacco products the high quality with which they were familiar in the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. This obvious fact suggested the idea of displaying the Beech-Nut cigarettes and tobacco in the same window display with the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Upon cross-examination it developed that such a display had been made by defendant's witness, Ferdinand Bieringer, who owns a tobacco store in Boston. He stated that he thought the Beech-Nut gum was deriving benefit from the Beech-Nut cigarette and would continue to do so as long as the cigarette continued to be a good article, but that if the cigarette was poor merchandise it would spoil the Beech-Nut name. Mr. Bieringer's deposition is at page 911 of Volume II of the Record, and is quoted from and discussed at pages 115 to 112, post.

In three other instances of this kind photographs were obtained of show windows containing advertisements and packages of the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products and of the goods of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Norman S. Berry, a salesman in the employ of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, testified at the trial that he dressed the show window of a Baltimore grocer with plaintiff's Beech-Nut goods and a few days later observed that the display had been changed by the removal of two large cards which he had placed in the window for a background and the substitution therefor of a Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette poster. Mr. Berry's testimony is at page 2478 of Volume V of the Record and the photograph of the window display which he took and a Lorillard poster similar to the one in the window are in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibits No. 38 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2816) and No. 39. A similar store window display at West Haven, Connecticut, is described by John F. Griffin, a salesman for the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and Frank Madden, the photographer (R. Vol. I, pp. 322 to 328), and by two witnesses for defendant, one of them William J. Coughlan, owner of the store (R. Vol. III, pp. 2088 to 2096), and photographs of the window display are in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 2 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2710), and Defendant's Exhibit No. 11 (R. Vol. VI, p. 2882). Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 13 is a photograph of a show window in Pennell's Cigar Store at Asheville, North Carolina, this display also being a mixture of defendant's and plaintiff's advertising. Plaintiff's witnesses, H. W. Pelton and W. C. Pennell, testified regarding this exhibit and the photograph (R. Vol. I, pp. 704 and 712). The photograph is reproduced in Volume VI of the Record, page 2762.

The flow of these goods through the same channels of trade and their display for sale in close proximity in retail establishments has naturally resulted in the widespread deception to which the witnesses in this case testify.

LORILLARD COMPANY'S ADVERTISING.

The facility with which this deception is effected has been increased by defendant's widespread advertising of the word "Beech-Nut," and the widespread distribution of advertising signs of every conceivable size and form bearing the words "Beech-Nut Chewing Tobacco" or "Beech-Nut Cigarettes." An inspection of the large exhibit board offered in evidence by plaintiff (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 32, photograph shown on page 2782 of the Record, Vol. VI), and the scrap-book collection of defendant's publication advertising (Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 34) shows something of the extent to which defendant has exploited plaintiff's trade-mark and corporate name.

Many of the signs contain no reference whatever to the Lorillard Company, and in those instances where the name Lorillard appears upon the signs, it appears inconspicuously and in a manner well calculated not to divert the observer's attention from the prominently displayed word Beech-Nut. The same is true of the word Lorillard as appearing in defendant's publication advertising in all of which the name Lorillard is subordinated to plaintiff's trade-mark and corporate name, Beech-Nut, in such a manner as not to be noticed by the ordinary observer.

The photographs of Plaintiff's Exhibits No. 16 and 17, reproduced in the Record, Vol. VI, page 2768, show how closely defendant approximated plaintiff's well-known shipping cartons and advertising matter thereon, the deception being increased by defendant's using the same color scheme exactly. The deception proved in this case might have been predicted from an observation of defendant's goods and advertising with the same certainty that is created by the testimony of the witnesses.

COMMON CUSTOM FOR MANUFACTURERS OF AND DEALERS IN GROCERIES, DRUGS, ETC., TO OWN THEIR OWN EXCLUSIVE TOBACCO TRADE-MARKS AND TO MANUFACTURE AND HAVE OTHERS MANUFACTURE FOR THEM TOBACCO PRODUCTS.

In the instant case there is proof of many instances in which wholesale grocers, chain drug stores and others, put out their own brands of tobacco products under their own trade-marks and have these products made for them by tobacco manufacturers. Mr. Charles, who testified at the trial, stated that Charles & Co., fancy grocers of New York City, have their own tobacco brands, and that it is a general custom for grocers to put out tobacco products under their own trade-marks without any connection with the name of the manufacturer (R. Vol. V, pp. 2465-66). Mr. Belt, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, referred to three concerns who put out their own tobacco brands (R. Vol. V, pp. 2614-2617). Among the concerns so mentioned was the Liggett Drug Company, which operates a chain of drug stores in the eastern cities, and Mr. Belt stated that the Lorillard Company manufactures for this drug company its tobacco products including the Black and White cigarettes (R. Vol. V, p. 2617). According to Mr. Belt's testimony, the Lorillard Company has no connection with this Black and White brand other than manufacturing the goods; and Mr. Belt says that the trade-mark rights belong exclusively to the Liggett Company which markets the cigarettes as its own product. Mr. Belt further stated that Park & Tilford, the well known New York grocers, have a cigar factory of their own for the manufacture of their own brands of cigars. Mr. Belt also referred to the "Richelieu" brand of tobacco products of Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers of Chicago, and to a brand of tobacco put out by Stickney & Company, wholesale grocers of St. Louis (R. Vol. V, pp. 2615-2616).

This well established custom of grocery and drug houses putting out their own brands of tobacco products is one of the reasons why the public, as shown by the testimony in this case (see particularly Appendices D and E of this brief, App., pp. 75, 89), regards only the brand o trade-mark and pays no attention to the name of the manufacturer. It is an additional reason why the public generally was quite ready to accept the Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes as new products of the well-known Beech-Nut Company (see page 75 ante et seq.). The brand name "Beech-Nut" of itself was sufficient signature on the packages to indicate the Beech-Nut Company, no matter what else was there. The fact that commodities are identified by the brand or trade-mark and not by the name of the manufacturer is the foundation of the long established rule that appropriation of a trade-mark belonging to another is not justified by the addition thereto of the appropriator's name (Menendez v. Holt, 128 U. S. 514, 521; Battle et al. v. Finlay et al., 50 F. 106; N. K. Fairbank Co. v. Central Lard Co., 64 F. 133; and an unbroken line of authorities, see Hopkins, Third Edition, p. 442, Note 62).

PART V.

Damage.

BEECH-NUT COMPANY'S BUSINESS GOOD-WILL AT MERCY O LORILLARD COMPANY.

As set forth in our argument (post, p. 262 et seq.) the principal element of injury to the Beech-Nu Packing Company resides in the fact that possessio of, and control over, the business good-will that i has built up by a quarter of a century of conscientiou effort and the expenditure of millions of dollars i advertising has been wrested from it by the Lori lard Company. We contend that even if, contrar to the fact, the Lorillard Company had not dam aged the Beech-Nut Company's reputation, or eve if the Lorillard Company had added to the value of th Beech-Nut Company's business good-will, the takin from the Beech-Nut Company of possession of and co trol over its reputation and good-will would not thereb be justified either ethically or legally. The value of th Beech-Nut Company's reputation is reduced to insignif cance and will ultimately be destroyed if anyone ma legally impersonate the Beech-Nut Company and mak use of its reputation. In this statement of the cas however, we confine ourselves, in what follows, to discussion of instances in which specific damage has bee caused to the Beech-Nut Company's reputation and bus ness by the Lorillard Company's appropriation of it identity and reputation and discuss the broader aspe of the subject of damage in the argument under the tit "Damage," post, page 262.

SPECIFIC DAMAGE RESULTING FROM THE INFERIOR QUALITY OF THE BEECH-NUT CIGARETTE.

We have heretofore referred to the fact that throughout its existence the Beech-Nut Packing Company has consistently and persistently followed the policy of dealing only in goods of the highest grade and best quality obtainable, and to the fact that prior to the end of the year 1921 the Beech-Nut Packing Company had expended three million dollars in advertising the high grade and purity of its products (ante, pp. 22-25).

Designed to be Cheapest Cigarette on the Market.

Benjamin L. Belt, one of the vice-presidents of the Lorillard Company, testified that the Lorillard Company's cigarette business prior to putting out the Beech-Nut cigarette had been almost exclusively in high grade cigarettes, and that the Lorillard Company used the Beech-Nut trade-mark upon a cigarette of cheaper grade, which they offered for sale at a lower price than that charged by their competitors for their lowest priced cigarettes. Following are extracts from Mr. Belt's testimony:

> ". . . We found ourselves about in a position of no blended cigarette business of any consequence, our entire cigarette business being on the higher priced all-Turkish brands.
>
> "Q. Right there. The Lorillard Company practically controls the Turkish cigarette business, the great volume of it, doesn't it?
>
> "A. Our brands represent a majority volume, major portion of the Turkish cigarettes that are in existence.
>
> "Q. Now continue your answer.
>
> "A. But we were not satisfied to confine ourselves to all-Turkish, as we estimated a larger and more growing business on the other type of cigarette. So we were considering for a long time putting on th market another brand of cigarettes of a blended typ and were about ready to do it a year or two soone than we did, it being deferred on account of the wa and the great inability to get tinfoil and wrappin material and so forth. Well, we dragged it along, s to speak, and did not actually get the cigarette i question, Beech-Nut, on the market until in th spring of 1921." (R. Vol. V, pp. 2592-2593.)

. . . . . .

"Q. How are Beech-Nut cigarettes selling today
"A. Very poorly indeed.
"Q. To what do you attribute the decline?
"A. Well, primarily to the fact that our competi tors, who have enormous volume of brands were sell ing to the consumer at the time we put Beech-Nu on the market at 20 cents a package.
"Q. What cigarettes, for example.
"A. Camels, Chesterfields, Lucky Strikes, Pied
monts, and there was quite a business on Swee Caporals in some sections, and we came on the mar ket in what has previously been referred to as wha
we thought was the psychological time to offer th public what we regarded as an equal cigarette i quality, and certainly in physical appearance to an cigarette on the market at 15 cents for the package
And it seemed to me to be a very happy response in 1921, the whole country was recovering from th deflation and so-called panic and in tobacco merchan dise, at least, everybody seemed to be looking for little better bargain, and that was what we though would be the psychological time to offer 20 cigarette for 15 cents that we believed to be for smoking pur poses, as acceptable and as good as 20 cigarettes o our competitors as represented by these severa brands, Camels, Chesterfields, Piedmonts, and Luck
Strikes, which were being sold for 20 cents for 2 and we sailed along splendidly with the merit an quality of the Beech-Nut cigarette until in the lat fall of 1921 when they tilted the prices a little bi and by and by those big brands that were so power ful that they could command the situation got dow not only to the price that we had expected to se Beech-Nuts to the consumer, but got cheaper, and i > was not an infrequent thing to find Camel cigarettes offered at two for a quarter, and Beech-Nut being unable to force its position by lack of its volume, 15 cents, and the big brands were really cheaper and it just took the living life out of Beech-Nut and cut them down from nine hundred million—on that basis a billion a year, and not the whole country covered at once, mind you—we begun in New England and worked across the country, and had about covered the United States at the time these other brands became cheaper." (R. Vol. V, pp. 2601-2602.)

As shown by Mr. Belt's testimony, the Lorillard Company, having no motive to maintain the Beech-Nut trade-mark as a symbol of goods of the highest quality, utilized the significance which had been created for it by the Beech-Nut Packing Company as a means of exploiting a cheap cigarette which they introduced at a price lower than that charged by their competitors for their cheapest grade of cigarettes. But though the Beech-Nut cigarettes at first sold at the rate of a billion a year, the volume of sales fell off when the competing companies cut their prices. That the Lorillard Company was unable to meet this competition is shown by this record to be because of the fact that the Beech-Nut cigarettes were inferior to other cigarettes of their class.

The injury to the Beech-Nut Packing Company's reputation was two-fold, first in that the cigarettes were a low-priced commodity; and second, in that they were inferior to other cigarettes of similar low price. As before stated in this brief, the Beech-Nut Packing Company has always reserved its Beech-Nut trade-mark for goods of the choicest grade, and upon less choice commodities, by-products such as certain cuts of meat which are incidental to its business, but which, while wholesome and pure, are not the choicest cuts, the Beech-Nut Company has used other trade-marks, including the words "Erie," "Mohawk" and "Holly" (ante, p. 25).

Inferior Quality.

The inferiority of the Beech-Nut cigarettes is shown b
the following extracts from the testimony of the wi nesses, several of whom were witnesses called by th
Lorillard Company.

James J. Creevan, salesman in a grocery store at Law rence, Massachusetts, related the incident described the following quotation from his testimony:

> "A. A man came in and asked for a jar of Beec > Nut marmalade; I told him it was the best marm > lade we had in the shop, and I said, here is the Beec > Nut man right here now, and he will tell you a > about it. The man said, 'If it isn't any better tha > the cigarettes, it is no good.'
>
> "Q. 9. What did the Beech-Nut man say?
>
> "A. I asked the Beech-Nut man if they didn > make the cigarettes, and he said, 'No,' so I sold th > marmalade to the man then." (R. Vol. I, page 136

Fred J. Hahn, manager of the cigar stand in the Law and Title Building, Philadelphia, a witness for defendan testified (R. Vol. II, p. 1298, X-Qs. 5 to 11) that there wa a demand for Beech-Nut cigarettes when they first cam out but that people did not like them and soon stopp buying. It is a fair inference that the initial demand r sulted from the name "Beech-Nut" and that that nam was injured by the dissatisfaction of smokers with th
cigarettes.

Franklin P. Stern, a Philadelphia tobacco dealer, was witness for defendant (R. Vol. II, pp. 1300-1309). He te tified on cross-examination that his customers did not li Beech-Nut cigarettes; that people tried them and th did not buy any more (R. Vol. II, p. 1305, X-Qs. 18, 19 that he reduced the price from 15 cents a package to cents to get rid of them, and that when he got rid them he replaced them with another brand (R. Vol.

p. 1304, X-Qs. 7, 8, 9). Mr. Stern stated on redirect that there was a price war on all brands of cigarettes at the time he reduced the price of Beech-Nut cigarettes, but on recross-examination he testified as follows:

> "R-X Q. 1. As a matter of fact, in order to put an end to the discussion, you did cut the price more on your Beech-Nut cigarettes than you did on the other cigarettes?
>
> "A. Yes, because we consider that a dead brand.
>
> "R-X Q. 2. You wanted to get rid of it?
>
> "A. We wanted to clean it up.
>
> "R-X Q. 3. And you did not want to deal in it any more?
>
> "A. Not unless they came back.
>
> "R-X Q. 4. Because your customers, having tried them, did not like them?
>
> "A. They did not like the cigarettes." (R. Vol. II, p. 1308.)

Edward G. Hoch, manager of the tobacco department of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia, was a witness for defendant and testified (R. Vol. II, p. 1291, X-Qs. 2, 3) that, "We did not sell very many of them [Beech-Nut cigarettes] because the trade for the cheap cigarette is very limited here."

That the Beech-Nut cigarette was distinctly an inferior commodity that could not be sold in competition with other cigarettes at the same price is shown by the testimony of defendant's witness, Daniel M. Harbot, a Philadelphia tobacco dealer located in the factory district. We quote the following:

> "X-Q. 4. How many packages of Beech-Nut cigarettes did you sell a week when they first came out; did they go pretty well for a while?
>
> "A. For the first couple of weeks they did, yes.
>
> "X-Q. 5. Then they fell off?
>
> "A. Yes.
>
> "X-Q. 6. How many are you selling now?
>
> "A. We sell a pack a week; if we sell a pack a week now we are lucky.

"X-Q. 7. What made the demand for them f off?

"A. The other cigarettes dropped in price, t
Camels and the Piedmonts dropped down in pri
When the Beech-Nut cigarettes first came out th were twenty for fifteen cents and we were getti twenty cents for Camels and Piedmonts, and th
they dropped and that knocked the sale out
Beech-Nut cigarettes." (R. Vol. II, p. 1325.)

It clearly appears from the testimony of Mr. Harb above quoted, and that of other witnesses herein quot that the Beech-Nut cigarette was so inferior that it co be sold only at a lower price than other cigarettes.
fact it appears from Mr. Belt's testimony, above quot that it was originally made to sell at 15 cents a packa when other blended cigarettes were selling at 20 cent package.

Defendant's witness, I. J. Lindenbaum, a cigar ma facturer and tobacco retailer at Milwaukee, Wiscons said that Beech-Nut cigarettes sold very slowly and te fied as follows:

"X-Q. 75. Have you heard any complaints them?

"A. Oh, yes, complaints. They have been ma too dry or something. There is all kinds of co plaints about them." (R. Vol. II, p. 1545.)

William H. Getzelman, manager of eleven retail bacco stores in the "loop" district of Chicago, was a w ness for defendant. He testified (R. Vol. III, p. 17 X-Qs. 95 to 99) that when the Beech-Nut cigaret first came out they went well, at the rate of 50,00 month, which, he said, was good for a new cigarette, that the sales had fallen off and were now only about thousand a month. He had complaints about the Bee
Nut cigarette. He classes them as a cheap cigare
(R. Vol. III, p. 1697, X-Q. 73). Here again is testim to large initial sales which are fairly attributable to reputation of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and its goods, and subsequently a falling off of sales when the inferiority of the Beech-Nut cigarette became known.

Joseph S. Aisenberg, of Worcester, Massachusetts, a wholesale grocer, testified as follows:

> "A. Well, knowing the Beech-Nut people as I knew them, and the quality they manufacture, from the line we handle in our own business, I was very much disappointed with the appearance of the package and the price of the cigarettes. I did not think that the quality and the appearance were in line with the general character of the quality of their products." (R. Vol. I, p. 149, Q. 10.)

The following is from the testimony of Edward J. Glynn of West Haven, Conn.:

> "Q. 15. Did you find out when, as you have stated, you bought these cigarettes in the spring of this year in the belief that they were a Beech-Nut product, did you find that they came up to the standard of quality which you expected of a Beech-Nut product?
>
> "A. No, I did not." (R. Vol. I, p. 269, Qs. 15-16.)

T. J. Branigan, of New Haven, Connecticut, testified as follows:

> "Q. 11. Did these Beech-Nut cigarettes that you bought in the belief that they were made by the Beech-Nut people, come up to your expectations as to quality?
>
> "A. No, they didn't.
>
> "Q. 12. Did you ever buy any more Beech-Nut cigarettes after that first package?
>
> "A. No, I didn't." (R. Vol. I, p. 286, Qs. 11-12.)

The following is from the testimony of Daniel Huttner, of Chicago, Illinois:

> "Q. 8. Why did you buy the package of cigarettes?
>
> "A. I am familiar with the goods of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and I purchased a package to try them out.

"Q. 9. Were you satisfied with the cigarettes?

"A. Well, I haven't bought any since." (R. Vol. I, p. 486, Qs. 8, 9.)

The following is a statement made by E. J. McFadzen, a grocer, of West Allis, Wisconsin:

"Q. 4. Do you smoke cigarettes?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 5. What kind do you customarily smoke?

"A. Lucky Strike.

"Q. 6. Have you bought any other brand than Lucky Strike recently?

"A. A package of Beech-Nut cigarettes.

"Q. 7. Are these Beech-Nut cigarettes that you bought similar to this package I now show you, being Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 in this case?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 8. Why did you buy these Beech-Nut cigarettes instead of Lucky Strike cigarettes?

"A. Why, I thought they would be good cigarettes, because I know Beech-Nut products are good, the ones I sell, anyhow.

"Q. 9. Did you believe they were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 10. Did you smoke this package of Beech-Nut cigarettes that you bought?

"A. Some of them, not all of them.

"Q. 11. Was your expectation as to the quality of the cigarettes realized?

"A. No." (R. Vol. I, pp. 555-556.)

Franklin G. Neal, of Springfield, Mass., a lawyer, testified as follows:

"Q. 9. You have stated that you seldom buy cigarettes, but that you did buy a package of these Beech-Nut cigarettes. Why did you buy these cigarettes?

"A. I expected to get a remarkable smoke.

"Q. 10. What led you to that expectation?

"A. Because I thought the cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and I am acquainted with their products.

"Q. 11. Do you know what made you think that these cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Because the label appeared to me to be the Beech-Nut label.

. . . . . .

"Q. 15. And what has been your experience with those products?

"A. I have always found them to be of the very highest quality—exceptional in every respect.

"Q. 16. After you had bought this package of cigarettes, what did you do?

"A. I smoked one of them.

"Q. 17. Was your expectation that you would find these cigarettes remarkable fulfilled?

"A. No.

"Q. 18. What did you then do?

"A. I looked the package over and found the name P. Lorillard.

"Q. 19. What did you then conclude, Mr. Neal?

"A. That there was some connection between the Beech-Nut Company and Peter Lorillard; or I mean to say there was probably some connection between the two since the label was the same on the Beech-Nut products and on these cigarettes.

"Q. 20. Do you now believe that there is some connection between the Beech-Nut people and the Lorillard Company?

"A. No. You told me within a day or two that there was not." (R. Vol. I, pp. 202-203.)

We have heretofore (ante, pp. 91, 92) referred to Plaintiff's Exhibits 12-A8 and 12-A9 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2746-2747). These are letters from business men, cigarette smokers, who took the trouble to write to the Beech-Nut Packing Company that in their opinion the Beech-Nut cigarettes did not come up to the high standard of the other Beech-Nut products.

That the criticisms of Beech-Nut cigarettes made by the witnesses above referred to showed the existence of widespread conditions is further shown by the testimony of many retailers in different parts of the country who testify to the small and decreasing sales of Beech-Nut cigarettes. Examples of such testimony appear in the Record Vol. II, as follows: p. 1159, X-Q. 37; p. 1166, X-Qs. 28 to 32; p. 1189, X-Qs. 15 to 17; p. 1198; p. 1216, X-Qs. 1 to 8; p. 1250, direct examination of Sol Levin; pp. 1437, 1438, X-Qs. 76 to 80; pp. 1465, 1466, X-Qs. 71 to 78; Vol. III, p. 1680, R-X Qs. 77 to 81; p. 1686, X-Q. 63; p. 1710, X-Q. 58; p. 1743, R-X Q. 103.

DEFENDANT'S WITNESS TESTIFIES AS TO CLOSE INTERRELATIONSHIP OF BEECH-NUT TOBACCO AND OTHER BEECH-NUT PRODUCTS.

While the damage to the good-will of the Beech-Nut Packing Company is clearly demonstrated by the testimony above quoted and referred to, we shall refer at some length to the testimony of one more witness, Mr. Ferdinand Bieringer, a tobacconist of Boston, Massachusetts, who was called as a witness by the Lorillard Company. While friendly to the Lorillard Company Mr. Bieringer adhered to the facts conscientiously and his testimony is interesting as summing up the situation from a business man's standpoint. Mr. Bieringer has been in the tobacco business for twenty-five years (R. Vol. II, p. 920, Q. 5). He is the proprietor of a tobacco store in Boston and is also a member of the Bieringer-Hanauer Company, tobacco manufacturers' agents at Boston (R. Vol. II p. 912, Q. 6, and pp. 919-920, X-Qs. 1-4). He testified that he thought that the name "Beech-Nut" on the Lorillard Company's cigarettes benefited the Beech-Nut Packing Company's business in its Beech-Nut gum (R. Vol. II, pp. 915, 916, Q. 32, and pp. 923, 924, X-Qs. 36-37). In his answers to the following questions (X-Qs. 38-40) he enlarged upon his idea that the Lorillard business in Beech-Nut cigarettes helped the sale of Beech-Nut gum, and testified as follows in answer to the question next put to him:

"X-Q. 41. And because the cigarettes are good merchandise, as you say, it helps the gum?

"A. Yes; if it was poor merchandise I would say different. I would say it spoils their name of Beech-Nut." (R. Vol. II, pp. 924, 925.)

On redirect examination some questions were put to Mr. Bieringer, evidently in the hope that the witness might qualify the statement made in the answer above quoted, but the result was to draw out the equally true converse statement. Following are the concluding questions and answers on this point:

"A. If the gum was of a poor quality it would spoil the sale of the cigarette, you mean?

"R-D. Q. 62. Yes.

"A. Well, if it was a poor quality it might spoil the name in a way,—it might do that." (R. Vol. II, p. 936.)

Mr. Bieringer was impelled by his recognition of the fact that the name "Beech-Nut" would be associated collectively by the public with the Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco, the Beech-Nut cigarettes and the Beech-Nut chewing gum, to make a window display of all three of these products, to which the following questions and answers refer:

"X-Q. 63. When you made this display of this Beech-Nut gum and Beech-Nut cigarette and Beech-Nut scrap tobacco when you first got the Beech-Nut cigarettes, did you find that cigarette sold in your store pretty well?

"A. Well, they sold pretty fair, pretty well. I will tell you why they sold pretty good. They sold pretty good at that time because the Camel cigarettes, and all the other cigarettes were 18 and 20 cents a package, and Beech-Nuts were one of the first ones to come out with a price of 15 cents, and of course there was bound to be fair marginal profit for the retailer, and of course on account of that we pushed them. It was the man behind the counter that pushed the cigarettes, because there was a fair marginal profit in them. That is the reason they sold very good at that time.

"X-Q. 64. Well, there were 15 cent brands of cigarettes on the market at that time, weren't there?

"A. Yes, there might have been, but they were made by small concerns; and then the friends of Lorillard—Lorillard has a lot of friends in the business, and they would do a great deal for Lorillard, while with the smaller companies they won't do it.

. . .

"X-Q. 65. And the Beech-Nut cigarette then went quite well from the very beginning?

"A. They went very well at that time, because on account of the price, that had a great deal to do with it, the new price of 15 cents. Of course since that time the price on other cigarettes has come down and of course the Beech-Nut cigarettes don't sell so well now." (R. Vol. II, pp. 929, 930.)

Mr. Bieringer's testimony shows the business man's ready recognition of the fact that the good-will of the Beech-Nut business in chewing gum is bound up with and vitally dependent upon the use that is made of the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark or trade-name in the tobacco business, and of the fact that any discredit that may be brought upon the word "Beech-Nut" in the tobacco business will be carried over into the gum business, and vice versa. While Mr. Bieringer was very friendly to the Lorillard Company, as shown by his answers to cross-question 64 and other questions, and spoke as favorably as he could of the Beech-Nut cigarette, he had no hesitation in plainly stating that the relatively large sales of Beech-Nut cigarettes when they first came on the market were due to the fact that they sold at a lower price than other cigarettes, and that the sales dropped off when the prices of other cigarettes were reduced (X-Qs. 63 to 65 above quoted).

Mr. Bieringer's keen realization of the possibility of the value of a trade-mark and good-will being destroyed by the sale of inferior merchandise is shown by the following questions and answers:

"X-Q. 53. The name does not make any difference?

"A. No difference. If you turn out Beech-Nut cigarettes in poor quality, you can't sell your brand, —you can kill your brand over night, just one lot of poor goods, just one little lot, that spoils the whole lot, and it will take ten years to get it back again on the market.

"X-Q. 54. In other words, if the name 'Beech-Nut' stands for quality goods in the mind of the public, and the consumer should buy just one or two items with that name on that he didn't like it would hurt the business very much?

"A. Well, the Beech-Nut, if it is very poor quality goods, it is not very good for the goods.

"X-Q. 55. It would hurt the whole thing, the gum business and all the other business?

"A. Yes; but Lorillard always produces the best, whatever they have . . ." (R. Vol. II, pp. 927, 928.)

DAMAGE RESULTING FROM OPPOSITION OF PEOPLE WHO CONDEMN USE OF CIGARETTES AND CHEWING TOBACCO.

The general belief that the Beech-Nut Packing Company is engaged in the chewing tobacco and cigarette business has caused serious injury aside from the quality of these commodities which the Lorillard Company has put on the market under the Beech-Nut trade-mark. It is a matter of general knowledge, and is shown by the evidence in this case, that the opposition to the use of tobacco, and to the use of cigarettes in particular, is so strong that anti-cigarette statutes have been enacted in several of the states. In four states the sale of cigarettes is prohibited by statute and many of the states have laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors (Fairfield, R. Vol. I, p. 646, Q. 57). The evidence shows that those opposed to the use of cigarettes and tobacco have not only brought about the enactment of anti-cigarette laws, but that many of them have a personally unfriendly feeling for manufacturers of and dealers in cigarettes and tobacco, and will not patronize them even in lines of business not related to tobacco.

Alvah L. Conant, of Worcester, Massachusetts, withdrew his patronage from the Beech-Nut Packing Company because one of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarette bill-boards caused him to believe that the Beech-Nut Company was putting out cigarettes, and he advised his friends to withdraw their patronage (R. Vol. I, page 180).

Charles O. Larson, a grocer, of Chicago, said he would not deal with a company that made cigarettes (R. Vol. I, page 441, Qs. 5 to 9).

Henry Butcher, a grocer, of Holyoke, Massachusetts, said:

> "My sentiments were that the Beech-Nut Packing Company's standard was lowered by the fact that they were putting out cigarettes under their own label. I was very much surprised to think that they would do a thing of that sort. It seemed to me that the output of cigarettes and foods were decidedly at variance. One was beneficial and the other was not." (R. Vol. I, pages 244-245, Q. 11.)

Mr. Butcher said that he did not use cigarettes and was opposed to the use of tobacco. (R. Vol. I, page 245, X-Qs. 15-16.)

Albert Marks, of Green Bay, Wisconsin, a head salesman for the Lorillard Company, was asked on cross-examination why one of his salesmen had left the employ of the Lorillard Company, and replied that the salesman had resigned with the explanation "that he didn't like the idea of selling cigarettes, that his folks were objecting" (R. Vol. II, p. 1489, X-Q. 134).

Richardson S. Marks (R. Vol. I, p. 770), of Columbia,

South Carolina, stated that he had used Beech-Nut products ever since they came on the market in Columbia; that he bought them on their reputation for purity and had always found them satisfactory. He said that he first learned of the Beech-Nut cigarette when he saw the city placarded with advertisements and said: "I simply got disgusted as soon as I saw that this concern that I had a great respect for was manufacturing cigarettes." (R. Vol. I, p. 772, Q. 21.) He stated that he was led by the name and label to believe that the cigarettes were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. He told Mr. Thornton, the representative of the Beech-Nut Company, that he "was very much surprised and disgusted at the Beech-Nut people for manufacturing and putting out something that would ruin people." (R. Vol. I, p. 773, Q. 26.) His wife was as much opposed to cigarettes as he was and they resolved not to buy any more Beech-Nut products but were informed by Mr. Thornton that the Beech-Nut Company did not manufacture the Beech-Nut cigarettes and did not deal at all in tobacco. He said he thought cigarettes a menace to young men and boys and would not buy from anyone who manufactures them. (R. Vol. I, p. 773, Qs. 27, 31.)

We have referred above (ante, p. 88) to letters to the Beech-Nut Packing Company from the Oakland (California) Enquirer enclosing editorials from that paper denouncing proposed anti-cigarette legislation in the States of Utah and Washington, and (ante, p. 115) to the fact that the sale of cigarettes is prohibited in four states by law and that many other states have laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors. Sentiment against a business strong enough to inspire prohibitory legislation could not fail to have an injurious effect on any business apparently associated under the same ownership with the condemned business.

The extent of the sentiment against the use of cigarettes is further shown by the testimony of Mr. Frank M. Fairfield, who for many years has been active in the anti-cigarette movement.

Frank M. Fairfield (R. Vol. I, p. 636), who has practiced law in Chicago for over twenty-five years, is chairman of the board of directors of the International Anti-Cigarette League. He had been interested in the anti-cigarette movement for six or seven years, is district commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, chairman of the Board of Examiners of the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps, chairman of the Boy Scout committee of the Hamilton Club of Chicago, one of the officers of the American Swimming Association of Boston and was one of the organizers and has always been secretary of the Sane Fourth Association. The following are some of the officers and directors of the International Anti-Cigarette League (R. Vol. I, p. 637, Q. 8); William T. Smith, a department manager of Marshall Field & Co., treasurer; Hudson Maxim, high explosive inventor, vice-president; Mrs. L. E. Wooster, State Superintendent of Schools of Kansas, a vice-president; C. W. Barrett, M. D., head of a department of the Cook County Hospital and a professor in the University of Illinois and in the Chicago Polytechnic School, vice-president; Judge Victor P. Arnold, of the Chicago Juvenile Court, a director; Frederick L. Rossback, ex-president of the Hamilton Club of Chicago, a director; A. N. Marquis, editor of "Who's Who in America," a director Mr. Fairfield said (Q. 16) that the league has about six hundred local units in the United States; that its work is educational, curative and law enforcing (Q. 17), and is directed to boys, adults, legislators and anyone seeking its services. The league, he said, reaches boys through the Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., colleges, schools,

Salvation Army, Rotary Clubs, the Boys International Clean Life Army and organizations for the safeguarding of the health and morals of boys (Qs. 20 and 28), and reaches adults through the International Education Association, Parent Teacher Association, the Salvation Army, women's clubs, men's clubs and numerous other organizations (Q. 21). The league distributes information by means of printed matter, pamphlets, letters, moving picture films, lecturers and any way that is desired by those wishing the co-operation of the league (Q. 22). Up to a year ago he said the league was sending out about 17,000 pieces of printed literature a month, but since that time they have had a number of co-operating agencies which make a large demand for literature and they are now sending out 100,000 a month. In answer to question 31 Mr. Fairfield named eighteen organizations that are officially allied with the International Anti-Cigarette League, including the Boy Scouts of America, the Chicago Department of Education and Superintendent of Schools, the Salvation Army, the Federated Women's Clubs, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Rotary Clubs. Mr. Fairfield described the co-operation between the Anti-Cigarette League and the Rotary Clubs, and said that through the Boy Scouts the league reaches 600,000 families and that the total number of families reached would, he thinks, be a million (Q. 35). Mr. Fairfield testified that four states of the Union have laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes, that many states have laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors and that legislation is pending in several states now (Q. 57). Mr. Fairfield (Q. 58 et seq.), was led by the name and label to believe that the Beech-Nut cigarettes were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and continued in that belief until informed to the contrary by one of plaintiff's counsel a few weeks before testifying. He described his impressions as follows:

> "Well, I always had a very high regard for the Beech-Nut Packing Company. They had advocated purity in products during their entire existence. I presumed everything that they produced was pure until I saw that they were putting out a cigarette. I presumed that they were on account of their name, label on it. And I thought they were degenerating—going down hill. Trying to impose upon the people by claiming that they could produce a pure cigarette, taking advantage of the good name that they had created for a great many years for purity of product. Taking advantage of the people by getting them to accept the cigarette under the guise of purity.
>
> "Q. 63. Would you use Beech-Nut products while you were under that impression?
>
> "A. Not if I knew it." (R. Vol. I, p. 646, Q. 62.)

Upon cross-examination (R. Vol. I, p. 657, R-X Qs. 145, 146) the fact was brought out that Mr. Fairfield receives no remuneration from the Anti-Cigarette League, and that he contributes money to its support.

Considerations Hitherto Influencing Beech-Nut Company to Postpone Taking the Natural Step of Selling Tobacco Products.

To a company engaged in general merchandising and dependent for its success upon the general purchasing public the addition to its business of a commodity which is in disfavor with and severely condemned by a considerable portion of the public is a matter for the most serious consideration. The very considerable profits which the officials of the Beech-Nut Packing Company were confident they could realize from the sale of cigarettes had caused them to consider the subject at intervals for many years, but the fear of a prejudicial effect upon the other business of the company had prevented the addition of cigarettes to the line of Beech-Nut products. Upon this point W. C. Arkell, assistant secretary of the Beech-Nut Packing Company testified as follows:

> "Q. 11. How long has the Beech-Nut Co. had under discussion the sale of cigarettes under the Beech-Nut label?
>
> "A. That matter has been considered as far back —I forget—possibly two or three years before the war, something like 1914, 1915, 1916. I went in the army in 1917 and it was way ahead of that." (R. Vol. IV, p. 2189, Q. 11.)

Mr. Barbour, vice-president and general manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company testified as follows regarding the attitude of his company on the question of dealing in cigarettes:

> "Q. 15. Would it be within the natural and ordinary expansion of your business to add cigarettes to your line?
>
> "A. Well, in one way it would. We are now calling on the tobacco trade, the grocery trade, and drug trade—all of which handle cigarettes and tobacco, and from that standpoint it would be most consistent for us to handle cigarettes. We could merchandise them without any added expense so far as our salesmen are concerned in salaries and traveling expenses. On the other hand, there are a great many people who are buying Beech-Nut products, and women buying most of them, who are opposed to tobacco in any form, which might make us feel we might not want to handle tobacco or cigarettes." (R. Vol. I, p. 785.)

Mr. Barbour also stated (R. Vol. I, p. 792), that plaintiff had never put any cigarettes on the market except in an experimental way, but that at one time they had engaged the services of a man who was recommended as having examined and blended many tobaccos but that they never obtained any machinery or other equipment for going into the tobacco business. Mr. Barbour's testimony shows that the possibility of antagonism from those of their customers who were opposed to tobacco and cigarettes was one of the considerations which has so far influenced plaintiff to keep out of that business. The Beech-Nut Packing Company sacrificed the profits that might have been realized from tobacco and cigarettes in order to avoid damage to the good-will of its established business. The Lorillard Company has taken the profits and left the Beech-Nut Packing Company the damage.

ERRORS OF THE CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS.

There was error both of fact and law in the conclusion of the court below that the Lorillard Company has not violated the law of trade-marks and unfair competition because the business of the Lorillard Company is confined to tobacco and cigarettes and that of the Beech-Nut Company to food products. The error of law lay in making the character of the goods the test of legality instead of looking to the presence or absence of unauthorized appropriation of and injury to the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company's business as the factor of determining weight upon the question of the legality of the acts complained of. The error of fact lay in the finding of the court below that the Beech-Nut Company's business is confined to food products, whereas the manufacture of chewing gum constitutes more than half of the business of the Beech-Nut Company.

In its ultimate analysis the error of the court below consisted in disregarding the real issue—the question of fraudulent appropriation of and injury to good-will; in basing its decision on the classification of the goods sold by the parties; in arbitrarily and erroneously selecting the food value of the goods as the basis of classification; in erroneously finding that there is a substantial, or any perceptible or real, difference between the food values of chewing gum and chewing tobacco; and in concluding that such erroneously assumed difference between the food values of chewing gum and chewing tobacco gave the Lorillard Company a legal right to appropriate and injure the trade-mark, name and good-will of the Beech-Nut Company's business.

ARGUMENT.

Summary of Argument.

The purpose of the law of trade-marks and unfair competition is the protection of the good-will of a trade or business. Unauthorized appropriation of and injury to the good-will of a business is a violation of the law whether the good-will so appropriated be utilized in a business of the same kind as that to which the good-will is properly appurtenant or in some other kind of business. The good-will of a business is dependent upon fair dealing, not upon fair dealing in some particular kind of merchandise only. The injury done to a person by the belief on the part of the public that a certain defective or objectionable commodity is the product of that person's business is not canceled by the fact that he does not deal in that commodity or in any commodity of the "same descriptive properties." The vital thing is what the public believes, not what the unknown truth may be. The vice lies in the misrepresentation under which the goods are sold—not in the properties of the goods. Where the goods sold by the parties are of the same kind there is additional injury in the loss of sales, but there may be, as in the instant case, misappropriation of and injury to good-will without direct competition and the loss of sales caused thereby, and it is easily to be seen that there might be cases in which there would be loss of sales without injury to good-will, as where the party who appropriates the trade-mark or name of another sells goods of the same kind but of so satisfactory a quality and price that no discredit is cast upon the business to which the trade-mark or name properly belongs. Injury to good-will and injury by loss of sales are separate and distinct wrongs. Either may exist without the other.

Whether in any particular case the owner of a trade-mark or trade name has the right to prevent a stranger from using that mark or name in connection with goods of a kind not dealt in by the original owner of the mark or name must be determined from the facts in the case in which the question arises. If the stranger's use of the mark or name has the effect of deceiving or confusing the public, thereby placing the reputation and good-will of the business at the mercy of the stranger and beyond the control of the owner of the business, then there has been an infraction of the law. The error of the court below lay in attempting to resolve this question without regard to the effect upon the good-will and reputation of the business in which the name and mark were first used, and by assuming the existence of an arbitrary general rule limiting the party's right in his trade-mark or name to goods of a particular class without regard to the possibility or fact of injury growing out of the unauthorized use of the name or mark by another in connection with other goods.

The part of the Subject Index entitled "Argument" consists of a summary of the principal topics and propositions discussed in the following pages.

Decision of the Court Below.

ERROR IN MAKING "CLASS" AND "DESCRIPTIVE PROPERTIES" OF THE GOODS THE TEST OF THE RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES.

The court below rests its decision upon its conclusion that "food products" and tobacco do not belong to the same "class," or are not of "the same descriptive properties," and are not competitive products. The court below finds that the Beech-Nut Packing Company deals only in food products. Later we shall refer to the fact that chewing gum, the principal product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, bears about the same relation to food products as does the chewing tobacco made and sold by the Lorillard Company. Neither the gum in chewing gum nor the tobacco in chewing tobacco is a food. Both chewing gum and chewing tobacco are sweetened with sugar (Formula of Beech-nut tobacco, R. Vol. VI, p. 3050). There seems to be no substantial distinction between the two commodities in their properties as articles of diet, but inasmuch as the court below has made this distinction the foundation of its decision, it will be interesting to ascertain the basis of the court's reference to a system of classification and to the "descriptive properties" of merchandise as determinative of the question of the right of one party to impersonate another in business by appropriating his trade-mark, trade-name or other means of identification.

These Words in the Trade-Mark Statute—No Possible Effect Where Jurisdiction is From Diversity of Citizenship.

The words "class" and "same descriptive properties" occur in several connections in the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, Ch. 592 (33 Stat. L. 724). Whatever these terms mean they can have no possible effect upon any action or suit other than one in which the court's jurisdiction rests exclusively on the statute. Where the jurisdiction rests on diversity of citizenship the law applied by the court is the common-law of unfair competition and trade-marks. Section 23 of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905 (quoted in Appendix G, App., p. 99), expressly provides that nothing in the statute shall lessen or avoid any remedy any party would have had if the Act had not been passed, and, in any event, as stated by this Court in the Simplex case (American Steel Foundries v. Commissioner of Patents and Simplex Co., 269 U. S. 372, 381), Congress has been given no power to legislate upon the substantive law of trade-marks.

In Equity No Arbitrary Rule Based on Character of Goods.

In the suit at bar there is jurisdiction by reason of the diversity of citizenship of the parties as well as jurisdiction based upon the fact that the Beech-Nut Packing Company has registered its trade-mark under the statute. Therefore, even if some limitation growing out of classification and descriptive properties is imposed upon purely statutory actions, such limitation has no bearing on the suit at bar where diversity of citizenship gives the court jurisdiction of the parties for the purpose of administering the common law of unfair competition and trade-marks. For this reason we believe that any reference to classification of goods and the descriptive properties of merchandise as the determinative factor in this case, is altogether irrelevant and erroneous, but we further find that by the very terms of the statute the limitation to cases in which the goods of both parties are of the "same descriptive properties" applies only to actions at law for the recovery of damages, and that no such limitation occurs in the section of the statute defining the power of the courts in suits in equity.

Section 16 of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, Ch. 592 (33 Stat. L. 724, quoted in full in Appendix G, App., p. 98) provides that any person applying a registered trade-mark to merchandise "of substantially the same descriptive properties as those set forth in such registration . . . . shall be liable to an action for damages." The words "action for damages" and the fact that another section of the statute, Section 19 (quoted in full in Appendix G, App., p. 99), contains express provision for suits in equity "to prevent the violation of any right of the owner of a trade-mark registered under this act," leads to the conclusion that it is only the remedy in an action at law that is restricted to the use of the trade-mark on goods of the same "descriptive properties," and that in suits in equity, even where the court's jurisdiction rests solely on the registration of the trade-mark under the statute, the remedy may extend to an injunction against "the violation of any right of the owner" of the registered trade-mark. In fact these are the express provisions of the statute and no escape from them seems possible, especially as the power of granting an injunction to restrain a wrong not remediable at law is the particular province of the court of equity.

Therefore both the jurisdiction based upon the registration of the Beech-Nut trade-mark under the statute and the jurisdiction resting upon diversity of citizenship extend to any wrongful act cognizable in equity. But, while the principles of equity in their application to trade-mark and unfair competition cases are not limited by any arbitrary rule based upon the class or descriptive properties of the goods dealt in by the parties, the character of the goods is an element of importance as an evidential fact in cases where there is no direct evidence to establish the presence or absence of deception or confusion of the public. Where the direct evidence leaves the issue untouched, or in doubt, the courts perforce resort to inference from such facts as are before them. But where the fact of deception is proved beyond a reasonable doubt, no place is left for inference as to what the fact is. In the suit at bar the fact of universal deception of the purchasing public has been proved beyond a reasonable doubt by direct evidence, and yet the court below has disregarded that proof and based its decision upon the differences between the goods dealt in by the parties, and its ruling that purchasers "should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived" (R. Vol. V, p. 2702; 7 F. (2d) 971).

Court Below Applies Conflicting Rules to the Trade-Mark and Unfair Competition Aspect of the Same Facts.

The court below has discussed the case in two branches, treating the question of trade-mark infringement separate and apart from the question of unfair competition. Though there may be cases in which this distinction involves some question of jurisdiction or procedure, there appears to be no reason for adjudicating the instant case, considered as a trade-mark case, by the application of a principle which is inconsistent with the principle applied to it when considered as an unfair competition case. But that is precisely what the court below has done, and the inconsistency has arisen from the court's failure to apply to both aspects of the case the one common fundamental principle, namely, that the owner of a trade-mark or other identifying symbol is entitled to protection against such use thereof by others as will result in a misappropriation of his business reputation and good-will. The court below states the law of trade-marks upon which it has decided this case in the following words:

> "The general rule of law on this subject is that the owner must have used his trade-mark on the same class but not necessarily on the same species of goods as the alleged infringer in order to entitle him to its protection against infringement." (R. Vol. V, p. 2699.)

Treating the case as an unfair competition case the court below gives the following as the rule of law for its decision:

> "And so courts have held that there must be a real, present, or prospective competition; that is, an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time." (R. Vol. V, p. 2701.)

Now, it is quite obvious that if a party who has used his trade-mark on only one species of the goods comprised in a class is entitled to prevent others from using that trade-mark on any species of goods included within that class, as set forth in the first of the two foregoing quotations, then he is entitled to protection that is expressly excluded by the principle stated in the second quotation, where it is provided that there must be an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time. Rye bread and truffles are both foods, and belong to the class of foods. By the first principle announced by the court below the owner of a trade-mark for rye bread, who has used it on nothing but rye bread, is entitled to exclude others from using the same trade-mark in connection with truffles. But by the second principle stated by the court below the man who has used the trade-mark on rye bread only, is not entitled to prevent any other person from using the same mark on truffles, because the effort of the one to sell rye bread and of the other to sell truffles could by no stretch of imagination be construed as an effort of both to get the same trade of the same people at the same time. No such inconsistency can possibly arise if the law of trade-marks be considered merely a branch of the law of unfair competition, as this Court has more than once ruled it to be. Both classes of cases might well be considered as parts of the law of business good-will. The application of the same test to both, namely, the presence or absence of deception of the public and appropriation of business good-will, leads to results that are always consistent and in harmony with justice and equity. Analysis based upon arbitrary rules, and upon words, such as the words "competition" and "descriptive properties," leads to inconsistency and fallacy as it has done in the instant case.

Lower Court's Emphasis of Importance of Classification of Goods.

The determinative weight given by the court below to the arbitrary rule of classification which it lays down is emphasized by its frequent comparisons of foods with tobacco. The court refers to the fact that tobacco is in Patent Office Class No. 17 and food in Class No. 46; that "the Treasury Department treats them as of different classes" and "has always taxed tobacco products just as it did liquor products, but has never taxed food products"; that food promotes the growth of animal or vegetable life and is a necessity, while tobacco contains no nutrition but is a narcotic (R. Vol. V, p. 2700).

In one paragraph of its opinion (appearing at the bottom of page 2701 of Volume V of the Record) the court states that it is aware that equity may be invoked without market competition. But in the second preceding paragraph the court gives its approval to the rule that there is no wrong unless there is "an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time," and in a later paragraph, after referring to the injury sustained by the Beech-Nut Company, the court says that "This resulted from the similarity of trade-marks on distinct and unrelated classes of merchandise. But from confusion and injury caused by similarity of names, courts will not relieve." (Ibid, top of page 2703.)

Howe Scale Case and Canal Co. Case, Cited by Court Below, are not Authority for its Decision.

The court below makes the statement that "It is not the use, but dishonesty in the use, that is condemned . . .," and cites Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict, 198 U. S. 118, 140, and cites and quotes from Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311, 327 (R. Vol. V, p. 2703). The first of the two cases mentioned is authority for the rule that a man may use his own name in business provided the use be not accompanied with circumstances that make it fraudulent and deceptive, and the second of the cited cases is authority for the rule that the use of geographic words in trade is open to all who make honest use of them.

In the suit at bar we do not have a case of a defendant using his own name, honestly or otherwise, or the case of a party using a geographical term, either honestly or otherwise. We have the case of a party misappropriating an arbitrary name adopted by and belonging to another as both a corporate name and a trade-mark, using in connection with the misappropriated name all of the ornamental and distinctive characteristics of design which are used by the rightful owner of the name, and thereby causing universal deception of the purchasing public. The authorities cited by the court below have no relevancy to the suit at bar. We will briefly state the facts in the two cases cited by the court below as authority of this Court for the decree appealed from.

The Howe Scale Company, defendant and appellant in Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict (198 U. S. 118), was sales agent for the Remington-Sholes Typewriter Company, and Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict were manufacturers of the Remington typewriter. Z. G. Sholes was a son of C. L. Sholes, who was the inventor of the most important features of the Remington typewriter. In 1892 Z. G. Sholes invented a new form of typewriter and organized the Z. G. Sholes Company to make it. Franklin and Carver Remington, sons of Samuel Remington, formerly president of E. Remington & Sons, the original manufacturer of the Remington typewriter, bought a three-fourths interest in Sholes' invention, Sholes retaining the other fourth. Thereafter the Remington-Sholes Typewriter Company was organized, and the typewriter made by the company was marked "Remington-Sholes, Chicago," and with the trade-mark "Rem-Sho." This Court found that "the name 'Remington-Sholes Company' is not identical with, or an imitation of, 'Remington Standard Typewriter Company,' that the trade-mark 'Rem-Sho' was not imitative of any of Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict's marks," and stated that "the use of two distinct surnames clearly differentiated the machines of defendant from those of complainant, . . ." (Ibid, p. 139.)

In Canal Co. v. Clark (13 Wall. 311) the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company sought to enjoin Clark from calling the coal which he sold "Lackawanna coal." The Lackawanna valley was known by that name long before the business of either of the parties to the suit came into existence. The coal mines of both parties to the suit were in the Lackawanna valley and so also were many other coal mines owned by others. All of these mines yielded the same kind of coal, that of plaintiff and defendant in the suit being alleged by plaintiff to be indistinguishable. It was upon these facts that this Court affirmed the decree of the lower court refusing to enjoin Clark from calling his coal "Lackawanna coal."

In the typewriter case Remington and Sholes used their own surnames in a manner that was not deceptive and that clearly distinguished their product from that of the other party, and in the Lackawanna case Clark called his coal by the name of the district in which he, in common with many others, mined coal of precisely the same kind. The typewriter case proceeds upon the principle that a man may use his own name in connection with the sale of any kind of goods provided there is nothing deceptive in the manner in which he uses it. The coal case decision follows the established principle that no one may have a monopoly of a merely geographic name.

The decision of the court below is based upon the assumption that because a man may use his own name in any non-deceptive manner, and because a man who digs coal in a certain locality may designate it by the name of that locality, it is right and lawful for a party to take a name which is not his own, and is not geographical, and to make use of it in trade with the effect of universally deceiving purchasers, and that he may not only do this, but that he may make sure of the deception by printing the name in precisely the style in which the true owner of the name prints it in his business, and may accompany the appropriated name with an essentially exact copy of all of the accessory ornamentation and details with which the true owner of the name surrounds it in his trade-mark. It is needless to refer in detail to the passage quoted by the court below from the opinion of this Court in Canal Company v. Clark. The meaning of this court's statement is perfectly clear. Even when quoted apart from the context, as in the opinion of the court below, there is nothing in the quotation to contribute any support to the view of the suit at bar taken by the court below.

THE COURT BELOW IN ERROR REGARDING COMBINATION IN SAME BUSINESS OF MANUFACTURE AND SALE OF FOOD AND TOBACCO PRODUCTS.

The court below said (R. Vol. V, p. 2702) that "no company ever combined the manufacture and sale of food and tobacco." The court overlooked the fact, mentioned in brief and argument below, that Mr. Belt, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, testified that Park & Tilford, the well-known New York grocers, have a cigar factory of their own for the manufacture of their own brands of cigars (ante, p. 100, and R. Vol. V, p. 2615). Mr. Belt also testified that the Liggett Drug Company, which operates a chain of drug stores, Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers of Chicago, and Stickney & Co., wholesale grocers of St. Louis, all own their own tobacco trade-marks (R. Vol. V, pp. 2615-2617). It does not appear from Mr. Belt's testimony whether any of these companies own tobacco factories of their own as did Park & Tilford. Mr. Charles stated that his firm, Charles & Co., fancy grocers of New York City, have their own tobacco brands, and that it is a general custom for grocers to put out tobacco products under their own trade-marks without any connection with the name of the manufacturer (ante, p. 100, and R. Vol. V, pp. 2465, 2466). In the face of the proved fact that a large and prominent grocery house, Park & Tilford, has its own cigar factory, and in the face of the proved general custom, illustrated by specific instances, of grocers to have their own exclusive tobacco trade-marks, the court below stated that "the evidence shows that no company ever combined the manufacture and sale of food and tobacco." Inasmuch as universal deception of the public has been proved by direct evidence in the instant case, it is not material whether the goods were dealt in by the same or different dealers, but the point is of interest as showing that it was nothing unusual for the public to see and buy food and tobacco products put out by the same company, and that the court below misapprehended the facts.

POSSIBILITY OF SUBSTITUTING ONE PRODUCT FOR ANOTHER IS NOT THE LEGAL TEST IN THE SUIT AT BAR.

As reason for its decision the court below makes the statement (R. Vol. V, p. 2702) that > "The evidence shows that its (defendant's) goods have in no way been confused with those of the plaintiff so that when a purchaser desired a certain brand of plaintiff's goods, he in fact secured those of defendant."

This can only mean that when a purchaser wanted some product of the Beech-Nut Company, say a jar of sliced bacon, the salesman could not hand the purchaser a package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco or cigarettes and make him think he was getting a jar of bacon. This seems quite obvious, but the fact that one kind of deception could not be practiced does not justify another kind. If the purchaser wanted, and bought, tobacco or cigarettes, and was led to believe that they were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, when they were in fact produced by the Lorillard Company, the transaction involved misappropriation of the Beech-Nut Company's business reputation and good-will regardless of whether the Beech-Nut Company did or did not deal in tobacco and cigarettes. If the Beech-Nut Company did itself deal in tobacco and cigarettes there would be additional injury in the loss of profits on a particular sale. There would be no distinction between the two cases otherwise.

AFTER ERRONEOUSLY ADOPTING THE "DESCRIPTIVE PROPERTIES" OF THE GOODS AS THE TEST OF THE RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES THE COURT BELOW APPLIES THAT TEST IN A WAY THAT WOULD BE ERRONEOUS IN ANY CASE, AND TO ASSUMED FACTS WHICH DO NOT EXIST IN THIS CASE.

While we believe that consideration of this case from the standpoint of the character of the goods is erroneous on account of the presence of direct proof of deception of the public, we also believe that a proper consideration of the character of the commodities dealt in by the parties would lead by inference to a conclusion identical with that proved by the evidence to be correct. Under the two following titles we show the irrelevance of the basis of classification adopted by the court below, and the erroneous finding of fact to which it applied the classification so adopted.

Commercial Custom and Association in Trade are the Proper Basis of Classification for the Purposes of the Law of Unfair Competition.

While the court below refers repeatedly to the "class" of the goods dealt in and to the "descriptive properties" of the goods, there nowhere appears in the opinion any reference to authority for adopting the particular system of classification or particular "descriptive properties" which the court had in mind. There are chemical properties, physical properties, electrical properties, medicinal properties, properties as foods, properties that determine how and in association with what other things an article or commodity will be manufactured or otherwise produced, properties that determine with what other things an article or commodity will be associated in trade and properties of an indefinite kind and number, some of which will be relevant for one purpose and some for another.

For the purposes of the law of unfair competition we believe that the relevant properties are those that bear upon the association of different articles and commodities in trade. A buck-saw and a tenpenny nail are both hardware because of their association in trade, and not because of any resemblance between their physical, chemical or other inherent properties, or because of any similarity in the use to which they are put or the effect they have when used. This is the view taken by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in France Milling Company v. Washburn-Crosby Co., 7 F. (2d) 304, 305, where it says:

> "Classification of any commercial article depends far more on commercial custom than upon the inherent nature of the product. Dog biscuit and pilot bread are closely allied in physical origin, and so are guncotton and calico, but in commercial classification they are poles apart."

The many different things that are classed as groceries, or as drygoods, or as stationery, are so classed because of the channels of trade through which they flow. A multitude of reasons that could not possibly be traced have brought about a more or less definite grouping in the buying and selling of different articles and commodities. This grouping is primarily related to the convenience of the ultimate purchasers, the effort of the retailer to have in his store those things which the purchasers expect to find in a store of the kind he keeps, and which it is convenient for them to find there. And so it has come about that when retail buyers become familiar with the trade-mark which a manufacturer or dealer uses upon several different commodities which are ordinarily sold in a certain kind of store, they think that any new commodity sold in the same kind of store and under the same trade-mark is the product of the same manufacturer or dealer. The public is thoroughly familiar with the fact that large business houses and manufacturers deal in and make a wide variety of products. Everyone knows that the large packing houses are not confined to the sale of beef, mutton and pork, and is familiar with the fact that these same concerns manufacture and deal in soap, glue, butter, eggs, cheese, cleansing powders, canned goods, meat extracts and practically anything that their manufacturing and distributing facilities are adapted to. Therefore when a purchaser sees the name Swift & Co., or Armour & Co., or Beech-Nut on some product that he had not seen it on before, and sees it in the same store where other products of these companies are sold, he instantly accepts the new product as the product of the company of that name with which he has long been familiar.

But the court below says:

> "The crux, therefore, of the trade-mark branch of this case is whether or not the products of the plaintiff and defendant belong to the same class or belong to distinct and unrelated classes, not having 'the same descriptive properties.'" (R. Vol. V, p. 2700.)

and of the unfair competition aspect of the case the court below says there can be no offense unless there is "an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time." (R. Vol. V, p. 2701.) The theory of the decision below is that the law is indifferent to the act of a defendant who impersonates the plaintiff, profits by his appropriation of the plaintiff's identity, and injures the plaintiff's business reputation, that the law is not concerned with wrongful appropriation of and injury to business good-will, but solely with the likeness or unlikeness of the commodities dealt in by the parties. And taking even this basis of decision the court below does not apply it to the facts of the case but to assumed facts which have no existence in reality, as clearly appears in the following paragraph.

Fundamental Error of Fact in Erroneous Finding of the Court Below that the Beech-Nut Company Deals In Food Products Only.

The court below says in its opinion (R. Vol. V, p. 2700):

> "It is undisputed that the plaintiff and its predecessor in business have always dealt in food products only and that the defendant and its predecessors have always manufactured and sold tobacco and have never dealt in food products."

This proposition is not undisputed. It is denied. Plaintiff started the manufacture and sale of chewing gum in 1911, and at the time of the trial of this suit its sales of chewing gum constituted over half of its total business (ante, pp. 19, 22). No one regards chewing gum as food, no one buys it for food. We doubt if the most enthusiastic advertiser of chewing gum ever thought of recommending chewing gum as a food or enlarged on its nourishing qualities. Chewing gum has just about as much claim to virtue as a food as has chewing tobacco. Popularly neither of them are regarded as foods. Both chewing gum and chewing tobacco contain sugar. The Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap tobacco was made sweeter than brands previously made by the Lorillard Company (ante, p. 51; for a chewing tobacco formula, see R. Vol. VI, p. 3050, where the formula for the extinct Weissinger Beechnut tobacco appears, including sugar, salt, licorice and glycerine besides tobacco scraps). Either both products are foods on account of the sugar they contain or neither are foods.

The Beech-Nut Company also deals in non-alcoholic beverages. Beginning with the year 1919 such beverages were regular products of the company listed on its nationally distributed price lists. Ginger ale is listed on the 1919 price list (R. Vol. VI, p. 2805); ginger ale, birch beer and sarsaparilla are listed in 1920, 1921 and 1922, and these same products together with root beer are listed in 1923 (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2807 to 2814). Mr. Barbour, vice-president and manager of the Beech-Nut Company testifies regarding the sale of beverages (R. Vol. I. p. 790, X-Q. 41 et seq.).

Inasmuch as the court below attached weight to the Patent Office classification of articles of commerce, we mention the fact that the Patent Office, acting under the amendatory Trade-Mark Act of May 4, 1906, Section 2, has separately classified beverages and foods under the following class numbers and titles: "45. Beverages, non-alcoholic," and "46. Foods and ingredients of foods." (The pamphlet issued by the Patent Office containing the trade-mark statutes and rules of practice is in evidence as Defendant's Exhibit No. 34. Page 46 of this pamphlet, upon which the classification of merchandise appears, is reproduced at page 2941 of Volume VI of the Record.) This classification is authorized by Section 2 of the amendatory Trade-Mark Act of May 4, 1906, ch. 2081 (34 Stat. L. 169); which reads as follows:

> "Sec. 2. That the Commissioner of Patents shall establish classes of merchandise for the purpose of trade-mark registration, and shall determine the particular descriptions of goods comprised in each class. On a single application for registration of a trade-mark the trade-mark may be registered at the option of the applicant for any or all goods upon which the mark has actually been used comprised in a single class of merchandise, provided the particular descriptions of goods be stated."

It is quite obvious, as stated in the statute, that the classification is "for the purpose of trade-mark registration" and that its only intended effect, and the only effect within the power of Congress, was administrative,—to limit the number of different kinds of commodities for which a trade-mark could be registered upon one application and for the payment of one fee. We believe that any discussion of Patent Office classification in the consideration of a substantive question of trade-mark law only tends to confusion of thought, and we are impelled to refer to this subject only for the purpose of showing the fallacy of attaching weight, as did the court below, to the list of classes established by the Commissioner of Patents.

The court below, however, has attached determinative weight to classification, and, furthermore, in applying this irrelevant test has either completely overlooked the principal product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, chewing gum, and its extensive production of beverages, or it has justified the Lorillard Company's invasion of the rights of the Beech-Nut Company on a distinction between the value of chewing gum and non-alcoholic beverages on the one hand, and the value of chewing tobacco on the other, as articles of diet. The court below does not explain what relation there may be between the Lorillard Company's appropriation of the good-will of the business of the Beech-Nut Company and a scientific determination of the relative food values of chewing gum and chewing tobacco, nor does it anywhere explain what bearing the differences between the uses of a ham and a cigarette have upon the right of the cigarette maker to impersonate and appropriate the business good-will of the man who packs the ham.

IRRELEVANT CASES CITED BY COURT BELOW IN SUPPORT OF ITS THEORY OF CLASSIFICATION AS A TEST OF INFRINGEMENT OF TRADE-MARK RIGHTS.

The authorities cited by the Lorillard Company in the courts below and relied on by those courts upon the proposition that there is no cause of action unless both parties deal in the same commodity or in commodities of the same "class" all involved facts so different from those in the suit at bar that detached quotations, couched in general language, are misleading when applied to the different facts of the instant case. In none of the previous cases where the commodities were different, and the court gave weight to that fact in support of its refusal to find for the plaintiff, was there proof of deception of the public growing out of the use of the same trade-mark by both parties. In the absence of proof of such deception the courts have quite naturally treated differences between the commodities as an evidential fact bearing upon the question of the likelihood of deception resulting from the use of the same trade-mark or label on the different commodities dealt in by the parties, and in discussing such cases the courts have made statements intended to have application only to the facts before them, which, quoted apart from the context, and treated merely as detached words, are susceptible of a meaning which they do not have when read as a part of the opinions in which they occur. Such detached quotations constitute the authorities relied upon by the Lorillard Company in the courts below and accepted by those courts as authorities.

National Picture Theatres Case.

In support of the proposition that there can be no unfair competition unless there is "an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time" the court below (R. Vol. V, p. 2701) cited National Picture Theatres, Inc., v. Foundation Film Corporation, 266 Fed. 208, 211, which case was decided by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, the same court which accorded trade-mark protection to different commodities in Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co. (discussed, post, 192), 247 Fed. 407, and in the case of Anheuser-Busch Co. v. Budweiser Malt Products Corp. (295 Fed. 306—discussed post, p. 147). In the National Picture Theatres case defendant and plaintiff used substantially the same name for motion picture plays, the plays themselves being altogether different. The court held that the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant from using substantially the same name for a different play. The products were the same in so far as they were both motion picture plays, and anyone seeing the name of the play posted in front of a theatre might well have been induced to attend one of the plays when he wanted to see the other, and it is evident that the court regarded the case in this light. The case was based on unfair competition, though we see no reason for applying a different standard of judgment to trade-mark and unfair competition cases as the line between the two is often vague and the wrong in both is appropriation of and possible injury to business goodwill. The remark that there must be "an endeavor to get the same trade of the same people at the same time," which appears in the opinion in the National Picture Theatres case, is couched in broad terms, but quite evidently the sense was not that relied on by the court below for the court which made this remark was the same one which decided the Aunt Jemima and Budweiser cases.

Borden Ice Cream Case.

The other of the two citations made by the court below (R. Vol. V, p. 2701) in support of its view that the suit at bar presents no remediable injury on account of the difference in the commodities dealt in by the parties is Borden Ice Cream Co. v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 201 Fed. 510, opinion by Judge Carpenter, 1912 (C. C. A., 7th Circuit). Borden's Condensed Milk Company was founded in 1857 by Gail Borden, and the name of the company had long been identified with the milk and cream business, and the company also manufactured a malted milk ice cream intended for and used only in hospitals. In 1911 one George F. Borden, with others, incorporated the Borden Ice Cream Company for the purpose of manufacturing ordinary, or commercial, ice cream, but the company had never actually made or sold any ice cream or any other product. There had, therefore, been no deception of the public and no actual damage to the Borden Condensed Milk Company. The court said that if the complainant based its right to an injunction on unfair competition, no competition of any kind had been shown by the record, the defendant never having made or sold anything, and that if complainant relied on damage which might result from the use of the name "Borden" on inferior goods, the action was premature, as the defendant had not made or sold any goods of any kind, thus plainly implying that if the action had not been premature, and damage had been shown, plaintiff would have had a remediable grievance.

In the suit at bar we have before us an arbitrary trade-mark, made up of the arbitrary word "Beech-Nut" and the arbitrary design in which it is used. In the Borden case the question at issue was the extent to which the plaintiff was entitled to the exclusive use of the surname "Borden," and the extent to which that name had acquired a secondary significance as a mark of identification for articles of commerce, and the court very carefully limited its discussion of the legal effect of the commodities being different to that particular state of facts. What the court said upon this point was:

> "The secondary meaning of a name, however, has no legal significance, unless the two persons make or deal in the same kind of goods." (201 Fed. 514.)

All that can be fairly drawn from this case is that a man may not have as broad rights in a surname as he might have in an arbitrary trade-mark, and that is in conformity with the principle laid down by the courts in the analogous cases where the courts have accorded broader protection to trade-marks consisting of arbitrary words not in common use than to arbitrary or suggestive words that have been widely used as trade-marks or trade-names. Examples of the last named class of words are cited in the opinion of this Court in American Steel Foundries v. Commissioner of Patents and Simplex Company, 269 U. S. 372; among them being "Acme," "Anchor," "Champion," "Eureka," "Excelsior," "Ideal," "Jewel," "Liberty," "National," "Pride," "Premier," "Queen," "Royal," "Star," "Sunlight," "Triumph" and "Victor." We next refer to some cases involving the different extent of protection accorded to trade-mark words of different character.

SOME CASES SHOWING VARYING EXTENT OF PROTECTION GIVEN BY COURTS TO TRADE-MARK WORDS OF DIFFERENT CHARACTER.

The Pabst Blue Ribbon Case.

Pabst Brewing Company v. Decatur Brewing Company, 284 Fed. 110, C. C. A., Seventh Circuit; Opinion by Judge Alschuler.

In this case the plaintiff, the Pabst Company, had established its right to the words "Blue Ribbon" as a trade-mark for beer. Defendant, the Decatur Company, used the same words as a trade-mark for malt extract, which is not a beverage but is useful, as indicated by the court, in the preparation of beer by the "home brew" process. The Pabst Company had not used the words "Blue Ribbon" on anything but beer. The court decided that

> "in view of the very wide and general employment of 'Blue Ribbon' as a trade-name, we believe the District Court properly concluded that appellant's right to use it was limited to its registered product, and whatever other first use it made of it, and that in appellee's use of it there was no likelihood of any confusion of its product with that of the appellant."

The Budweiser Case.

Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. Budweiser Malt Products Corporation, 295 Fed. 306, C. C. A., Second Circuit; Opinion by Judge Rogers.

In this case the plaintiff, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., had established its right to the word "Budweiser" as a trade-mark for beer but not for malt syrup, and defendant used the same word as a trade-mark for malt syrup. The court held that defendant's use of the word "Budweiser'' as a trade-mark for its malt syrup was an invasion of the trade-mark right of the plaintiff.

The Anheuser-Busch (Budweiser) case was decided by the District Court for the Southern District of New York, before the Pabst (Blue Ribbon) case was submitted to the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. The Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit decided the Blue Ribbon case before the Budweiser case was submitted on appeal to the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. It thus came about that the Budweiser case was discussed by the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in its opinion in the Blue Ribbon case, and that the Blue Ribbon case was discussed by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in its opinion in the Budweiser case. Both courts distinguished the two cases by reason of the fact that the word ''Budweiser'' is to all intents and purposes a purely arbitrary word as applied to beer in the United States, the town of Budweis in Bohemia being practically unknown in this country, and having no significance to the public in connection with beer, while the words ''Blue Ribbon'' have a generally recognized significance as indicating high merit, and by reason of that fact had been registered in the Patent Office by different persons over sixty times as a trade-mark for different products. For this reason both courts were of the opinion that the arbitrary word ''Budweiser'' was entitled to a breadth of protection that should be denied to the generally used and suggestive term ''Blue Ribbon.''

Pease et al. v. Scott County Milling Co., 5 F. (2d) 524. District Court, E. D. Missouri; Judge Faris (March, 1925). Opinion Contains a Discussion of Blue Ribbon and Budweiser Cases.

Both the Blue Ribbon case and the Budweiser case were cited and discussed by the District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri in Pease et al. v. Scott Milling Co., 5 Fed. (2d) 524. Plaintiff, Pease et al., had used the word "Nox-All" as a trade-mark for stock food, consisting of a mixture of grains and molasses, for 22 years, and sued to enjoin defendant from using the word "Noxall" as a trade-mark for stock food. Defendant and its predecessors had used the word "Noxall" for 32 years as a trade-mark for wheat flour. Defendant set up a counterclaim based on its prior use of the word "Noxall" for wheat flour. The court decided for plaintiff on both the bill and counterclaim, plaintiff being thus permitted to continue the use of the word "Nox-All" as a trade-mark for stock food and defendant being enjoined therefrom. Defendant's right to the use of the word "Noxall" as a trade-mark for wheat flour was not disputed. Upon defendant's contention on its counterclaim that its prior use of the word "Noxall" as a mark for wheat flour entitled it to exclude plaintiff from using the word "Nox-All" in connection with stock food the court referred to the fact that "Noxall" had been registered as a trade-mark 30 times "for almost every conceivable product" and was in use "as a trade-name by some 15 or 20 concerns." The court's discussion of the legal effect of the character of a word upon the breadth of protection to be accorded its use as a trade-mark is so clear and complete that we present the following quotation from the opinion:

"The ruled cases disclose two lines of decision: A narrow rule of protection in a case wherein the trade-mark in dispute has been, as here, registered under the statute for some 30 times as a trade-mark, for as many different products, and has also been used as a common-law trade-mark as to some 20 other products (Columbia Mills Co. v. Alcorn, 150 U. S. 460, 14 S. Ct. 151, 37 L. Ed. 1144; Pabst Brewing Co. v. Decatur Brewing Co. [C. C. A.], 284 F. 110; Church, etc., Co. v. Russ [C. C.], 99 F. 226; Borden, etc., Co. v. Borden, etc., Milk Co., 201 F. 510, 121 C. C. A. 200; Lawrence v. Sharpless Co. [D. C.], 203 F. 762; Denver, etc., Co. v. Alexander, etc., Co., 50 App. D. C. 207, 269 F. 859; George v. Smith [C. C.], 52 F. 830; Beich Co. v. Kellogg, etc., Co., 49 App. D. C. 186, 262 F. 640; Sulzne Laboratories v. Electro-Alkaline Co., 52 App. D. C. 265, 285 F. 999), and a broad line of protection, where the common-law trade-mark or trade-name, or statutory trade-mark, is original or distinctive (Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 F. 407, 159 C. C. A. 461, L. R. A. 1918C, 1039; Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Lowinson Co., 247 F. 658, 159 C. C. A. 560; Florence Manufacturing Co. v. Dowd, 178 F. 73, 101 C. C. A. 365; Enoch Morgan's Sons v. Wood, 152 F. 600, 81 C. C. A. 616, 12 L. R. A. [N. S.] 729; Anheuser-Busch v. Budweiser, etc., Corporation [D. C.], 267 F. 263; Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co. [C. C. A.], 300 F. 509).

"This distinction is made clear by what was said in the case of Pabst Brewing Co. v. Decatur Brewing Company, supra, wherein the words in dispute were the words 'Blue Ribbon,' as applied by plaintiff therein to beer, and by defendant therein to malt extract. The court said:

"'It ["Blue Ribbon"] was shown to have been registered in the Patent Office over 60 times. . . . Such registrations at different times and to different persons would indicate that the Patent Office did not recognize a large measure of individuality in the name. . . . In view of the very wide and general employment of "Blue Ribbon" as a trade-name, we believe the District Court properly concluded that appellant's right to use it was limited to its registered product, and whatever other first use it made of it, and that in appellee's use of it there was no likelihood of any confusion of its product with that of appellant."

* * * * * * * * * * *

"A distinctive name, such as 'Kodak,' 'Budweiser,' 'Ford,' 'Aunt Jemima,' 'Pontiac,' and 'Delmonte,' will be broadly protected in all cases where damage will be inflicted by unauthorized use; while words like 'Blue Ribbon,' 'Star,' and 'Nonail,' and other words of like character, will be protected only within the range of use upon similar goods" (3 F. (2d) 325-326).

The Gold Medal Case.

France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co., 7 F. (2d) 308, Circuit Court of Appeals, 2nd Circuit, opinion by Circuit Judge Hough (April 6, 1925).

The Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in above case also cited and discussed the Blue Ribbon case and the Budweiser case. The court refused to give broad protection to the word "Gold Medal," long used by Washburn-Crosby Co. on wheat flour on the same ground, among other reasons, as given by the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in the Blue Ribbon case. The court said (7 F. (2d) 308):

"* * * the degree or exclusiveness of appropriation accorded to the originator of a trade-name often varies with the kind of name he originates. If the name or mark be truly arbitrary, strange and fanciful, it is more specially and peculiarly significant and suggestive of one man's goods, than when it is frequently used by many and in many differing kinds of business. Of this 'Kodak' is a famous example, and the English courts have prevented one from putting forth Kodak bicycles, at the suit of the originator of the name for a totally different article. Eastman v. Kodak Cycle Co., 15 R. P. C. 105; cf. re Dunn's Trade-Mark, 7 R. P. C. 311, and Dunlop v. Dunlop, 16 R. P. C. 12. In this court the same influence is seen in Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney, 247 F. 407 . . ., where the above line of cases is quoted and relied on.

"The phrase 'Gold Medal' is distinctly not in the same class of original, arbitrary or fanciful words as 'Kodak' and 'Aunt Jemima.' . . . It is exactly like the phrase 'Blue Ribbon,' and has been as extensively and variously applied."

Then follows a sentence of peculiar interest in the instant case because the first half of it is so specially applicable to the conditions here:

"One who devises a new, strange, 'catching' word to describe his wares may and often has by timely suit prevented others from taking his word or set of words to gild the repute of even wholly different goods (cases, supra); but one who takes a phrase which is the commonplace of self-praise like 'Blue Ribbon' or 'Gold Medal' must be content with that special field which he labels with so undistinctive a name" (7 F. (2d) 306).

Testimony of Defendant's Witness, Mr. Newton, Former Commissioner of Patents, Shows That Many Words Are Commonly Used As Trade-Marks, But That the Word "Beech-Nut" Is Not In Common Use.

One of the witnesses for defendant in the suit at bar was Mr. James T. Newton (R. Vol. V, p. 2518). Mr. Newton was Examiner of Trade-Marks in the Patent Office for seven or eight years, afterwards Assistant Commissioner of Patents, then Commissioner of Patents, and now engaged in the practice of patent and trade-mark law. As a result of a search of the Patent Office records Mr. Newton produced lists showing instances in which various words had been registered many times for different products by different registrants, and also produced three bound volumes of copies of the Patent Office registration certificates referred to in the lists. The lists (Defendant's Exhibit No. 30) are reproduced at page 2924 of Volume VI of the Record. The bound volumes of registration certificates are Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 31, 32 and 33. The lists showing numerous registrations of the same word by different parties relate to those commonly used and suggestive words referred to by the courts in the cases above discussed as being entitled to only narrow protection, the words shown by Mr. Newton to have been registered by a large number of different registrants being Climax, Red Cross, Eureka, Camel, Omega, Rainbow, Tuxedo, Velvet, Rex, Navy, Army and Navy, Blue Ribbon, Clipper, Horse Shoe, Liberty Bell, Liberty and some others which have been registered a lesser number of times than those named. The only significant thing about Mr. Newton's lists is the fact that the word "Beech-Nut" is not among the words that have been registered for a large number of different people. Mr. Newton was qualified to, and doubtless did, make a very reliable search of the Patent Office registrations, and we may safely take the fact that he did not find the word "Beech-Nut" in general use as a trade-mark by others than the Beech-Nut Company to establish the fact that it is not in such general use. We know of only a few instances in which others have attempted to use it. The suit at bar is the first instance in which the Beech-Nut Packing Company has been compelled to resort to litigation on the subject.

The word "Beech-Nut" is absolutely arbitrary, having no descriptive or other significance or suggestiveness in connection with the products on which it is used, and it has not been used except to an insignificant extent by others than the parties to this suit. The word "Beech-

Nut" is a word of the precise character defined by the courts in the cases above discussed as being entitled to broad protection in its use by the one who first adopted it and by whom it was popularized and given wide significance as an identification of his products.

ERROR OF THE COURT BELOW IN DISREGARDING CONCLUSIVE PROOF OF UNIVERSAL DECEPTION OF THE PUBLIC BY THE LORILLARD COMPANY'S USE OF THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK, AND CONSIDERING ONLY TESTIMONY REGARDING MATTERS NOT OF DETERMINATIVE IMPORTANCE.

We know of no adjudicated case in which deception of ultimate purchasers has been proved to anything even approaching the extent of the deception that has been proved in the suit at bar. The evidence analyzed in Part IV of the Statement of the Case, ante, page 75, and quoted in Appendices A to E (App., pp. 1 to 90), can leave no possible doubt that the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark has been universally deceptive. Yet the only mention of the evidence on this point that appears in the opinion of the court below is its statement that "It appears that some people have thought that the plaintiff was putting out the 'Beech-Nut' scrap tobacco and cigarettes and wrote, inquiring about it." (R. Vol. V, p. 2698). The court makes no mention whatever of the universal deception of the public that has been so abundantly proved.

ERROR OF COURT BELOW IN FINDING THAT THE LORILLARD COMPANY DID NOT TRY "TO PALM OFF ITS PRODUCTS AS THOSE OF THE PLAINTIFF."

In another part of the opinion (R. Vol. V, p. 2702) the court said of the defendant: "It has not tried to palm off its products as those of the plaintiff," and further down in the same paragraph the court said: "The plain-tiff's evidence on this subject consisted of indefinite and unauthorized statements of unidentified persons alleged to be defendant's salesmen." Convincing evidence that the Lorillard Company did try "to palm off its products as those of the plaintiff" is the voluminous evidence of deception of the public resulting from the fact that the Lorillard Company made and used an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. The court below completely disregarded this evidence and confined its comment on the evidence to the remarks quoted above relating exclusively to those who wrote letters and to the testimony of a half-dozen retail dealers who testified that salesmen of Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes had, by innuendo or direct statement, conveyed to them the idea that the Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, or of the company which puts out the extensive line of Beech-Nut products. All of the testimony concerning the letters referred to and the testimony of this half-dozen witnesses might be expunged from the case without in the slightest degree impairing the sufficiency of the proof of deception of the public resulting from the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. Its only tendency is to show that the offense was aggravated far beyond the extent necessary to invoke the protection of the law. Universal deception of the public is proved by direct evidence.

Furthermore, the Lorillard Company having put the means of deception into the hands of salesmen is conclusively presumed to have intended the fraud thereby made possible and encouraged. As stated by Mr. Justice Holmes, when justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in New England Awl & Needle Co. v. Marlborough Awl & Needle Co., 168 Mass. 154, 155; 46 N. E. 386:

"It has been found that defendant did not > intend to deceive the public by passing off their goods for the plaintiff's, but this must be taken pretty strictly. They knew that they were putting the power to do so into the retail dealers' hands. It hardly can be doubted that they contemplated that the wholesale dealer at whose request they put up their awls in this form, with full knowledge of the plaintiff's prior use, would or might try to deceive the public, and whether they did or not is immaterial."

The Lorillard Company knew from the very beginning of its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark in 1915 that the public was being deceived and believed that the tobacco was the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. In its letters to the Lorillard Company dated July 2, 1915, September 2, 1915, and September 20, 1915, the Beech-Nut Company informed the Lorillard Company of its certain knowledge that the public was being deceived, and gave the names and addresses of dealers who had written to the Beech-Nut Company about the Beech-Nut tobacco—one inquiring about the price and another ordering a shipment of five cases of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2891, 2896, 2901). The deception of dealers is particularly significant as the business contacts of a dealer place him in a better position to get correct information than a retail purchaser, and the dealers' transactions are on a larger scale than those of the retail purchaser and naturally make him more careful and observing than the purchaser of a five or ten-cent package of tobacco.

NO CAUTIONS TO LORILLARD SALESMEN.

And when the Beech-Nut cigarettes were first placed on the market Mr. Belt, the vice-president of the Lorillard Company who was in charge of the company's cigarette business knew that the cigarettes were being accepted by the public as a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company (R. Vol. V, pp. 2618 to 2622). The Lorillard Company never issued any instructions to its salesmen to take any precautions to prevent or correct such deception, as shown by the testimony of nine of the salesmen who took part actively in the introduction of the Beech-Nut cigarette.*

Moreover, the Lorillard Company offered special cash inducements which had the effect of increasing the probability of the deception being aggravated by direct misrepresentations and implications.

Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 12-A, B, and C (reproduced in Rec. Vol. VI, pp. 2714-2719) consists of circulars distributed by the Lorillard Company to its customers, that is, the jobbers and wholesalers, advising them that the Lorillard Company would pay to the salesmen selling Beech-Nut cigarettes a cash premium for all sales within a given period. The effect of the offer of these cash premiums was, of course, to create a tendency on the part of the salesmen to make every possible effort to dispose of as large a quantity of Beech-Nut cigarettes as possible, this, of course, being the purpose of the Lorillard Company, and under the stress of the motive thus created there was every inducement for the salesmen to utilize every possible means at their command to increase their sales. That the result of this policy was to induce many

---

* W. Goldstein, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1378, X-Qs. 223-5, p. 1394, X-Qs. 299-302, p. 1413, R-X Qs. 409-410.
M. J. Schimmel, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1451, X-Qs. 41-3.
A. Marks, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1495, X-Qs. 177-181.
F. Hopewell, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1515, X-Qs. 118-120.
W. H. Brown, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1608, X-Qs. 130-4, pp. 1609-1611, X-Qs. 138-149, pp. 1617-1618, X-Qs. 189-194.
J. Gay, Jr., Transcript, Vol. II, pp. 1632-1633, X-Qs. 98-103.
F. C. Degan, Transcript, Vol. II, p. 1643, X-Qs. 69-70.
W. H. Norton, Transcript, Vol. III, p. 2004, X-Qs. 42-51.
J. Bacow, Transcript, Vol. III, p. 2020, X-Qs. 40-44, 47-8.

of the salesmen to overstep the bounds of truth in promoting sales of Beech-Nut cigarettes to their customers is evident from the instances of misrepresentation of which plaintiff has been able to learn and which are described in the testimony quoted in Appendix H (App., pp. 101-112). It was obviously the purpose of the Lorillard Company to take advantage of every means at the command of the salesmen without imposing any restriction calculated to hold them within the bounds of business honor. The circulars contain no caution regarding the use to be made of the Beech-Nut name in selling the cigarettes, and the district managers had no written instructions, nor issued any, in regard to avoiding the giving of wrong impressions in their use of the word "Beech-Nut" and their presentation of the Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarette packages (ante, p. 157).

That this deception was not objectionable to the Lorillard Company is shown by the fact that when Mr. Belt was asked whether the Lorillard salesmen were instructed to take special precautions to make it clear that the cigarettes were not made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company he replied: ". . . . As far as taking any special precautions we did not take any, except that when a man said 'Is that made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company,' we said 'No, it is made by P. Lorillard.' We did not wish him to deceive himself. . . ." (R. Vol. V, bottom of page 2619.) But even if, contrary to the fact, the Lorillard Company had instructed its salesmen not to make oral misrepresentations and to avoid and correct deception of the public, that would not have purged the Lorillard Company of the fraud inherent in the act of putting the deceptively marked goods into the hands of its salesmen, who, in turn, sold the goods to retailers.

As stated by Judge Lacombe for the Second Circuit

Court of Appeals in Enterprise Mfg. Co. v. Landers, Frary & Clark, 131 Fed. 240, 241:

> "It is elementary law that, when the simulation of well-known and distinctive features is so close, the court will assume that defendants intended the result they have accomplished, and will find an intent to appropriate the trade of their competitor, even though in their instructions to their own selling agents, they may caution against oral misrepresentations as to the manufacture of the goods."

THE TESTIMONY FAIRLY SHOWS EXPRESS MISREPRESENTATION BY LORILLARD SALESMEN.

As a matter of fact, even upon this non-essential point as to whether the testimony shows satisfactorily that salesmen of Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes made express misrepresentations by word of mouth, we believe that the court below was in error. In order to avoid interruption of the continuity of this discussion we present our complete analysis of the testimony on this point in Appendix H (App., p. 101). The witnesses gave the names of two of the salesmen who, they say, represented the Lorillard tobacco products to be products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. One of the witnesses, Jefferson D. Hayden, a grocer of Columbia, S. C., produced a receipt given him by the salesman for payment for Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco. This receipt is on a printed form of the P. Lorillard Company, bearing in rubber-stamp print the name "E. L. Larson" as salesman, and bearing also the signature of E. L. Larson in acknowledgment of the receipt of payment for one dozen packages of Beech-Nut tobacco. (A reproduction of the receipt, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 14, appears at page 2764 of Vol. VI of the Record.) Mr. Hayden testified at some length regarding his interview with the salesman, as appears in Appendix H, pages 105-109, and it appears that the salesman participated in the deception rather by innuendo and refraining from correcting Mr. Hayden's erroneous impression than by making flat statements. In one of his answers Mr. Hayden describes the interview as follows:

> "He came in and introduced himself as Mr. Larson, selling Beech-Nut tobacco and from the appearance of the package it looked the same as the other Beech-Nut products, and he told me the Beech-Nut was a good seller, and I told him I had been selling the other products all along, and I thought it would be a good seller, and I would try a small quantity of it . . ." (Appendix H, p. 106; R. Vol. I, p. 757, Q. 28.)

Larson made no explanation and left Hayden under the impression that he was buying goods produced by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Hayden testified (Qs. 42, 43) that he did not know what the P. Lorillard Company was, whose name was at the top of the receipt given him, and that it meant nothing to him; also (X-Qs. 88-90) that if he had noticed the name P. Lorillard on the receipt he would not have known whether it was the manufacturer or the jobber.

George B. Roach, a grocer, stated that a salesman selling Beech-Nut tobacco gave him the impression that it was a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. He stated his reason for this impression as follows:

> "Well, because he [the salesman] said in the conversation that I knew the Beech-Nut trade-mark and knew what it stood for—anything put out under the Beech-Nut trade-mark had to be the highest quality." (Appendix H, p. 102; R. Vol. I, pp. 665-666.)

Mr. Roach said the salesman's name was Bacon (R. Vol. I, p 667, Q. 37; Appendix H, p. 103).

The other witnesses referred to in Appendix H (App., p. 101), did not ascertain the names of the salesmen who gave them false impressions of the origin of the Beech-Nut tobacco products.

But the fact remains that two reputable witnesses gave the names of two Lorillard salesmen who deceived them by innuendo so pointed as to be difficultly distinguishable from direct statement. The Lorillard Company did not produce these salesmen to deny or explain the testimony of these witnesses, and did not show that it could not produce the salesmen as witnesses, or make any explanation of why they were not produced. The court below refers to our evidence on this point as "indefinite and unauthorized statements of unidentified persons alleged to be defendant's salesmen" (R. Vol. V, p. 2702). The court below does not enlighten us as to what better evidence could possibly be produced of Larson's identity and authority than Hayden's testimony and the printed receipt form of the Lorillard Company bearing Larson's name printed thereon as salesman, and bearing Larson's signature in acknowledgment of payment for Beech-Nut cigarettes. And the salesman, Bacon, was named by the witness Roach. The Lorillard Company must have a record of the names of its employees and must be able to reach them or account for not doing so. Though rebuttal was within the power of the Lorillard Company it stood silent. In a parallel situation in an unfair competition case Judge Coxe said:

> "No excuse, which the court can consider, is given for the failure to contradict this inculpating evidence, and, of course, the presumption is that had the witness been called he would have been unable to deny its truth." (Hostetter Co. v. Conron, 111 Fed. 737, 738.)

In view of the foregoing we believe we are justified in our contention that the court below was in error in disregarding the abundance of direct evidence which establishes deception of the public beyond a reasonable doubt, and in confining its attention to and drawing an erroneous conclusion from the testimony of a half dozen witnesses upon a point not necessary to the determination of the case, namely whether Lorillard salesmen orally misrepresented the facts. The matter has importance before this court by way of showing the insufficiency of the foundation upon which the decision of the court below rests.

ERRONEOUS FINDING OF COURT BELOW REGARDING THE RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN BEECH-NUT LABELS USED BY THE LORILLARD COMPANY AND BY THE BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY.

In the following statement quoted from the opinion below we find a clear explanation of the court's reason for ignoring the proved fact that the Lorillard Company has deceived the entire purchasing public by its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. The following is from the court's opinion (R. Vol. V, p. 2702):

> "The difference between their labels is so great and distinct that any purchaser paying ordinary attention need not and should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived."

Now, inasmuch as the evidence proves beyond the possibility of doubt that all purchasers of Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes were deceived, the court's statement is in effect that none of them paid "ordinary attention" to the appearance of the goods which he bought, and that the Lorillard Company is, therefore, not accountable or responsible for the deception which has occurred. It seems elementary, both as a matter of law and as a question of usage of the English language, that "ordinary attention" is precisely that degree of attention which is exercised by purchasers, and in this case they have testified unanimously that in making purchases in their customary way they were deceived. But, notwithstanding the plain meaning of the expression and the judicial definitions thereof, the court below has decided that "ordinary attention" is not that degree of attention which is exercised by ordinary people when making purchases in their ordinary way, but is a degree of attention to be determined by the court with rigid exclusion of all enlightening evidence. This is not in accord with the cases from which we quote on pages 165-169, post.

As before stated, the court below was in error not only in setting aside the proved fact of universal deception and substituting therefor its judgment contrary to the evidence, but the court below was further in error even in its consideration of the trade-marks of the parties unaided by the evidence of actual deception. Assuming, as the court below did in effect, that proof of actual deception should be excluded and that this case may and should be decided upon a bare comparison of the trade-marks of the parties, there can be no doubt that the court was in error in its finding that "the difference between their labels is so great and distinct that any purchaser paying ordinary attention need not and should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived" (R. Vol. V, p. 2702). The Lorillard Beech-Nut trade-mark on the side of the scrap tobacco package bearing the words "Extra Picked" and the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark (ante, p. 73) both have the word "Beech-Nut" as their most conspicuous element. The word is hyphenated, printed in similar type and upon a curved line in both trade-marks. In both trade-marks the word Beech-Nut is surrounded by an oval border, to the upper curve of which the word "Beech-Nut" is adjacent and conforms in curvature. In both a picture of a beech-nut cluster occupies the center of the oval beneath the printed word "Beech-Nut." Printed matter appears at the right and left of the beech-nut cluster within the oval, upon the Lorillard label the printed words being "Established" at the left, and "1760" at the right, and upon the Beech-Nut Company's label the word "Trade" appearing at the left, and the word "Mark" at the right. Though the words are different, their position, style of type, proportionate size and general effect upon the collective appearance of the trade-marks are the same. The word "Beech-Nut" is printed in a similar shade of blue upon both labels, as also are the oval borders surrounding that word and the beech-nut cluster, and in both cases the trade-mark is surrounded by red. Even in the precise shades of color of the different parts of the design the Lorillard Company has closely followed the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark. The label upon the opposite side of the Lorillard scrap tobacco package and the label upon the Lorillard cigarettes differ slightly from that above referred to but in all of them there is the hyphenated word "Beech-Nut" printed on a curved line in type like that used by the Beech-Nut Company, surrounded by an oval border, with a picture of a beech-nut cluster in the center of the oval beneath the word "Beech-Nut." The prominent elements are identical. The variations in detail are subordinate—such as to impress even a critical and analytical observer as nothing more than minor variations in the same identical design, and well calculated to escape notice altogether when the marks are not placed side by side for comparison.

THE LAW ON THE DEGREE OF RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN TRADE-MARKS NECESSARY TO CONSTITUTE INFRINGEMENT.

Following are quotations from cases in which, in the absence of direct proof of deception, the courts have been compelled to rely on comparison of the trade-marks, labels or other identifying characteristics used by the parties for the purpose of determining whether deception and confusion would be likely to result. We know of no case other than the one at bar in which the court has substituted its opinion that the public "should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived" for the proved fact that the entire purchasing public was deceived.

> "It is a simple matter, upon comparison of the two trade-mark wrappers, to observe dissimilarities, but that is not the test of infringement. The purchaser has not the advantage of comparison. We observed in Pillsbury v. Flour Mills Co., 24 U. S. App. 395, 407, 12 C. C. A., 432, 438, and 64 Fed. 841, 847:
>
> > "'A specific article of approved excellence comes to be known by certain catchwords easily retained in memory, or by a certain picture which the eye readily recognizes. The purchaser is required only to use that care which persons ordinarily exercise under like circumstances. He is not bound to study or reflect. He acts upon the moment. He is without the opportunity of comparison. It is only when the difference is so gross that no sensible man acting on the instant would be deceived that it can be said that the purchaser ought not to be protected from imposition. . . . the imitation need only be slight, if it attaches to what is most salient; for the usual inattention of a purchaser renders a good-will precarious, if exposed to imposition.'"
>
> (Stuart v. F. G. Stewart Co., C. C. A., 7th Circuit, opinion by Judge Jenkins, 91 Fed. 243, 245.)

"He sees a speedometer, a lamp, a clock, or some other of the numerous motor car attachments, which is pleasing to the eye, and, having ascertained the name of its maker, resolves to have it on his car. If the general appearance be the same, he does not examine further, and is entirely satisfied that the device he buys is what he intended to buy. This is true of the careless, credulous, and ignorant purchasers, who are certainly as numerous in this as in any other field of business, and depend largely upon the statements of local dealers and the chauffeurs who drive their cars.

"An expert and probably a great majority of automobile purchasers could not be deceived into taking the defendant's lamp, in evidence, for the Rushmore lamp, but the ignorant or careless purchaser looking to general effect, and not to what seems to him to be inconsequential details, would, very likely, be misled. Such simulations place in the hands of dishonest dealers and agents the materials for misleading and cheating the public. It is unnecessary to dwell on these considerations as they have been stated many times by this court and need not be repeated. When it appears that a competitor has unnecessarily and knowingly imitated his rival's goods in non-functional features, a court of equity is justified in interfering." (Rushmore v. Badger Brass Mfg. Co., C. C. A., 2nd Circuit; per curiam, Judges Coxe, Ward and Noyes, 198 Fed. 379, 380.)

"It is not necessary to constitute an infringement that every word of a trade-mark should be appropriated. It is sufficient that enough be taken to deceive the public in the purchase of a protected article." (Saxlehner v. Eisner & Mendelson Co., opinion by Mr. Justice Brown, 179 U. S. 19, 33.)

"What degree of resemblance is necessary to constitute an infringement is incapable of exact definition, as applicable to all cases. All that courts of justice can do, in that regard, is to say that no trader can adopt a trade-mark, so resembling that of another trader, as that ordinary purchasers, buying with ordinary caution, are likely to be misled."

(McLean v. Fleming, opinion by Mr. Justice Clifford, 96 U. S. 245, 251.)

"It is argued, and it is true, that the differences are apparent to any one who will read and examine the labels, but that argument does not meet the question which this case presents: Are the resemblances between the two labels such that the consumer is likely to be misled? We have no hesitation in saying that they are, and that the variations are wholly insufficient to avoid the charge of infringement, or create a doubt that the label of the appellant was copied from that of the appellee, and was made in close imitation of all its salient features. A consumer who has been accustomed to purchase an article in a dress or a package which has become familiar to him does not stop to read and examine. Many of the consumers of beer are unable to read, and many are foreigners, and unacquainted with the English language. All consumers, whether able to read or not, are in fact guided by the general appearance of the package or label which is before them. The general appearance of the beer bottles, carrying these two respective labels, is strikingly similar. No argument can add force to the conviction which is produced by the mere sight of them." (Kostering v. Seattle Brewing & Malting Co., C. C. A., 9th Circuit, opinion by Judge Gilbert, 116 Fed. 620, 621.)

"Now, to one scanning the detailed description of these two Dutch scenes, or laying the pictures side by side, there could be no trouble in distinguishing the one from the other. But this is not the test. Will confusion result to the purchasing public by the use of the two not brought into direct or special comparison? Would the ordinary customer applying at the counter for 'Old Style Lager,' observing the care customary with purchasers in that way, be likely to be deceived or misled into buying 'Old German Lager,' if it was offered him marked with defendant's label? We are impressed that he would.

"A simulation of the most prominent and distinctive features of the complainant's label is found in the defendant's label. The inn is there, with the legend in slightly different wording suspended from a scroll; the representation of men drinking at a table outside of the inn is there; the barrels or casks in the subway are there; the monks drinking at a table at or near the casks are there; and the coopering of a barrel is there. In short the 'ensemble' is there, and that, says the court in Cantrell & Cochrane v. Butler, 124 Fed. 290, does the mischief. And quoting again: 'The usual purchaser neither abstracts nor analyzes for the purpose of differentiation and judgment.'" (G. Heilman Brewing Co. v. Independent Brewing Co., C. C. A., 9th Circuit, opinion by Judge Wolverton, 191 Fed. 489, 497.) (The opinion in this case contains many quotations from U. S. cases to the same effect as the foregoing.)

"The test is not whether, when goods are placed side by side, a difference can be recognized in the labels or marks; but the test is, when such goods are not placed side by side, would an ordinarily prudent purchaser be liable to purchase the one, believing that he was purchasing the other." (McDonald & Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Mueller Mfg. Co., C. C. A., 8th Circuit, opinion by Judge Smith McPherson, 183 Fed. 972, 974.)

"It may be that the cautious and discriminating purchaser is not likely to be so misled; but the protection accorded to a trade-mark is not limited to the cautious and discriminating customer, but embraces the 'ordinary' or 'unwary' purchaser as well." (DeVoe Snuff Co. v. Wolff, C. C. A., 6th Circuit, opinion by Judge Knappen, 206 Fed. 420, 423-424.)

"While there is an almost ostentatious display of variation in matters not likely to attract the attention of the casual purchaser, there is a substantial similarity in the picture to which the eye has become accustomed. In this connection, we must not lose sight of the character of the article, the use to which it is put, the kind of people who ask for it, and the manner in which it is ordered. Very broad scene painting will deceive an ignorant, thoughtless or credulous domestic, looking for an article in common and daily use, and of no particular interest to her personally. The same kind of deception would be instantly detected by an intelligent woman of the world, looking for her favorite perfume, soap or dentifrice, or by a man of luxurious tastes inquiring for some special brand of champagne." (Morgan's Sons v. Troxell, 23 Hun. N. Y. 632, 636.)

ERROR OF THE COURT BELOW IN ITS ASSUMPTION THAT THE LORILLARD COMPANY HAD NO MOTIVE TO APPROPRIATE THE GOOD-WILL OF THE BEECH-NUT COMPANY, AND THAT THE MAGNITUDE OF THE LORILLARD BUSINESS JUSTIFIED ITS APPROPRIATION OF THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK AND ELIMINATED THE ELEMENT OF DAMAGE THEREFROM.

The court below states in its opinion (R. Vol. V, bottom of p. 2701 and top of p. 2702) that it is satisfied that defendant has not injured plaintiff in the suit at bar "within the principles" announced in Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney et al., 247 Fed. 407, and Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co., et al., 300 Fed. 509, 512. Our discussion of these cases, post, pp. 192, 201, shows that there is absolutely no distinction in principle between them and the case at bar. The court below makes no attempt to show any distinction unless it so intends its statement (top of p. 2702, R. Vol. V) that "it would not have been profitable" for the Lorillard Company to palm off its goods as products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and its references in various parts of the opinion to the magnitude and assumed antiquity of the Lorillard Company.

We know of no theory upon which the wealth and extensive business of the Lorillard Company could have any bearing upon the legal or moral aspect of the case, excepting by way of aggravation of the wrong. We refer to the subject only because of the prominence given it by the Court of Appeals in its opinion, where (R. Vol. V, p. 2696) it refers to the retail value of the Lorillard Company's output in 1919 being $80,000,000, and (R. Vol. V, p. 2698) to its sales of Beech-Nut tobacco in that year amounting to $14,650,865.63, and (R. Vol. V, p. 2704) to the Lorillard Company as one of the "great tobacco companies of the country," and (R. Vol. V, p. 2696) to "the small beginning of Pierre Lorillard in 1760," and (R. Vol. V, p. 2704) to "a Lorillard reputation stretching back into three centuries." As a matter of fact it is much less than two centuries since 1760, and it is also a matter of fact that the present P. Lorillard Company is "a new corporation called P. Lorillard Company" formed in the year 1911 by order of the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York to receive part of the assets of the dissolved American Tobacco Company (decree of the Circuit Court, 191 Fed., p. 423, and ante, p. 46). Though the Court of Appeals dwells upon the assumed antiquity and the wealth of the Lorillard Company, this whole matter is aside from any point involved in this case. No amount of inference based upon the wealth of the Lorillard Company, its assumed antiquity, and the magnitude of its business can displace or nullify the proved fact that its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark has caused universal deception of the public.

There is nothing obscure or difficult to understand in the fact that the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark has deceived purchasers. The testimony quoted upon pages 83 to 86, ante, and in Appendices D and E (App., pp. 75 and 89) shows conclusively that the ultimate consumers practically never notice or have any knowledge of the names of the manufacturers of cigars, cigarettes or chewing or smoking tobacco, and invariably identify these products by their trade-mark or brand names, and that the name Lorillard is absolutely unknown to large classes of people including many retail dealers.

By adopting the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark for its new tobacco mixture in 1915 the Lorillard Company was enabled to attain instant sales on a large scale to consumers who believed they were buying a tobacco put out by the producers of the widely and favorably known line of Beech-Nut products with which they long had been familiar. But for the prestige of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark the Lorillard Company would have encountered the long delay and uncertainty of success which attends the exploitation of a new and unknown commodity. But as a supposed part of the Beech-Nut line of goods the new tobacco mixture had the immediate benefit of the public impression that it was a tobacco of the highest quality and of the same standard of purity and excellence as the other Beech-Nut products.

Though the Lorillard Company offered in evidence voluminous and minutely detailed financial statements showing the extent of its business in Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and in other tobacco brands totally unrelated to any issue of this case, neither the Lorillard Company in its briefs and arguments nor the courts below in their opinions explained how or why the magnitude of the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark or of its other business had any tendency to show a legal or moral right to use the name Beech-Nut. Obviously the court below did not proceed upon the theory that fraudulent appropriation of a trade-mark may be morally and legally justified by a sufficiently extensive and successful use of the misappropriated mark. Elimination of this theory, however, compels us to look elsewhere than in the opinions of the courts below for an explanation of the weight which they quite evidently attached to the wealth and assumed antiquity of the Lorillard Company and to the large dimensions to which the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco business has grown.

An examination of the history of the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark shows the complete absence of any reason for giving any effect to the magnitude of its business that would not apply with equal force to every trade-mark infringer who has built up a large business in the goods on which he uses the mark to which he is not entitled. As fully set forth in the preceding part of this brief (ante, p. 51) the Lorillard Company, prior to the year 1915, had found that the sales of the old brands of chewing tobacco were diminishing on account of the fact that tobacco chewers were becoming dissatisfied with the flavor of the old mixtures. Mr. Ball, vice-president of the Lorillard Company, thought that a sweeter mixture would suit the public better, and he had a new and sweeter mixture prepared for the purpose of using it in an attempt to recapture the lost trade. Having prepared this new mixture, and being hopeful that it would suit the public taste, the Lorillard Company was confronted with the problem of attracting the attention of the public to the new product. However good the mixture might be, and however agreeable its taste, no successful business could be built up without attracting the attention of millions of purchasers. It was only by reaching immense numbers of consumers that a profitable business could be established in a commodity selling at five or ten cents a package. As shown herein at pages 81 to 87, ante, and in Appendix D, App., page 75, tobacco products are identified by the consumers solely by the brand names. The names of the manufacturers play no part in the identification of chewing tobacco, smoking tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, —a fact so well recognized that, as hereinbefore set forth, ante, pages 81 to 87, the Lorillard Company does not put its name or even the word "Lorillard" on many of its most important brands.

If in 1915 the Lorillard Company had put its new chewing tobacco mixture on the market under a new brand name or trade-mark, or with simply the word "Lorillard" on the package, the new product would have been a complete stranger to the consuming public, and, whatever its merits, popularity could have been attained only as the result of trial of the new mixture by such consumers as were willing to try a new and unknown tobacco in place of the brand to which they were accustomed. It is, of course, conceivable and possible that success might eventually have been attained by following this honest procedure, but this is not the procedure that was followed. The Lorillard Company, alarmed by the diminishing sales of its old brands, was not content with the slow and honest road to the notice of the millions of consumers whom it was necessary to reach. To put their new mixture on the market for what it was—a new and untried product—meant delay and possible failure. Obviously the new tobacco would reach the consumer much more quickly and surely if it could be put before the public as an addition to an extensive line of products which had been favorably known throughout the country for many years, and the advantage would be especially great if the old and favorably known line of commodities was displayed and sold by the same dealers who would be called upon to display and sell the new tobacco mixture. The Lorillard Company was actuated by its knowledge of these obvious facts in its adoption of the Beech-Nut trade-mark for its new scrap tobacco. There was no more possibility of innocent accident in its adoption of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut trade-mark than there is in the circumstance of a man's copying another man's signature upon a bank check. The appropriation of the good-will of the Beech-Nut Packing Company was premeditated, carefully planned and unscrupulously executed.

As shown at page 24, ante, the reputation of the Beech-Nut line of products is so high that every new product put out under the Beech-Nut trade-mark is immediately ordered by the jobbers and wholesalers, and immediately expected by the public to be a commodity of high quality. That the Lorillard Company profited immediately and greatly by its appropriation of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark is shown by the immense sales of the Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco during the first eleven months that it was on the market. The Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco was first marketed in February, 1915, and during the following eleven months of the year 1915 the sales amounted to over seven million pounds—7,377,778 pounds (R. Vol. VI, p. 3028). At the present time the ten-cent package of Beech-Nut tobacco contains two ounces (Ball, R. Vol. V, p. 2573). From an examination of Lorillard Patent Office Exhibit E (R. Vol. VI, pp. 3031 to 3048), consisting of specimen invoices from 1915 to 1919, it appears that the Beech-Nut tobacco was sold in five-cent packages as late as July, 1917, and that ten-cent packages were sold thereafter. Assuming that the early five-cent packages contained as much tobacco as the present ten-cent packages—two ounces—the 7,377,778 pounds sold in the last eleven months of 1915 was put up in eight times that number of packages—sixty million packages. Nothing in this record indicates even a remote possibility of selling a new and strange tobacco mixture to such an enormous extent in the first eleven months of its existence. The conclusion is irresistible that the Lorillard Company reaped an abundant harvest from its appropriation of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark. That the flavor of the tobacco and the financial strength of the Lorillard Company contributed to the growth of the Beech-Nut tobacco business we do not deny. But we do deny that the financial strength of the Lorillard Company and the magnitude of its business in Beech-Nut chewing tobacco is evidence of anything other than the possession of the resources and skill necessary for the successful exploitation of the fraudulently appropriated Beech-Nut trade-mark.

THE LAW.

Cases Involving the Use of the Same Trade-Mark on Different Commodities.

GENERAL STATEMENT AS TO THE AUTHORITIES.

We have been able to find only one unfair competition or trade-mark case in which this Court's interpretation of the law related to facts involving the use of the same trade-mark or trade-name by different parties upon different kinds of merchandise, and, though the decision in that case was upon other grounds, consideration of the difference between the commodities dealt in by the parties was necessary to the decision, and the opinion contains a statement of the principles of law applicable to the suit at bar. We refer to the case of American Steel Foundries v. Thomas E. Robertson, Commissioner of Patents, and Simplex Electric Heating Company, 269 U. S. 372; which we will refer to as the Simplex case. A comparison of the facts and principles involved in the Simplex case with those in the suit at bar will, we think, make it apparent that the relief sought by the plaintiff in the instant case is in conformity with the law as defined by this Court, and as applied by the lower courts in the cases hereinafter discussed, which involved parallel facts and were decided before the decision in the Simplex case.

The question of the extent to which a party who has established his right in a trade-mark or trade-name for certain goods may exclude others from using the same mark or name on other goods has been considered and decided in several cases in the courts of England, and the decisions there have been accordant with the principles stated by this court in the Simplex case. These English cases are reviewed and approved by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Aunt Jemima Mills Company v. Rigney & Co. (247 Fed. 407), which case we discuss and quote from (post, p. 192). Two of the English cases are also cited by the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the opinion in Peninsular Chemical v. Levinson et al. (247 Fed. 658), which case also we discuss and quote from (post, p. 186). The Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit states the substance of several of the English cases in the part of its opinion in the Aunt Jemima case which we quote (post, pp. 194-196), and under the title "The English Cases" (post, p. 197), we list all of the English cases referred to and make some additional comment on the Kodak case and Walter v. Ashton.

The question of the extent of the range of different goods included within the protection accorded by the law to the owner of a trade-mark or trade-name has never, we believe, been directly decided by this Court or by the House of Lords in England, though the question has been repeatedly decided by the lower courts of both countries. This fact has been commented on in a very instructive book on the "Historical Foundations of Trade-Mark

Law'"* by Mr. Frank I. Schechter of the New York bar. Upon this point Mr. Schechter says (pages 169-170):

> "There are indications that the question as to the logical and effective basis of the law of trade-marks and unfair competition will have to be decided by the highest courts of both this country and England within the next few years in connection with the problem of the protection which is being sought against the use of infringing marks upon non-competing goods. In 1898 an English Court of Chancery took a radical step in the direction of the protection of symbols of good-will, in holding that the trade-mark 'Kodak' on cameras was infringed by 'Kodak' on bicycles, because 'Kodak cameras are especially available for use on cycles' and 'many shops sell . . . both bicycles and photographic cameras . . .'† Again in 1917 the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit decided that the trade-mark 'Aunt Jemima's' for flour was infringed by 'Aunt Jemima's' for syrup because 'syrup and flour are both food products, and food products commonly used together.'‡ Within recent months the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has held that a trade-mark for a magazine might be infringed by a similar mark on hats, although there was no actual market competition between the products of the plaintiff and the defendants. Explaining the doctrine of unfair competition, Judge Denison said:
>
> "'. . . There is no fetish in the word competition. The invocation of equity rests more vitally upon the unfairness. If B. represents that his

---

* The Historical Foundations of the Law Relating to Trade-Marks, by Frank I. Schechter, A. M., J. D., with Foreword by Munroe Smith, J. U. D., LL. D., J. D., Bryce Professor Emeritus of European Legal History, Columbia University. Published by Columbia University, 1925.

† "Eastman Photographic Materials Co., Ltd. v. John Griffiths Cycle Corporation, Ld. (1898), 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 105, 110. Cf. Walter v. Ashton (1902), 2 Ch. 282." (The English cases mentioned in the foregoing author's note are referred to in this brief at pages 194, 198, 199.)

‡ "Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co. (1917), 247, Fed. 407, 410. But cf. France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co. (U. S. C. C. A., 2nd Cir., April 6, 1925, not yet reported.)" (The France Milling case, 7 F. (2d) 304, referred to in the foregoing author's note, is discussed in this brief at page 219, and the Aunt Jemima case at page 192, post.)

goods are made by A. and if damage therefrom to A. is to be seen, we are aware of no consideration which makes it controlling whether this damage to A. will come from market competition with some article which A. is then manufacturing or will come in some other way."*

"Shortly after the filing of the decision just quoted a United States District Court held the use of the trade-mark 'Rolls-Royce' for automobiles to be infringed by the use of the mark upon radio tubes. The court brushed aside all citations of precedents, remarking:

" 'I am more impressed with the broad equities in this matter as it is presented in this individual case than I am perhaps by certain collateral citations. . . . I can't see, even in the citations that have been given that which leads me to determine otherwise than I am minded to determine."†

"The ratio decidendi in such cases would appear to be simply a reluctance on the part of the court to permit defendants 'to get the benefit of complainant's reputation or of its advertisement or to forestall the extension of its trade.'‡ It discards entirely the archaic theories of the Middle Ages and of 'gild jurisprudence,' predicated upon the proprietary, regulatory and monopolistic significance of trade symbols and is a salutary, if somewhat belated, recognition of the actual nature and function of the trade-mark under modern conditions of production

---

* "Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509, 512." (The case referred to is discussed in this brief at page 201.)

† "Runyon, D. J., in Rolls-Royce of America, Inc. v. Howard Wall, Inc. (Oct., 1924), 15 T. M. Rep. 12, 13. See, also, contra, the decision of Judge Dickinson (U. S. D. C., E. D. Pa.), in Rosenberg Brothers and Company v. John F. Elliott (June, 1924), 3 F. (2d) 682, that 'Fashion Park' as a trade-mark on overcoats, coats, vests, trousers and the like kind of clothing, sold to the wholesale trade, was not infringed by 'Fashion Park' on men's hats sold only at retail. Cf. France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co., — Fed. ——." (Rolls-Royce v. Wall, Rosenberg v. Elliott and the France Milling case, referred to in the foregoing author's note, are discussed in this brief at pages 208, 210, 219.)

‡ "Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 Fed. at p. 410. For a further discussion of the appropriation of trade symbols by non-competitors, see 25 Columbia Law Review (1925), 199; 23 Michigan Law Review (1925), 433." (The paper in the Columbia Law Review referred to in the foregoing author's note is discussed in this brief at page 270.)

and distribution. Such reasoning, unhampered by medieval preconceptions and present misconceptions, will give adequate protection to both existent and potential good-will, and will prove the most effective means of combating trade-mark pirates who lurk ever watchful on the fringes of the field of trade."

THE SIMPLEX CASE.

In the Simplex case (American Steel Foundries v. Commissioner of Patents and Simplex Electric Heating Company, 269 U. S. 372) the question decided was whether the previous adoption of the corporate name "Simplex Electric Heating Co." by one of the parties barred the other party, the American Steel Foundries, from registering the word "Simplex" as a trade-mark for certain railway appliances because of the prohibition quoted below from Section 5 of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905 (33 Stat. L., 725):

> "Provided, That no mark which consists merely in the name of an individual, firm, corporation, or association not written, printed, impressed, or woven in some particular or distinctive manner, or in association with a portrait of the individual . . . shall be registered under the terms of this act."

We quote Section 5 in its entirety in Appendix G, (App., p. 95).

Inasmuch as the word "Simplex" is but part of the corporate name of the company which opposed registration of that word, the prohibition of the statute did not apply literally, and the question whether the case came within the intent of the statute was resolved upon the principles of the law of trade-marks and unfair competition. The fact that the parties dealt in different commodities led to the discussion by this Court of points which are involved in the instant case.

Following the statement of the facts and question involved, the opinion, by Mr. Justice Sutherland, continues as follows:

> "The answer to this question will be simplified if we approach it by first considering certain principles of the substantive law of trade-marks and unfair competition, in the light of which the legislation under review must be examined" (Ibid, p. 379).

Proceeding with the analysis of the case the Court states that it is not clear from the decisions whether a corporate name has been regarded as a trade-mark or a trade-name, but that "the precise difference is not often material, since the law affords protection against its appropriation in either view upon the same fundamental principles." The law upon the exclusive rights in a corporate name, trade-mark or trade-name is then stated as follows (pp. 380-382):

> "The effect of assuming a corporate name by a corporation under the law of its creation is to exclusively appropriate that name. It is an element of the corporation's existence. Newby v. Oregon Cent. Ry. Cy., et al., Deady 609, 616; s. c. 18 Fed. Cases 38, case No. 10,144. And, as Judge Deady said in that case:
>
> > " 'Any act which produces confusion or uncertainty concerning this name is well calculated to injuriously affect the identity and business of a corporation. And as a matter of fact, in some degree at least, the natural and necessary consequence of the wrongful appropriation of a corporate name, is to injure the business and rights of the corporation by destroying or confusing its identity.'
>
> "The general doctrine is that equity not only will enjoin the appropriation and use of a trade-mark or trade-name where it is completely identical with the name of the corporation, but will enjoin such appropriation and use where the resemblance is so close as to be likely to produce confusion as to such identity, to the injury of the corporation to which the name belongs. Cape May Yacht Club v. Cape May

Yacht & Country Club, 81 N. J. Eq. 454, 458; Armington & Sons v. Palmer, 21 R. I. 109, 115. . . . Judicial interference will depend upon the facts proved and found in each case. Hendriks v. Montagu, L. R. 17 Ch. Div. 638, 648; Higgins Co. v. Higgins Soap Co., 144 N. Y. 462, 469-471. . . .

"These principles, it must be assumed, were in mind when Congress came to enact the registration statute. And, since that body has been given no power to legislate upon the substantive law of trade-marks, it reasonably may be assumed, also, that, to the extent the contrary does not appear from the statute, the intention was to allow the registration of such marks as that law, and the general law of unfair competition of which it is a part, recognized as legitimate. The House Committee on Patents, in reporting the bill which upon enactment became the registration statute in question, said:

> " 'Section 5 of the proposed bill we believe will permit the registration of all marks which could, under the common law as expounded by the courts, be the subject of a trade-mark and become the exclusive property of the party using the same as his trade-mark. Report No. 3147, Dec. 19, 1904, H. of R., 58th Cong., 3rd Sess.'

"The provision, therefore, that no mark consisting merely in the name of a corporation shall be registered, is to be construed in harmony with those established principles in respect of the appropriation of corporate names to which we have referred. Where the appropriation of the corporate name is complete, the rule of the statute, by its own terms, is absolute and the proposed mark must be denied registration without more. But where less than the whole name has been appropriated, the right of registration will turn upon whether it appears that such partial appropriation is of such character and extent that, under the facts of the particular case, it is calculated to deceive or confuse the public to the injury of the corporation to which the name belongs.

"The fact, for example, that the articles upon which the mark is used are not of the same description as those put out by the corporation, is entitled to weight, since the probability of such confusion and > injury in that situation obviously is more remote than where the articles are of like kind. The cases, naturally, present varying degrees of difficulty for the application of the rule. Primarily, the power and the duty rests with the Commissioner of Patents to determine the question in each case in the exercise of an instructed judgment upon a consideration of all the pertinent facts" (Ibid, pp. 380-382).

We have quoted from the opinion in the Simplex case for the reason that the facts there existing involved the principles of law by which the rights of the parties to the suit at bar must be tested, and because those principles are there brought together in a comprehensive statement fully confirmatory of the law as interpreted and applied in cases in the lower courts which we review later.

In both the Simplex case and the suit at bar the goods dealt in by the parties were specifically different, and in both cases the word constituting the trade-mark was also the salient word in the name of the corporation objecting to the use of the trade-mark by the other party.

In the Simplex opinion this Court, referring to the duty of the Commissioner of Patents as the tribunal of first instance, says that the question in each case must be determined upon a consideration of all the pertinent facts. Upon the facts in the Simplex case this Court decided that it did not appear that the use of the same trade-mark by both parties would probably confuse or deceive the public.

Upon every determinative point the facts in the instant case are the reverse of those in the Simplex case. In the Simplex case there was no proof of deception of the public and no indication of the probability or possibility of such deception. In the instant case there is absolute proof of universal deception of the public and even of retail tobacconists and of others having superior means and reason for obtaining correct information including many wholesale dealers. The word "Simplex" has a suggestive significance, is in common use in many lines of business as a trade-name, and when used as a trade-mark or as part of a corporate name does not identify or even indicate any particular business or corporation. The word "Beech-Nut" in its use as a trade-mark or trade-name is absolutely arbitrary and devoid of any significance other than that created by its use in trade; it is not in common use, and when used in trade identifies the Beech-Nut Packing Company and its business, and is universally so understood by the public. It clearly appears from the conclusion of the opinion in the Simplex case that this Court's decision rested upon the absence of that evidence of deception and confusion of the public which is so abundantly present in the suit at bar. In fact, in the next to the last paragraph of the opinion, the Court, after stating that it does not appear that the use of the word "Simplex" by both parties will probably confuse or deceive the public, adds, as its conclusion from this premise, that it follows that the refusal to allow the registration was erroneous.

DISTINCTION BETWEEN TRADE-MARK USE OF COMMONLY USED WORDS HAVING A SUGGESTIVE MEANING AND ARBITRARY WORDS NOT IN COMMON USE.

The word "Simplex" is suggestive of the idea of simplicity and, as stated in the opinion, is commonly used in trade, the subject of over sixty registrations in the Patent Office and used as a part of the names of numerous corporations, which widespread and promiscuous use has divested the word of any significance as a symbol of the identity of any particular business. In the opinion in the Simplex case this Court quotes with approval the following from an opinion of the Commissioner of Patents in a previous case involving registration of the word "Simplex" as a trade-mark:

> " 'It is a fact that the word "Simplex" has been in such wide and varied use in this country not only as a trade-mark but as part of a firm or corporation name that everybody has heretofore considered something more than the word "Simplex" necessary to identify a corporation. . . .
>
> " '. . . The word "Simplex" does not identify any corporation in particular, for the simple reason that it is equally the name of various corporations. In short, if one referred to "the company Simplex" without anything else, it would not be known to what he was referring. . . .
>
> " 'The word involved in this case is one of a large class of words which have for a great many years been much used because of their peculiarly suggestive meaning. For other examples there are the words "Acme," "Anchor," "Champion," "Eureka," "Excelsior," "Ideal," "Jewel," "Liberty," "National," "Pride," "Premier," "Queen," "Royal," "Star," "Sunlight," "Triumph," "Victor." It would be a serious matter if the law actually permitted any one who chose to do so to organize a series of corporations with names containing these words, respectively, and thereupon virtually withdraw these words from public use as trade-marks and monopolize them by preventing their registry as such.' " (269 U. S. 383-4.)*

The word "Beech-Nut" is a purely arbitrary word in its trade-mark use. It has no inherent significance even by the most remote suggestiveness, and it is not in common use as a trade-mark, nor is it in common use as a trade-name or as part of corporate names. The search made by Ex-Commissioner of Patents Newton, a Lorillard witness, for the express purpose of finding instances of the registration of the same word as a trademark by different parties is significant in its failure to disclose such registrations of the word "Beech-Nut" (ante, pp. 152-4). The word "Beech-Nut" possesses all of those characteristics which are requisite as a foundation for broad protection, the absence of which characteristics was one of the fundamental reasons for limiting the breadth of protection accorded to the word Simplex. Wherever the word "Beech-Nut" appears upon or in reference to merchandise, it has been universally understood by the purchasing public as signifying that such merchandise is the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company or of the company, firm or individual that produces the extensive line of Beech-Nut products. In the Simplex case this Court said:

* The same idea is brought out in the Pabst Blue Ribbon, the Budweiser, the Noxall, and the Gold Medal cases, which we discuss ante, pages 147 to 152.

> "There may be, of course, instances where a single word in the corporate name has become so identified with the particular corporation that whenever used it designates to the mind of the public that particular corporation. But here it is not shown that, standing alone, the word 'Simplex' has that effect; . . ." (Ibid, p. 383.)

In the case at bar there is proof absolute that the single word "Beech-Nut" has that very significance which the word "Simplex" lacked, that the word "Beech-Nut" means the Beech-Nut Packing Company, or the producer of the extensive line of Beech-Nut commodities and that it has this meaning to people of all classes, to the foreign-born who speak English with difficulty, to men of limited education and experience as well as educated and informed men of affairs whose high positions in business, journalism, professional and official life testify to their high intelligence, ante, pp. 75 to 80; 88 to 95; and Appendices A, B and C (App., pp. 1 to 74).

Defendant's contention in the instant case that the law justifies its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark because the Beech-Nut Packing Company does not deal in tobacco products ignores all of the fundamental principles of the law of unfair competition as set forth in the Simplex case and many previous cases in the lower courts of this country and England. The very fact that the rights of the parties are analyzed in such cases as the Simplex case and others shows the fallacy of defendant's position in the case at bar. If the fact that both parties do not deal in the same commodities were determinative without anything more, then it would only be necessary for the courts in such cases to ascertain that the commodities were the same or different and render judgment accordingly, and we would be forced to the conclusion that in the many cases, including the Simplex case, which have come up in the past involving different commodities, the courts performed a vast amount of useless labor, instead of simply ascertaining whether the commodities were the same or different and entering judgment on the fact so ascertained.

CASES IN WHICH THE LAW AS STATED IN THE SIMPLEX CASE HAS BEEN APPLIED TO FACTS PARALLEL TO THE FACTS IN THE CASE AT BAR.

THE PENSLAR CASE.

Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson et al. (Court of Appeals, 6th Circuit, 1917, Opinion by Judge Denison, 247 Fed. 658).

In this case the plaintiff, Peninsular Chemical Company, used the coined word "Penslar" as a trade-mark for about 175 commodities, including medicines and other goods of the kind ordinarily sold by druggists, and had registered its Penslar trade-mark in the Patent Office. The Peninsular Chemical Company did not deal in cigars or other tobacco products.

Defendant, Samuel Levinson, was a manufacturer of cigars and had no business connection with plaintiff. He applied a copy of plaintiff's trade-mark to the encircling paper bands and to the boxes of a line of cigars made by him and marketed these cigars as the product of the "Peninsular Cigar Co." Samuel Levinson's brother, S. W. Levinson, was also a party defendant. S. W. Levinson, as agent for his brother, was engaged in the sale of the cigars and represented to Penslar drug stores that defendant's business was connected in some way with plaintiff's business, and that the Penslar cigars were of high quality because plaintiff could not afford to sell a poor cigar. Samuel Levinson disclaimed authorization for these oral misrepresentations. Mr. S. W. Levinson seems to have been somewhat more direct in his methods than the Lorillard Company in the case at bar but the result was the same, and "it is the fraud, not the manner of it, which calls for the interposition of the court," as stated in Lord Macnaughten's words by Judge Morris in commenting upon a similar situation in Willys-Overland Co. v. Akron Overland Tire Co., 268 Fed. 151, 153.

The sale of the Levinson's Penslar cigars in the Penslar drug stores which dealt in the goods of the Peninsular Chemical Company finds a parallel in the case at bar, where the evidence shows that tobacco products are almost universally carried by wholesale grocers and jobbers who are the principal distributors to the retail trade of the goods of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, that in many localities retail grocers and delicatessen dealers carry tobacco products, that drug stores carry both tobacco products and Beech-Nut chewing gum and candies, that defendant's scrap tobacco and cigarettes are often displayed upon the shelves and in the windows of these stores side by side with the products of Beech-Nut Packing Company (ante, pp. 95 to 98) and that purchasers buy defendant's tobacco products in the belief that the Beech-Nut Packing Company has extended its business to include tobacco.

The court held that "so far as concerns the registered trade-mark and the jurisdiction and rights which rest solely thereon, plaintiff can have no relief," for the reason that the registration specified the use of the trade-mark only on articles in "class No. 6, chemicals, medicines, and pharmaceutical preparations," in which class cigars are not included "nor can they be said to be of the same descriptive properties as the specified articles."

The court discussed the common-law aspect of the trade-mark as follows:

> "Based upon its common-law trade-mark rights, plaintiff argues that it has adopted the name 'Penslar' for articles commonly sold in drug stores; that cigars are so sold; that, although it has not yet sold cigars, it plans to do so, and that this would be a natural and ordinary development of its business; and that it has, therefore, a right to exclude from the use of the name one who adopts it for the sole purpose of forestalling plaintiff's impending adoption. This argument presents the very interesting question as to how far, if at all, a trade-mark may be pre-empted or reserved in advance of actual use —a question one aspect of which was somewhat considered by this court in Rectanus v. United Drug Co., 226 Fed. 545, 553, 141 C. C. A. 301 (now pending in the Supreme Court). Its special color in the present case arises from the commercial practice, not yet, as far as we know, considered in any decided case, where a manufacturer or jobber is in the course of establishing and expanding throughout the country a chain of stores which use a trade name and handle a constantly increasing line of articles sold under that same trade-name.
>
> "We have concluded that this question, as well as the somewhat co-relative argument by defendants that the terms of plaintiff's charter do not permit it to sell cigars, do not require any decision in this case. We also pass without consideration the argument that since plaintiff is not selling cigars, there is no competition at all between the parties, and so there can be no unfair competition." (247 Fed. 660.)

It is apparent from the foregoing that the court considered the possiblity of common-law trade-mark rights extending beyond the particular goods upon which the owner of the mark had used it. While the court held that the statutory rights conferred by registration did not extend beyond goods of the same class as those for which the mark was registered, it does not appear that the distinction between Sections 16 and 19 of the Trade-Mark Statute of February 20, 1905 (referred to ante, pages 126 to 129) was called to the attention of the court.

As shown by the following quotations from the opinion the court based its decision upon the right of the owner of a business to have the good-will of the business protected against injury. The court expressly refrained from grounding its decision upon the law of trade-marks or unfair competition, and based its decision upon its power and duty as a court of equity to enjoin injury to the property right which exists in the good-will of a business. Finding that a wrong had been committed against property the court enjoined its continuance, and found it immaterial whether the wrong should be classified as infringement of a trade-mark or as unfair competition. The court discussed the subject of good-will as the ground of its decision as follows:

"It is not denied that the good-will of a business and the good reputation of an output, when considered in connection with the business itself, are a species of property which may not be destroyed with impunity; and we know of no principle which will forbid malicious destruction of this kind to a competitor and permit it to a stranger. Indeed, it was assumed by all parties in the court below, and in this court—and we do not doubt—that malicious damage by defendants to the good-will of plaintiff's business and to the good reputation of plaintiff's line of goods would be redressed by the law, and would call for an injunction where the remedy at law was not adequate." (247 Fed. 661.)

The Court of Appeals then referred to the fact that the District Court felt that the existence of damages was not sufficiently proved, and upon this phase of the case the Court of Appeals reasoned as follows:

"When it appeared that defendants untruthfully represented that the article they were selling was, in effect, the plaintiff's article, and that they were selling for or in the interest of plaintiff, that regular customers of plaintiff bought goods in the belief that they were of high quality or else plaintiff would not have put them out, and that certain customers found the goods unsatisfactory and unsalable, except at a sacrifice, we think there arose a sufficient presumption of threatened pecuniary injury to plaintiff to call for the injunction. Not only was there reasonable ground for apprehending injury to the high reputation of plaintiff's goods among its dealers and among consumers, but also the causing of a large number of dealers in different parts of the country to suppose that they had entered into contracts with plaintiff when, in fact, they had not, was reasonably sure to produce trade disputes and complications leading to expenditure of valuable time and efforts to remove the false impression, even if it did not lead to the costs and expenses of actual litigation. That this is a kind of injury of which the law must take notice seems to us the necessary result of the fundamental principles involved; but if somewhat specific support in precedent is desired, it may be found in Eastman Co. v. Cycle Corp., 15 Pat. Cas., 105, and Walter v. Ashton (1902), 2 Chancery, 282. In the former of these cases it was held that a defendant should not be allowed to sell 'Kodak Bicycles,' because of the injuries naturally resulting to the established trade in 'Bicycle Kodaks'; and in the latter, the defendant was not allowed to call its bicycle a 'Times' bicycle, and represent that it was made by or for the newspaper of that name." (247 Fed. pp. 661-662.)

There were two defendants in this case, Samuel Levinson and his agent, S. W. Levinson. The latter held himself out as selling for plaintiff, but Samuel Levinson, the manufacturer of the cigars, denied that he authorized such conduct. Upon this point the Court of Appeals commented as follows:

> ". . . but when, in this case, we find a word of arbitrary form, which also is a plain imitation of plaintiff's name, and find it used with the peculiar script and decorations of plaintiff, and find it so marked on goods offered for sale by defendants to plaintiff's dealers under such a system as existed here, there is no escape from the inference that both defendants indirectly made the same representations which S. W. Levinson made in express words. It must be remembered that plaintiff's system of expanding business, and the systems followed by similar houses and well known to the dealers, made it a naturally to be expected thing that plaintiff should add cigars to its line, and the normal implications from the complete adoption of plaintiff's dress are affected by this well understood situation." (247 Fed. p. 662.)

These facts in the "Penslar" case are paralleled in the case at bar. As held by the Court of Appeals in its consideration of Samuel Levinson's conduct, the mere use of the trade-mark in trade under the circumstances there and here prevailing is a misrepresentation. As held by the court the misrepresentation was as satisfactorily established by the circumstance of appropriation of the trade-mark as by the oral statements made by S. W. Levinson.

In the case at bar plaintiff is engaged in an expanding business which has given rise to the precise condition that is referred to by the court in the "Penslar" case in its statement that > "It must be remembered that plaintiff's system of expanding business, and the systems followed by similar houses and well known to the dealers, made it a naturally to be expected thing that plaintiff should add cigars to its line." (247 Fed. p. 662.)

The court defined the injunction to which plaintiff was entitled as follows:

> "The injunction will prohibit defendants from representing that cigars offered for sale by them are made by the plaintiff, or sold by its permission, or in its interest, or that plaintiff has any interest, direct or indirect, in such manufacture or sale, and from using, in connection with such cigars, the word 'Penslar' in the same or in substantially the manner and form in which the word has been used by them." (Ibid, p. 663.)

The Aunt Jemima Case.

(Containing a discussion of the English cases.)

Aunt Jemima Company v. Rigney & Co. (Dist. Court, E. D. New York, Veeder, J., 234 Fed. 804; Court of Appeals, 2nd Circuit, 1917, opinion by Judge Ward, 247 Fed. 407):

In this case plaintiff, a Missouri corporation, had used and registered its trade-mark for self-rising flour and defendant, a New York corporation, used and registered the same trade-mark for syrup. Neither company dealt in the goods dealt in by the other. The lower court refused relief. The Court of Appeals reversed.

The case was heard in the Court of Appeals by Judges Ward, Rogers and Learned Hand, Judge Ward writing the opinion. Judge Hand dissented on a point not involved in the case at bar. Following is a part of the court's opinion bearing upon the points involved in the case at bar (247 Fed. pp. 409-412—italics are ours):

> "To use precisely the same mark, as the defendants have done, is in our opinion, evidence of intention to make something out of it—either to get the benefit of the complainant's reputation or of its advertisement or to forestall the extension of its trade. There is no other conceivable reason why they should have appropriated this precise mark. The taking being wrongful, we think the defendants have no equity to protect them against an injunction, unless they get it from a consideration now to be examined.

"It is said that even a technical trade-mark may be appropriated by any one in any market for goods not in competition with those of the prior user. This was the view of the court below in saying that no one wanting syrup could possibly be made to take flour. But we think that goods, though different may be so related as to fall within the mischief which equity should prevent. Syrup and flour are both food products, and food products commonly used together. Obviously the public, or a large part of it, seeing this trade-mark on a syrup, would conclude that it was made by the complainant. Perhaps they might not do so, if it were used for flatirons. In this way the complainant's reputation is put in the hands of the defendants. It will enable them to get the benefit of the complainant's reputation and advertisement. These we think are property rights which should be protected in equity. We have held in Florence v. Dowd, 178 Fed. 73, 101 C. C. A. 565, that a manufacturer of hair brushes under the trade-mark 'Keepclean,' who did not make toothbrushes, is entitled to be protected against the unfair competition of one who manufactures toothbrushes under the trade-mark 'Sta Kleen.' So in Collins v. Oliver Ames Co. (C. C.), 18 Fed. 561, a manufacturer of metal articles, which had never made shovels was granted an injunction preventing the defendant from putting the complainant's trade-mark on its shovels.

"The defendants are a partnership, and did not incorporate the words 'Aunt Jemima's' into their firm name; but the complainant seems to think that appropriation of a trade-mark is to be treated in exactly the same way as appropriation of a trade-name. The latter is a trespass of the same nature as is committed by one who applies another man's name to his own goods. This is a wrong which equity will enjoin without reference to the character of the article, or to the question of competition or of prior occupation of the market in any particular territory. No one has a right to apply another's name to his own goods. If, for instance, one were to publish a book on banking under the name of a firm of bankers, it would be no answer to say that there was no competition between banking and publishing, or that the bankers had sustained no pecuniary damage, or that the book was a good book. The act would still be a trespass, for which the bankers would be entitled to at least nominal damages at law, and, that remedy being inadequate and the trespass being a continuing one, they would be entitled to relief in equity. Such is our decision in British American Tobacco Co. v. British American Cigar Stores Co., 211 Fed. 933, 128 C. C. A. 431, Ann. Cas. 1915 B., 363, in which a company engaged solely in the wholesale tobacco business was protected against the use of a similar corporate name by a retailer of cigars, although there was not competition between them.

"There are many decisions of the English courts to the same effect. In Eastman Company v. Kodak Cycle Co., 15 Reports Patent Cases, 105, the complainant was a manufacturer of cameras under the name Kodak. Defendant, under the name 'Kodak Cycle Co.,' began the manufacture of bicycles, calling them 'Kodak' cycles, and registered the name as a trade-mark for bicycles and other vehicles. The Eastman Company brought suit to restrain the use of the word 'Kodak' and to rectify the register. The motion for injunction and the motion to rectify the register came on to be heard together. The motion to rectify was sustained, and the defendant's mark expunged, and an injunction was granted. Mr. Justice Romer said:

> " 'Then I have to deal with the application for an injunction against the defendants in respect of what they are doing. They have just started business practically, and it appears to be that to allow them to use the word "Kodak" as part of the title of the Kodak Cycle Company, Limited, would be to give them the benefit of what, in my opinion, substantially amounts to an improper dealing on their part. It would be to allow this company certainly to cause confusion between it and the plaintiff company. I think it would injure the plaintiff company and would cause the defendant company to be identified with the plaintiff company, or to be recognized by the public as being connected with it, and I think, accordingly, the defendant, the Kodak Cycle Company, Limited, ought to be restrained from carrying on business under that name. Moreover, it appears to be that they ought not to be permitted to sell their cycles under the name of the "Kodak Cycles" for similar reasons. I think it would lead to confusion, I think it would lead to deception, and I think it would be injurious to the plaintiff company. I therefore, grant an injunction to restrain the defendant companies, or either of them from carrying on business under the name "Kodak Cycle Company, Limited," or under any name comprising the word "Kodak" likely to mislead or deceive the public into the belief that the defendant company is the same company as or is connected with either of the plaintiff companies, or that the business of the said companies, or either of them, is the same as, or is in any way connected with, the business of the plaintiff's the Eastman Photographic Materials Company, Limited. I also grant an injunction to restrain the defendant companies, and each of them, from selling, or offering to sell, any of their cycles or goods as "Kodak." I think that will sufficiently protect the plaintiffs. Of course, the respondents, the defendants, must pay the costs, including the costs, of the comptroller.'

"Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Lubricant Co., 16 Reports Patent Cases, 12: In 1888 the word 'Dunlop' was first used by complainant's predecessors to designate goods manufactured by them. Complainant made bicycle tires, rims, pumps, etc. One Funt started in business as the 'Dunlop Lubricant Co.,' and dealt in oils and lubricants for bicycles, which he sold in packages bearing the word 'Dunlop' in large letters. Complainant had never dealt in oils or lubricants. Held, that the use of the word, 'Dunlop' by defendant was deceptive, and it was enjoined.

"In Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract

Co., 17 Reports Patent Cases, 673, the complainant used the word 'Valentine' upon liquid meat extracts for medicine. Defendant used the word 'Valentine' on beef extract used for food. An injunction was granted.

"Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop-Truffault Cycle & Tube Manufacturing Co., 12 Times Law Reports, 434: This was a motion for a preliminary injunction to restrain the defendant from using the name 'Dunlop' as a part of its corporate style. Complainant was the manufacturer of pneumatic tires, defendant the manufacturer of bicycles and steel tubes used in the manufacture of bicycles. An injunction was granted. Mr. Justice Chitty holding that the name 'Dunlop' had been chosen by the defendants to create confusion in the minds of the public and make them think that the defendant company was connected with that of the plaintiffs.

"Premier Cycle Company v. Premier Tube Company, 12 Times Law Reports, 481: This was a motion for a preliminary injunction to restrain the defendants from using the word 'Premier' as a part of their business style. Complainant was a manufacturer of bicycles and tubes used in their construction. The defendants stated that they were tube manufacturers and had no intention of competing with the complainant in the making of bicycles. An injunction was granted.

"We do not think these authorities apply to the appropriation of a trade-mark.

"As the defendant's conduct was wrongful, the complainant is entitled to an injunction, notwithstanding the delay of some eight years in asserting its rights (McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245, 24 L. Ed. 828), but is not entitled to an accounting for damages and profits.

"The decree is reversed."

The court did not explicitly state whether it based its decree on the theory that the facts constituted infringement of the technical common law trade-mark "Aunt Jemima," or that defendant's act was a wrongful appropriation of plaintiff's corporate and trade-name. The court undoubtedly took the view expressed by Mr. Justice Pitney in the Hanover Star Milling case (240 U. S. 403), that the underlying right is the "right to be protected in the good-will of a trade or business," and that this right and its violation having been established, it was not necessary or important to determine the particular method employed by defendant, whether by the appropriation of a technical trade-mark or of a corporate or trade-name.

In the instant case the word "Beech-Nut" is both plaintiff's trade-mark and corporate and trade-name, the word "Beech-Nut" having been the distinctive element of its corporate name since 1899, and the company being known in the trade as "the Beech-Nut people."

The English Cases.

Following is a list of the English cases to which reference is made herein:

Walter v. Ashton [1902], 2 Chancery, 282. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Before Mr. Justice Byrne.)

The Eastman Photographic Materials Company, Ld., and The Kodak Company, Ld. v. The John Griffiths Cycle Corporation, Ld., and The Kodak Cycle Company, Ld. (1898), 15 Reports Patent Cases, 105. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Before Mr. Justice Romer.)

The Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Company, Ld. v. The Dunlop Lubricant Company (1898), 16 Reports Patent Cases, 12. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Before Mr. Justice Romer.)

Valentine Meat Juice Company v. Valentine Extract Company, Ld. (1900), 17 Reports Patent Cases, 673. (Court of Appeal, Lords Alverstone, Rigby and Collins.)

Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Company, Ld. v. Dunlop-Truffault Cycle and Tube Manufacturing Company (1896), 12 Times Law Reports, 434. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Before Mr. Justice Chitty.)

Premier Cycle Company, Ld. v. Premier Tube Company, Ld. (1896), 12 Times Law Reports, 481. (High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Before Mr. Justice Chitty.)

With the exception of Walter v. Ashton all of these cases were cited, with a statement of the facts, by the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the opinion in the Aunt Jemima case (ante, pp. 194 to 196), and Walter v. Ashton was cited by the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the opinion in the Peninsular Chemical Company case (ante, p. 190). In view of the discussion of the English cases appearing in the opinion in the Aunt Jemima case (ante, pp. 194 to 196) we present here merely some brief additional comments on the Kodak case and a statement of the facts in Walter v. Ashton, the citation of which in the opinion in the Peninsular Chemical Company case (ante, p. 190) was accompanied by only a brief reference to the circumstances.

In his opinion in the Kodak case, supra, Mr. Justice Romer gave weight to the fact that "many shops sell and deal in both bicycles and photographic cameras and materials," and also to the fact that "the plaintiff company may wish hereafter to manufacture and to sell cycles specially adapted to carry their 'Kodaks.'" Both of these circumstances are paralleled in the instant case.

The Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products are sold in the same shops where the Beech-Nut Packing Company's chewing gum and other products are sold. Furthermore, the Beech-Nut Packing Company not only "may wish hereafter to manufacture and to sell" tobacco products, but, as set forth in the statement of the case (ante, pp. 120 to 122), the Beech-Nut Company has for years had under consideration the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and at one time engaged a man who was expert in the blending of tobacco to assist in their investigation of the subject. In its opinion in the instant case the Court of Appeals made the following statement:

> "There is no evidence that the defendant ever intended presently or prospectively to compete for the trade of the plaintiff. It could not have done so as long as they continued their distinct and unrelated lines of business and there is no evidence that a change was ever contemplated by either." (R. Vol. V, p. 2701.)

The concluding part of the above quoted statement, namely, that "there is no evidence that a change was ever contemplated by either" is one of the several instances in which the court below based its reasoning upon a misapprehension of the proved facts. So far from there being no evidence that the Beech-Nut Company ever contemplated competing in the tobacco business, there is the direct and positive testimony of W. C. Arkell, assistant secretary, and of Francis E. Barbour, vice-president, of the company, that the question of manufacturing and selling cigarettes has long been a matter of serious consideration (ante, p. 121).

Following is a statement of the facts in Walter v. Ashton [1902], 2 Chancery, 282, referred to by the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the opinion in the Peninsular Chemical Company case (ante, p. 190).

Mr. Walter was one of the proprietors of the London Times newspaper. The Times had sold the Encyclopaedia Britannica and other books on installment payments, and this system of sale and payment had come to be known as the Times system of monthly payments. It also appears that the Times used the representation of a clock with the hands pointing to five minutes past six, though whether as part of the heading of the newspaper or in some other way is not made clear by the Court's opinion. The defendant, Ashton, offered for sale bicycles which he called in his advertisement circulars "The Times Cycle," and he stamped or printed on the bicycles a representation of a clock with the hands pointing to five minutes past six "as in the clock in the Times newspaper." The style of type and stationery used by Ashton in the advertisements of his bicycle was imitative of the type and stationery used by the Times newspaper in the advertisements of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The decision of the Court was upon an application for an interim injunction restraining the defendant from representing that the cycles offered by him for sale were offered for sale by the Times newspaper, and from representing that he was carrying on business as a department of or in connection with the Times newspaper or that the Times newspaper was the owner of his business. The suit was not for infringement of trade-mark rights, but was grounded upon the deception brought about as the collective effect of several acts each of which might in itself have been harmless. The injunction was granted as prayed for. Mr. Justice Byrne agreed with the defendant that he was entitled to call his cycle "The Times Cycle" or to stamp or print a picture of a clock on his bicycle in the absence of other acts which collectively would produce the deception complained of. The test was the presence or absence of deception of the public, not the nature of the means used to effect the deception or the properties of the goods which were sold by means of, or with the aid of, the deception.

The Vogue Case.

Vogue Company v. Thompson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509, and 6 F. (2d) 875. U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit, opinion by Judge Denison (Oct. 7, 1924).

Plaintiff, the Vogue Company, is the publisher of the fashion magazine "Vogue" and has published the same since the year 1892. The Vogue Company claimed ownership of the word "Vogue" as a trade-mark, and also of a mark consisting of a large capital letter "V" having between its sides the figure of a woman, the latter mark being called the "V-girl." The defendant, Thompson-Hudson Company, sold women's hats to each of which was affixed a label bearing the words "Vogue Hats" and a mark consisting of a large capital letter "V" having between its sides the representation of a woman's head. The Vogue Company, publisher of the magazine, did not deal in hats. The court held the word "Vogue" taken alone to be descriptive and not appropriable as a trade-mark, but enjoined the defendant from using the "V-Girl" mark on the ground that such use was unfair competition. As stated by the court, the Vogue Hat Company, manufacturer of the hats, intervened and conducted the defense. The court explains its views in the following quotations from the opinion:

> "In 1912 the Vogue Hat Company was organized, and in 1913 it began to mark its hats with the above label. These hats, so manufactured, were put on sale by retailers throughout the country. There is no reason to doubt that this course of conduct by the defendant manufacturer and its retailers created a very common alternative impression—first, that these hats were manufactured by the plaintiff; or, second, that, although some knew that plaintiff was not manufacturing, yet these hats were in some way vouched for or sponsored or approved by the plaintiff. Such an impression is obviously one that would be inevitable, there is abundant proof that the average purchaser in different parts of the country so believed, and there is no reason to doubt that the saleswomen of the defendant retailer, who thus represented in express terms to inquiring customers, were speaking what they believed to be the truth. Save for the obstacles which have been mentioned, and which the District Court thought insuperable, the plaintiff's case for relief is too clear for question.

"So far as plaintiff's rights are based upon the mere use of the word 'Vogue,' in the phrase 'Vogue Hats,' we think the District Court was right. The word itself was by no means arbitrary. In 1892, as since, the word was one of common right. It was approximately synonymous with 'style' or 'fashion.' (300 Fed. 511.)

. . . . . .

"Whether we consider the case as one of technical trade-mark or so-called unfair competition, and if we consider plaintiff's rights as confined to the use of this 'V-Girl' and the capital letter 'V' in its dominating relation to the remainder of the word, the defendant's appropriation of plaintiff's dress is not to be disputed.

"For the purpose of this opinion, but without intimating a decision, we assume that relief could not be given under the law of technical trade-marks. Whether the commonly applicable rule, that the trade-mark product and the infringing article must be of the same descriptive qualities, should be modified and adapted to meet such a case as this, can be passed until necessary for decision.

"We come, then, to what is called 'unfair competition.' This is nothing but a convenient name for the doctrine that no one should be allowed to sell his goods as those of another. This rule is usually invoked when there is an actual market competition between the analogous products of the plaintiff and the defendants, and so it has been natural enough to speak of it as the doctrine of unfair competition; but there is no fetish in the word 'competition.' The invocation of equity rests more vitally upon the unfairness. If B. represents that his goods are made by A., and if damage therefrom to A. is to be seen, we are aware of no consideration which makes it controlling whether this damage to A. will come from market competition with some article which A. is then manufacturing or will come in some other way. The injury to A. is present; and the fraud upon the consumer is present; nothing else is needed. This is the principle upon which the two English bicycle cases were decided. Walter v. Ashton [1902] 2 Ch. Div. 282; Eastman Co. v. Kodak Co., 15 Rep. Pat. Cases, 105. It was also at the bottom of our own decision in Peninsular Co. v. Levinson, 247 Fed. 658, 159 C. C. A. 560 [8 T. M. Rep. 171] and of Akron Co. v. Willys Co. (C. C. A. 3) 273 Fed. 674 [11 T. M. Rep. 281]; Imperial Co. v Fairbanks Co., 50 App. D. C. 250, 270 Fed. 686 [11 T. M. Rep. 107]; Aunt Jemima Co. v. Rigney (C. C. A. 2) 247 Fed 407, 159 C. C. A. 461, L. R. A. 1918C, 1039 [8 T. M. Rep. 163]. We have no doubt it is a sound principle, and should be applied in appropriate cases.

"In this case the reasonable probability of injury to plaintiff through defendant's misrepresentation is clear, even if it has not actually occurred. Plaintiff's magazine is so far an arbiter of style and the use of plaintiff's trade-mark upon defendant's hats so far indicates that the hats were at least sponsored and approved by the plaintiff, that the same considerations which make the misrepresentation so valuable to defendants make it pregnant with peril to plaintiff. It seems not extreme to say, as plaintiff's counsel do, that persistence in marking under this trade-mark articles of apparel which are unfit, undesirable, or out of style would drive away thousands of those who customarily purchase plaintiff's magazine. This record makes a case entirely fit for the application of the principle just discussed; and plaintiff was entitled to an injunction against the further use either of the 'V-Girl' or the 'V,' not in its ordinary use as a capital letter, but as the dominating feature of the label. (Pp. 511-512.) . . .

"Since the misrepresentation put by defendant manufacturer upon the label requires the injunction, it is unnecessary to differentiate the case more expressly made against the retailer. The other grounds urged in defense have not impressed us.

"The decree dismissing the bill is vacated, and the case remanded for further proceedings pursuant to this opinion." (P. 513.) (Italics are ours.)

The court held in its opinion on the hearing of the appeal (300 Fed. 509) that the word "Vogue" is descriptive and therefore not appropriable as a trade-mark. In the hearing of the motion to direct the form of the mandate (6 F. (2d) 875), the court adhered to this view, but held that defendant's otherwise clear right to mark its hats "Vogue Hats" had been tainted and forfeited by its original use of those words accompanied by the plaintiff's "V-Girl" trade-mark, and ruled that the defendant should not be permitted to retain and carry on the business so built up by merely dropping the "V-Girl" and the dominant letter "V." Hence the court directed that the defendant accompany the words "Vogue Hats" with a manufacturer's name which it might select of which name the word "Vogue" should not be a part. The court referred to a similar decision which it had made in Coca-Cola Co. v. Gay-ola Co. (200 Fed. 720, 723) in which the defendant was prohibited from coloring its beverage in a way that it would have been perfectly free to do except for the fact that it had used the color in question as one of several steps in a plan to bring about the fraudulent substitution of its product for that of the plaintiff.

In the instant case, even if the Lorillard Company had had, in the year 1915, the right to use the word "Beech-Nut," its use of that word as part of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark would have worked a forfeiture of that right in the same way that such forfeiture was brought about in the Vogue and Coca-Cola cases referred to in the preceding paragraph. The Lorillard Company, by using the word "Beech-Nut" as part of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark has confirmed the belief of the purchasing public that the word "Beech-Nut" upon tobacco and cigarettes means that those goods are produced by the Beech-Nut Company. Even if the word "Beech-Nut" alone, i. e., without the other elements of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark, could have been used on tobacco in 1915 without causing deception, it is certain that today it would, as it does, mean that the tobacco was the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company for the reason that for the past ten years the Lorillard Company has sold tobacco and cigarettes labeled with the word "Beech-Nut" as part of the Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark. Therefore, even if the old Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark had not been abandoned the Lorillard Company's fraudulent use of the word "Beech-Nut" would have worked a forfeiture of any right to use the Weissinger trade-mark or the word "Beechnut" which formed part thereof.

THE OVERLAND AND ROLLS-ROYCE CASES IN THE THIRD CIRCUIT.

Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., District Court, District of Delaware, Morris, J., 268 Fed. 151; Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit, Opinion by Judge Buffington, 1921, 273 Fed. 674.

Howard Wall, Doing Business Under the Name and Style Rolls-Royce Tube Co. v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit, 1925, Opinion by Judge Buffington, 4 F. (2d) 333.

In the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit affirmed the decrees of the District Court enjoining the defendants against using the trade-names or corporate names of the plaintiffs. In each of these cases the plaintiff and defendant dealt in non-competing articles. In the Overland case plaintiff was a manufacturer of automobiles and had no connection with the tire business other than the use of tires as part of the equipment of its automobiles. The defendant dealt in tires. In the Rolls-Royce case plaintiff was a manufacturer of automobiles and defendant was a manufacturer of or dealer in vacuum tubes for radio apparatus.

In our discussion (post, p. 210) of a later case decided by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals (Rosenberg v. Elliott, 7 F. (2d) 962), in which the court discusses the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases, we point out the conflict between the decisions in the two cases last mentioned and the decision of the same court in the suit at bar.

The Overland Case.

Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit, 1921, opinion by Judge Buffington, 273 Fed. 674.

The Willys-Overland Company was engaged in the manufacture and sale of automobiles. Its only connection with the tire industry was the use of tires for the equipment of its automobiles. In its bill of complaint the Willys-Overland Company charged the Akron-Overland Tire Company, Inc. (which dealt in tires and not in automobiles), with a wrongful and unfair use of the word "Overland," and moved for a preliminary injunction restraining the defendant from using that word as the whole or as part of its corporate name, from listing its capital stock under such name in any stock exchange, and from designating its tires, or any other accessories by the word "Overland," or by any combination of words containing that name.

The opinion of the District Court by Judge Morris (268 Fed. 151) sets forth the fact that plaintiff's name "Overland" was in 1909 registered in the Patent Office as a trade-mark for automobiles, that the trade-mark has been so used and is widely and favorably known. As shown by the list on page 46 of the copy of the Patent Office rules relating to trade-marks which is in evidence as Defendant's Exhibit No. 34 (R. Vol. VI, p. 234), automobiles are classified by the Patent Office in Class 19, entitled "Vehicles, not including engines," and rubber tires in Class 35, "Belting, hose, machinery packing, and non-metallic tires."

In the opinion of the Court of Appeals reference is made to defendant's contention that there could be no unfair competition by defendant because defendant and plaintiff were not engaged in the same kind of business, the defendant dealing in tires and the plaintiff in automobiles. Upon this point the court said:

> ". . . in exact terms the two do not compete in these particular things, yet the fact remains that the business of both is so connected with automobiles that the public, in buying the stocks, securities, and retread tires of the defendant company, by the use of the word 'Overland' in connection therewith, will, by such descriptive word, be led to believe it is buying property or articles owned or dealt in by the plaintiff or one of its subsidiary companies." (273 Fed. 676.)

The Court of Appeals reasoned as follows upon the facts before it:

> "That the defendant's use of the word 'Overland' in connection with the sale of its retread tires and its stocks and securities, would enable it to share in the plaintiff's good-will and reputation, also cannot be gainsaid. That such use of the word 'Overland' by the defendant would breed confusion and misunderstanding in the minds of the public is foreshadowed by what did happen in the way of third parties confusing and connecting the defendant and its acts with the plaintiff company, and even holding the plaintiff accountable for such acts. Indeed, it is manifest that under the facts of this case the maintenance by the plaintiff of the good-will attributed to Overland business and products would, in the future, be determined, not alone by what the plaintiff did to uphold the standard of that good-will, but by what the defendant might do by failure to uphold such reputation and maintain such good-will." (Ibid, p. 676.)

THE ROLLS-ROYCE CASE.

Howard Wall, Doing Business Under the Style and Name Rolls-Royce Tube Co. v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit, opinion by Judge Buffington, 4 F. (2d) 333.

Plaintiff, Rolls-Royce Company, manufactures automobiles and aeroplanes. Defendant, Howard Wall, dealt in radio tubes under the name Rolls-Royce Tube Company and advertised and marked the tubes which he sold with the name "Rolls-Royce." After stating the facts the Court of Appeals discussed the case as follows:

"From the pleadings and statements made at the argument, it is clear that the purpose of Wall was to take and use the good-will, fair name and trade record which the two companies had, through years of business integrity, given to the name Rolls-Royce, and thereby create in the minds of the public, the impression that his mail order tubes bore some connection with the real Rolls-Royce Companies. Upon no other theory than a purposed appropriation to himself and an intent to convey to the public a false impression of some supposed connection with the Rolls-Royce industries, can Wall's actions and advertisements be explained. Seeing then that by putting his individual business under the name Rolls-Royce and utilizing its trade reputation and earned good will, Wall could greatly benefit himself, the converse of the proposition follows, that this veiling of his business under the name Rolls-Royce might and indeed almost surely would injure the real Rolls-Royce industries and substantially detract from their good will and fair name. It is true those companies made automobiles and aeroplanes and Wall sold radio tubes and no one could think when he bought a radio tube he was buying an automobile or an aeroplane. But that is not the test and gist of this case. Electricity is one of the vital elements in automobile and aeroplane construction and having built up a trade-name and fame in two articles of which electrical appliances were all important factors, what would more naturally come to the mind of a man with a radio tube in his receiving set on which was the name Rolls-Royce, with nothing else to indicate its origin, than for him to suppose that the Rolls-Royce Company had extended its high grade of electric product to the new, electric-using radio art as well. And if this Rolls-Royce radio tube proved unsatisfactory, it would sow in his mind at once an undermining and distrust of the excellence of product which the words Rolls-Royce had hitherto stood for.

"In addition to what has been said it is quite possible that the use of such a name might lead third parties to credit the defendant's business, on account of its name of Rolls-Royce, with an unwarranted financial reliability and if such assumptions eventually prove unfounded the name of Rolls-Royce would suffer accordingly. Indeed, from the standpoint of commercial integrity, fair business and trade equity, we feel the court below, sitting in equity, was justified in preventing the defendant from veiling his business under the name of Rolls-Royce for he had and could have had but one object in view, namely, to commercially use as his own a commercial asset that belonged to others, the continued use and abstraction of which is fraught with such possibilities of irremediable injury that the only way to remedy it is to stop it at the start.

"The decree below is affirmed." (4 F. (2d) 333-334.)

Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. Elliott (District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, Dickinson, J., 3 F. (2d) 682; Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit, opinion by Judge Woolley, 7 F. (2d) 962.)

Plaintiff, Rosenberg Bros. Co., manufactured "ready made" clothing and applied to the same the trade-mark "Fashion Park." Plaintiff did not make or deal in hats or caps. Defendant, Elliott, dealt in hats bearing the trade-mark words "Fashion Park." The lower court dismissed the bill of complaint on the ground that the goods dealt in by the parties were different, holding that the plaintiff's rights in his trade-mark did not extend to any goods other than those to which it had applied the mark. The Court of Appeals stated the issue involved in the case as follows:

> "This brings us to the question—the central question of fact in the case—whether hats and caps are so closely related to men's clothing, both being wearing apparel, as to be within the same class and of the same description." (Page 964).

The Court of Appeals found hats and caps to be in the same "class" with ready made clothing, therefore held that the clothing manufacturer's trade-mark rights extended to hats and caps, and enjoined the hat dealer from applying the clothing maker's trade-mark to hats. In this respect the decision is of interest here only as further showing the rigid adherence of the Court of Appeals of the Third Circuit to the arbitrary rule of classification of merchandise as a principle governing the extent to which business reputation and good-will and the fruits of expensive advertising shall be protected. The opinion in the case is interesting, however, in that it contains a discussion of the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases, previously decided by the same court (discussed ante at pages 205-9), which discussion is directed to showing that those cases are not authorities on trade-mark law but involve a question altogether distinct therefrom. We will discuss this part of the opinion in the Rosenberg case with the purpose of attempting to ascertain the distinction which led the court to grant relief in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases and to deny relief in the case at bar.

The court states (p. 963, second column) that though the law governing trade-marks is a branch of the broader law regulating trade competition

> "it should be kept in mind that, though alike in principle, they are enough unlike in practice to admit of raising and trying different issues. Yet the distinction between these similar laws is not always observed, as we have found from an inclination of counsel rather frequently to cite the decisions of this court in Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co. (C. C. A.), 273 F. 674, and Howard Wall v. Rolls-Royce of America, Inc. (C. C. A.), 4 F. (2d) 333, as authority for finding infringement of a trade-mark by its use on different but related wares and sometimes as authority for infringement by use on wares that are not related. We pause to note that those cases are not authority on the law of trade-mark infringement at all, for each was tried and decided on the single issue of unfair competition, and then not unfair competition in the sale of goods but in the unfair appropriation and use of a competitor's trade-name—with the intention, of course, thereby to profit in the sale of goods of a related character. Such an act is not infringement of a trade-mark but is a trespass of the same nature as is committed by one who applied another man's name to his own goods. It is a wrong which equity will enjoin even when the goods of the two men do not strictly enter into competition."

Judge Woolley wrote the opinion in Rosenberg v. Elliott. The opinion in the instant case was written by Judge Davis and contains the following reference to the opinion in the Rosenberg case:

> "Judge Woolley in his comprehensive exposition of the law of trade-marks said with reference to the property right of an owner of the mark: 'If property, it is property of a qualified nature, for it is settled that no absolute ownership in or exclusive right to use a name as a trade-mark is vested in anyone.' (Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. Elliott.)" (R. Vol. V, p. 2699.)

It appears from the opinion in the Rosenberg case (p. 967, near the top of the first column) that there was no testimony in that case that any purchaser had actually been deceived, although the court indicates (paragraph beginning near the bottom of the second column on page 965) that it considers deception of the public a factor of weight.

Judge Woolley, in the passage above quoted, says that the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases "are not authority on the law of trade-mark infringement at all," and that these cases were tried "on the single issue of unfair competition." But, inasmuch as the wrong—the appropriation of good-will—is the same in both we are unable to understand how in this connection the distinction is more than verbal. Judge Woolley continues with the statement that the unfair competition in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases was "not unfair competition in the sale of goods but in the unfair appropriation and use of a competitor's trade-name—with the intention, of course, thereby to profit in the sale of goods of a related character." Studying these words in the endeavor to find therein a reason for granting relief in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases and not in the suit at bar, we find only a statement of what the court's words indicate to be lesser wrongs in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases than in the case at bar, for the court has said that those cases involved no trade-mark question but only the appropriation of a trade-name with the intention thereby of profiting in the sale of goods. We are unable to see any material distinction in the degree of vice between appropriating a party's trade-name for the purpose of profiting thereby in the sale of goods and appropriating his trade-mark for that purpose. However this may be, the Lorillard Company has committed the greater offense of appropriating both the trade-mark and trade-name of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, this double appropriation involving also the appropriation of the corporate name of the Beech-Nut Company inasmuch as the word "Beech-Nut" is so far the predominating and identifying part of its corporate name that appropriation of that word is in effect appropriation of the corporate name.

The court, in the passage above quoted, refers to the appropriation of the trade-names in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases as being for the purpose of profiting "in the sale of goods of a related character." In the Overland case the goods were automobiles as an entirety and tires as a separate article of trade. There was no competition between them, no possibility of substitution of one for the other, but it may be that the use of tires on automobiles would tend to re-enforce the suggestion of similarity of origin growing out of the use of the same name on both automobiles and tires, and thereby aggravate the tendency to deceive purchasers. But this is of importance only in so far as deception of the public is important, and universal deception of the public has been proved by direct evidence in the suit at bar. Furthermore in the Rolls-Royce case the goods were automobiles and radio tubes. It is difficult to conceive of articles less related in structure, use, mode of operation and in the channels of trade through which they flow than automobiles and radio tubes. Yet the Court of Appeals found them sufficiently related to grant relief in the Rolls-Royce case on its theory that the goods must be related in some way, and at the same time found that Beech-Nut chewing gum and packaged candies and Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes are totally unrelated although they are all luxuries which from the time they leave the factory door travel together through the houses of the same jobbers and wholesalers to the same retailers where they are advertised and displayed side by side and sold to the same customers often at the same time. And the court did this notwithstanding the nation-wide understanding of the fact that the Beech-Nut Packing Company produces a large number of commodities under its Beech-Nut trade-mark and is constantly bringing out new goods under the same trade-mark. The Overland Company and the Rolls-Royce Companies used their names only upon the automobiles which they made. Despite the fact that neither the Overland Company nor the Rolls-Royce Company had ever produced more than one article and had never given the public reason to believe that they were ever going to produce anything else, and despite the fact that the Beech-Nut Packing Company produces regularly upwards of sixty different commodities and has thoroughly implanted in the public mind the expectation that they will produce new products under their name from time to time, the Court of Appeals has decided that the Overland name extends not only to automobiles but also to tires as a separate article of commerce, and that the Rolls-Royce name extends not only to automobiles but also to radio tubes, and then has decided that the Beech-Nut Company's rights in its name do not extend to the Beech-Nut tobacco and cigarettes which the public believes that it produces and which are sold alongside of the Beech-Nut Company's chewing gum, packaged hard candies and other products. The distinction between a trade-mark applied to an extensive line of products and one applied to a single commodity is referred to by Judge Hough in the opinion in France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co. (post, p. 221).

It would be easy to reconcile the different decisions of the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit if they had refused injunctions in the Overland and Rolls-Royce cases and granted an injunction in the suit at bar. As it is we are able to find nothing in the opinions of that court or elsewhere to support any conclusion other than that the decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the suit at bar collides as forcibly with its own previous decisions as with the decisions of the Courts of Appeal of the Sixth and Second Circuits in the cases elsewhere herein reviewed.

Collins v. Ames.

Collins v. Ames, Circuit Court, S. D. N. Y., opinion by Mr. Justice Blatchford, 18 Fed. 561.

The Collins Company manufactured axes, hatchets, adzes, picks and other implements, all of which it marked with the words "Collins & Co.," the name of the business before it was incorporated, but did not make or deal in shovels until after the Ames & Sons Corporation had established an extensive business in shovels bearing the name "Collins & Co." The Ames & Sons Corporation contended that it had the right under the law to apply the words "Collins & Co." to shovels by reason of the fact that Collins & Co. did not make or deal in shovels until after the Ames business had become established. Upon defendant's theory in the case at bar this would have been a good defense in that there can be no direct competition between shovels and edged tools, no possibility of substitution of shovels for axes, etc., in particular sales, and hence no diversion of particular sales from the Collins Company to the Ames Corporation. As in the case at bar the injury to the Collins Co. was confined to the impairment of their business reputation and good-will and the prevention of the expansion of the Collins business under its own name to include a product lying in the path of its normal growth. The following passages are quoted from Mr. Justice Blatchford's opinion:

> "Therefore, although the shovels made by Ames & Sons under this order and subsequently, and stamped 'Collins & Co.,' and sent to Australia and elsewhere, may intrinsically have been of high quality, yet the only object of the defendant in putting the stamp 'Collins & Co.' upon them must have been to avail himself of the credit and reputation and market which the plaintiff had established for the articles it made and sold with the stamp 'Collins & Co.' upon them. There was no other purpose in this. Clearly, those who purchased shovels made by Ames & Sons, and stamped 'Collins & Co.' would believe that such shovels were made by the plaintiff, for there was no other Collins & Co. than the plaintiff. This was an unlawful appropriation of the plaintiff's trade-mark. It is true that the plaintiff up to that time had made no shovels. It is also true that Ames & Sons and the defendant have built up a business in shovels stamped 'Collins & Co.' But the plaintiff had a right to make shovels, and it had made kindred articles of metal, and its good name and reputation in its business were wholly connected with the use, in its trade, of the mark 'Collins & Co.'" (Pp. 569, 570).

> "It is strongly urged, on the part of the defendant, that a mark or stamp, to be a trade-mark, must be the mark of an existing trade; that the mark 'Collins & Co.' on shovels, when adopted by Ames & Sons, became the mark of a trade in shovels carried on by Ames & Sons; that the plaintiff had no trade in shovels at the time; that the mark 'Collins & Co.' thus became the mark of Ames & Sons' trade in shovels, and the property of Ames & Sons in respect to shovels made by them, by prior right; that any use of that mark on shovels afterwards by the plaintiff became wrongful as against Ames & Sons or the defendant; and that the plaintiff has no right in the premises which it can enforce against the defendant. This view is specious but unsound. The plaintiff having from 1843 the right to make any article of iron, steel or other metal, and having gone on from that time, both before and after 1856, extending its manufacture beyond edge-tools into digging tools, such as picks and hoes, and having always put the mark 'Collins & Co.' on its best quality of articles, the fact that it did not before 1856 make a digging tool such as the shovels on which, in 1856, Ames & Sons put the mark 'Collins & Co.' does not warrant the conclusion that the mark was not in 1856 the mark of the plaintiff's trade in respect to such shovels.

"The plaintiff is entitled to a decree for a perpetual injunction, as prayed in the bill, and for an accounting before a master as to profits and damages, and for the costs of the suit" (p. 571).

It is significant that in the concluding part of its opinion above quoted the court referred to the mark as being in 1856 "the mark of the plaintiff's trade in respect to such shovels." This shows that the court considered that the trade-mark right of plaintiff extended to shovels in advance of the date when it manufactured shovels, and that the court did not find it necessary to base its decision upon the ground of unfair competition as distinguished from infringement of a technical trade-mark.

Aluminum Co. v. Sargoy.

Aluminum Company v. Sargoy Bros. & Co., District Court, E. D. N. Y., 1921, Chatfield, J., 276 Fed. 447.

In this case the plaintiff, the Aluminum Company, dealt in cooking vessels made of aluminum to which it applied the word "Wear-Ever" as a trade-mark. Plaintiff did not deal in wash boilers. Defendant put on the market a tin wash boiler upon which it used the word "Wear-Ever" as a trade-mark. In the following quotations from Judge Chatfield's opinion the pertinent facts and the court's judgment are set forth:

> "The testimony in this case shows that in the Patent Office cooking utensils are considered and classified as a different line of commercial manufacture from articles for laundry purposes or articles for household work, like cleaning or scrubbing,
>
> . . . . . .
>
> "Validity of trade-mark cannot depend upon classification or indexing by the Patent Office alone. . . ." (p. 448.)
>
> . . . . . .
>
> "the plaintiff certainly makes out a case of unfair competition when it shows that the defendants are placing upon the market an article of tin, in general resembling aluminum, sold in stores dealing in household supplies, in such a way that the 'Wear-Ever' cooking utensils and the 'Wear-Ever' wash boiler would be substantially side by side in its exposure for public inspection and convenience, where the paper wrapper is obviously copied from the plaintiff's advertising matter, where a large portion of the tin surface is covered up so that the uneducated or not-understanding person might fail to note the difference between the metal aluminum and metal tin, and where the purpose of putting this article on the market in that form is shown by the significant opportunity presented by the plaintiff's failure to have wash boilers as one article in their line of utensils. The defendants seek to excuse their act by showing that their wash boilers are 'good' tin wash boilers and that a purchaser is not cheated. They also show that the plaintiff does not sell wash boilers and therefore there is no competition in the wash boilers themselves. . . ." (p. 450).
>
> "The record makes it plain that the defendants are competing unfairly with the plaintiff by trading upon the public's belief in the 'Wear-Ever' name and the demand created for "Wear-Ever' articles by the plaintiff's advertising (pp. 450-457).
>
> . . . . . .

"For all of these reasons the plaintiff is entitled to a decree" (p. 450).

FRANCE MILLING CO. v. WASHBURN-CROSBY CO.

France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co. District Court, S. D. N. Y., Winslow, J., 3 F. (2d) 321; Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, opinion by Judge Hough, 7 F. (2d) 304.

We will refer to the parties as "France" and "Washburn," following the terminology appearing in the opinion of the Court of Appeals. In the year 1904 France, a manufacturer of "pancake" and buckwheat flour, was awarded a gold medal for those products by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, and thereupon, in the year 1904, adopted the words "Gold Medal" as a trade-mark for its pancake and buckwheat flours. France's pancake flour was a mixture of wheat and corn flours, leavened and seasoned, and his buckwheat flour was a mixture of wheat and buckwheat flours leavened and seasoned. France did not make or deal in wheat flour except as an ingredient of the products above described.

Washburn and his predecessors had used the words "Gold Medal" as a trade-mark for wheat flour since 1880 but had never made or dealt in any mixed flour under any name until the year 1924 when he commenced the manufacture and sale of prepared flours similar to those made and sold by France, and used the trade-mark "Gold Medal" thereon.

France had bought wheat flour from Washburn since the year 1912, the wheat flour so bought being used in the manufacture of his pancake and buckwheat flours. In ordering this wheat flour France conducted the correspondence "on paper prominently announcing its trademark and the character of its products," as set forth in the statement of facts by the Court of Appeals.

France moved to enjoin Washburn from using "Gold Medal" on pancake flour and buckwheat flour. Washburn counterclaimed with a motion that France be enjoined from using the Gold Medal trade-mark on pancake flour and buckwheat flour. France's claim rested on his prior use of "Gold Medal" on the particular kind of flour, namely, pancake and buckwheat flour. Washburn's claim rested on his prior use of "Gold Medal" on wheat flour, and his contention that such prior use on "straight" wheat flour established his exclusive right as to all kinds of flour. The court decided against Washburn's claim upon the ground that he had acquiesced in France's use of the words "Gold Medal" during a long period during which he had sold wheat flour to France knowing that it was to be used in the manufacture of France's Gold Medal pancake and buckwheat flour, and on the further ground that the words "Gold Medal" were a "laudatory phrase" similar to the words "Blue Ribbon," and not in the same category with such arbitrary words as "Kodak," "Aunt Jemima" and "Budweiser," and therefore not affording a basis for broad protection. The court also found that the two commodities were different "as shown by the exhibition of business methods given by the affidavits." It is not possible to determine from the opinion what relative weight the court gave to the three grounds of its decision, namely, acquiescence, the character of the words "Gold Medal" and the character of the goods. Seemingly the acquiescence must have been considered sufficient in itself to support the decision as it could have no bearing at all otherwise, being a matter independent of the character of the words or goods and without influence on the relation thereof to the law. The character of the words and of the goods taken together might well have contributed mutually to a decision that would not have been made for either of those reasons in the absence of the other. At all events it is quite obvious that the court's decision did not rest upon classification of merchandise as an arbitrary standard, as did the decision in the suit at bar. The law is well established in the Eighth, Seventh and Second Circuits (ante, pp. 147 to 152) that suggestive words which have been commonly used in trade will be accorded protection only for the particular goods upon which the party asserting a right of exclusion has actually used them. The words "Gold Medal," as found by the court, were of this character, and that finding alone was sufficient to support the decision arrived at, as was also the court's finding of acquiescence. The court, therefore, dismissed the counterclaim motion of Washburn that France be enjoined from continuing to mark his pancake and buckwheat flour with the words "Gold Medal," and enjoined Washburn from doing so.

In its opinion in the France Milling v. Washburn case the court expressly distinguished the facts there prevailing from facts of the kind that exist in the case at bar, the distinction being stated in the following sentence quoted from the opinion:

> "In the present case Washburn has made known by advertising Gold Medal not a line of products, nor any product of a varied business, but one separate, well known commodity, pure wheat flour, and with that he must be content" (7 Fed. (2d), p. 306).

The court was quite evidently familiar with the practice of large business houses of dealing in numerous commodities, and took pains to guard against its decision being taken as authority for piratical inroads upon the rights of parties whose trade-marks have been applied to many different articles of commerce with the result of endowing them with a broad significance.

The Statutory Phrases "Same Class" and "Same Descriptive Properties" as Interpreted by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia has jurisdiction of appeals from the Commissioner of Patents in trade-mark interferences, oppositions and petitions for the cancellation of trade-mark registrations. This jurisdiction is conferred by the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, ch. 592 (33 Stat. L. 724), Sections 5, 6, 9 and 13 of which are quoted in Appendix G (App., p. 95). Section 5 defines the conditions necessary for registration. Section 6 provides for oppositions, Section 9 for appeals to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, and Section 13 for petitions for cancellation of registrations. The statutory basis of the opposition and the petition for cancellation is injury to the opposing party or petitioner for cancellation (Sections 6 and 13), and Section 5 prohibits registration of a mark identical with a registered or known mark in use by another for goods "of the same descriptive properties," but, with certain enumerated exceptions, permits registration of any mark which will distinguish the registrant's goods from other goods "of the same class."

That the Court of Appeals reasons the cases appealed from the Commissioner of Patents largely in terms of classification and descriptive properties of the goods arises from the fact that the court's jurisdiction in these cases relates solely to the interpretation of the provisions of the statute. Where the adverse parties use the same trade-mark upon different goods the Court of Appeals looks to the statutory phrases "same class" and "same descriptive properties," and has decided that, whenever the use of the same trade-mark on different commodities will cause the public to believe that both commodities are the product of the same party such commodities belong to the "same class" and are "of the same descriptive properties" within the meaning and intent of those expressions as used in the statute. This has the effect of preventing the registration of a trade-mark for use upon any commodity where the use of the mark on such commodity would deceive the public and result in misappropriation of the good-will of the business of another party who uses the same mark upon different goods. The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in the exercise of this limited appellate jurisdiction thus arrives at a result similar to that accomplished by other courts under their general equity power to enjoin misappropriation of the good-will of a business in cases where the parties deal in different commodities. The cases next referred to illustrate the course followed by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in this regard.

Oppenheim, Oberndorfer & Co., Inc. v. President Suspender Co. (3 F. (2d) page 88):

In this case the President Suspender Company used the word "President" as a trade-mark for suspenders and opposed the registration by Oppenheim, Oberndorf & Co. of the same word as a trade-mark for underwear and shirts. The court sustained the opposition, saying:

> "It may be said in general that, if goods are such that the purchasing public, seeing them sold under the same mark, will believe that they have the same commercial origin in point of manufacture or marketing, it follows that they will be regarded as of the same descriptive properties. American Stove Co. v. Detroit Stove Works, 31 App. D. C. 304; N. Wolf & Sons v. Lord & Taylor, 41 App. D. C. 514; Williams v. Kern & Sons, 47 App. D. C. 441; In re Interrieden Canning Co., 277 F. 613, 51 App. D. C. 214; E-Z. Waist Co. v. Reliance Mfg. Co., 286 F. 461, 52 App. D. C. 291."

Anglo American Incandescent Light Co. v. The General Electric Co. (43 App. D. C. 385):

In this case the General Electric Company used and had registered the word "Mazda" as a trade-mark for electric incandescent lamps and opposed the registration of the same word by the Anglo American Company as a trade-mark for incandescent gas mantles. In sustaining the opposition the court said:

> "While, of course, no one of average intelligence would purchase a 'Mazda' gas mantle in the belief that it was a 'Mazda' electric lamp, the average person would believe that he was purchasing the product of the manufacturer of 'Mazda' lamps."

Lord & Taylor v. Wolf & Son (41 App. D. C. 514):

Lord & Taylor owned the trade-mark consisting of the word "Onyx" for hosiery and opposed the registration of the same trade-mark by Wolf & Son for underwear, i. e., shirts, drawers and union suits. Here there was no possibility of confusion in the sense of mistaking one commodity for the other, for instance, of a purchaser buying a pair of socks with the idea that they were an undershirt, or to be worn like or substituted in use for an undershirt. The Court of Appeals sustained Lord & Taylor's opposition, saying:

> "We think the word class, as used in the statute, means broadly a genus including as species any goods upon which the use of the same mark, when the goods are exposed side by side, would tend to mislead the purchasing public."

Simplex Electric Heating Company v. The Ramey Company (46 App. D. C. 400):

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia reversed the decision of the Commissioner of Patents permitting the Ramey Company to register the word

"Simplex" as a trade-mark for electric vacuum cleaners. The Simplex Electric Heating Company had made and sold many varieties of electrically heated cooking and other electrically heated utensils, but had never made or dealt in vacuum cleaners. The evidence showed that the Simplex Company had advertised its products for years at an expense of about two hundred thousand dollars per year with the result that it had become known throughout the United States to purchasers of electrical devices; and a number of people had been deceived, including prospective purchasers, a party desiring repairs and another party who wanted a sales agency. There was also proof tending to show that electrical dealers handle both electric heating devices and vacuum cleaners.

The court sustained the opposition of the Simplex Company, holding that the goods dealt in by the parties were of the same class. Upon this point the court said:

> "There is some difficulty attending these questions of classification. A thing may not be the same and yet of the same general description and used for similar purposes. In this case the corporate name which is widely advertised for electrical goods caused persons to suppose that these cleaners were the product of the Simplex Company. With the enormous range afforded for the selection of trade-mark names, it is not unreasonable to suspect that this trade-mark was adopted for the purpose of obtaining the benefit of the wide advertising that had been done by the Simplex Company. In such a case the benefit of any doubt in regard to the classification should be given to the one who has used, developed and advertised the mark and given it trade value."

Boston Rubber Shoe Co. v. Joseph Abramowitz (47 App. D. C. 199):

In this case the Commissioner of Patents held that there was no conflict between parties using the same trade-mark on rubber shoes and on leather shoes, respectively. The court reversed the Commissioner of Patents, saying:

> "The error into which the Patent Office has fallen is in a rigid adherence to the separate classification of rubber and leather goods. The particular subject-matter of this interference is whether or not the marks of the contending parties are so similar as to create confusion in trade when used on footwear generally or on particular grades of footwear."

The Canton Culvert and Silo Co. v. Consolidated Car Heating Co. (44 App. D. C., 491):

The court held that the trade-mark "Nokoro" for "electrical resistances, electrical apparatus," etc., conflicted with the trade-mark "No-Co-Ro" used in connection with the sale of sheet metal, which sheet metal was particularly adapted for use in the construction of electrical resistances. The court said:

> "It is familiar doctrine in this court that the owner of a trade-mark will not be hampered in the legitimate extension of his business by the registration of his mark to another."

Williams v. Kern (47 App. D. C., 441):

The Court of Appeals in discussing the descriptive properties of self-rising pan-cake flour and ordinary wheat flour said:

> "The test here is not in the likelihood of confusing the products, but the source from which they come."

G. & J. Tire Co. v. G. & J. Motorcar Co. (39 App. D. C. 508):

This case involved the question whether the same trade-mark (a triangle inclosing the letters "G. & J.") should be registered by the Patent Office to different parties for use upon rubber tires and automobiles. These are the same commodities that were before the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in the Overland case (ante, p. 206). In the G. & J. case no testimony was taken and there was no evidence of deception of the public or of injury to the complaining party. The court declined to base a finding of deception and confusion of the public and of injury to the complaining party on bare inference, and decided that both parties were entitled to registration of the "G. & J." trade-mark. In the Overland case there was evidence of deception of the public and of the probability of injury, and in that case the defendant was enjoined from using the word "Overland." There is no conflict between the two cases. In the absence of proof of confusion and injury in the G. & J. case there was no reason why both parties should not use the same trade-mark, and the presence of proof of confusion and injury in the Overland case made it illegal and improper for the defendant to use the same name as the plaintiff. It is conceivable that evidence might have been adduced in the G. & J. case showing confusion and injury as was done in the Overland case, but in the absence of such evidence the court quite naturally did not assume as proved that which was not proved, and more particularly so as the facts, if they existed, were easily provable.

Principles Established by Previous Cases in Which Parties Dealt in Different Commodities, and Application of that Principle to the Instant Case.

In some of the cases which we have reviewed, the name or symbol protected by the injunction had been used as the name, or part of the name, of the corporation or other organization through which the plaintiff's business was conducted, and in others the plaintiff had applied the name or symbol to the goods dealt in; and in some of the cases the defendant had used the misappropriated word in one of these ways and in the other way in other cases. But in all of the cases the controlling fact was that a name or symbol that had in some way become identified with one party's business or goods had been misappropriated and used deceptively in connection with another party's business or goods with the effect of wrongfully appropriating and injuring the good-will of the business rightly entitled to the use of the name or symbol. The right of the original user of the name or symbol is the same whether its association with his goods and business has arisen from use as a trade-mark applied to goods or use as the name of the organization conducting the business, and the invasion of the property right is the same whether the party who misappropriates the name or symbol uses it as a trade-mark applied to goods or as the name of the organization conducting the business or as both.

The cases discussed on pages 179 to 221, ante, present illustrations of these different uses of an identifying name by both the plaintiff and the defendant, and in all of them in which deception of the public and injury to the plaintiff was proved the fraudulent use of the misappropriated name was enjoined. Therefore we believe that all of the cases referred to are equally in point in the consideration of the instant case, in which the appropriated word, "Beech-Nut," is both the dominant element of plaintiff's corporate name and also of plaintiff's trade-mark.

Judge Denison, in the Penslar case, based the injunction on the appropriation of and injury to good-will by the defendant's use of the word "Penslar" and by false representations of fact, and enjoined such use of that word and the continuance of such misrepresentations. He expressly refrained from basing his decision either upon infraction of trade-mark rights or upon the ground of unfair competition. Judge Denison saw no necessity of attempting to fit the definition of trade-mark rights or of unfair competition to the circumstances of the case. He perceived the fact that the defendant by using the word "Penslar" had invaded the plaintiff's property right in the good-will of its business and enjoined the continuance of the wrong. The wrong to property having been committed it was immaterial whether that wrong be called a violation of trade-mark rights, or an infraction of the law of unfair competition, or be given some other description or name. While not always so explicitly stated as in Judge Denison's opinion, the underlying principle is the same in the Aunt Jemima and Vogue cases, and in the English cases, and in the other cases cited herein. In some of these cases the subject-matter has been discussed as the appropriation of a corporate or firm name, in some as a violation of trade-mark rights, and in some as unfair competition. But in all of them the governing principle is the right to protection of the good-will of a business, and in all of them the ultimate effect of the injunction was to enjoin appropriation of and injury to the good-will of the plaintiff's business.

In the Vogue case the "V-Girl" trade-mark was used by both parties, and the word "Vogue" was the distinctive element in the corporate name of the Vogue Company, the plaintiff, and that of the Vogue Hat Company, intervenor, and the injunction prohibited the use of the "V-Girl" trade-mark and the use of the words "Vogue Hat" unless accompanied by a prominently displayed manufacturing name of which the word "Vogue" was not a part. In the Aunt Jemima case the words "Aunt Jemima" were the dominant element of the corporate name of the plaintiff, and the words and accompanying picture formed the trade-mark of both parties, but the defendant did not use the words "Aunt Jemima" as part of its corporate name. In this respect the facts were the same as in the instant case, where the word "Beech-Nut" is the dominant element of plaintiff's corporate name and its trade-mark, but is used by defendant only as a trade-mark. Judge Ward, who wrote the opinion in the Aunt Jemima case, did not find it necessary to, and did not, discuss the question whether the wrong committed by the defendant was unfair competition, or trade-mark infringement, or whether it fell within the literal definition of either of these offenses. From the fact that he did not discuss the point it fairly may be inferred that he thought it immaterial and found ample ground for the injunction in the proof of a continuing violation of property rights, and saw no necessity for an investigation regarding the name or classification of the wrong that had been committed. While Judge Ward stated that he did not think the English cases "apply to the appropriation of a trade-mark" he gives no reason for that view, and none is apparent from his analysis of the Aunt Jemima case or from the reasoning in any of the other cases.

In the English Eastman Photographic Materials Company case the word "Kodak" was used by both plaintiff and defendant as part of the name of a subsidiary company, and both applied the word "Kodak" to their goods. In the English Dunlop cases the proper name "Dunlop" was the dominant element of the name of the plaintiff company and an element in the names of the defendant companies, and the Dunlop Lubricant Company sold its oil in containers bearing the name "Dunlop Lubricant Company." The injunctions restrained the defendants from all of those uses of the name "Dunlop."

In the English case of Walter v. Ashton, the word "Times" was the name of plaintiff's newspaper, and the defendant used that word in the advertisement of his bicycles but not as the name of his business. In the English Premier Cycle Company case the word "Premier" was the distinguishing element in the names of both the plaintiff and defendant companies, but the word does not appear to have been used as a trade-mark by the defendant.

It seems incontrovertible that the owner of a business has the same right to protection of the good-will of his business against misappropriation by unauthorized use of the name under which the business is conducted as by unauthorized use of a trade-mark applied to the goods, and that his right to protection is the same whether the defendant uses the misappropriated name as a part of its corporate or firm name or as a trade-mark so long as the use results in misappropriation of good-will. The relevant point is that a name which the plaintiff has in some way identified with his business or goods has been misappropriated by the defendant and in some way applied to defendant's business or goods. We believe that all of the cases discussed upon pages 179 to 221, including the English cases, are authorities equally upon the trade-mark aspect of the instant case and its relation to the law of unfair competition.

Where, as in the instant case and the Penslar and Aunt Jemima cases, the misappropriated word or symbol is arbitrary and the resulting misappropriation of and injury to the good-will of the plaintiff's business is proved, we believe that a complete foundation for an injunction has been laid, and that it is a mere matter of terminology, and not of substance, whether the wrong is classifiable as trade-mark infringement, or as unfair competition, or conforms to the literal definition of either of these offenses. Judges Denison and Ward viewed the matter in this light in the Penslar and Aunt Jemima cases. They each found a continuing wrong to a property right and enjoined it precisely as a court of equity does in other fields of litigation. No reason is apparent in cases involving the property right in the good-will of a business, any more than in cases involving any other property right, for ignoring an assault upon property because the wrong does not fall within the rigid and literal terms of a definition framed in former times to fit other circumstances.

We believe that there has been trade-mark infringement in the instant case for the simple, and seemingly quite sufficient, reason that plaintiff's trade-mark has been appropriated by defendant and damage done to plaintiff thereby. But, even if it be argued that this is not trade-mark infringement because plaintiff did not deal in tobacco and cigarettes, and was not unfair competition because there was no competition between the parties in the sale of tobacco and cigarettes, the fact remains that defendant has appropriated plaintiff's trade-mark and also the distinctive element of its corporate name, has appropriated and injured the good-will of plaintiff's business, has deceived the entire purchasing public, has misrepresented the facts to stay plaintiff's hand, and has realized large profits at the expense of damage inflicted upon the good-will of plaintiff's business. The proof of the wrong is complete. The inadequacy of the remedy at law is apparent, and it is equally apparent that redress by injunction lies within the general equity powers of the court. Whether the terms "trade-mark infringement" or "unfair competition" are or are not apt descriptions of the wrong here complained of, the wrong exists, and is of the character which courts of equity have the power to redress.

Use of Same Trade-Marks Upon Different Commodities by Several Persons, All Strangers to This Case, Not Relevant Here.

Defendant has offered in evidence six large scrap books containing a collection of labels (Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 19 to 24,—physical exhibits, not printed,—described and put in evidence over plaintiff's objection, R. Vol. V, pp. 2508, 2517-2518) alleged to have been used upon tobacco and food products and other commodities.

There is absolutely no evidence in the case even remotely establishing the absence of conflict or protest arising from such use of these names. Furthermore, there is absolutely no evidence in the record of this case to show that in a single one of the many instances where the same name is alleged to have been used in different industries any of the parties using the names referred to had a reputation so widespread as to cause the public to believe that the different products were of the same origin.

The conditions indicated by defendant's collection of labels may be based upon agreement between the parties or may have caused wholesale conflict and litigation.

The record is silent on these points. These many labels have simply been offered in evidence by defendant without a shred of evidence connecting them in the remotest degree with any issue before the court in the instant case. This same sort of defense was advanced by defendant in the case of Aluminum Cooking Utensil Co. v. Sargoy Bros. Co. (276 Fed., p. 447), as stated in that part of the opinion of the court appearing at the bottom of page 448 of Volume 276 of the Federal Reporter. Although in the Sargoy case the defendant proved the use of the very trade-mark in issue, the word "Wear-Ever," by others upon several different commodities, the court gave no weight to this proof and issued its injunction against the defendant. In the instant case, the evidence offered by the defendant is even more remote than that in the Sargoy case in that the collection of names offered by defendant is made up of trade-mark words which do not figure in the instant case at all.

Defendant has also offered in evidence three bound volumes of copies of Patent Office trade-mark registrations of words other than "Beech-Nut" (Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 31, 32 and 33,—physical exhibits, not printed, offered in evidence over plaintiff's objection, R. Vol. V, pp. 2523, 2542), and a list of these registrations classified according to the word registered (Defendant's Exhibit No. 30—printed in Transcript, Vol. VI, pp. 2924-2940). Defendant argues that these Patent Office registrations of words not involved in this case are evidence of its right to use plaintiff's trade-mark. As a matter of fact, however, there is nothing in this record to establish any analogy whatever between the conditions existing in the matter of these Patent Office registrations and the conditions existing in the case at bar. There is not a particle of evidence in this case to indicate that a single one of the Patent Office registrations was granted in the presence of proof that such registration would result in injury to or diversion of the good-will of another party using the same or a similar mark upon a different commodity. The case at bar is replete with proof of injury to and diversion of plaintiff's good-will. The Patent Office makes no effort to obtain evidence regarding the effect of the registration of the same or similar trade-marks for different commodities beyond publishing its intention to grant registration. If no opposition is made the Patent Office Examiner simply grants registration upon his own unaided judgment regarding the liability of a conflict of interest.

There is nothing in the record of the case at bar to show that controversy and litigation have not resulted in many or all of the cases in which the Patent Office granted the registrations referred to in defendant's exhibits. There is nothing in the record of this case to show that the parties to whom registry of the same or similar marks have been granted did not consent to such registration, or that certain of these parties are not the successors in interest of others and in legal effect identical with them, or that groups of such registrants are not under single ownership. Furthermore, all Patent Office trade-mark registrations are granted subject to cancellation as a result of a statutory proceeding provided for that purpose (Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905, Section 13, quoted in Appendix G, p. 97). There is nothing in the nature of a final adjudication of rights in the act of the Patent Office in registering a trade-mark, nothing here to show to what extent the registrations offered in evidence by defendant have been cancelled. In fact, a Patent Office registration is evidence of nothing other than the fact that some one claims a right to a certain trade-mark. No right is conferred by the registration and the registration itself is subject to cancellation.

In fact, registration is not evidence of any use of the mark registered beyond the very slight use required by the Patent Office as a foundation for registration.

In none of the instances of registration cited in defendant's exhibits above referred to does it appear that any one party has used and registered his trade-mark for use upon a wide variety of products and thereby extended the significance of his trade-mark to such wide bounds as to cause confusion in trade when the same mark is applied by others to different, even though quite similar, commodities. In the absence of such conditions there is no analogy between the isolated registrations cited by defendant and plaintiff's use and registration of the same trade-mark for more than seventy different products.

At the trial objection was made to the admission in evidence of Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 (R. Vol. V, pp. 2507, 2509, 2517), and Defendant's Exhibits Nos. 30, 31, 32 and 33 (R. Vol. V, p. 2523). We believe that the total irrelevance of this testimony warrants its exclusion from consideration.

The Weissinger Beechnut Trade-Mark Was Abandoned Prior to 1915 When the Lorillard Company Put Its Beech-Nut Tobacco on the Market.

In most of the cases in which the question of abandonment has arisen the defendant has attacked the plaintiff's right to the disputed trade-mark on the ground that the plaintiff's conduct has worked an abandonment of the right which he attempts to assert against the defendant. In the suit at bar the posture of the parties is the reverse of this. Here the plaintiff charges abandonment of a trade-mark which is pleaded by defendant as a justification for using an essentially exact copy of plaintiff's trade-mark. Where a party uses a trade-mark in his business, then, after temporarily suspending the business, again resumes the same business, and uses the same trade-mark in connection with it, there is a presumption that the good-will of the business has survived and that the original owner's rights in his trade-mark have not been abandoned and have not lapsed by disuse. But where, as in the suit at bar, the defendant who has used an essentially exact copy of plaintiff's trade-mark, attempts to justify such use by a representation of continuous use since an early date of a mark that, though different, bears a similar word—"Beechnut," and where it appears, contrary to the representation, that the trade-mark relied on had been out of use for such a period of time that it had been completely forgotten by the public, and where it appears furthermore that the defendant has transformed the old mark out of all resemblance to its original form, we believe that there is no ground for a presumption that the good-will of the old trade-mark survives and attaches to the transformed trade-mark, and that it has not been abandoned, but that there is compelling reason for the assumption that defendant knew that the old trade-mark had been abandoned and was forgotten by the public, and that the transformation of the trade-mark from its original form into an essentially exact copy of plaintiff's label was a recognition and admission of the fact of abandonment, and that the transformation was made for the purpose of repudiating any possibility of association with the old mark and substituting therefor a false impression of association with plaintiff's business.

The business to which the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark was appurtenant was the manufacture and sale of a chewing tobacco mixture compounded according to a certain formula. It was not the trade-mark of the business of Harry Weissinger as an entirety, or of the business of Luhrman & Wilbern, successor to Weissinger, as an entirety, and it was never used by the Lorillard Company as a symbol of anything. There is nothing in this record to show or suggest that any of these companies ever had any trade-mark that symbolized or identified anything more than one particular product, such as a particular brand of cigars, cigarettes or tobacco. Now, if the Weissinger Beechnut brand of tobacco had been made and sold up to the time the Lorillard Company put its new tobacco mixture on the market, and the Lorillard Company had used on the new mixture the old Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark in the form in which it had previously been used, it might with some show of reason be contended that the change in the formula of the tobacco mixture worked no abandonment of the trade-mark right, but that the character of the product had simply been changed to keep pace with the times. But this is not what occurred.

As set forth in the statement of facts, the testimony shows that the manufacture of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, Weissinger's successor, ceased some time prior to the year 1909 (ante, p. 49); that the last sale of the tobacco was in April, 1910 (ante, p. 47); that the sales during the years immediately preceding 1910 were insignificant, negligibly small as a business enterprise (ante, p. 47); that the last price list containing an entry of the Weissinger Beechnut brand was issued by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company not later than 1910 (ante, p. 49); that the sales of the Weissinger Beechnut brand ceased in 1910 because there was no demand for it (Boykin, Q. 10, R. Vol. IV, p. 2305); and that in the year 1915 when the Lorillard Company first put on the market its "Beech-Nut" scrap tobacco bearing a copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark no ultimate consumer is shown to have even remembered that such a brand as the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco had ever existed (ante, p. 54). In November, 1911, the stock of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company was, by order of court, transferred to the newly organized P. Lorillard Company (ante, p. 46). In 1913 the P. Lorillard Company, as sole stockholder of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, assigned to itself the assets of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (ante, p. 46).

At this point there arises the preliminary question whether this 1913 assignment conveyed the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark. At the time of the assignment there was no business in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco. None had been sold since April, 1910 (ante, p. 47), for the reason that there was no demand for it (R. Vol. IV, p. 2305, Q. 10). None had been manufactured since some undetermined date prior to the year 1909 (ante, p. 49). There is nothing to show that in 1913 the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut brand still existed, or that anyone outside of a few veterans of the tobacco trade (ante, p. 54) even remembered that there ever had been such a brand. The preponderance of evidence indicates that the good-will and even the public's memory of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business had expired prior to 1913, and there can be no question that there is an absolute lack of any evidence tending to the contrary conclusion. The assignment of the assets of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company to the Lorillard Company in 1913 was in general terms, simply a transfer of all its assets including good-will and all trade-marks (R. Vol. IV, p. 2252). It is elementary that a general assignment does not convey specific property unless the ownership of the property by the assignor at the time of the assignment is shown. Here it is not even shown that the property was in existence at the time of the assignment.

But even if, for the purpose of argument, we assume that which is not shown by the record, namely, that the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut brand survived until 1913, and that Luhrman & Wilbern had retained ownership of it up to the time of the 1913 assignment, we are confronted with the fact that the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business has never been resumed to this day, for the simple reason that the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was never again manufactured and that the "Beech-Nut" labels since used have been so exact a copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark that they were universally understood by the public to indicate products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and in not a single instance as conveying to any ultimate consumer even the remotest suggestion of any connection with the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business.

The officers of the Lorillard Company never had any idea that in putting on the market their Beech-Nut scrap tobacco in 1915 they were reviving and continuing the old Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business. They do not so testify. They do not even mention the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business, or make the slightest reference to the possibility of the reputation of that business having survived until 1915, or express or suggest the slightest concern as to whether it had survived or not. All of the circumstances repudiate the idea that the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut business had not expired long before the year 1915, and show, on the contrary, that the officers of the Lorillard Company wanted for their new tobacco mixture a trade-mark word that would not be associated with any old brand of tobacco, and for that reason eliminated from the Weissinger Beechnut label everything that would suggest any connection with the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business, retaining only the word "Beechnut," and that word changed to "Beech-Nut" and framed in an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark. It is perfectly plain that it was the Lorillard Company's intent to leave the Weissinger Beechnut flag in obscurity and to hoist the Beech-Nut Packing Company's flag.

When the Lorillard Company was preparing to put its new scrap tobacco on the market in 1915 Mr. Ball looked about for a trade-mark word that would draw trade. He knew the word "Beech-Nut" was such a word, not because the word "Beechnut" had once been used on a brand of tobacco that had become so unpopular that tobacco users would no longer buy it, but because the Beech-Nut Packing Company had made it a household word from one end of the country to the other, and for this reason Mr. Ball used the word "Beech-Nut"—not "Beechnut"—and used it not as a part of the old Weissinger trade-mark, but as part of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark. Mr. Ball's own testimony shows his desire, and the effective means he adopted, to repudiate any connection between the Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and the old Weissinger Beechnut business.

As set forth in the Statement of the Case (ante, p. 51), when the Lorillard Company became alarmed by the decreasing sales of their old brands of chewing tobacco it decided to put a new brand on the market. As stated by Mr. Ball:

> "So we decided to put out another brand, and in looking around for a brand, as is our usual custom, I referred to our list of brands to see what were in a way dormant, and that had been turned over to us as our property by the American Tobacco Company, and one of the first brands I noticed was the brand of Beech-Nut, and that seemed to me to be a very appropriate name for this article and we decided to use this brand for that purpose." (R. Vol. V, p. 2558, and ante, p. 51.)

The list of brands referred to by Mr. Ball is Defendant's Exhibit No. 35. It is reproduced at pages 2942 to 2955, inclusive, of Volume VI of the Record. This list as printed in the record covers fourteen pages, two columns to the page, and includes over one thousand names of tobacco products that had been on the market at one time or another prior to the dissolution of the old American Tobacco Company in 1911. Mr. Ball stated (R. Vol. V, pp. 2576-77) that the Lorillard Company has about fifty tobacco brands on the market, and Mr. Belt put the number at "50-75-80, extreme aggregate, taking everything that exists" (R. Vol. V, p. 2620). Therefore, of the thousand brands on the list referred to by Mr. Ball, over nine hundred are not on the market, and the immense growth of the Lorillard business since 1915 shown by Mr. Ball's testimony at pages 2570 to 2573 of Volume V of the Record, indicates with practical certainty that these nine hundred brands have not disappeared from the market since 1915, but that all or most of them were dead in 1915, and probably most of them equally dead in 1911 when the Lorillard Company received the assets of the companies that once had manufactured them. The list itself was not included in the decree of court dissolving the old American Tobacco Company, and formed no part of any of the papers of transfer. It is a memorandum prepared by Mr. William R. Perkins, one of the counsel of the Lorillard Company in 1911. He testified (R. Vol. V, pp. 2537-38) that he included in the list all of the brand names appearing in the papers and books of the companies assigned to the Lorillard Company by the 1911 decree of dissolution. Among the sources of the trade-marks in the list he names the conveyances which he found in the files of these companies and their price lists and brand books, these latter being books in which lists of brands were kept. Mr. Perkins did not remember omitting from the list any brand name that he found in the records mentioned. Mr. Perkins listed over six hundred of these alleged trade-marks as coming from the Federal Cigar Company (R. Vol. VI, pp. 2948-55), over fifty from the Duke's Mixture Department of the American Tobacco Company (R. Vol. VI, p. 2947), eight brands from the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (R. Vol. VI, p. 2945), several hundred from the old P. Lorillard Company which had been part of the combination that was dissolved in 1911, these latter including the S. Anargyros Turkish cigarette brands, and others whose origin does not appear further than that they were mentioned in the files of the old Lorillard Company.

Neither Mr. Ball nor Mr. Belt testified to any survival of the good-will of the Weissinger Beechnut brand of scrap tobacco. They did not testify that they had any idea that the business in the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco had any relation to the former business of Luhrman & Wilbern in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco or that they were in any sense continuous. The only testimony relating even remotely to this point is that of Mr. Ball, who said that he referred to this list to find an appropriate name that had been used in connection with some brand of tobacco that was "dormant." It is merely a theory of the Lorillard counsel that the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco is a continuation of the trade in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco, and it is a theory that is flatly contradicted by the surrounding circumstances and the motives and purpose of the Lorillard Company in putting its Beech-Nut tobacco on the market. As stated by Mr. Ball (ante, p. 51), the purpose of the Lorillard Company in putting a new brand of tobacco on the market in 1915 was the necessity of offering a sweeter and differently flavored chewing tobacco to tobacco users who had ceased to buy the old brands. The Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was one of these old brands which tobacco users had stopped buying in 1910. The ordinary motives that govern human conduct, in this instance the desire to sell tobacco and make money, make it certain that the Lorillard Company did not want to put its new tobacco on the market under a trade-mark that would cause the public to believe that it was one of the old and unpopular brands which the public had tired of and refused to buy. The purpose was to introduce a new brand and to make it known to the public that it was new, and thereby obtain the trade of tobacco users who refused to buy the old brands. Hence it was necessary to adopt a trade-mark that the public would not associate with any of the old brands. That is why Mr. Ball examined the list of trade-mark words to find one that was, as he says, "dormant," and why he eliminated from the Weissinger Beechnut label the names of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company and the Luhrman & Wilbern Company, eliminated the squirrel which was its dominating feature, and suppressed every element of the label except the one element that could be utilized in making a copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark, namely, the word "Beechnut," which word he transformed into "Beech-Nut," thus neglecting no conceivable precaution to submerge the identity of the Harry Weissinger Beechnut business and to substitute therefor the identity of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

The only theory upon which the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco business can be considered a continuation of the Weissinger Beechnut business would equally well have made the present Lorillard scrap tobacco business a continuation of any other of the thousand businesses the trade-mark of which might have been selected by the Lorillard Company from Mr. Perkins' list. The Lorillard theory is that the preservation of a vast vocabulary of extinct and forgotten trade-mark words preserves the company's right to the exclusive use of those words as trade-marks, and that if, while these unused trade-mark words are lying "dormant," some word on the list becomes a valuable and widely known symbol of merchandise of high quality by reason of the efforts and expensive advertising of another party, then the Lorillard Company has the right to use that word for the purpose and with the effect of appropriating the good-will and reputation of the other party, and that the existence of this word in a list along with a thousand other words justifies the appropriation of the other party's reputation and good-will.

That Mr. Ball and the Lorillard Company had not the remotest idea of continuing the business in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco, or of utilizing and perpetuating the reputation and good-will of that business, is emphasized by the meticulous care with which the Lorillard Company preserved the identity of the labels of tobacco brands which it acquired by purchase and intended to continue to deal in.

In the Statement of the Case at pages 61 to 73, ante, we have presented specimens and reproductions of the labels of tobacco brands that had been owned by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company (ante, p. 58), the assets of which company were acquired by the Lorillard Company upon the dissolution of the old American Tobacco Company and specimens or reproductions of the labels of the same brands as used by the Lorillard Company. Of the seven brands claimed to have been acquired by the Lorillard Company from Luhrman & Wilbern, six (Scrap Iron, Polar Bear, Old Nut, Honest, Bag Pipe and Natural Leaf scrap tobaccos) were active brands which were being made and sold at the time of the transfer to the Lorillard Company (ante, pp. 58-59) and the Lorillard Company continued to use upon these six brands precisely the same labels that had previously been used by Luhrman & Wilbern as shown by the specimens and reproductions at pages 61 to 71, ante. Contrasting with this is the transformation wrought in the label of the seventh, Weissinger Beechnut, as shown by the specimens on page 73, ante, where also there are mounted some specimens of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut labels for comparison with the Lorillard Beech-Nut labels.

Mr. Ball, in his testimony, repeatedly referred to the danger to business involved in making even the most insignificant change in the label. He said that "In the change of anything on a live brand, you frequently take a chance of prejudicing the consumer" (R. Vol. V, p. 2578), and then he continued in the same part of his testimony to relate how the omission from the Duke's Mixture package of so small an element as a little letter "G" in a circle no larger than a pea had caused a falling off of business on account of the belief of many people that it was not the same tobacco (R. Vol. V, p. 2578). Mr. Ball also expressed himself on this point as follows:

> "I mentioned that as an instance where we were always very careful not to change a package. We have some packages today that are big sellers, and as long as they sell, we jealously try to keep them identical with what they have been." (R. Vol. V, p. 2579.)

In view of this testimony, the complete transformation effected in the Weissinger Beechnut label can only be taken as an expression of the Lorillard Company's intention to abandon and repudiate all connection or association with the old brand and the Weissinger business. Mr. Ball in his testimony even referred explicitly to the presence of the name of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company on the Weissinger Beechnut label as one of his specific reasons for changing the design of the label. He was asked (R. Vol. V, p. 2559) how he "came to adopt this form of package," the question referring to the Lorillard Beech-Nut scrap tobacco package. He says in his answer (R. Vol. V, pages 2559-2560), referring to the old Weissinger Beechnut package:

> ". . . this package was out of date; in the first place, it had too much reading matter on it. . . . It had the name of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company that had long since gone out of business. . . ."

So the Lorillard Company eliminated the name of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company and also the name of the Luhrman & Wilbern Company. These names had formed a quite conspicuous feature of the Weissinger Beechnut labels (specimen of the label at page 73, ante), vastly more conspicuous both in significance and as an element of the design than a small letter "G" in a circle no larger than a pea. The elimination of these names and the identifying squirrel, together with the complete transformation of all the rest of the label into an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut label are as clear and loud an expression of the intent of the Lorillard Company to abandon the trade-mark of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business as an express declaration in words could be. Aside from an express declaration of abandonment, hardly to be expected of an opponent in a contested case, we would have difficulty in imagining a more explicit declaration of intention to abandon a trade-mark than that made by the Lorillard Company in the suit at bar.

A clear statement of the principle that a trade-mark cannot outlive the good-will of the business which it had previously symbolized appears in the opinion of Judge Showalter, Circuit Judge, in Royal Baking Powder Company v. Raymond, 70 Fed. 376. In that case the right of the plaintiff, Royal Baking Powder Company, rested on continuous use of the word "Royal" as a trade-mark for baking powder since about the year 1873. Defendant, Raymond, started a baking powder business in 1894, using the trade-mark "Royal London," but with the "Royal" more conspicuous than the "London," and he claimed the right to do so by reason of his succession to the ownership of a business which had failed in 1871, but which previous to that time had included as one of its branches the manufacture and sale of baking powder under the trade-name "Royal London." From 1871 to 1894 defendant had not made or sold any baking powder. The period of non-use of the trade-mark was longer than in the instant case and the products dealt in by the parties were the same, but the principle that a trade-mark right cannot outlive the good-will of the business to which it had been attached has the same application to both cases. In his opinion in the Royal Baking Powder case Judge Showalter said:

> "I can conceive such a stoppage of business by accident or design, even for a series of years, where the good-will, including the trade-marks, may still be found extant; that is to say, valuable, upon resumption. But when it is not shown in some satisfactory way that the trade reputation of a suspended business continues to have value,—can be exchanged or sold, for instance, for a price,—a court cannot say that a good-will remains; in other words, that there still attaches to the old proprietor any dominion over, or property right in, a mark which may once have had, but which no longer has, significance for him in the world of trade.
>
> "In the case of this defendant, even upon his own showing, it cannot be said that the good-will of the old business, which ceased in 1871, attaches to the new business, started in 1894. There is no continuity between the old and the new. The good-will of the old business, whatever such good-will may have amounted to, became extinct years ago. The word 'Royal,' or the words 'Royal London,' had no function, when defendant recommenced the baking powder business, as identifying a baking powder made by him. Any other sign or word would have answered his purpose to the same extent. The bare intent to use or adopt a word as a trade-mark signifies nothing, and confers no right, in the absence of the actual use of such mark as a trade-mark. The intent by defendant from 1871 to 1894, if he had such intent, of resuming the use of the word 'Royal' as a mark for baking powder, amounts to nothing in the way of keeping alive the function which we may assume once attached to that word as identifying a baking powder made by him. On the theory that he once had a right in the word 'Royal' as a trade-mark, his attitude with respect to that word in February, 1894, was the same as that of a stranger who then for the first time took up the baking powder business. By reason of the essential nature of a trade-mark I should say that this defendant has not the 'better right,' as insisted in his answer." (70 Fed., pp. 380, 381.)

The foregoing applies to the facts in the suit at bar with even greater force than to the facts in the Baking Powder case. Here, in addition to the disuse of the trade-mark, there is conduct—the changes in the label and copying of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark—that affirmatively shows the intention to abandon.

It is settled law that a trade-mark cannot be assigned separate and apart from the good-will of a business with which it has been associated. Though the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business had ceased long before 1913, and though there is no proof or indication of the survival of the good-will of that business in 1913, the Lorillard Company contends not only that it took a good assignment of the rights previously possessed by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company in the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark, but that, by virtue of the assignment, it derived rights which the Luhrman & Wilbern Company would not have had if it had retained ownership of and continuously used the Weissinger Beechnut mark. The rightful owner of a trade-mark has no right to so change its appearance that it is no longer recognizable by the public as his trade-mark but is substantially identical with another party's trade-mark. We believe that, inasmuch as the business in the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco ceased in 1910, and has never been resumed, the 1913 assignment was ineffective to convey to the Lorillard Company the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark, and that even a good conveyance of that trade-mark to the Lorillard Company would not justify its metamorphosis into another party's trade-mark.

In the Patent Office opposition proceeding (referred to ante, pp. 41 to 44) the Lorillard Company contended, as in this suit, that its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark was a continuation of the use of the Weissinger Beechnut trademark, and that its title extended back to the Weissinger Company's date of adoption of the mark, 1898. The Patent Office Examiner of Interferences stated his conclusions on this point as follows:

> "What seems to the examiner of more significance is the character of the label found on opposer's Exhibit No. 16 [1915 Lorillard Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco package] when considered in connection with opposer's Exhibit No. 17 [the Weissinger 'Beechnut' tobacco package]. Considering the great care which is exercised by traders generally to keep intact the dress and style of the label for the purpose of preserving any good-will that may be symbolized thereby, the difference between the label found on Exhibits 16 and 17 seems highly significant. . . . If the originator of the label shown on opposer's Exhibit No. 16 was aware at the time of its adoption in 1915 of the label found on opposer's Exhibit No. 17, Exhibit No. 16 is mute testimony that its originator deemed the good-will that was at one time symbolized by opposer's Exhibit No. 17 to have in 1915 little or no value. The further circumstance that the opposer carefully preserved the dress of other brands which it had acquired from its predecessors tends to emphasize this significance of Exhibit No. 16. (See Beech-Nut Cross-Exhibits 1, 1*a*, 2, 2*a*, 2*b*, 2*c*, 2*d*, 3 and 4 in connection with the deposition of Bowman, a witness for the opposer.)

"It seems to the examiner that in February, 1915, the trade-mark right evidenced by opposer's Exhibit No. 17 was not merely sleeping but actually dead and abandoned. The circumstances of this case resemble those found in the case of Levering Coffee Company v. Merchants Coffee Company, 181 O. G. 1075; 1912 C. D., 547; 39 App. D. C., 151. In view of conclusion just referred to, whatever rights the opposer may have to use the word 'BEECHNUT,' it is believed, must be predicated on its use which was commenced in February, 1915." (R. Vol. VI, p. 2821.)

In Levering Coffee Company v. Merchants Coffee Company, 39 App. D. C. 151, referred to by the Patent Office Examiner of Interferences in the foregoing quotation, the parties were involved in the Patent Office in an interference, the issue being the right to use the word "Hygeia" as a trade-mark for coffee. The Merchants Company adopted the word "Hygeia" as a trade-mark in 1898 and used it continuously thereafter. The Levering Coffee Company in 1881 and thereafter made shipments of coffee contained in packages bearing the word "Hygeia." Eugene Levering, Jr., succeeded to the business of the firm on November 30, 1900. Before the books of the firm were produced he testified to continuous use by the firm of the trade-mark "Hygeia" for coffee down to the time he succeeded to the business. The books disproved this testimony. The books showed that for two or three years prior to 1897 the sales of the Hygeia brand of coffee were infrequent and inconsequential, and that from 1897 to 1902 there was a complete non-user of the Hygeia trade-mark. Beginning in 1898 the Levering Company put a new brand of coffee, called "Hioja" on the market. The final decision in this case was by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia on appeal from the Patent Office. The following is quoted from the court's opinion:

> ". . . the gradual falling off of sales under that brand, the final complete cessation of those sales under the circumstances mentioned, the adoption soon after of the similar mark 'Hioja,' the period of time which elapsed before the old mark was again used, the fact that the new use was not begun until several years after a rival concern, in the same city, had established a good business under that mark, the failure to call available members of the old firm to explain away the inference naturally resulting from the acts and circumstances detailed, all lead to the conclusion that when, in 1897, appellant's predecessors discontinued the use of this mark they did so with the intent to abandon it. . . . It is not unlikely, in our view, that the revival of the use of this mark by appellant was the result of its successful use by appellee, rather than the result of the intent of the predecessors of appellant not to abandon it."

The District Court, referring to the continuity of the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco business and the Weissinger Beechnut business and to the differences between the labels, said:

> "The old formula was not to be dealt in any longer and it seems to us that the change in the formula justified a change in the decorative feature of the package which was to contain this new blend or mixture." (R. Vol. V, p. 2675.)

The foregoing statement that one is justified in applying a new label to a new product is quite true, but by no logical process does it establish the proposition that the use of the new label is lawful and right despite the fact that it has been divested of any resemblance to the old label and made essentially identical with another party's trade-mark. The Court of Appeals based its opinion solely upon its classification of chewing gum and the other products of the Beech-Nut Company as foods, and its ruling that the Beech-Nut Company's rights do not extend to anything other than foods, and gave no weight to the Lorillard Company's claim that its present use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark is a continuation of the Harry Weissinger tobacco business and trade-mark.

We contend that the application of the law to the facts of this case results in the following conclusions:

1. That the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark was abandoned by the Luhrman & Wilbern Company in 1910 by reason of the fact that the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco was never offered for sale after that year and the fact that the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark has never been used since that year by either the Luhrman & Wilbern Company or the Lorillard Company.

2. That the Lorillard Company took no title to the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark by the assignment of 1913 by reason of the fact that the evidence shows that the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco business went out of existence in the year 1910 and was never resumed, and the fact that the evidence fails to show that the good-will of that business continued to exist until the year 1913, but indicates the contrary, in that the admitted reason for discontinuing the business in 1910 was the fact that there was no demand on the part of the public for the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco.

3. That even if it be assumed that the Lorillard Company obtained ownership of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark in 1913, it abandoned that trade-mark by failure ever to use it on any product, thereby causing and permitting the good-will and the trade-mark to expire and pass from the knowledge and memory of the public.

4. That even if it be assumed, as in the next preceding proposition, that the Lorillard Company obtained ownership of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark in 1913, it abandoned that trade-mark not only by disuse and permitting it to be forgotten by the public, but also abandoned it by using the word "Beech-Nut" as a part of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's Beech-Nut trade-mark, thereby repudiating and disclaiming any connection between the word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut" and the Weissinger trade-mark and business, and representing its significance as a symbol of the origin of merchandise to reside solely in its use as a part of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark.

5. That even if it be assumed that the Lorillard Company had in 1915 the right to use the word "Beechnut" in a proper way as a trade-mark for tobacco, the deceptive use which it has made of the word "Beech-Nut" as part of an essentially exact copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark has impressed upon the public the belief that the word "Beech-Nut" upon tobacco products signifies that such products are produced or dealt in by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and that the Lorillard Company has thereby forfeited any right or claim of right to use the word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut" in any form or design as a trade-mark for any tobacco product.

Alleged Acquiescence of the Beech-Nut Company in the Lorillard Company's Use of the Beech-Nut Trade-Mark Was Temporary Inaction of the Beech-Nut Company Induced by the Lorillard Company's Misrepresentation of the Facts.

In Part II of the Statement of the Case (ante, p. 26) we have set forth the facts which establish beyond question that the Lorillard Company silenced the Beech-Nut Company's protest against appropriation of its trade-mark by representing, contrary to the fact, that the Lorillard Company and its predecessors had used the word "Beechnut" as a trade-mark for tobacco continuously since the year 1898. The Beech-Nut Company not only protested against the misappropriation of its trade-mark, but also informed the Lorillard Company of its certain knowledge that the public was deceived by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark (letter dated "7/2/15," R. Vol. VI, p. 2892), gave the Lorillard Company the name and address of a dealer who had written to the Beech-Nut Company asking for the "best jobbing price on Beech-Nut scrap tobacco" (letter dated "9/2/15," R. Vol. VI, p. 2896), and the name of another dealer who had written to the Beech-Nut Company ordering five cases of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco (letter dated "9/20/15," R. Vol. VI, p. 2901). It would involve a violent strain of credulity to believe that the Lorillard Company did not intend the deception caused by its use of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's trade-mark even in the absence of specific proof of knowledge of the deception (ante, pp. 156, 157), but these letters, written at the very start of the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco business make it impossible to doubt that the Lorillard Company had full knowledge of the deception from the start and intended to utilize it.

That the misrepresentation made by the Lorillard Company was deliberate and intentional is shown not only by the fact that it was made in answer to the Beech-Nut Company's protest and for the purpose of inducing the Beech-Nut Company to believe that its protest was groundless, but the deliberate and studied character of the misrepresentation is further shown by the fact that the Lorillard Company's representative stated that the Lorillard Company and its predecessor had continuously used the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark since 1898 "as shown by records in my office" (ante, p. 27; R. Vol. VI, pp. 2893-94). This left no possibility of questioning the accuracy of the statement other than on the ground that it was a flat and deliberate falsehood. When the representative of a large business says that the records of the business show continuous use of a certain trade-mark for a specified period of time there can be no appeal among honorable men from the accuracy and finality of the statement.

As a matter of fact, the records referred to show the precise opposite of continuous use, namely, that there was a complete discontinuance of such use from and after the year 1910 (ante, p. 47). The representative of the Lorillard Company either said that continuous use was shown by the records without ever looking at the records, or he examined the records and then told the Beech-Nut Company that they showed the precise opposite of what they did show. There was not even a remote possibility of accident in this reference to the records. The representative of the Lorillard Company knew whether he had examined the records or not, and if he had examined them he knew whether they showed continuous use of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark or not.

The Beech-Nut Company had no means of ascertaining the facts other than from what the Lorillard Company said, and the Beech-Nut Company had no reason to doubt or entertain the slightest suspicion of the accuracy and truthfulness of what the Lorillard Company said. In a country of the size of the United States in which there is no universal registry of trade-marks it would be impossible to establish the negative proposition that a certain trade-mark had not been in continuous use from 1898 to 1915. The truth of the matter was known to the Lorillard Company, and there was not the remotest reason why the Beech-Nut Company should not believe, as it did, what the Lorillard Company said.

In the Statement of the Case (ante, pp. 29 to 31), we have stated the facts showing that in the year 1898 both the business of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, at Louisville, Kentucky, and that of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, at Canajoharie, New York, were being conducted on a small scale, with not the slightest indication, or probability, that they were anywhere being conducted in the same territory, or that either of them was sufficiently known to the public either by reason of the size of its business or the character and variety of its products, to lead the public to associate new products bearing the word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut" with either of them. If the Harry Weissinger tobacco business had been continued from 1898 to 1915, and if the original Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark had been continuously used in that business from 1898 to 1915, the Beech-Nut Packing Company would have had no legal ground for objecting to the continued use of the word "Beech-Nut" by the Lorillard Company as a trade-mark for tobacco. But contrary to the representation made by the Lorillard Company, the use of the Weissinger Beechnut trade-mark had not been continuous since 1898, its use ceased absolutely and for all time in 1910.

It is true that the Beech-Nut Company might, in 1915, have brought suit against the use by the Lorillard Company of a copy of its entire trade-mark, but the Lorillard Company's representation that its right to use a trade-mark of which the characteristic feature was the word "Beechnut" was a representation that it would be impossible for the Beech-Nut Packing Company to prevent the Lorillard Company from using that word as the dominating element of a trade-mark. The word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut" is the element of controlling importance. As a spoken word, as the spoken name of a product, distinctions in the manner of printing or the design of the label are of no effect in preventing confusion, and the appearance of the same word, even on labels of different design, would cause confusion, though quite probably not to as great an extent as that caused by the use of the word as part of a copy of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's entire trade-mark. But the apparent impossibility of enjoining the greater cause of conflict, the use of the word "Beech-Nut," caused the Beech-Nut Company to suspend its protest rather than become involved in litigation that at best could result in only a relatively small advantage.

Acquiescence may properly be ascribed to the Beech-Nut Packing Company to the extent of interpreting its conduct as equivalent to taking the position that if the Lorillard Company had the right to use the word "Beechnut" or "Beech-Nut," then the Beech-Nut Company did not think it would be good business to become involved in litigation for the purpose of attempting to enjoin the Lorillard Company from using that word in a particular design of label, namely a design imitative of that used by the Beech-Nut Company. The Lorillard plea of acquiescence therefore amounts to asserting that, so long as it did not misrepresent all of the facts, i. e., did not represent that the Weissinger label was precisely like the Lorillard Beech-Nut label, it had a perfect legal right to misrepresent enough of the facts to accomplish the intended purpose of causing the Beech-Nut Company to suspend assertion of its rights. Upon this thread of fallacy hangs the Lorillard Company's charge of acquiescence in its fraudulent use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark.

In Part IV of the Statement of the Case, at pages 90-91, ante, we refer to the evidence of many specific instances in which orders for Beech-Nut tobacco were addressed to the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Mr. Lipe, who was vice-president and general manager of the Beech-Nut Company at the time he testified, told about an old stockholder of the Beech-Nut Company who, during the month preceding the time Mr. Lipe testified, which was in August, 1920, wrote to the Beech-Nut Company ordering a shipment of Beech-Nut tobacco. During the five years that had passed since the Lorillard Company put its Beech-Nut tobacco on the market this stockholder had all the time assumed that it was a product of the company in which he owned stock (R. Vol. IV, p. 2174, X-Q. 129). That many such orders were received and that they were forwarded, or the parties sending the orders were referred, to the Lorillard Company appears from the testimony of Mr. Lipe (R. Vol. IV, p. 2174, X-Q. 130), Mr. W. C. Arkell, assistant secretary of the Beech-Nut Company (R. Vol. IV, p. 2188, Q. 3, et seq., and p. 2192, X-Q. 26) and Mr. Francis E. Barbour, vice-president of the Beech-Nut Company (R. Vol. I, pp. 794, 795, X-Qs. 76, 77). But the forwarding of these orders to the Lorillard Company is evidence only of the fact that the parties who sent the orders were deceived by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, and that the Beech-Nut Company had been deceived by the false representation made by the Lorillard Company.

While the mere suspension of the Beech-Nut Com pany's protest constituted definite assurance to the Lori lard Company that its misrepresentation had had th desired effect, the continued forwarding of orders fo tobacco by the Beech-Nut Company to the Lorillard Com pany during the following years must have acted t further relieve the Lorillard Company of any uneasines on the subject. As set forth in Part II of the Statemer of the Case at pages 33 to 35, ante, the Lorillard Com pany in the year 1919, at the suggestion of the Beech-Nu Company, proceeded against another tobacco manufa turer, the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, which had starte to use the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for tobacc products. This circumstance has significance in that shows that the Lorillard Company had specific and direc notice that the Beech-Nut Company asserted its exclusiv rights in the word "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark agains all tobacco manufacturers and dealers other than the Lo illard Company. The Beech-Nut Company sent to th Lorillard Company a letter in which counsel for th Beech-Nut Company stated that the fact that the Beech Nut Company had filled orders for the Beech-Nut Stogi Company would not have any bearing upon "you [the Beech-Nut Company's] right to stop the us by them of your mark" (ante, p. 34). There wa no conceivable circumstance other than the misrep resentation made by the Lorillard Company in 191 that could cause the Beech-Nut Company to believe tha it had the right to stop the Beech-Nut Stogie Compan from using the word "Beech-Nut" but had no right t stop the Lorillard Company from using that word.

As set forth in Part II of the Statement of the Cas (ante, p. 39), when the Beech-Nut Company learned, i the year 1919, that the Lorillard Company was plannin to extend the use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark to ciga ettes the Beech-Nut Company again protested, and as defensive measure sold a few boxes of cigarettes in boxes bearing the word "Beech-Nut," and applied to the Patent Office for registration of that word as a trade-mark for cigarettes. The Lorillard Company opposed this application for registration and in its notice of opposition filed in the Patent Office pleaded continuous use of the word Beech-Nut since 1898 as a trade-mark for tobacco. The Beech-Nut Company in its answer admitted all of the formal and other allegations of the Lorillard Company the truth of which its officers had personal knowledge, and pleaded a general denial as to the rest of the allegations. It was this general denial, made without the slightest anticipation, or reason to believe, that the Lorillard Company would have the slightest difficulty in proving what it had said in 1915 was shown by the records of its office, that brought out the fact that the Lorillard records do not show anything of the kind, but, on the contrary, show complete dis-use from and after the year 1910. Had it not been for the controversy about the cigarettes the Beech-Nut Company would never have learned that the Lorillard Company did not tell the truth in 1915. The abstract of the evidence contained in Part II of the Statement of the Case shows conclusively that the acquiescence charged by the Lorillard Company was the temporary inaction of the Beech-Nut Company induced by the Lorillard Company's misrepresentation of the facts made in 1915 for the purpose of concealing the unlawfulness of its use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark.

Damage.

The use by the Lorillard Company of the trade-mark and trade-name of the Beech-Nut Company converts the Beech-Nut Company's right to the exclusive enjoyment of its reputation and the good-will of its business into the mere right to enjoy and use that reputation and good-will in common with the Lorillard Company, and with anyone who desires to utilize the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company in the sale of any commodity not heretofore dealt in by the Beech-Nut Company. The damage lies in the conversion of an exclusive owner into a mere tenant in common. That specific damage results from such a conversion needs no demonstration. The mere conversion is damage.

The Lorillard Company has defended its position on the principle that no one may have an exclusive right in the use of a word or other symbol as a trade-mark except in connection and association with an established business, and that as the Beech-Nut Company has no business in tobacco it has no legal right to prevent others from using its name and trade-mark in the tobacco business. But there is a vital difference between the association of a trade-mark with a business, and its association merely with the sale of some particular commodity or commodities. The Beech-Nut Company's trade-mark is associated with its business generally, and not merely with the sale of particular commodities. That this is so, and that it is recognized by the public, is shown by the universal acceptance by the public of the Lorillard Beech-Nut tobacco products as products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

We find nothing in any of the decisions of this Court to give support to the view that the exclusive right of the owner of a trade-mark or trade-name is confined to its use on the very commodities in connection with which he has used it, but we do find expressions indicative of the contrary view. In the concluding paragraph of the quotation on page 268, post, from Mr. Justice Pitney's opinion in the Hanover Star Milling case (240 U. S. 403) a trade-mark is referred to as the subject of property "in connection with an existing business," not in connection with the sale of a particular commodity. And in the opinion of this Court in the Simplex case Mr. Justice Sutherland refers to the purpose of the law of unfair competition and trade-marks as "to prevent one person from passing off his goods or his business as the goods or business of another" (269 U. S. 372, 380). This statement was made in a case involving parties who dealt in different and non-competing commodities, and involves, as does the opinion in its entirety, recognition of the principle that the exclusive rights of the owner of a trade-mark are not to be arbitrarily confined to the particular commodities upon which he has used it, but may extend to any business in which the use of that mark will indicate to the public that the business is his. When this Court stated that the object of the law is "to prevent one person from passing off his goods or his business as the goods or business of another," we believe the distinction between "goods" and "business" was made advisedly, and for the purpose of making the protection of the law commensurate with the demand of justice.

The injury inflicted upon the Beech-Nut Company by the Lorillard Company's appropriation of its name and trade-mark lies primarily in the fact that the public has been led to believe that the Beech-Nut Company is conducting a business with which it is not connected and which it does not and cannot control. The most valuable asset of the Beech-Nut Packing Company is the high regard in which it is held by the public—the good-will of its business. The good-will of such a business is the result of years of upright dealing accompanied by extensive and costly advertising. Its value may well exceed that of the physical assets of a company whose business consists in the sale of commodities in small quantities to millions of customers. The perpetuation of good-will depends absolutely on the continued and constant observance of the highest standards of business ethics. Good-will is at once the most valuable and the most easily destroyed of the assets of a business. With rigid observance of high and wise standards of business, good-will is a permanent asset, subject to injury and destruction only by failure of the law to enjoin strangers from impersonating the party who has won the good-will of the public. The claim of a business enterprise to protection of its good-will is merely a request that one be protected in the ownership of that which he creates. Other titles rest upon appropriation from the store of nature, or grants from government which may ultimately trace back to mere force and conquest, but good-will is something absolutely created by the party who claims its exclusive enjoyment. There is every reason, both legal and ethical, why the law should most scrupulously guard and protect this species of property.

During the years that have passed since the law first accorded protection to business good-will, that protection has been limited to the conditions existing at the time the protection of the courts was invoked. In an age when world-wide advertising was unknown, when business enterprises were small compared with present-day operations, and trade-marks and trade-names had value only in connection with a single commodity, the courts formulated the general principles of law in terms applicable to the facts before them. At a time when no purpose would be served by applying a trade-mark or trade-name to different commodities, and when no one did so, courts were not called upon to formulate rules that would be applicable literally to present day conditions,—conditions that no one then even dreamt ever would or could exist. And in formulating principles of law applicable to conditions of those past times it was sufficient and proper that the principles be limited to the adjustment of the rights of men under conditions then existing. At a time when no wrong had ever been done by the misappropriation of a trade-mark for use on goods different from those to which the owner of the trade-mark applied it, and when no one foresaw or had any reason to speculate upon the possibility of wrong in the use of the trade-mark on different goods, full justice was done by the unlimited application of the principle that the same trade-mark may be used by different parties upon different goods, and likewise by the principle that there is no unfair competition in the absence of an effort by different parties to get the same trade of the same people at the same time. It would have been a visionary attempt at the impossible for the courts of former times to have undertaken to formulate principles for the regulation of conditions which they were called on to adjudicate that would be literally applicable to any conditions that might arise in the future. We do not criticise the legal acumen of jurists who have said that the owner of land owns it from a point at the center of the earth below, to the depths of space above, nor do we attempt to apply that principle when an aeroplane passes over our land.

The changes that have come about in the magnitude and manner of conducting business enterprises have prompted the courts to formulate new and broader statements of the law of trade, but we take it that the greater breadth of these modern rules does not result from the development of any new principle, or of any principle that conflicts with the principles applied by courts of former times. The earlier courts stated the principle in a form that included all of the then known ways by which one man could misappropriate another man's identity and reputation. Modern courts in doing the same thing have found it necessary to state the same principle in broader terms simply because material progress has given rise to new ways in which one man may appropriate another's identity and reputation. In the eighteenth century a hat merchant could not appropriate a publisher's reputation by using the publisher's trade-mark, but such a thing may happen in the twentieth century as found by the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the Vogue case (ante, p. 201).

In former times when the appropriation of good-will was proved in cases where both parties dealt in the same commodity there was always specific damage, for the true owner of the trade-mark was deprived of sales when the goods of the other party were substituted for his goods. Where the difference between the goods sold by the parties is such that the goods of one cannot be substituted for those of the other, there can be no loss of sales by substitution of goods and no specific damage from this source. Where the goods dealt in by the parties are different, the legal analysis of the wrong may take different forms. Business good-will may be regarded as absolute property and its misappropriation as a trespass to be enjoined without proof of damage. Or the misappropriation of good-will, accompanied by damage, may be regarded as a tort. Judge Gray, in the opinion of the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in Sharpless v. Lawrence (213 Fed. 423), said (p. 426) that in theory a technical trade-mark, like a patent right, is a species of property and that its appropriation is referred to as trespass, but that in unfair competition cases the complaint is not of an appropriation of property but of a tort.

All cases involving appropriation of business good-will by means other than the appropriation of what are known as "common law" or "technical" trade-marks have come to be referred to as "unfair competition" cases. This use of the word "competition" doubtless arose from the fact that during the early development of this branch of the law the cases all involved parties who were dealing in the same commodity and were therefore in direct competition. A study of the cases gives ground to the belief that the use of the word "competition," used originally merely as descriptive of the class of cases embraced in the phrase "unfair competition cases," has come to be accepted in many instances as a word of limitation, with the effect of sometimes withholding legal relief in cases where the misappropriation of good-will has been accomplished by means not involving direct competition in the sale of goods.

In the instant case the court below says (R. Vol. V, p. 2701), with reference to the parties to the suit: "There was, therefore, no competition between them unfair or otherwise." It is quite obvious that if these cases are to be reasoned in words rather than in substance, the conclusion that there can be no unfair competition if there is no competition of any kind ends the matter. Of course, it might be said that there is competition between the parties as to which of them has the right to use the word "Beech-Nut" in the tobacco business, but we do not consider that any argument that consists in attempting to conform the facts to words reaches the root of the matter. The only sound and thorough analysis of the subject is one that starts with a definition of the right to be protected and proceeds with a dissection of the substance, uncontrolled by refinements and distinctions of terminology. Such an analysis is found in the opinion of this Court by Mr. Justice Pitney in Hanover Star Milling Company v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403, from which we quote the following:

> "The redress that is accorded in trade-mark cases is based upon the party's right to be protected in the good-will of a trade or business." (240 U. S., p. 412.)
>
> . . . . . .
>
> "Courts afford redress or relief upon the ground that a party has a valuable interest in the good-will of his trade or business, and in the trade-marks adopted to maintain and extend it. The essence of the wrong consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor for those of another [citing cases].
>
> "This essential element is the same in trade-mark cases as in cases of unfair competition unaccompanied with trade-mark infringement. In fact the common law of trade-marks is but a part of the broader law of unfair competition [citing cases].
>
> "Common law trade-marks, and the right to their exclusive use, are of course to be classed among property rights, Trade-Mark Cases, 100 U. S., 82, 92, 93; but only in the sense that a man's right to the continued enjoyment of his trade reputation and the good-will that flows from it, free from unwarranted interference by others, is a property right, for the protection of which a trade-mark is an instrumentality. (240 U. S., pp. 412-413.)
>
> . . . . . .
>
> "In short, the trade-mark is treated as merely a protection for the good-will, and not the subject of property except in connection with an existing business." (240 U. S., p. 414.)

The opinion from which the foregoing passage is quoted was written in a case where the contesting parties dealt in the same commodity, flour, but the reasoning upon which the analysis proceeds is independent of the nature of the commodities the parties dealt in. The reasoning of the Court is not based upon the substitution of one man's goods for the goods of another man and the consequent loss of sales, but is based upon the broader ground of impairment of the good-will of a trade or business. In saying, as quoted above, that "The essence of the wrong consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor for those of another" it is quite probable that this Court had in mind only the facts of the case before it, where both parties were selling the same commodity, but both the words and the reasoning to which they give expression are applicable with equal force to a case in which the parties deal in different commodities. The basic right is the right to protection of the good-will of a business. If a stranger falsely represents his goods to be the product of that business and thereby impairs or destroys its good-will, the right of the owner of the business to protection of the good-will attached to it has been violated, regardless of the character of the goods dealt in by the stranger. If the stranger deals in the same kind of goods that are dealt in in the business which he has impersonated, then there will be specific injury in the diversion of particular sales, but injury to the good-will of a business may be caused without direct competition in the sale of goods.

In the instant case we have proved injury in the impairment of the reputation of the Beech-Nut Company as a producer of goods of the highest grade and best quality only, and have proved special damage in the loss of the trade of people who ceased dealing with the Beech-Nut Company on account of their antagonism to any company that they thought dealt in chewing tobacco and cigarettes (ante, pp. 76-80). But we believe that, when a party shows that a stranger has impersonated him, and is conducting a business under his name, with resulting deception of the public which makes that party responsible in the mind of the public for a business in which he has no interest and over which he has no control, there is a complete cause of action calling for legal redress regardless of whether special damage is or is not shown. That general damage to the Beech-Nut Company resulted from the impairment of its reputation by the cheap and inferior quality of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes is apparent from the testimony reviewed in the Statement of the Case (ante, pp. 102 to 112). An interesting paper which contains a discussion of this point appears in the Columbia Law Review for February, 1925. The writer, under the title "Appropriation of Trade Symbols by Non-competitors," comments on the decision of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co. (300 Fed. 509, which case is discussed ante at page 201). The entire article is interesting and instructive, but we shall refer here only to the points directly involved in the instant case. After referring to the fact that in the Vogue case there was no direct competition between the parties the writer says:

> "The plaintiff obviously could not lose the sale of a hat to the defendant. Thus the case is not one which can be justified under the ordinary principles which govern the law of unfair competition in this limited sense. On the other hand, the plaintiff is in a position where he may lose something just as valuable from his point of view. This is what the court seems to have had in mind. It founded its decision on the assumption that because the plaintiff's magazine was generally known as an authority on style there was reasonable likelihood of injury to the plaintiff through the defendant's misrepresentation, since persistence in marking with this name articles which might be unfit, undesirable or out of style, might drive away vast numbers of those who customarily purchased the plaintiff's magazine. The forcefulness of this contention is at once apparent. Thus if X manufactures an inferior grade of automobile tires and calls them Overland tires, a falling off in the sale of Overland automobiles is likely to reflect the practice." (Columbia Law Review, February, 1925, pp. 200-201.)

Following the passage above quoted the writer states that if the doctrine of trade names is to be carried over bodily into the field of disparagement of goods, as opposed to defamation of the person, account must be taken of the fact that in actions at law for disparagement of goods courts insist that there be an allegation of special damage. The author then puts the question whether the Vogue case can be taken to represent a relaxation in equity of the rule which requires special damage, and observes that such a tendency has appeared before in Elgin Nat. Watch Co. v. Loveland, 132 Fed. 41, in the Overland case, the Aunt Jemima case, the Peninsular Chemical Co. case (the three cases last referred to are discussed ante at pages 206, 192 and 186), Eastman Co. v. Kodak Cycle Co. (English), 15 R. P. C., 105, and Walter v. Ashton, [1902], 2 Ch. 282 (discussed ante at pages 194, 197 to 200). The author then continues as follows:

> "But, even if it be conceded that the plaintiff may obtain an injunction merely upon proof of general damage, the problem is not without its difficulties. Obviously, a mere falling off in business would not be sufficient to ground an injunction. Some connection between the plaintiff's loss and the defendant's conduct must be shown. It would seem to follow, therefore, that the plaintiff would be unable to show general damage unless the defendant's goods were of an unsatisfactory quality. This raises a question not easy of solution. On the other hand, the plaintiff may well argue that even though the defendant is not now making goods of a quality which can be complained of, yet he should be restrained from getting into a position where he can at any moment cause the market to be flooded with an inferior grade of merchandise which, in the minds of the public, will be associated with the plaintiff, to his irreparable injury.

> "A third point remains to be considered. The possibility of expansion is an important item. Ford may at any time decide to manufacture tires; Childs may wish to operate a group of restaurants in Wyoming. . . . The rule should be formulated as follows: One who is using a trade name is entitled to protection against its use by others upon articles which in their general characteristics, construction or use are so closely allied with the products of the user as to render it likely that the user himself may desire to manufacture such articles." (Columbia Law Review, Feb'y, 1925, pp. 202-203.)

In the concluding paragraph of the article in the Columbia Law Review, the author states that the injunction in the Vogue case could not be supported on the theory of the protection of the plaintiff's right to expansion of its business, and that in this respect the Vogue case differs from most of the previous cases tending to dispense with the requirement of special damage. The article concludes with the following passage:

> "The plaintiff [in the Vogue case] was making use of a symbol which was admittedly of great practical value to him; the defendant appropriated this symbol to himself. In determining whether or no a practice such as this should be restrained, the court should ask, 'Does the defendant's conduct tend to make the plaintiff any poorer? True, he has obtained something without the expenditure of any effort on his part, but is the plaintiff a loser or is he likely to lose anything thereby?' Leaving aside all consideration of the question of disparagement, in the instant [Vogue] case, the value of the plaintiff's symbol depended in large part upon its uniqueness. Employed in the manner described, it was indicative in the public mind of the plaintiff's magazine. The direct tendency of the defendant's action was to destroy this association. If lack of precedent alone offered an obstacle to relief, it is difficult to quarrel with the decision. Relaxation which is healthy growth is always to be commended." (Columbia Law Review, February, 1925, page 204.)

The decrees in all of the cases discussed herein on pages 186 to 221 and in the English cases which we have referred to were grounded upon general damage. But in addition to the fact that the courts which decided these cases based their decisions upon the general principles of equity, we believe that there is specific statutory authority for the grant of such injunctions upon proof of general damage.

Section 19 of the Trade-Mark Act of 1905 (33 Stat. L. 729), as heretofore stated (ante, pp. 127-128) provides that the courts "shall have power to grant injunctions, according to the course and principles of equity, to prevent the violation of any right of the owner of a trade-mark registered under this act, on such terms as the court may deem reasonable." The expression "any right" must have been used advisedly and with intent to accord redress for any wrong, for in Section 16, which provides the remedy in actions at law, the wrong is strictly defined as consisting in the use of the trade-mark "in connection with the sale of merchandise of substantially the same descriptive properties," and the verdict is referred to as for "actual damages" which may be increased three-fold by the court. To limit the injunctive relief provided by Section 19 to cases in which the violation of right has caused special damage would impose upon the statute a limitation inconsistent with the phrase "violation of any right," and withhold the power to enjoin a threatened and impending injury in the absence of previously inflicted special damage.

Coming now to the fact that the word "Beech-Nut" is the dominant element of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's corporate name, and is the trade-name by which its line of products is universally known, it is apparent that the use of the word "Beech-Nut" by the Lorillard Company is not only a trespass upon the Beech-Nut Company's property right in its trade-mark, but is also an offense of the kind classified under the term "unfair competition." This aspect of the case is one that has been treated in the past as a tort. While the point is not material here, since damage has been proved, it appears that a property right is as fully involved in the misappropriation of a corporate or trade-name as in the misappropriation of a trade-mark. The property right resides in the good-will of the business, and a trade-mark, or a corporate or trade-name are but symbols of that right—instrumentalities for publishing the fact that the goods upon which it appears, or in connection with which it is used, are goods to which the good-will attaches. The property right is equally misappropriated whether it be misappropriated by the wrongful use of a trade-mark, a trade-name or a corporate name. In this particular any distinction between a trade-mark case and an unfair competition case seems to be merely a distinction between different instrumentalities by the misappropriation of which the same wrong is committed. We therefore believe that, aside from the Lorillard Company's appropriation of the Beech-Nut trade-mark, the use by the Lorillard Company of the Beech-Nut Company's corporate and trade-name has been a wrongful invasion of the Beech-Nut Company's property right in the good-will of its business.

In the passage above quoted from this Court's opinion in the Hanover Star Milling case the statement is made that "The essential element is the same in trade-mark cases as in cases of unfair competition unaccompanied with trade-mark infringement," a conclusion which flows inevitably from the analysis of the wrong as a violation of a party's right of property in the good-will of his business. Our contention that a property right is involved in unfair competition cases as fully as in strictly trade-mark cases also finds support in the statement in the passage above quoted from the opinion in the Hanover Star Milling case where this Court says that common law trade-marks are to be classed among property rights, "but only in the sense that a man's right to the continued enjoyment of his trade reputation and the good-will that flows from it, free from unwarranted interference by others, is a property right, for the protection of which a trade-mark is an instrumentality." That which is thus defined as giving a trade-mark right the status of property, i. e. association with the good-will of a business, confers the same status on a trade-name and often, as in the instant case, on a corporate name, in precisely the same way that it does upon a trade-mark. The word "Beech-Nut" is associated by the public with the business of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Whether the association of the word with the business has arisen from its use as a trade-mark, a trade-name, or as the salient part of a corporate name, relates only to the means by which the association has been instilled in the public mind. It is the fact of the association of the word with the business that makes the word a symbol of a property right, and no sound reason is apparent for considering the right in the use of the word a property right when considered as a trade-mark, and only as the basis for an action in tort, or of a suit to enjoin the continuance of a tort, when considered as a trade-name or the salient part of a corporate name.

The special damage which we have proved, showing the loss of trade of people who are opposed to business houses that deal in chewing tobacco or cigarettes, constitutes, of course, only a part of the total injury inflicted upon the Beech-Nut Company by the Lorillard Company's use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark. But, in cases where the opposing parties deal in the same commodity, the showing of special damage is almost invariably of the most insignificant amount compared to the total damage. Trade-marks find their greatest utility and widest use in connection with goods that are sold at retail in small amounts, and where the price is not sufficient to cause the purchaser to exercise the degree of care that he would exercise in larger transactions. Taking the Hanover Star Milling case as an illustration, the profits of the parties grew out of thousands of retail sales of flour per month. A litigant could not produce and a court could not consider evidence of more than a few illustrative instances of the loss of retail sales of flour, a number of instances that in the aggregate could hardly involve a sufficient amount of profits to rise above the plane of the trivial. Therefore the instances shown in the Record here of loss of sales resulting from the damage to the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company, while few in number, are sufficiently numerous to show the existence of special damage, and this is the only purpose served by the relatively few instances of loss of trade by which special damage is proved in cases where both parties deal in the same commodity and there is a loss of sales by substitution of the goods of one party for those of the other. The impossibility of proving the total damage resulting from the loss of hundreds of thousands of small retail sales is the principal reason underlying the award of a defendant's profits to the plaintiff who has lost sales by the substitution of the defendant's products for his own. Proof of actual damage in cases involving a vast number of small retail sales is never required as a measure of damage, but solely to establish the existence of actual damage. Therefore, whether the Lorillard Company's appropriation of the Beech-Nut Company trade-mark be considered a trespass on property rights or a tort the proof of the wrong is complete.

While no hard and fast rule can be laid down for determining the precise commodities upon which a party has the exclusive right to use his trade-mark or trade-name, it has long been established law, laid down in cases where the parties dealt in the same commodity, that a party's right in his trade-mark extends to any mark sufficiently similar to cause the public to believe that it is his (ante, p. 165). The same logic demands that a party's right in his trade-mark or trade-name should extend to the use of that mark or name upon any goods of such character, or so handled in trade, that the appearance of his mark or name on those goods causes the public to believe that they are his. The only element of importance in the use of any trade-mark or trade-name is the message conveyed to the public by its use, and both reason, and the just regulation of business conduct, demand that a party's right to the exclusive use of his trade-mark or trade-name be commensurate with that use which is understood by the public to be his.

In the very nature of things, the extent of the rights of a party in the good-will symbolized by his trade-mark or trade-name is a question individual to each case. Whether a party's trade-mark or trade-name is associated with him by the public in connection with a certain business or the sale of certain goods can be established only by direct proof of the fact or by inference from proved facts. But study of the decision of the court below in the instant case indicates that the court did not conclude from the facts that the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company, and the significance of the word "Beech-Nut" as a symbol thereof, do not extend to tobacco products. Such a conclusion would have been impossible in the face of the proved contrary. The court below simply ignored the good-will of the Beech-Nut Company as having any bearing on the suit. That the court so ignored the element of good-will is plainly shown in its statement (R. Vol. V, p. 2702) that the difference between the labels is "so great and distinct that any purchaser paying ordinary attention need not and should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived." In taking this position the court below substitutes its own judgment of what the public ought to think for proof of what the public did think. In the view of the court below the meaning of a trade-mark or trade-name upon goods is not the meaning conveyed to the public, but is the meaning which the court thinks the public ought to derive from the trade-mark. Our proof that the public was universally deceived is met by the court below with the statement that the public "need not and should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived." In effect the court below rules that the universal deception of the public has resulted solely from the carelessness or stupidity of the hundred million inhabitants of the United States in misunderstanding something that is rightly understood only by the Lorillard Company and the court below, and that the Lorillard Company, therefore, is neither responsible nor accountable for the wrong that has been done to the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

Conclusion.

We contend that the law and the facts established by the evidence support the following conclusions:

1. That since a time prior to the year 1915 and continuously thereafter plaintiff has used the word "Beech-Nut" and its Beech-Nut trade-mark upon and in connection with the sale of a large number of commodities of the kind sold in grocery, drug, tobacco and delicatessen stores and stores dealing in general merchandise, and that by maintaining a high standard of quality in the goods so sold and by extensively advertising the same plaintiff has caused the Beech-Nut name and trade-mark to be widely recognized by the purchasing public as a symbol of goods of superior quality produced by plaintiff.

2. That the word "Beech-Nut" is, and since the year 1899 has been, the dominant and identifying element of plaintiff's corporate name.

3. That in the year 1912 plaintiff registered in the Patent Office its trade-mark, whereof the word "Beech-Nut" is the dominant and principal identifying element, for upwards of sixty-seven different commodities of the kind ordinarily sold in grocery, drug, tobacco and delicatessen stores and stores dealing in general merchandise.

4. That since a time long prior to the year 1915 plaintiff has put new products upon the market under its Beech-Nut name and trade-mark, such new products being of the kind ordinarily sold in grocery, drug, tobacco, delicatessen and general merchandise stores.

5. That by reason of the large number of different commodities dealt in by plaintiff under its Beech-Nut name and trade-mark, and its established and well known custom of frequently placing new Beech-Nut products on the market, the purchasing public believed that new products bearing the Beech-Nut name and trade-mark, and offered for sale in stores of the kind where the other Beech-Nut goods were ordinarily sold, were products of the same origin as the Beech-Nut goods with which they had previously been familiar.

6. That defendant, for the purpose, and with the effect, of wrongfully appropriating to its own use and profit the good-will of plaintiff's business used the word "Beech-Nut" and plaintiff's Beech-Nut trade-mark in connection with the sale of its Beech-Nut chewing tobacco and cigarettes, and has thereby caused the purchasing public to believe that said tobacco and cigarettes were produced and sold by plaintiff, and to purchase the same by reason of their knowledge of the high quality and purity of the products dealt in by plaintiff.

7. That defendant's intention and purpose to wrongfully appropriate the good-will and reputation of plaintiff's business is shown not only by the fact that the significance of the Beech-Nut name and trade-mark as a symbol of plaintiff's goods and business was generally known, but by the further fact that defendant in its use of the word "Beech-Nut" upon its tobacco products surrounded said word with a substantially exact copy of all of the ornamental and distinctive elements of plaintiff's Beech-Nut trade-mark.

8. That defendant's use of plaintiff's Beech-Nut name and trade-mark impairs the significance thereof as a symbol of plaintiff's identity and as a guaranty that goods bearing said name or mark, and offered for sale in stores of the kind where plaintiff's goods are ordinarily sold, are goods of plaintiff's production, and that the continued use by defendant of plaintiff's name and trade-mark, and by others who may be encouraged so to do by defendant's use thereof, will injure plaintiff's business and ultimately destroy the significance and value of plaintiff's Beech-Nut name and trade-mark.

9. That defendant has injured plaintiff by causing the public to believe that plaintiff is the producer of the inferior Beech-Nut cigarettes.

10. That defendant has injured plaintiff by causing the large class of people who are opposed to the use of chewing tobacco and cigarettes to believe that plaintiff is engaged in the chewing tobacco and cigarette business.

11. That such appropriation and use by defendant of the word "Beech-Nut" in connection with chewing tobacco and cigarettes constitute infringement of plaintiff's common-law trade-mark rights, and of plaintiff's statutory rights as defined in Section 19 of the Act of February 20, 1905, ch. 592; 33 Stat. L. 728.

12. That such appropriation and use by defendant of the word "Beech-Nut" are in violation of plaintiff's right to the exclusive use of its corporate and trade name.

13. That in the year 1915 defendant made a false statement of fact to plaintiff for the purpose, and with the effect, of making it appear that defendant had a legal right to use the word "Beech-Nut" or "Beechnut" as a trade-mark for chewing tobacco; that by said misrepresentation of fact defendant concealed the wrongfulness of its use of the Beech-Nut name and trade-mark and induced plaintiff to refrain from asserting its rights until after the discovery of the true state of facts by plaintiff in the year 1920.

We contend under the law applied to the facts:

1. That plaintiff is entitled to a perpetual injunction enjoining defendant from using the word Beech-Nut, either alone or accompanied by the other elements of plaintiff's trade-mark, in trade upon or in connection with or with reference to cigarettes and tobacco in any form for chewing or smoking.

2. That plaintiff is entitled to a decree awarding to it all of the gains and profits realized by defendant from the manufacture and sale of scrap tobacco and cigarettes to which defendant has applied or in connection with which defendant has used the word Beech-Nut.

3. That plaintiff is entitled, as provided in Section 19 of the Trade-Mark Act of February 20, 1905 (33 Stat. L. 728), to a decree for damages in an amount equal to three times the actual damages caused by defendant's said wrongful acts, by reason of said acts having been committed intentionally, and with full knowledge of the wrongful and injurious consequences thereof, and by reason of the fraudulent misrepresentation made by defendant to plaintiff for the purpose of preventing, and with the effect of delaying, plaintiff's assertion of its rights.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
WALTER A. SCOTT,
JAMES R. OFFIELD,
H. MCCLURE JOHNSON,
Counsel for Petitioner.

[redacted]

APPENDIX A, DECEPTION PROVED BY PLAINTIFF'S WITNESSES.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix A is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

Extracts From Testimony of Witnesses Who Dealt in Or Used Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco Or Beech-Nut Cigarettes In the Belief That These Articles Were Products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

WILLIAM I. THOMAS, of Chicago, Illinois, a grocer (Record, Vol. I, page 469):

"Q. 3. Do you chew tobacco, Mr. Thomas?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 4. How long have you chewed tobacco?

"A. About twenty-thirty years.

"Q. 5. I show you a package of scrap tobacco, being a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3 in this case. Have you ever chewed this brand of tobacco, and if so, for how long?

"A. Tobacco?

"Q. 6. Yes.

"A. I have chewed that off and on for the last five years.

"Q. 7. Prior to the spring of 1921 whose product did you think this was?

"A. I supposed it was the Beech-Nut people that put out stuff such as bacon and chili sauce and all that class of stuff.

"Q. 8. During the time that you have chewed this tobacco have you carried it around with you in your pockets, and taken it out when you wanted a chew?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 9. Do you now think that this tobacco is put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Do I now?

"Q. 10. Yes.

"A. No. Not since I have been made wise to it last spring.

"Q. 11. And do you know who put you wise to it last spring?

"A. Some young fellow; I don't know who he was; come into the store there one day and he said he represented the Beech-Nut people, and I told him that we handled the Beech-Nut people's goods. He says, 'Do you handle Beech-Nut chewing tobacco?' I says, 'No, but I use it.' He says, 'Do you use it?' I says, 'Yes, I have been using it over'—I told him then, I believe, about four years. 'Do you think we put this out?' he says. I says, 'Yes, don't you?' He says, 'No, it is not our goods.' "

A. V. BOBB, of Chicago, Illinois, proprietor of a meat market (Record, Vol. I, page 473):

"Q. 5. Do you chew tobacco, Mr. Bobb?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 6. What brand have you chewed for the last four or five years, do you remember?

"A. Why, Beech-Nut was one of them, and Golden Twins, Climax.

"Q. 7. Is the Beech-Nut that you refer to the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco which I now show you, and which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3; is that the Beech-Nut scrap?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 8. How often, do you suppose, in the last five years you have purchased this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco; I mean, how many times a week?

"A. Now, I would not say whether it is four years or not—five years, but it is pretty close to it; about four years that I can remember; the year before I went into the army; around four years.

"Q. 9. I want an idea of how frequently you would purchase this tobacco?

"A. About once a week, maybe twice a week.

"Q. 10. And by whom did you believe that this product was put out?

"A. By the Beech-Nut Packing Company, Canajoharie, New York.

"Q. 11. And how long did you continue to believe that?

"A. Up until about—well, three months ago.

"Q. 12. And how did you find out that that was not true?

"A. By one of the salesmen, one of the Beech-Nut salesmen; he come into the store and I asked him about it; I asked him who puts up the Beech-Nut cigarettes, and he told me Lorillard's. I said, 'I thought you was putting it out,' and he said, no he didn't.

"Q. 13. I show you a package of cigarettes, being Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, Beech-Nut cigarettes. Have you seen these cigarettes before?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 14. When, and how was your attention first directed to these cigarettes, do you remember?

"A. Why, yes, I was out at Jones' pharmacy, 63rd street, and standing at the counter there, and I says, 'Beech-Nut cigarettes,' and he says, 'Yes, I got some Beech-Nut cigarettes here, put out by the Beech-Nut Company.' I says, 'It isn't the same one that makes bacon?' He says, 'Yes.'

"Q. 15. And did he mention any other product that was made by these same people?

"A. Why, chewing tobacco; that was what I was after when I was in there.

"Q. 16. Do I understand he told you the chewing tobacco was made by the same people?

"A. By the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

"Q. 17. What made you think that this scrap tobacco was a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. It had the two beech-nuts on there, the same as the bacon, and it was in an oval shape, the same as the bacon does, and red letters and blue letters, just exactly the same as it is on the bacon. I never thought of looking at what was on the package.

"Q. 18. When did you first see the name of the manufacturer on this package, do you remember?

"A. About three months ago, when I had a package and looked at it, and it said 'Lorillard's' across the top.

"Q. 19. On the back of the scrap?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 20. This was after you were advised?

"A. After I was told it was not a Beech-Nut product. That is the reason I have been chewing it all the time, because I know the Beech-Nut bacon is good, and that the tobacco ought to be the same, and I liked the taste of it very much, being in the business I am in.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 29. I understand you have been chewing this tobacco for five years?

"A. About four years; I would not say five.

"X-Q. 30. About four years.

"A. About four years.

"X-Q. 31. And you had never taken the trouble to look to see whose name was on there?

"A. Never looked at the name; just stuck it in my pocket and when I wanted a chew just took a handful out."

CARL W. NEMETZ, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, proprietor of a grocery store in which he sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 550):

"Q. 3. Do you sell tobacco products in your store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 4. I show you a package of scrap tobacco which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3. Have you ever sold this tobacco in your store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 5. How long have you sold it there?

"A. Fourteen months.

"Q. 6. During the time you sold this tobacco from fourteen months ago up to very recently, whose product did you think it was?

"A. The Beech-Nut products, same as peanut butter and the likes of that.

"Q. 7. What made you think that, do you know?

"A. The name itself is the only reason.

"Q. 8. Do you now believe this is a product of the Beech-Nut people?

"A. Well, not since it has been explained to me, I don't.

"Q. 9. How long ago was it explained to you to the contrary?

"A. Oh, in the last month.

"Q. 10. Do you know who explained it to you—whom he represented?

"A. The Beech-Nut Products.

"Mr. Hinton: Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 11. Do you handle the line of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's food products?

"A. Do you mean peanut butter?

"Q. 12. Yes.

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 13. Do you handle the chewing gum?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 14. Candies?

"A. No Beech-Nut candies, no.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 22. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. Never until Stein Brothers told me, that was after he dropped in the same day your representative was in. In fact, twenty minutes afterwards, we discussed the same thing over with him.

"X-Q. 23. What did he tell you?

"A. He told me that was made by that firm.

"X-Q. 24. P. Lorillard Company?

"A. The one made Turkish cigarettes. And in fact, I never knew who made them until he told me.

"X-Q. 25. You never took the trouble to find who they were made by, did you?

"A. No, sir, never.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hinton.

"R-D. Q. 45. Where do you get your Beech-Nut gum?

"A. Oh, from Stein Brothers and others.

"R-D. Q. 46. They are the people you get your Beech-Nut scrap tobacco from?

"A. Same people.

"R-D. Q. 47. Do you know whether the wholesale grocers, or some of them, are handling tobacco?

"A. Oh, yes; in fact, I think all of them do.

"R-D. Q. 48. Do you know whether they sell this Beech-Nut scrap?

"A. I don't know. The only reason I got Beech-Nut gum from Stein Brothers, at a time there it was pretty scarce to get and we used to gobble it up wherever we could get it from.

"R-D. Q. 49. They are tobacco jobbers?

"A. They are a tobacco and candy concern.

Recross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"R-X Q. 50. Their business isn't confined exclusively to tobacco?

"A. No, they are the same as all other tobacco concerns in this town; every one of them carries gum and candy.

"R-X Q. 51. You mean the jobbers?

"A. Yes, tobacco jobbers; they carry it as side line."

WILLIAM C. WEIGEL, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, retail grocer who sells tobacco in his store (Record, Vol. I, page 560):

"Q. 4. Do you sell tobacco products in your store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 5. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, being Plaintiff's Exhibit 3 in this case. Have you sold this tobacco in your store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 6. How long have you sold it?

"A. Oh, around two years, somewheres around there.

"Q. 7. Did the man come and sell you this tobacco, put it in your store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 8. I wish you would tell me, if you can remember, what was said on that occasion, when he came and put the tobacco in the store.

"A. I don't know whether I asked him directly, or whether he told me, but I was given to understand that this was a label that was only permitted on the very best products and was leased by the different companies that put out this product.

"Q. 9. Did you order tobacco from this man?

"A. Yes, I bought it right from the man himself, I believe they carried it around with them, if I am not mistaken now.

"Q. 10. You paid him cash for it?

"A. Yes, sir.

. . . . . .

"Q. 13. Now, whose product did you think this was, Mr. Weigel, or who did you think was responsible for the product?

"A. I naturally supposed that the Beech-Nut label was owned by some man or some company and then leased out to the people that put it out in a very high-class product.

"Q. 14. How long did you continue to believe that?

"A. Until about two or three or four weeks ago.

"Q. 15. And by whom were you then advised to the contrary, do you remember?

"A. By the Beech-Nut gum and dried beef people, Beech-Nut Packing Company, I guess it is.

"Q. 16. Do you sell Beech-Nut chewing gum in your store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 17. Do you sell other Beech-Nut products?

"A. Dried beef."

Oscar Joseph, of Toledo, Ohio, proprietor, with Mike Saba, of a grocery and meat market in which they sell tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 617):

"Q. 4. Do you sell tobacco products in this store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 5. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, in this case, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3; have you sold this product in your store?

"A. A number of years.

"Q. 6. How long have you sold it?

"A. Between six and seven years.

"Q. 7. How much have you sold, approximately, —is it a good deal or little?

"A. Oh, quite a bit. I cannot remember how much, but we sell an awful bunch of it.

"Q. 8. During this six or seven years that you have been selling this product, whose product did you think it was?

"A. Of course, the Beech-Nut people.

"Q. 9. Do you know who makes that product?

"A. I did not really know that always,—I thought the Beech-Nut people.

"Q. 10. I was in here about fifteen minutes ago and we have just come back to take this deposition. Did you in the meantime, ask a customer anything about this?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 11. And what did you ask him?

"A. I asked him, 'Who do you think makes the Beech-Nut tobacco?' He said, 'Of course, the Beech-Nut people.'

"Q. 12. Have you previously heard this matter discussed by the customer?

"A. Quite a few.

"Q. 13. What have they said?

"A. They all say—they talk about who is making the tobacco, they don't stop to think to read the name, they think it is the Beech-Nut people.

"Q. 14. Have you heard this discussed a little or a good deal?

"A. Quite often.

"Q. 15. During the past six or seven years?

"A. During the time I was doing business.

"Q. 16. Do you know the name of this customer whom you just asked about this?

"A. No, I can get you his name easy, he used to work for B. A. Berry; he is working for Wilson Company now.

"Q. 17. What is their line?

"A. Meat business.

"Q. 18. You know him personally?

"A. Yes.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 30. You never bought any of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's goods, that is, their food products, or chewing gum, that was put up like a package of scrap tobacco?

"A. Not like the package—same name, everybody thinks it is the same firm.

"X-Q. 31. You never saw that name, Lorillard's?

"A. No."

MIKE SABA, of Toledo, Ohio, partner of Oscar Joseph in a grocery and meat market in which they sell tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 622):

"Q. 4. Do you handle tobacco products in this store, Mr. Saba?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 5. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, in this case Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3; have you sold this tobacco over the counter?

"A. Yes, lots of it.

"Q. 6. How long have you sold it over the counter?

"A. Six or seven years, I used to be on the corner over there, and I moved here.

"Q. 7. Now, during those six or seven years you sold this tobacco over the counter, whose product did you think it was?

"A. I thought it was the same people—Beech-Nut chewing gum, all the same company.

"Q. 8. Did you ever hear any of your customers talk about this tobacco, and who made it?

"A. I heard some time one fellow, he thought chewing gum and Beech-Nut tobacco all one kind, the same people make it, that is all I heard, all I know.

"Q. 9. I understand the others did not discuss the question with you, the other customers?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 10. Have you ever told your customers about who makes this tobacco?

"A. No, I did not tell them—I thought the same company made them. You asked me if I thought the Beech-Nut chewing gum and tobacco were made by the same people. I said I do not know, I think it is one people. You told me yesterday. I said I did not know that before."

"Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 11. You never took the trouble to find out who made the tobacco, did you?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 12. You never read the package?

"A. No, I do not read very much, and I did not look.

"X-Q. 13. You did not pay any attention to it at all?

"A. No."

JOHN JOZSA, of Toledo, Ohio, meat cutter and grocery clerk in Saba & Joseph's store in which tobacco products are sold (Record, Vol. I, page 625):

"Q. 6. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3. Have you in the course of your working in these various stores, including this one, sold this tobacco over the counter?

"A. Yes, sir, a lot of times.

. . . . . .

"Q. 15*a*. Now, during this time that you have been selling this scrap tobacco over the counter, whose product did you think it was?

"A. I thought it was the Beech-Nut people; I never looked at the name, but Beech-Nut, I heard of those products before.

"Q. 16. You have heard of Beech-Nut products before?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 17. Can you name some of these other Beech-Nut products?

"A. Oh, they have bacon, and dried beef, and hams, and chewing gum.

"Q. 18. Do you know now who makes this product?

"A. I do not know of any one else than the Beech-Nut people.

"Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 19. What is the name of the concern that makes the Beech-Nut ham and bacon, what is their names, do you know?

"A. No, I cannot remember that, because I did not handle any of their products for quite a while.

"X-Q. 20. So you do not know really who makes the Beech-Nut bacon?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 21. You never took the trouble to read the printing on the package to see who made the Beech-Nut scrap, did you?

"A. No, generally when somebody wants tobacco in a hurry, I just grab it and give it to them.

"X-Q. 22. You never even took the trouble to look at it to see who made it?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 23. You see the name Lorillard on there, don't you.

"A. Yes."

LLOYD SCHULTZ, of Toledo, Ohio, grocery clerk, employed by Saba & Joseph who sell tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 628):

"Q. 5. Do you sell tobacco products in that store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 6. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3; have you sold this tobacco in this store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 7. For how long?

"A. Ever since I was here, that they handled it.

"Q. 8. How many years would that be approximately, or roughly?

"A. Six or seven years.

"Q. 9. Have you yourself personally handed it to customers over the counter?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 10. Have you handed it a good deal or little?

"A. Quite a bit.

"Q. 11. Now, whose product did you thing it was all this time?

"A. I thought it was all the same thing, Beech-Nut, I never knew the difference. I never looked at it and never knew the difference but what it was Beech-Nut, all comes from the same place.

"Q. 12. Can you name any other Beech-Nut things?

"A. Yes, Beech-Nut bacon, Beech-Nut peanut butter, Beech-Nut beans, and quite a few things.

"Q. 13. And chewing gum?

"A. Yes, I always said tobacco, but I know better, it ain't now.

"Q. 14. Do you know now who made this product?

"A. I know you don't make it. Before I thought it was the same people that made the gum and tobacco.

"Q. 15. Who told you?

"A. The gentleman out there the salesman, Mr. Atkinson.

"Q. 16. When did he tell you he did not make this product?

"A. Yesterday.

"Q. 17. Had he told anybody else in the store at the same time he told you?

"A. Yes, the two bosses.

"Q. 18. Mr. Saba and Mr. Joseph?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 19. Were you in the store in approximately the fifteen-minute interval between the time I first came in this morning up to the time I came back, and did you hear Mr. Joseph ask a customer about this scrap tobacco?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 20. Who was this customer?

"A. A meat salesman.

"Q. 21. Do you know him?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 22. What is his name?

"A. We call Otke, Otkenheimer is his name.

"Q. 23. By whom is he employed?

"A. By Wilson & Co.

"Q. 24. What did Mr. Joseph ask him?

"Mr. Cavanagh: That is objected to; it is calling for hearsay.

"Mr. Hinton: This is offered in corroboration of Mr. Joseph's statement.

"Q. 25. Now, what did Mr. Joseph ask him, and what did he say?

"A. He was talking about tobacco and he thought the tobacco and gum all come from one company.

"Q. 26. Who said this?

"A. This meat salesman.

"Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 27. What is the name of the concern that makes peanut butter?

"A. The Beech-Nut?

"X-Q. 28. Yes; what is the name of the concern?

"A. I never paid attention particularly to the name itself.

"X-Q. 29. So you don't know what concern made it?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 30. Same as to the bacon and gum?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 31. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Company? Tobacco people?

"A. I may have heard of them, but not paid any attention to it.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 41. You never took the trouble to read the wording on this package?

"A. No; never paid any attention to it.

"X-Q. 42. So you wouldn't know whether it was Smith, Jones or Brown's tobacco.

"A. I know it was the Beech-Nut people; that is all I know about it.

"X-Q. 43. You went by that name 'Beech-Nut'?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 44. That is all?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 45. You did not pay any attention to who manufactured it or where it came from, or anything?

"A. No."

FRANK O'CONNELL, HENRY DIECKMAN, W. SHAFFER and H. A. NEFF, all in the grocery business at Toledo, Ohio, and ISABEL SHAFFER, employed in a drug store in the same city, in all of which stores tobacco is sold (Record, Vol. I, page 633):

These witnesses testified that in the five separate stores where they are employed, they stocked and sold Beech-Nut scrap tobacco for periods ranging from one to two years, that they always believed that this tobacco was a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company until advised in November, 1921, (the month during which they testified) by a representative of the Beech-Nut Packing Company that this tobacco was not a product of that company. They all said that they purchased the tobacco through a jobber in Toledo.

ALEXANDER C. GARDNER, of Milford, Connecticut, proprietor of a grocery and confectionery store in which he sells tobacco (Record, Vol. I, page 309):

"Q. 4. Do you sell tobacco products in this store?
"A. Yes.
"Q. 5. I show you a package of cigarettes (Mr. Hinton shows witness package of Beech-Nut cigarettes) which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1. Do you remember when you first stocked these cigarettes in this store?
"A. When I did?
"Q. 6. Yes.
"A. I don't remember exactly.
"Q.7. Do you remember whether it was spring, summer, or fall?
"A. Well, let's see; I should say we got these in about the middle of winter, probably a little later.
"Q. 8. In the early spring?
"A. Yes, in the early spring.
"Q. 9. This year?
"A. Yes.
"Q. 10. When you first saw these cigarettes, by whom did you believe they were made?
"A. The Beech-Nut Packing Co.
"Q. 11. Why did you believe that?
"A. From the label, the Beech-Nut label.
"Q. 12. Do you refer to this oval device on the front of the package of cigarettes?
"A. Yes.
"Q. 13. Do you now believe they are made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?
"A. No.

"Q. 14. When did you first find out they were not made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, do you remember?

"A. There was a salesman, who informed me they were not a Beech-Nut product.

"Q. 15. Have you ever had any customers make any remarks to you over the counter about these cigarettes; if so, will you state the nature of the remarks?

"A. Why, they said if they were as good as the other Beech-Nut products they would be all right.

"Q. 16. Can you remember any other remarks that was made over the counter?

"A. Well, let's see, my mind is so full of other things—I was just trying to get these orders out.

"Q. 17. All right. Never mind that. Have you, since you knew who made these cigarettes, ever told customers they were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. No, but I have had to inform them they were not a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

"Q. 18. How often has this happened; I don't mean the exact number, but it has been freqeunt or not?

"A. Quite frequent, when they first came out.

"Q. 19. Yes. Have you ever seen a package of this scrap tobacco which is in this case, marked for identification as Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 1 (Mr. Hinton shows witness package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco), before I showed you one the other day?

"A. Not until you showed it to me.

"Q. 19*a*. I call your attention to the oval panel on the front of this package of scrap tobacco. Have you ever seen that device before?

"A. On all Beech-Nut products.

"Q. 20. Whose product would you take this to be?

"A. Beech-Nut Packing Company from the label.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 51. You don't find on that scrap tobacco a wide red oval band, with a single beech-nut, do you?

"A. No.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 55. That cigarette package hasn't that wide red band, with the name shown on it, has it?

"A. No, but I didn't remember the Beech-Nut having a red band until you called my attention to it.

"X-Q. 56. You know the oval is very old in the business?

"A. Yes, but an oval with a beech-nut is very different from an oval without a beech-nut.

"X-Q. 57. But I understood you to say you never knew of the Beech-Nut people to put out any tobacco.

"A. No.

"X-Q. 58. You have never sold any of their tobacco?

"A. No, but they have put out so many new articles lately that it was no surprise to me to see a Beech-Nut cigarette. I classed it as a Beech-Nut product."

SOLOMON S. KRAMER, of Hartford, Conn., proprietor of a delicatessen grocery and tobacco store. (Record, Vol. I, page 334):

"I am of legal age, and keep a delicatessen grocery and tobacco store at 84 Church Street, Hartford, Connecticut. I have been the proprietor of this store for five months. I have stocked and sold in this store a line of Beech-Nut products, such as jellies, jams, chewing gum and the like. I have also stocked and sold Beech-Nut chewing tobacco, similar to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3, and Beech-Nut cigarettes, similar to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1.

"I believed, until this morning, that the scrap tobacco and the cigarettes were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, the same people that make the rest of the Beech-Nut products that I carry. Customers frequently come in and ask me for Beech-Nut, and I ask them whether they want the Beech-Nut chewing gum, Beech-Nut chewing tobacco, or Beech-Nut cigarettes. One customer came in here and asked me for some cigarettes, and I said, 'why not try Beech-Nut cigarettes, they ought to be good, because I carry the rest of the line.'"

NEWTON HARRISON, of Milford, Conn., proprietor of a dry goods store and editor of an electrical trade paper, (Record, Vol. I, page 317):

"Q. 3. I show you a package of cigarettes (Mr. Hinton shows witness a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes) which is in this case, marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, and ask you if you have ever seen these cigarettes before, and if so, when you first saw them?

"A. Some time in the spring in Mr. A. C. Gardner's store.

"Q. 4. Do you remember the month?

"A. Yes, April, and I purchased a package.

"Q. 5. Why did you buy these cigarettes when you first saw them?

"A. Because I saw the character of the name and believed it to be a Beech-Nut product. I thought it was good, and I thought I would try them.

"Q. 6. You thought it was good before you bought the cigarettes?

"A. I thought it was a Beech-Nut product, I thought the package was a good package, so I tried it, believing it was a Beech-Nut product.

"Q. 7. You subsequently bought other packages?

"A. Yes, other packages.

"Q. 8. When did you first buy these cigarettes; was that in the spring?

"A. Some time in the spring, I presume; I couldn't give you the exact date, but believe it was in Gardner's store, but I have seen them in other places since then, believing it was a Beech-Nut product.

"Q. 9. Do you now believe it is a Beech-Nut product?

"A. Not since I have heard from your representatives quite recently that the Beech-Nut people have nothing to do with it.

"Q. 10. Do you remember seeing myself and another man get out of an automobile in front of Mr. Gardner's store?

"A. Last week?

"Q. 11. Last week.

"A. Yes, and I said first, 'Why don't you bring out a good grade of near beer as long as you have so many other good products?' Then you spoke to me and I discovered in a very short time that the Beech-Nut cigarette was not made by you, at which I was very much surprised.

"Q. 12. What was on this automobile we got out of?

"A. Beech-Nut stamp, the Beech-Nut trade-mark.

"Q. 13. And was it that—

"A. That was what attracted my attention.

"Q. 14. And then you said to me, 'Why don't you put out a near beer?'

"A. I was thinking of the other companies that had made near beer, and I thought in these prohibition days you might develop a nice branch of your business by use of the Beech-Nut trade-mark.

"Q. 15. Do you remember what I asked you exactly?

"A. You told me at the time, as nearly as I can recollect, that had I any particular brand in mind. I said, 'you recently came out with a Beech-Nut cigarette.' I think that was what I said as nearly as I can remember.

"Q. 16. Yes, that is my recollection. You have bought Beech-Nut products before, have you?

"A. Yes, jellies.

"Q. 17. And what has been your experience with them?

"A. They were excellent, always excellent, good quality, what we call a good brand. The name Beech-Nut seems to speak well for their ginger ale and jellies and such products as I have bought.

"Q. 18. I show you a package of scrap tobacco (Mr. Hinton shows witness package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco), which is in this case as Defendant's Cross Exhibit No. 1. Have you ever seen that brand or panel on that before; I mean have you ever seen that label before?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 19. Where have you seen it?

"A. I have seen it in Bridgeport in a tobacco store.

"Q. 20. Have you ever seen this label on any other product?

"A. Why, that particular label—

"Q. 21. Or one like it?

"A. I have looked at that label and believed it to be a label belonging to the Beech-Nut Company because the name Beech-Nut seems to be comprehensive. I naturally concluded it was a Beech-Nut product, that was my impression of it, also the cigarettes.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 22. How often did you purchase these Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Well, we will say half a dozen times. I smoke various brands. I buy Murads, Pall Malls, Chesterfields, or Egyptian, and I have been buying Salisburys lately. I tried the Beech-Nut. I have had Beech-Nut cigarettes in the house; we gave them to friends and they smoked whatever we had there.

"X-Q. 23. Have you ever heard of P. Lorillard Co.?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 24. You know them to be large tobacco manufacturers?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 25. Do you notice the name P. Lorillard Co. now?

"A. Yes, I notice it now but would not have otherwise.

"X-Q. 26. Do you notice the name Beech-Nut on there?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 27. If you had taken the trouble to notice the name Lorillard—

"A. I would have noticed it was not a Beech-Nut product, but the Beech-Nut trade-mark is so conspicuous that I didn't draw any other conclusion but that it was a Beech-Nut product.

"X-Q. 28. That is, that word Beech-Nut?

"A. That is sufficient.

"X-Q. 29. And if you had taken the trouble to examine the package and noted the P. Lorillard Co. on it you would have known it was the tobacco company's product and not the Beech-Nut Company's?

"A. Yes, but the Beech-Nut is very conspicuous and the Lorillard very inconspicuous.

"X-Q. 30. On this scrap tobacco (Mr. Cavanagh shows witness package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco), can you find the name Lorillard on that?

"A. Yes, if you know where to look for it.

"X-Q. 31. You have never seen any Beech-Nut products with any of those red radiating lines on it like that, have you?

"A. To my recollection they have a simple oval trade-mark, that is as far as I saw the goods, that is the way I remember their product. It just has a red oval with Beech-Nut in it.

"X-Q. 32. Do you know that in trade-marks it is very customary to use an oval on packages?

"A. Yes, it seems to be convenient for them.

"X-Q. 33. Did you ever hear of the Beech-Nut Packing Company putting out any tobacco product whatsoever?

"A. Not since I have been informed, I realized they haven't put out any tobacco products. It was a surprise to me to know it wasn't their product.

"X-Q. 34. You never made any particular inquiries to find out whether or not it was their product?

"A. I took it as a matter of course that it was their product.

"X-Q. 35. Because of the name Beech-Nut?

"A. Yes, because of the name Beech-Nut."

JOSEPH DE RAGO, of Hartford, Connecticut, proprietor of a general store in which he sells tobacco (Record, Vol. I, page 329):

"Q. 2. Do you handle tobacco in this store, Mr. De Rago?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 3. I show you a package of cigarettes (Mr. Hinton shows witness package of Beech-Nut cigarettes) which is in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1, being a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes. Have you sold these cigarettes in this store?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 4. How long, about?

"A. Since they came out, when they come was in the spring.

"Q. 5. Yes. Mr. De Rago, who did you believe made these cigarettes?

"A. Always believe Beech-Nut make it; also call same name, that's Beech-Nut.

"Q. 7. Yes. Is that the people who make the gum?

"A. Yes, that's it.

"Q. 8. Do you sell the Beech-Nut gum?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 9. Mr. De Rago, have you sold Beech-Nut scrap tobacco in this store?

"A. Yes, I have been selling for six years here.

"Q. 10. Who did you believe made the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco?

"A. I believe just the same, Beech-Nut make Beech-Nut scrap tobacco.

"Q. 11. Is this the scrap tobacco I show you? (Mr. Hinton shows witness package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco.)

"A. Yes.

"Mr. Hinton: The package shown the witness is produced and offered in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 3, Beech-Nut scrap tobacco.

"Q. 12. Mr. De Rago, did you ever tell people in this store that this scrap tobacco was made by the Beech-Nut people?

"A. They ask me who makes; I say I think Beech-Nut people make the same thing, they say that is right, Beech-Nut makes every thing, that's all.

"Q. 13. Now, when, if at all, when did you first find out; when was the first time you found out?

"A. Today.

"Q. 14. That the Beech-Nut people did not make this product?

"A. Today.

"Mr. Hinton: You may cross-examine.

"Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 24. During the last six years about how often have you sold this scrap tobacco? (Mr. Cavanagh indicates a package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco.)

"A. I can't tell you that, about every week, when I run short, I buy every week.

. . . . . .

Redirect Examination by Mr. Hinton.

"R-D. Q. 38. Mr. De Rago, can you tell me why it was you supposed that these things were made by the Beech-Nut people?

"A. I thought it was, it looked the same thing (witness points to oval brand on two packages), but I never looked at the name, as I told you, because I can't read and never bother with them. People say Beech-Nut makes, and I say I think so, I don't know. Beech-Nut always make them, because the same name."

JOHN MEAD (Record, Vol. I, page 342):

"My name is John Mead; I am of legal age, and am employed as a clerk in Preston's market on Asylum Street, Harford,, Connecicut. I have seen the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco on display and have bought a few packages of it and always thought it was a Beech-Nut product, made by the same people that makes the gum and other Beech-Nut products. I have seen the Beech-Nut cigarettes, similar to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, advertised and on display in Hartford, Connecticut, since the spring of 1921 and thought that these were made by the same people who made the Beech-Nut gum and other food products. I was first informed that neither the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco or the Beech-Nut cigarettes were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, on August 30th, 1921, by Mr. Ray, a representative of the Beech-Nut Packing Company."

GEORGE F. MOULTON, retail druggist, South Norwalk, Conn., who sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 376):

"Q. 3. I show you a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1. Have you handled these here?

"A. Yes.
"Q. 4. How long have you handled them?
"A. Several months.
"Q. 5. Whose product did you think these cigarettes were prior to yesterday?
"A. Beech-Nut people, of course.
"Q. 6. Do you now think they are a Beech-Nut product?
"A. From what you told me, no.
"Q. 7. When did I tell you that they were not?
"A. Yesterday.
"Q. 8. Have you yourself sold these cigarettes over the counter?
"A. I have, yes.
"Q. 9. I show you a package of scrap tobacco, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3. Whose product would you take that to be?
"A. Beech-Nut, of course.
"Q. 10. What do you mean by Beech-Nut?
"A. Made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company.
"Q. 11. Why would you take that to be a Beech-Nut product?
"A. From the name and label on it and the trademark.
"Q. 12. Have you ever seen this scrap tobacco before today?
"A. No.
"Q. 13. Have you ever seen it displayed around anywhere in this town or elsewhere?
"A. No, I have not."

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 14. From whom do you buy these Beech-Nut cigarettes?
"A. Jobers.
"X-Q. 15. Ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company?
"A. Yes, tobacconists.
"X-Q. 16. You notice P. Lorillard Company's name on the package?
"A. I do now, yes.
"X-Q. 17. You notice the name Lorillard on the scrap tobacco?
"A. I do now, yes.

"X-Q. 18. So when you first saw that package, or when you handled them first, you didn't pay any attention to the name, just glanced at the package?

"A. Well, Beech-Nut was the prominent name."

TRACY N. COLLINS, proprietor of a grocery and restaurant at Noroton, Conn., in which he sells tobacco goods (Record, Vol. I, page 378):

"My name is Tracy N. Collins; I am of legal age, and the proprietor of a grocery and general store, and restaurant, located in Noroton, Conn. I have stocked and sold Beech-Nut scrap tobacco similar to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3 for about two years, and I have stocked and sold Beech-Nut cigarettes similar to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1 since these cigarettes came out in this territory, which was in the spring of 1921. I always believed that both the scrap tobacco and the cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, the same people who make the chewing gum and other food products, until I was told by Mr. Hinton, on September 7, 1921, that the Beech-Nut Packing Company did not make either of these two products."

JOHN E. WATSON, druggist, of Chicago, Ill., who sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 411):

"Q. 9. I show you a package of scrap tobacco, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3, being a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco. Have you ever sold this product over the counter?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 10. How long have you sold it over the counter?

"A. I would be right in saying five years and perhaps more.

"Q. 11. I wish you would tell me whether you have sold very little of it or a good deal.

"A. I have had in most places good business on it.

"Q. 12. Do you now know who makes this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco?

"A. No.

"Q. 13. Prior to a few weeks ago, who did you believe made this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco?

"A. I presumed it was put out by the Beech-Nut Company, like the chewing gum.

"Q. 14. Have you ever had occasion to talk about this scrap tobacco to your customers and, if so, what would you tell them about it?

"A. I would tell them it was put out by same company as Beech-Nut gum was.

"Q. 15. Was this true for the whole period of the five years?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 16. Do you now believe that this scrap tobacco is made by Beech-Nut Packing Company—now this minute?

"A. Well, I really don't know, because I never looked up on it. I always sold it.

"Q. 17. Do you now believe that this is a Beech-Nut product or not? What do you believe about it now?

"A. I suppose that it is.

. . . . . .

"Q. 24. Did a representative of the Beech-Nut Packing Company recently come to see you, do you remember?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 25. Did he tell you whether or not the Beech-Nut people made this tobacco?

"A. I don't remember who he said made it. The best I remember he said cigarettes and tobacco weren't put up by the same people.

"Q. 26. Were or were not?

"A. Were not.

"Q. 27. How long ago was that?

"A. Perhaps three weeks ago.

"Q. 28. Now, I direct your attention, Mr. Watson, to Beech-Nut cigarettes in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, and show you a package thereof. Whose product did you think these were?

"A. I presumed they were put up by same people as Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and gum.

"Q. 29. How long have you handled these cigarettes?

"A. A short while.

"Q. 30. Have you yourself sold them over the counter?

"A. I have sold a few.

"Q. 31. Who makes the cigarettes, do you know?

"A. I cannot say that I do.

"Direct examination closed.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"X-Q. 1. Do you smoke, Mr. Watson?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 2. What do you smoke?

"A. Cigars and cigarettes, both.

"X-Q. 3. Do you chew?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 4. Did you ever buy any of that Beech-Nut scrap tobacco?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 5. You have bought it from wholesaler for drug company?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 6. Did you ever buy any Beech-Nut Packing Company products?

"A. I bought scrap tobacco and the gum.

"X-Q. 7. I am asking you did you ever buy any products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. I want to get you right. Is Beech-Nut scrap tobacco the Beech-Nut Packing Company products?

"Mr. Cavanagh: Mr. Watson, I cannot answer that question for you, but I will try to clarify the situation. You have bought Beech-Nut chewing gum. From whom did you buy that?

"A. I bought Beech-Nut gum from several stores.

"X-Q. 8. Did you buy from Beech-Nut Packing Company man?

"A. I cannot say that I did. Usually buy from jobbers."

JOSEPH S. AISENBERG, of Worcester, Mass., wholesale grocer who deals in tobacco goods (Record, Vol. I, page 148):

"Q. 2. Does your firm handle tobacco products for its grocery trade?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 3. What is the name of your firm?

"A. United Wholesale Grocery Company.

"Q. 4. What is your position with that firm?

"A. I am general manager and buyer.

"Q. 5. I show you a package of cigarettes which is in evidence in this case as 'Beech-Nut Exhibit 1.' Have you ever seen these cigarettes before?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 6. State, if you can remember, about when you first saw these cigarettes?

"A. Well, that I don't know.

"Q. 7. Well, approximately?

"A. I couldn't tell you. I remember seeing the ads in the paper when they first came out. Exactly when I don't remember; I don't know whether it is this year or less than a year ago.

"Q. 8. When you first saw these cigarettes, or ads to which you refer, by whom did you think this product was made?

"A. Well, my first impression was that they were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

"Q. 9. And do you know what led you to that belief?

"A. Well, the fact was that the Beech-Nut people, as we always knew them, were in the jams, jellies and meat business, and then they went into the candy business. I thought they just added another line to their products and had gone into the tobacco business.

"Q. 10. Can you tell me anything further about the impression you received when you first saw these Beech-Nut cigarettes, with respect to the Beech-Nut people or the rest of their line or anything of that character?

"A. Well, knowing the Beech-Nut people as I knew them, and the quality they manufacture, from the line we handle in our own business, I was very much disappointed with the appearance of the package and the price of the cigarettes. I did not think that the quality and the appearance were in line with the general character of the quality of their products.

"Q. 11. Do you now believe that these cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Well, I did believe that until I found out otherwise upon making inquiry.

"Q. 12. And do you remember, Mr. Aisenberg, how long after you first saw the ads or the cigarettes it was that you learnt upon inquiry that these cigarettes were not made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Why, I believe it was over a month or so later that I happened to be in one of the tobacco stores and I asked various things, and amongst them I asked whether the Beech-Nut cigarette was being made, or being put out, by the Beech-Nut Packing Company and I was informed to the contrary.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 20. How many people are employed by your concern?

"A. You mean salesmen?

"X-Q. 21. Entirely.

"A. I believe we employ about thirty.

"X-Q. 22. Where is your business located?

"A. 133-135 Grafton Street.

"X-Q. 23. You employ about thirty people all told?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 24. In what region do you sell your products?

"A. We ship as far as Maine; we ship New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut—of course, Massachusetts; we also make some shipments into New York State, and occasionally into Pennsylvania.

"X-Q. 25. Do you do a general grocery business?

"A. Yes.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 30. Do you handle any Beech-Nut tobacco?

"A. We have, off and on. We handle the cigarette.

"X-Q. 31. You do handle Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Occasionally we have had orders, and filled our orders.

. . . . . .

"R-X Q. 86. You know it is customary to put that wrapper on the cigarettes?

"A. Yes, but I believe I appreciate, and you do, that it is hard to find the name through tissue paper.

"R-X Q. 87. And the same way with an Arrow collar—you would see this name on it?

"A. Yes. I just want to say this word for a matter of explanation. I don't consider myself an expert as a tobacco buyer because tobacco is one of our side lines. Our large and chief line is food products, groceries, and we handle tobacco because all grocers handle it and we like to give our grocers a complete line. I don't want to appear in the light of being an expert or big tobacco man. I am not. I want to say we buy from Worcester Tobacco Company, but also Henry Freeman in town; in case one is short, we naturally go to the other. We buy from both of these men and our profit on our merchandise is always as large as if we bought direct.

Re-Redirect Examination by Mr. Hinton.

"R-D. Q. 88. Mr. Aisenberg, whom do you sell tobacco products to when you sell them?

"A. Mostly grocery stores.

Re-Recross-Examination by Mr. Cavanagh.

"R-X Q. 89. Do you sell to tobacco stores, too?

"A. Why, our percentage of sales to tobacco stores is very, very small.

"R-X Q. 90. But you do sell to them?

"A. Yes, we do, but we have about two thousand accounts on our books and I don't believe a hundred of them would be and have been of the tobacco stores on our books, but they buy very little tobacco unless they should happen to run short on their regular jobber."

BRYAN O. FOSTER, clerk at Pembroke, Kentucky, in a grocery where tobacco products are sold (Record, Vol. I, page 682):

"Q. 6. Have you handled Beech-Nut Packing Company's products?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 7. Will you name some of them you have handled please?

"A. Handled Beech-Nut pork and beans, and peanut butter and chewing gum and mints.

"Q. 8. Are you familiar with the Beech-Nut Packing Company's label?

"A. Yes, sir, I think so.

"Q. 9. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, now in evidence in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3—did you ever see a package of this tobacco before?

"(Witness examines the package handed him by attorney.)

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 10. When?

"A. The first time I remember was along in the summer.

"Q. 11. When you saw it, who did you think was putting it out?

"A. I thought the Beech-Nut Packing Company was putting it out.

"Q. 12. Why did you think that?

"A. Well, from the name and label I just supposed they were putting it out.

"Q. 13. I show you a package of cigarettes, now in evidence in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1; have you ever seen a package of those cigarettes before?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 14. When?

"A. Well, the first time that I remember for sure was along in the fall.

"Q. 15. When you saw it, who did you think was putting them out?

"A. I thought the Beech-Nut people—Beech-Nut Packing Company was putting them out.

"Q. 16. Why did you think that?

"A. From the name of the cigarettes and label on them.

"Q. 17. How long did you think this tobacco and cigarettes were put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Until the 21st day of November—I found out it was a different concern.

"Q. 18. How did you happen to learn differently then?

"A. Well, the Beech-Nut man—that is the tobacco man came in, and it happened that the Beech-Nut Packing Company's man was here the same day, and I asked Mr. Roach how come two men representing the Beech-Nut people were here the same day, and so he told me."

WILLIAM H. SAGE, of Wheaton, Ill., druggist employed in Chicago in a drug store where tobacco goods are sold (Record, Vol. I, page 417):

"Q. 8. Well, in the last two years that you have been selling tobacco and cigarettes, have you been personally handing these goods out to the customer?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 9. Have you in the past two years sold over the counter Beech-Nut chewing tobacco, similar to the package I now show you, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 10. Will you please state by whom you believed this chewing tobacco to be put out, up to the past few weeks?

"A. I always supposed it was put out by the same people who manufactured chewing gum called Beech-Nut chewing gum.

"Q. 11. Do you now believe that this product is manufactured by the same people who manufacture the chewing gum?

"A. I understand it is manufactured by Lorillard Company.

"Q. 12. How and when did you obtain the information that this product was manufactured by the Lorillard Company?

"A. In a conversation with a customer some two or three weeks ago my attention was called to the Beech-Nut cigarettes now put out by Lorillard Company. In that conversation I was informed that they were not put out by Beech-Nut people. Up to that time I was under the belief that all three of the products, the chewing gum, chewing tobacco and Beech-Nut cigarettes were all manufactured by the same people.

"Q. 13. Do you remember ever having discussed the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco with your customers, and if so, do you remember what you told them about its origin?

"A. I recall in conversation talking about cigarettes. Some customer stated that the cigarettes were a superior quality of cigarettes, and also that the chewing tobacco was. I made the statement that all of the products manufactured by the Beech-Nut Packing Company were of superior quality, stating at that time that their chewing gum with us had the largest sale of any chewing gum on the market.

"Q. 14. Do you recollect whether or not at previous times you have made similar statements during the two years that you were handling the scrap tobacco?

"A. Yes, I suppose it's been something the same. I probably made the statement many times. I don't know how many times."

CHARLES P. COOK, of Paris, Kentucky, a grocer who sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 695):

"Q. 2. Under what name, and where, do you do business?

"A. Charles P. Cook & Company, 726 Main Street, Paris, Kentucky.

"Q. 3. How long have you been in the grocery business?

"A. Over twenty-two years.

"Q. 4. Have you handled Beech-Nut Packing Company products?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 5. How long?

"A. Almost ever since I have been in business.

"Q. 6. Please name some of them that you have handled.

"A. Chewing gum, mints, breakfast bacon, peanut butter, jellies, macaroni, spaghetti.

"Q. 7. What have you found in your experience, to be the quality of Beech-Nut Packing Company's line of products?

"A. It is high class.

"Q. 8. How have they sold with you?

"A. Good.

"Q. 9. What does the Beech-Nut label on a line of goods mean to you?

"A. It means quality.

"Q. 10. Do you sell tobacco and cigars in your grocery store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 11. How long have you done this?

"A. Ever since I have been in business.

"Q. 12. Is it a common thing for grocery stores to sell tobacco?

"A. With all of them in this section of the country.

"Q. 13. Are you selling Beech-Nut chewing gum in your store at present?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 14. Where do you expose this gum for sale?

"A. In a case on top of the cigar case.

"Q. 15. Are any other of the Beech-Nut products displayed for sale near your tobacco?

"A. Well, I have got some on the shelf behind it, and in front of it, too.

"Q. 16. How close is that to the tobacco?

"A. Well, I would say that the jellies are right directly behind it and peanut butter and breakfast bacon are right opposite the case, only a few feet.

"Q. 17. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, in evidence in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3. Have you ever seen packages of this tobacco before?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 18. Do you handle it?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 19. When did you first know of it?

"A. Why, four or five years ago; first time I ever saw it a salesman came into my place of business, and stated that he was selling Beech-Nut tobacco.

"Q. 20. What occurred between you and the tobacco salesman at that time?

"A. I told him that I didn't know that the Beech-Nut Packing Company put up tobacco, and he stated that this was a new product, or one of their new products.

"Q. 21. What was the effect on you of this conversation?

"A. Well, I am not certain that I bought Beech-Nut tobacco at that time, wouldn't say positive, but I think I did. We were perfectly willing to handle it, all right enough, because we had been handling other Beech-Nut stuff, and thought the quality would be like all other Beech-Nut stuff.

"Q. 22. What makes your memory of your conversation with the Beech-Nut tobacco salesman on the day you have told about, so clear in your mind?

"A. Well, Mr. Mattox, who sells Beech-Nut stuff, was in the store at the time, and I told him that I didn't know that the Beech-Nut Packing Company put out tobacco, and he stated himself that he didn't know it either, that it wasn't on his list, he would find out about it.

"Q. 23. Would you take this package for a Beech-Nut product?

"A. Well, I can't say that. I will say that the Beech-Nut name is what appealed to me. I never paid so much attention to the package as I did to the name that was on it. That's what impressed me."

ARTHUR E. FECHTER, proprietor of a drug store in Chicago, in which he sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 437):

"Q. 2. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3. Have you ever sold this product over the counter in your store, Mr. Fechter?

"A. I have.

"Q. 3. How long have you sold it over the counter?

"A. About two years.

"Q. 4. Up to within very recently, whose product did you believe it was?

"A. Beech-Nut Company.

"Q. 5. Do you now believe that it is a product of the Beech-Nut Company?

"A. I know it is not.

"Q. 6. How did you get your information that it was not?

"A. One of the salesmen told me it wasn't.

"Q. 7. One of whose salesmen?

"A. I don't know who they are. I don't give salesmen much attention. I am bothered with them all day long. Don't know who he was.

"Q. 8. Do you remember, Mr. Fechter, whether he stated to you at the time what company he represented?

"A. No.

"Q. 9. Do you know now who makes this scrap tobacco?

"A. I do not.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 22. If you went into a store and wanted a tobacco product, such as this scrap tobacco, or a package of cigarettes, could you be fooled into taking chewing gum in place of scrap tobacco or cigarettes?

"A. No, I shouldn't think so.

"X-Q. 23. Entirely different class of goods?

"A. I wouldn't take gum for tobacco or cigarettes.

"X-Q. 24. And if a man wanted to buy some cigarettes and asked you for cigarettes or scrap tobacco, you wouldn't hand him gum?

"A. What kind of a darn fool question is that? You don't take me for a damn fool, do you? I won't listen to that stuff."

"(Witness got up and walked out of room and left office. Said he wouldn't listen to such damn fool stuff.")

"Mr. Hinton: If Mr. Cavanagh desires to continue the cross-examination, an immediate subpoena will be served upon the witness, who was voluntarily attending, and he will be produced for further examination.

"Mr. Cavanagh: That is not necessary.

"Deposition closed.

"Signature waived."

JEFFERSON D. HAYDEN, of Columbia, S. C., a grocer who sells tobacco products (Record, Vol. I, page 754):

"Q. 8. Please name some of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's products that you have handled.

"A. Beech-Nut gum, pork and beans, Beech-Nut peanut butter. Those are three that I have handled.

"Q. 9. How have they sold for you?

"A. One hundred per cent.

"Q. 10. What does Beech-Nut Company's label mean to you?

"A. It means a great deal—that is, in the line of groceries—quality.

"Q. 11. Quality?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 12. Do you keep a general line of groceries?

"A. I do.

"Q. 13. Do you sell tobacco and cigarettes along with your groceries?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 14. Is that common in your part of the country, to sell tobacco and cigarettes alongside of groceries in the same store?

"A. It is.

"Q. 15. I show you a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, now in evidence in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 3, and a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, already in evidence in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1. Have you this tobacco and these cigarettes on your shelves for sale?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 16. Do you display them in the display section of your store along with the other tobacco and cigarettes that you handle?

"A. I do.

"Q. 17. Whereabouts in your store with reference to the tobacco and cigarette section do you display for sale the Beech-Nut chewing gum?

"A. In the same section, on the bottom shelf, just below the tobacco.

. . . . . .

"Q. 23. When was the first time you ever saw a package of this Beech-Nut tobacco—scrap tobacco?

"A. October 18, 1921, when a salesman came in to see me and sold me, and sold me.

"Q. 24. When you first saw the package who did you think was putting it out?

"A. The Beech-Nut people.

"Q. 25. What Beech-Nut people?

"A. The same people who were putting out the other Beech-Nut products.

"Q. 26. Why did you think that?

"A. From the appearance of the package, all looked the same, the label and the name Beech-Nut.

. . . . . .

"Q. 47. Did you buy that dozen packages of tobacco—of Beech-Nut scrap, believing that you were dealing with the same people that were putting out Beech-Nut butter?

"A. I did.

"Q. 48. Did you sell any of it to your customers, thinking it was put up by the same company that put up Beech-Nut butter?

"A. I did.

"Q. 49. Can you tell us what you said to some of them?

"A. I says, I have a new Beech-Nut product on the market, and it should be a good seller, that it was Beech-Nut, and it ought to be all right. Beech-Nut products were good sellers, and it should be a good product if it were as good as the others were.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 85. When he came in here Larson did not tell you the tobacco was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, did he?

"A. He did not tell me who made it.

"X-Q. 86. But he gave you a receipt of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. That is the receipt he gave me.

"X-Q. 87. That receipt has no connection whatever with the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. It has not, so far as the name on it.

"X-Q. 88. As an ordinary careful man, familiar with business, as you are, when that receipt was given to you, if you looked at it you would have seen P. Lorillard, and known it was a P. Lorillard receipt, would you not?

"A. If I had observed it carefully.

"X-Q. 89. If you had looked at it?

"A. I did not look at it. If I had I would not have known whether it was the manufacturer or the jobber.

"X-Q. 90. But you would have known that it was a receipt of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. I would have known that it was headed P. Lorillard Company, but I would not know him from anybody else. He did not explain whether he was the manufacturer or jobber when I bought this."

Boston Business Men.

The eight witnesses whose testimony is quoted below are business men, brokers, mill representatives and grain merchants doing business on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. This testimony relates to the impression created by the appearance of Beech-Nut cigarettes upon sale in Boston. Robert Skene, Jr., is the representative in Boston of Arkell & Smiths Company, manufacturers of paper and cotton sacks for flour and feed, of which company Mr. Arkell is president. Mr. Arkell is also president of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. Mr. Skene's business friends, knowing these facts, referred to him for information about the Beech-Nut cigarette, and their comments quoted below show accurately the impression made upon men of their class by the use of this word Beech-Nut upon cigarettes.

ROBERT SKENE, JR., representative at Boston, Mass., of Arkell & Smiths Company, of Canajoharie, N. Y. (Record, Vol. I, page 38):

"Q. 4. Are you known among your friends in Boston as being in some way connected or familiar with the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Everybody here, around the Chamber especially, persistently associates me with the Beech-Nut Company. They seem to think that I have something to do with it in some way, all the time.

"Q. 5. My 'Chamber' you mean the Chamber of Commerce?

"A. Yes, Chamber of Commerce.

"Q. 6. I show you a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1 in this case. Have you ever seen these cigarettes before, and if so, when and where did you first see them?

"A. Yes, I have seen these. I first saw them at the cigarette-stand here in the Chamber of Commerce.

"Q. 7. When was that?

"A. In the spring of this year.

"Q. 8. About what time?

"A. The early part of this year.

"Q. 9. Were they on sale at that stand when you first saw them?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 10. Will you please state whether you had heard anything about these cigarettes prior to the time that you actually saw them offered for sale?

"A. On the floor of the Chamber quite a number of people came to me and said: 'I see that your people are getting out a new cigarette, the Beech-Nut cigarette.' And so many persisted in this, making this inquiry of me, 'Are you getting out a new Beech-Nut cigarette,' that I inquired about where they could be found and I went down to the cigar stand and got a package.

"Q. 11. When you first saw these cigarettes, by whom did you think they were made?

"A. I thought it was a Beech-Nut Packing Company product.

"Q. 12. What made you think that?

"A. Well, the Beech-Nut hyphenated, just the same as the Beech-Nut Packing Company do, and the form of the label, and the cluster under the 'Beech-Nut' and the whole color scheme, the whole general form of the label.

"Q. 13. Now, you stated you went down and bought a package of these cigarettes. Then what did you do?

"A. Of course, I examined it and found that the name Lorillard Company was on them.

"Q. 14. And what did you then conclude, Mr. Skene?

"A. So then I was not sure whether it was a Beech-Nut product or not, but I thought perhaps Lorillard might be putting it out for the Beech-Nut people, and I wrote down to Canajoharie to inquire before I gave any positive information to my friends about it one way or the other.

"Q. 15. And then what happened?

"A. The Beech-Nut people wrote me that it was not their product, and that they had nothing to do with it. And from that time I informed all friends who made inquiries of me, and who had spoken to me about it, that it was not our product at all.

"Q. 16. You said that several of your friends had spoken to you about these cigarettes. Will you state, if you remember, and as carefully as you can, exactly what these people said to you?

"A. Well, there were so many different forms that it would be hard, but generally it was 'I see that the Beech-Nut people are getting out a cigarette,' or, 'I see that you have a new brand of cigarettes,' or, 'Why don't you send us some of your Beech-Nut cigarettes.'

"Q. 17. Can you, Mr. Skene, give me the names of any of your friends in the Boston Chamber of Commerce, whom you can remember, who definitely made remarks of that character to you when the cigarettes came out?

"A. Well, Fred Godfrey——

"Q. 18. Will you please also state what these people do, so far as you know?

"A. Fred Godfrey, John F. Lapham, Dick Pope, Warren Torrey, John King, Billy Wise—is that enough?

"Q. 19. I would like to have you mention all you can.

"A. Fred Lamb, and a great many others. These gentlemen are in the flour and grain business, and all of them have offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building."

. . . . . .

"R-D. Q. 55. (By Mr. Hinton.) Mr. Skene, I wish you would state if you can remember, after you purchased this package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, and upon examination thereof, as you have testified, found the name, P. Lorillard Company on there, what did you conclude?

"A. Either that they were being manufactured for the Beech-Nut people by Lorillard, or being distributed by P. Lorillard Company."

ARTHUR A. SKINNER, grain broker, trading on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 55):

"Q. 3. I show you a package of cigarettes, which is in evidence in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1. Have you ever seen these cigarettes before, and if so, when and where did you first see them?

"A. Why, I first saw them, probably, oh, somewhere in the spring. In fact, I bought a package down stairs.

"Q. 4. When you first saw these cigarettes by whom did you believe they were made?

"A. Why, I assumed that they were made by the Beech-Nut people, the gum people, the people that make candy and gum, and so forth.

"Q. 5. You may state, if you will, what led you to that belief.

"A. Why, because I had seen so much of the Beech-Nut gum, and if you knew the gum you would naturally think the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the same people.

"Q. 6. Did you continue to believe that the Beech-Nut people put out these cigarettes after you bought them?

"A. Why, yes; I never knew any different. I didn't know who made them, I assumed they were made by the same people, so far as I knew.

"Q. 7. When were you first informed that these cigarettes were not a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Why, I never knew any different; in fact, I guess you were the first one that told me.

"Q. 8. And when was that?

"A. That was day before yesterday.

"Mr. Hinton: That is all the direct examination."

Cross-Examination.

"X-Q. 9. (By Mr. Cavanagh). Do you smoke, Mr. Skinner?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 10. Do you smoke Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Why, I have smoked them. I smoke the Lucky Strike mostly. I smoke anything for that matter, pipe and cigars.

"X-Q. 11. About how often have you smoked these Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Why, I don't think I ever bought but two packages. When they first came out a fellow had them on the floor, and I bought a package,—in fact, two packages.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 18. When you purchased the package of Beech-Nut cigarettes like this Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, to which you have referred, did you examine the wrapper of it?

"A. No, I took them out and smoked them.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 22. So when you purchased those cigarettes, after you examined them, you would have seen that name, P. Lorillard Co. on it, would you not?

"A. Oh, yes; if I examined them closely, but I didn't notice the cigarettes. I am not particularly interested in who makes them. I open them and smoke them. Of course, I don't know who makes the Fatimas, or the Camel, but I do know who makes Lucky Strike, because I smoke so many of them.

"X-Q. 23. You never really take the trouble to examine them?

"A. No."

JOHN J. KING, grain broker on the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 58):

"Q. 3. I show you a package of cigarettes which is in evidence in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1, and ask you whether or not you ever saw these cigarettes before, and, if so, when and where did you first see them?

"A. I have seen them at the Chamber of Commerce cigar stand.

"Q. 4. When was that?

"A. Oh, it was some little time ago, I don't know just how long. To tell you frankly, I never paid much attention to them anyway.

"Q. 5. When you first saw these cigarettes by whom did you believe that they were made?

"A. I understood they were a Beech-Nut product. The only Beech-Nut product I knew was bacon, and so forth.

"Q. 6. Will you tell us what you mean by a Beech-Nut product?

"A. Why, something put out by the people who put out peanut butter, bacon and so forth.

"Q. 7. Please state, if you know, what it was that led you to that belief.

"A. Why, I simply thought that. I only knew that there was only one Beech-Nut Company, and that was the people who put out the other stuff.

"Q. 8. Did you ever smoke any of these cigarettes?

"A. One or two.

. . . . . .

"Q. 10. Do you now believe that these cigarettes are the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. No.

"Mr. Cavanagh: Objected to as leading.

"Q. 11. When did you first find that these cigarettes were not a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Upon talk with Colonel Skene, about two months ago.

"Q. 12. Is Colonel referred to Robert Skene, Jr.?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 13. Did he give you this information before or after you had smoked these Beech-Nut cigarettes, do you remember?

"A. I believe it was after.

"Q. 14. Did you subsequently purchase any of these cigarettes?

"A. No."

RICHARD E. POPE, grain merchant trading on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 62):

"Q. 4. Mr. Pope, I show you a package of cigarettes, which is in evidence in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1, and ask you if you have ever seen these cigarettes before, and if so, when and where did you first see them?

"A. Well, I would not remember the exact date. I bought some here in the building, I remember, when they were first put on sale.

"Q. 5. Could you tell me the approximate date?

"A. Well, three or four months ago, I guess.

"Q. 6. Was it in the spring or summer?

"A. It was in the spring.

"Q. 7. Would you be able to say it was early or late spring?

"A. No, I could not.

"Q. 8. When you first saw these cigarettes, Mr. Pope, by whom did you believe they were put out?

"A. The people who put out Beech-Nut bacon—I don't know who they are.

"Q. 9. Did you buy a package of these cigarettes with that belief?

"A. I did, yes, naturally.

"Q. 10. Do you now believe that the people who put out Beech-Nut bacon put out these cigarettes?

"A. No, I know they don't.

"Q. 11. When and how, if you remember, were you first informed that these people did not put out these cigarettes?

"A. Why, in conversation with Mr. Skene, he told me that they did not make them, which was a surprise to me.

"Q. 12. Is the Mr. Skene you have referred to, Mr. Robert Skene, Jr.?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 13. Who does business in this building, and on the floor?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 14. Mr. Pope, will you state, if you are able to, why you believed that this was a product of the same people who put out the bacon, if you remember?

"A. Well, because of the extreme popularity of the Beech-Nut bacon, it was a likely brand to attract popular attention. Therefore I supposed they were using it with a cigareete, as they had with their other products. It was a perfectly natural conclusion, I should say, that was.

. . . . . .

Cross-Examination.

"X-Q. 17. (By Mr. Cavanagh.) Did you ever hear or know of the P. Lorillard Company?

"A. Oh, yes.

"X-Q. 18. You know they are a large tobacco concern, do you not?

"A. Yes, I know they are.

"X-Q. 19. Will you examine this cigarette package, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1? What name appears on it?

"A. P. Lorillard Co.

"X-Q. 20. Would that indicate to you that it was a package of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. I would not notice it. I don't know who makes Lucky Strike, even.

"X-Q. 21. So you don't examine the label?

"A. No, I am like a Chinaman, I will take a chop without any knowledge of what goes with it."

THOMAS F. MALONEY, a salesman doing business at the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 68):

"Q. 5. I show you a package of cigarettes, which is in evidence in this case as Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1. Have you seen these cigarettes before, and if so, will you please state when and where you first saw them?

"A. Why, I saw the cigarettes in the hands of another fellow at one time, and the next time I bought cigarettes I bought them myself. I don't know exactly at what store.

"Q. 6. When you saw and bought these cigarettes, by whom did you believe they were put up?

"A. Why, not having any interest in it, I naturally associated the name of Beech-Nut with the ham products, and so forth.

"Q. 7. Did you continue to believe this after you had bought and smoked the cigarettes?

"A. Surely; I didn't give it any thought.

"Q. 8. Do you now believe that these cigarettes are put up by the same people who put out the gum?

"A. No, I know differently than that.

"Q. 9. Will you state how and when you first learned that these cigarettes were not put out by the people who put out the gum?

"A. The first I knew of it was when you came around the other day and told me about it. I don't know what the day was, Thursday or Friday,—Thursday, I think it was."

GEORGE CATLIN, a broker trading on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 70):

"My name is George Catlin, and I am a member of the firm of Catlin & Company, brokers. I trade on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. I first saw Beech-Nut cigarettes, similar to Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1, on the cigar stand in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston, early in the spring of 1921; when I first saw these cigarettes I believed that they were made by the Beech-Nut people, the same people that make the other Beech-Nut products, like the ham, chewing gum, and so forth. I never bought a package of these cigarettes, but have smoked them when my friends had them. I continued to believe that these cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut people until I was told, on August 12, 1921, by Mr. Hinton, that they were not a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. My reason for believing that these cigarettes were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company was the name 'Beech-Nut,' and the appearance of the package."

W. G. TORREY, a miller representative trading on the floor of the Boston Chamber of Commerce (Record, Vol. I, page 71):

"Q. 4. I show you a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, which is in evidence in this case as Beech-Nut No. 1. Have you ever seen this cigarette before? If so, when and where did you first see them?

"A. Why, I think I first saw them probably at the cigar stand on the street floor of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Q. 5. When was that?

"A. That I cannot say, some time last year, as I remember.

"Q. 6. Do you mean during the year 1920?

"A. I should say during the year 1920; it might have been before that—just as soon as they came out, I know, and were for sale, I saw them.

"Q. 7. When you first saw these cigarettes, by whom did you believe that they were put out?

"A. The Beech-Nut Packing Company, Arkell & Smiths Company—we say Arkell & Smiths, because they are familiar to us, thinking they are the same concern that handle the Beech-Nut lines.

"Q. 8. You have referred to the Beech-Nut products. Will you give an illustration of what you mean by Beech-Nut products?

"A. Why, we have a number of them that we use at home; I guess Beech-Nut bacon is one, and—I can't say right off-hand what they are; we have different things; I think they are jellies and jams, and things of that sort, if they make them.

"Q. 9. Will you state, if you can remember, and if you know, why you believed that these cigarettes were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company when you saw them?

"A. They are the only people that I ever connected the name with.

"Q. 10. Have you a general familiarity with the label which has appeared on various products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 11. Did the dress of this package of cigarettes, by dress, it's general appearance, have anything to do with your believing that it was a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. The name was the first thing that led me to think it was theirs, because I never connected the name with any other concern than the Beech-Nut people in Canajoharie. I have traveled through there many times and have seen their sign, and knew the members of the concern.

"Q. 12. The last question is repeated.

"A. Yes.

"Q. 13. Will you explain what you mean?

"A. Well, the brand on the cigarettes led me to believe that it was one of the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

"Q. 14. Will you tell me, please, Mr. Torrey, whether you now believe that these cigarettes are a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. No, I do not.

"Q. 15. Will you state, if you can remember, when and how you first found out that these cigarettes were not a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. Why, I think after buying packages of them I discovered some tobacco company's name on the package, and, as I recall, I spoke of the matter to Mr. Skene, who represents Arkell & Smiths here, who are the same people as the Beech-Nut people, I spoke to him about it—I don't know that he knew it at the time until we talked the matter over, that there was such a cigarette on the market, and then I learned it had nothing to do with the Beech-Nut Company.

"Q. 16. Did Mr. Skene tell you this, do you remember?

"A. In conversation with him, I think he told me that they didn't."

W. J. BUCKLEY, of Boston, Mass., employed by the Southworth Company, brokers (Record, Vol. I, page 76):

"I am of lawful age, and am employed by the Southworth Company, brokers, who have offices here in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston, Massachusetts.

"I first saw cigarettes similar to Beech-Nut Exhibit No. 1 on the cigar stand in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston, Massachusetts; subsequently I remember that my friend, Thomas Maloney, who is employed in the same building, bought a package of these cigarettes and he had them on the table at lunch. I smoked some of the cigarettes. When I first saw the Beech-Nut cigarette, and when I smoked them, I believed that they were a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, the same people who make the ham, bacon, chewing gum, and other products. I continued to believe that these cigarettes were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company until Mr. Hinton told me, on August 12, 1921, that they were not."

APPENDIX B, LIST OF WITNESSES.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix B is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

Plaintiff's Witnesses Who Dealt in or Used Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco or Beech-Nut Cigarettes in the Belief That These Articles Were Products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

Of the witnesses listed below Carlson, De Rago, Hammerman, Hayden, Kramer, Sage, Watson, Wedel and Yunkers, being themselves deceived, innocently deceived their customers by express statement to them that the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes and scrap tobacco were products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

The witnesses Aisenberg, Branigan, Glynn, Godfrey, Housling, Huttner, Lynch, McFadzen, Neal and O'Connor either state that they found the Beech-Nut cigarettes inferior to the other Beech-Nut products, or state that they never bought any more of the Beech-Nut cigarettes after the first package.

(D)—Dealer; (C)—Consumer.

(D) Edward Abrams, of Stamford, Conn., proprietor of a hotel news and tobacco stand and of a cigar store—R., Vol. I, page 387.

(D) Joseph S. Aisenberg, of Worcester, Mass., wholesale grocer—R., Vol. I, page 148.

(C) R. J. Andrews, of West Hartford, Conn., clerk in the store of J. Burnham—R., Vol. I, page 341.

(C) Frank Arnold, Jr., of New York City, an advertising accountant employed by H. K. McCann & Co.—R., Vol. V, page 2499.

(C) J. F. Ballard, retail meat dealer, Chicago, Illinois —R., Vol. I, page 478.

(C) A. V. Bobb, proprietor of a meat market, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 483.

(C) D. L. Bottomly, of Worcester, Mass., a grocery clerk—R., Vol. I, page 166.

(C) T. J. Branigan, of New Haven, Conn., employed in a shoe store—R., Vol. I, page 285.

(D) J. E. Brimakow, manager cigar department of the Kiefer Drug Company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin—R., Vol. I, page 612 (for relations with customers, see Qs. 8-11).

(D) Robert N. Broughton, of Springfield, Mass., druggist—R., Vol. I, page 228.

(C) R. A. Brown, of Hartford, Conn., adjuster for the Ocean Insurance Company—R., Vol. I, page 336.

(C) W. J. Buckley, Boston, Mass., employed by the Southworth Company, brokers—R., Vol. I, page 76.

(D) A. H. Carlson, of Chicago, Illinois, formerly part owner of cigar store—R., Vol. I, page 423 (For express deception of customers see Qs. 11, 12, 13).

(D) George L. Carlton, grocer, Holyoke, Mass.,—R., Vol. I, page 232.

(D) James J. Cashman, Jr., of New Haven, Conn., a drug clerk—R., Vol. I, page 263.

(D) Tracy N. Collins, proprietor of a grocery and general store at Noroton, Conn.,—R., Vol. I, page 378.

(D) Charles P. Cook, of Paris, Kentucky, a grocer—R., Vol. I, page 695.

(D) Joseph De Rago, of Hartford, Conn., proprietor of a general store—R., Vol. I, page 329 (For express deception of customers see Q. 12).

(D) Henry Dieckman, grocer selling tobacco products at Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 633.

(C) G. Frank Disbrow, of South Amboy, N. J., skilled laborer, employed by South Amboy Terra Cotta Company—R., Vol. V, page 2491.

(D) James Eustace, of Hartford, Conn., employed by the Sigourney Grocery Company—R., Vol. I, page 335.

(D) Arthur E. Fechter, of Chicago, Illinois, proprietor of a drug store—R., Vol. I, page 437.

(D) Henry W. Foote, proprietor of a delicatessen and grocery store, Milwaukee, Wis.,—R., Vol. I, page 565.

(D) Alexander C. Gardner, of Milford, Conn., proprietor of a grocery and confectionery store—R., Vol. I, page 309 (For relations with customers see Qs. 15-18).

(D) Charles E. Geary, clerk in drug store, Salem, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 130.

(C) Edward J. Glynn, West Haven, Conn., a clerk—R., Vol. I, page 267 (Inferiority of Beech-Nut Cigarettes, Q. 15).

(C) A. W. Godfrey, Boston, Mass., mill representative —R., Vol. I, p. 49.

(D) Nathan Hammerman, of New Haven, Conn., a drug clerk—R., Vol. I, page 276 (For express deception of customers, see Qs. 11, 12).

(C) Newton Harrison, of Milford, Conn., editor of "The Central Station," an electrical journal and owner of a dry goods business—R., Vol. I, page 317.

(D) Jefferson D. Hayden, Columbia, S. C., a grocer—Vol. I, page 754 (For express deception of customers, see Qs. 48-49).

(C) C. Housling, of Hartford, Conn., clerk in the store of C. P. Case—R., Vol. I, page 339.

(D) MARGARET M. HUNT, clerk at cigar stand in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston, Mass. R., Vol. I, page 77.

(C) DANIEL HUTTNER, butcher, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 485.

(D) OSCAR JOSEPH, of Saba & Joseph, proprietor of a grocery and meat market, Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 617 (For relations with customers, see Qs. 12-14).

(D) JOHN JOZSA, grocery clerk and meat cutter for Saba & Joseph, Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 625.

(C) CLEMENT W. KIRKPATRICK, assistant to the general manager of the Fisk Rubber Company, Chicopee Falls, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 210.

(D) S. S. KRAMER, of Hartford, Conn., proprietor of a delicatessen and tobacco store—R., Vol. I, page 334 (For express deception of customers, see page 334).

(D) F. J. LATZEL, proprietor of a delicatessen store at Oak Park, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 491.

(C) HENRY LE CLAIR, of Holyoke, Mass., a grocer—R., Vol. I, page 241.

(D) LEO LEWIS, cigar clerk, Boston, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 80 (For relations with customers, see Qs. 12-16).

(C) P. LYNCH, of West Hartford, Conn., clerk in Burnham's market—R., Vol. I, page 340.

(C) E. J. MCFADZEN, a grocer, West Allis, Wis.—R., Vol. I, page 555.

(C) THOMAS F. MALONEY, salesman, Boston Chamber of Commerce—R., Vol. I, page 68.

(C) JAMES F. MASTERSON, of Brooklyn, New York, writer of financial news, who published articles attributing Beech-Nut cigarettes and tobacco to plaintiff—R., Vol. V, page 2483.

(D) James Matreace, of West Hartford, Conn., clerk in grocery and general store of O. Matreace—R., Vol. I, page 343.

(C) John Mead, clerk, Hartford, Conn.—R., Vol. I, page 342.

(D) Edward Moscovitz, clerk in Shriver's Cigar Company, Salem, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 126.

(D) George F. Moulton, retail druggist, South Norwalk, Conn.—R., Vol. I, page 376.

(D) Theodore Mueller, druggist, Milwaukee, Wisconsin—R., Vol. I, page 605.

(C) Franklin G. Neal, lawyer, Springfield, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 201.

(D) H. A. Neff, grocer selling tobacco products at Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 633.

(D) Carl W. Nemetz, retail grocer, Milwaukee, Wisconsin—R., Vol. I, page 550.

(D) Frank O'Connell, grocer handling tobacco products at Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 633.

(C) Michael O'Connor, clerk in a general store, public market, Holyoke, Mass.—R., Vol. I, page 236.

(D) Mrs. Amelia Petersen, helps in her husband's grocery store at Manitowoc, Wis.—R., Vol. I, page 501.

(C) Richard E. Pope, grain merchant, Boston Chamber of Commerce—R., Vol. I, page 62.

(D) Mike Saba, of Saba & Joseph, proprietors of a grocery and meat market, Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 622.

(D) John Sabelis, in charge of the commissary department of the International Harvester Company at their plant at West Pullman, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 444.

(D) WILLIAM H. SAGE, of Wheaton, Illinois, employed as a druggist in Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 417 (For express deception of customers, see Qs. 13-14).

(C) C. A. SATTIG, employed in the grocery and meat market of his father, Adam Sattig, at Milford, Conn.—R., Vol. I, page 316.

(D) LLOYD SCHULTZ, grocery clerk, employed by Saba & Joseph, Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 628.

(D) ISABEL SHAFFER, clerk in drug store selling tobacco products at Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, pages 633-635.

(D) W. SHAFFER, grocer selling tobacco products at Toledo, Ohio—R., Vol. I, page 633.

(C) ROBERT SKENE, JR., representative of Arkell & Smiths Company, Boston, Chamber of Commerce —R., Vol. I, page 38.

(C) ARTHUR A. SKINNER, grain broker, Boston, Chamber of Commerce—R., Vol. I, page 55.

(C) WILLIAM I. THOMAS, grocer, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 469.

(C) W. G. TORREY, miller representative, Boston, Chamber of Commerce—R., Vol. I, page 71.

(D) JOHN E. WATSON, druggist, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. I, page 411 (For express deception of customers, see Qs. 14-15).

(D) MRS. MATILDA WEDEL, proprietor of tobacco and candy stand in lobby of large downtown office building, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. IV, page 2208 (For express deception of customers, see Q. 10).

(D) WILLIAM C. WEIGEL, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, a retail grocer—R., Vol. I, page 560.

(D) CLARENCE A. WILKINS, Lynn, Mass., retailer of confectionery, tobacco, and periodicals—R., Vol. I, page 107 (For relations with customers, see Q. 7).

(D) IDA W. WILKINS, Lynn, Mass., assists in her husband's confectionery and tobacco store and news stand—R., Vol. I, page 119 (For relations with customers, see Q. 10).

(D) ROY J. YUNKERS, manager of retail tobacco store (one of well-known chain) in large downtown office building, Chicago, Illinois—R., Vol. IV, page 2218 (For express deception of customers, see Q. 18).

APPENDIX C, DECEPTION OF PUBLIC PROVED BY DEFENDANT'S WITNESSES.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix C is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

Five of the witnesses from whose testimony quotations appear in this appendix are salesmen for the Lorillard Company and the others are dealers in tobacco. The five Lorillard salesmen are Schimmel, Marks, Hopewell, Degan and Burgeson. Burgeson, as will be seen from the part of his testimony quoted in this appendix, admits that deception of the public was expected, said that was natural on account of the similarity of name but that it did not occur as much as expected.

Defendant's witness, L. G. CAUTO, a cigar salesman at Boston, for L. K. Liggett & Co. (R., Vol. II, pages 977-978):

"X-Q. 15. Will you tell me during that moment, when you picked up the package of cigarettes and saw the Beech-Nut brand, and were in doubt about it,—who did you think might be the manufacturer?

"A. Some cigarette company, because I knew that the gum people manufactured gum, and right away I used my head and said that they were not made by the gum people, but some cigarette people.

"X-Q. 16. What suggested the gum people to you?

"A. Because they carry gum, the Beech-Nut gum on the counter.

"X-Q. 17. When you looked at the package of cigarettes, what did you think of, what gum company?

"A. When the cigarettes were put in, I had them on the counter and, why, I thought of the Beech-Nut people. I had about 25 customers question that, and that was a natural question; not that they cared who made it, but they said this, 'Made by the people who make the gum?' And I corrected them. I said, 'The gum is made by the gum company, in Canajoharie, and Brooklyn, N. Y.,' and that is all. That adjusted the matter, when I told them that the gum and cigarettes were two different products.

"X-Q. 18. And you always put them straight on that?

"A. I put them straight, yes, because I wanted them to be straight about it, being in the business, and I wanted to be straight, because it is instant dismissal for misrepresenting any of the goods.

"X-Q. 19. Yes, but they are not all as strict as you people are in regard to that, are they?

"A. No, I don't believe they are."

Defendant's witness, BENJAMIN HURVITZ, manager of a tobacco business in Boston, Mass. (R., Vol. II, pages 1009-1010):

"Q. 16. State whether or not you ever had any inquiries or heard any comments from customers or others that would lead you to believe that they were under such an impression.

"A. Well, really, in the handling of cigarettes and gum,—or cigarettes, rather, from the time of its inception, and the gum at pretty nearly the same time.—and of course, that is almost a year and a half now; and the inquiries whether Beech-Nut cigarettes and the Beech-Nut gum were made by the same company haven't been over two or three,—they have been by retail consumers only.

. . . . . .

"Q. 23. Did you ever know the Beech-Nut Packing Company to put out any tobacco products?

"A. No; if they had put out tobacco products we would have been interested to buy their product.

"Mr. Hinton: What is that?

"The Witness: If we did know they put out tobacco products we would buy their tobacco products direct. But, so far as I know, they don't put it out."

Defendant's witness, MAX DUBLIN, manager of a wholesale and retail tobacco establishment in Boston (R., Vol. II, pages 1045-1046):

"X-Q. 49. It is very simple, isn't it? Now you said that you had an occasional inquiry from a customer about whether one concern that makes the gum, whether the same concern makes the cigarettes, indicating some doubt in the mind of the customer. Is that the fact?

"A. Why, I have had—yes, I have had very few retailers that I sell, which I sell to, small dealers, I don't sell to the big stores, and I have had perhaps a few consumers that I have heard them talking, but not while the purchase was made in the store. When the Beech-Nut cigarette first came out, I said, that is the same brand that they have had—they have had that brand for years. They had the Beech-Nut scrap, which I have always carried and I have always informed the public that one brand was the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and the other the P. Lorillard Co., that makes the Helmars and the Trophies, and so forth.

"X-Q. 50. But you say you have had this question come up with the retailers to whom you have sold the Beech-Nut cigarette?

"A. I have had one or two, or more. I wouldn't say definitely on it, and I satisfied them,—I showed them the name on the goods. In fact, I can't tell why they ask me, because the name 'P. Lorillard Co.' is there. The fact is, when I see this picture on the Murad, when I see the picture, I know it is very plain that it is Lorillard's. When you see that brand you know it is their brand."

Defendant's witness, BENJAMIN LESCOVITZ, retail storekeeper, sells tobacco, chocolates, etc., East Cambridge, Mass. (R., Vol. II, pages 1064, 1066-1067):

"Q. 10. Did you ever have any inquiries or comments from anybody who did believe it?

"A. Yes, sir; I had two fellows ask me, and they said, 'Benny, what is this? Is this made by the same company (pointing to a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes) as the Beech-Nut chewing gum?' I says, 'No, this is made by the P. Lorillard Company (pointing to a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes), and this is made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company' (referring to a package of Beech-Nut chewing gum). Only them two fellows asked me that.

"Q. 11. How long ago was that?

"A. That was last winter. They didn't ask the question because they were interested, but because of curiosity they asked it.

"Mr. Hinton: The last part of the answer is objected to as a conclusion of the witness.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 4. You didn't keep any notes of the names of people who asked you about whether or not the cigarettes were made by the gum people, did you?

"A. No, I didn't.

"X-Q. 5. You didn't make any effort to remember it at all?

"A. Absolutely no; because you see the customers are in the store, and they simply asked me, as a foolish question: 'Say, Benny, is this the same company, the Beech-Nut gum and the Beech-Nut cigarette?' And I said, 'No, the gum is made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company and the cigarettes are made by P. Lorillard Co.' "

Defendant's witness, GEORGE C. SMITH, manager of a tobacco store in Boston (R., Vol. II, page 1082):

"X-Q. 3. Now, Mr. Smith, did you make any particular note of the inquires that you referred to, about whether the cigarettes were made by the gum people,—did you make a note of it at the time?

"A. I made no note of it, no.

"X-Q. 4. Did you pay any particular attention to it?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 5. Did you make any effort to remember it?

"A. No, I didn't.

"X-Q. 6. But you can remember two cases?

"A. I can remember two cases, there may have been five or six, but I can't remember over two.

"X-Q. 7. There may have been others?

"A. There may have been others, but I don't remember it."

Defendant's witness, AARON ANSEL, owner of a cigar store in Boston (R., Vol. II, p. 1086).

"Q. 14. Will you state whether or not during your experience or service in your store you ever have had any questions come up, or heard any remarks or inquiries from customers, or others, which would leave you under the impression that they thought the gum people made the cigarettes?

"A. Well, just once; I recall one person."

Defendant's witness, GEORGE DOUGALL, manager of cigar department in a L. K. Liggett store in Boston (R., Vol. II, pp. 1090-1091):

"Q. 12. Will you state whether or not you were ever under the impression that the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the same people that make the Beech-Nut chewing gum?

"A. Why, I never was under the impression. There was only once that I can remember when a young fellow asked me, when they first started, he came in—

"Q. 13. I mean yourself—were you ever yourself under the impression that the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the same concern that makes the gum?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. 14. Well, will you please state whether or not you have had any questions, inquiries, or comments made by customers, or others, which would lead you to think that they were under the impression that these cigarettes were made by the gum people?

"A. I have just had one instance that I remember.

"Q. 15. Please state it.

"A. That is when the cigarettes first came out somebody came in the store and asked me if they were made by the same people that made the gum.

"Q. 16. What was your answer?

"A. Why, I told them that the cigarettes were made by the P. Lorillard Co., and that the gum was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company."

Defendant's witness, EDWARD ADELMAN, owner of a cigar store at Salem, Mass. (R., Vol. II, pp. 1116, 1119):

"Q. 15. In your experience in the tobacco business in stores have you ever heard any comments or any inquiries from customers or others which would lead you to believe that they were under the impression that the same concern that made the gum made the Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. No. I have had people ask me, 'Is it made by the same company?' But they were not impressed that it was. In fact, the name on the cigarette, or in the advertising I have seen always had the name Lorillard on it.

"Mr. Hinton: The witness' statement as to the impression of the people who asked him the question referred to is objected to as a conclusion of the witness, and the last part of the answer objected to as volunteered.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 17. Now, how many customers do you suppose ever asked you whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the gum people?

"A. I don't think there was over one or two that I had any talk with about them."

Defendant's witness, DENNIS T. O'CALLAHAN, salesman in a tobacco store in Salem, Mass. (R., Vol. II, p. 1130):

"X-Q. 4. Now, how many people do you suppose you have discussed this question with as to who makes the Beech-Nut cigarette and the Beech-Nut chewing gum?

"A. I think about a half a dozen. It would be only in conversation you know. Sometimes some one would be talking and the question would be brought up, and they would leave it to me as a tobacco man to decide, and I would try to tell them, so far as I knew, that there was a distinction between the parties who made the food products and the Beech-Nut tobacco products."

Defendant's witness, FERDINAND RIGALI, JR., owner of a fruit and tobacco store at Holyoke, Mass. (R., Vol. II, p. 1193):

"Q. 16. Will you please state whether or not you ever had any customers ask any questions or make any inquiry which would lead you to believe that they thought the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the same people that made the gum?

"A. I have had to my, I think I had about two people ask me. I couldn't say who the people were; just people that came into the store.

"Q. 17. How long ago was that?

"A. Quite a while after they came out one party asked me who made the Beech-Nut cigarette and went as far as to ask me if the Beech-Nut Packing Company made them. I told them certainly not, that's as far as the argument went. He didn't know probably.

"Q. 18. Those are the only two occasions?

"A. That's the only two occasions I have had unless the other boys have had."

Defendant's witness, WILLIAM D. LILLY, owner of a cigar store in Baltimore (R., Vol. II, pp. 1249-1250):

"When the cigarettes first came out I remember hearing a few questions from customers indicating that they thought that the same company made the cigarettes and the gum."

Defendant's witness, MICHAEL SPHEERIS, owner of a tobacco and candy store at Milwaukee, Wisconsin (R., Vol. II, p. 1435):

"X-Q. 57. But is it the usual thing for a customer to ask you who makes the article he is buying?

"A. Well, that I don't say; none ever mentioned to me, maybe it was once or twice, whether it is made by the same people make the Beech-Nut cigarettes, the gum was made by the same people or,—well, I always knew that. I explained it to him. Maybe there is one or two since I have been in business, there, asked if it was the same people made the Beech-Nut cigarette that made the Beech-Nut gum, but I never had that asked very often.

"X-Q. 58. Do you remember what these you mentioned who did ask,—do you remember what they said?

"A. I remember a fellow once asked me, he said: 'Is this the same people is making the Beech-Nut gum?' I said, 'Lorillard only makes tobacco; don't make any gum.' "

Defendant's witnes, MAURICE J. SCHIMMEL, salesman for the Lorillard Company at Milwaukee, Wisconsin (R., Vol. II, pp. 1453, 1455):

"X-Q. 61. Have you heard any question asked or any comments or inquiries as to whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes and scrap tobacco were made by the people that made the gum?

"A. Very little.

"X-Q. 62. But have you heard a few?

"A. Once or twice, but very seldom. I did hear once in a while something.

"X-Q. 63. Can you tell any of the things that you heard?

"A. No, sir.

. . . . . .

"R-D. Q. 82. You say that on one or two occasions you might have heard people ask you, 'Were the cigarettes made by the gum people or Beech-Nut Packing Company?' What did you tell them?

"A. Why, they would say to me, 'Well, we sell your Beech-Nut gum,' and I would emphatically deny it and say, 'Beech-Nut gum was not made by P. Lorillard Tobacco Company; it was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company.'

"R-D. Q. 83. How often would that happen?

"A. Very few times."

Defendant's witness, ALBERT MARKS, of Green Bay, Wis., salesman for the Lorillard Company (R., Vol. II, pp. 1496-1497):

"X-Q. 187. During your experience in selling or conducting the sales of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco did you hear any questions at all or any comments about whether this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco is made by the same people that put out the Beech-Nut gum and Beech-Nut peanut butter and those other Beech-Nut products?

"A. Well, I will tell you, I don't just recall of any special place or anything of that kind, but I will be safe in saying I have had perhaps a mighty few ask me that question, but I cannot recall of having very many ask me that.

"X-Q. 188. You didn't try to remember such incidents, I suppose at the time?

"A. No, because we really were not interested in anything about anybody else. The only thing, if I was asked that question, as near as I can remember, that I would immediately deny it, of course, and say that this was the P. Lorillard Company, that has always been our by line, understand, you know."

Defendant's witness, FRANK HOPEWELL, of Milwaukee, Wis., salesman for the Lorillard Company (R., Vol. II, pp. 1516-1517):

"X-Q. 125. Have you heard any questions asked or any comments at all about whether anyone was questioning who the maker of the Beech-Nut cigarettes was?

"A. No, I never saw at any time where there was any confusion about who made Beech-Nut cigarettes.

"X-Q. 126. But have you had any questions asked you by dealers or consumers as to whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the same people made the Beech-Nut gum and peanut butter?

"A. I never had a question of that kind put to me by a consumer in my life.

"X-Q. 127. Or a dealer?

"A. Or a dealer.

"X-Q. 128. Did you make any attempt to remember such a thing?

"A. I believe I would have remembered it if it had really happened.

"X-Q. 129. You never heard one single question?

"A. I never heard a dealer that ever asked me——

"X-Q. 130. Or a consumer?

"A. Or a consumer ever asked me if the Beech-Nut Packing Company made Beech-Nut cigarettes or Beech-Nut tobacco.

"X-Q. 131. Did you hear any discussion on that point?

"A. Well, whether I have heard Beech-Nut gum discussed along with possibly my being interested in the sale of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco and cigarettes, —yes, possibly. In fact, yes.

"X-Q. 132. Can you remember any of those instances?

"A. Why, yes, I can remember where dealers—not only dealers, but where I am well acquainted with the dealer, in his conversation he would say, 'If this Beech-Nut cigarettee of yours will sell as well as your Beech-Nut tobacco it will be a good seller,' and he would go on and say, 'Beech-Nut gum sells well too.' There was no confusion with that dealer though, that they were made by the same company whatsoever.

"X-Q. 133. Did the dealer in such a case tell you there was no confusion in his mind?

"A. Why no, I don't expect him to take particular time and attention to tell me. If there wasn't any confusion naturally, he wouldn't tell me.

"X-Q. 134. How do you know what was in his mind?

"A. I wouldn't know what was in his mind."

Defendant's witness, WADE H. BROWN, of Chicago, district manager of the Lorillard Company (R., Vol. II, p. 1592):

(Page 1598):

"Q. 41. Have you heard any comments, inquiries or remarks from customers or consumers to the effect or which would lead you to believe that they were under the impression that the Beech-Nut cigarettes or the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco were made by the same people that make the Beech-Nut chewing gum, Beech-Nut peanut butter, and other food products?

"A. Well, when I first began introducing the Beech-Nut cigarettes. I had possibly half a dozen dealers that asked me if we made the Beech-Nut gum and I told them no, we did not; that the Lorillard Tobacco Company made the Beech-Nut cigarettes, Beech-Nut chewing tobacco, Climax, Murad, Helmar and brands of that kind, and that we were in the tobacco business and not the gum or food business."

(Pages 1613-1614):

"X-Q. 164. And how many inquiries, comments or remarks did you hear in regard to who made the Beech-Nut cigarettes and as to whether they were made by the same people that make the Beech-Nut gum?

"A. Well, not over half a dozen retailers asked me that question, but here is what they asked: 'Do you people make the gum?' I would say approximately six, half a dozen dealers.

"X-Q. 165. Can you describe some of those instances where they occurred?

"A. No, I cannot, Mr. Johnson, I could not.

"X-Q. 166. Did you make any attempt to remember such inquiries, comments or remarks?

"A. No; I just enlightened the man and told him we had nothing to do with the Beech-Nut gum; that it was the Lorillard Tobacco Company that made tobacco.

"Mr. Johnson: Read the question, please.

"(The question was read.)

"X-Q. 167. Did you make any attempt to remember such instances?

"A. No, I did not.

"X-Q. 168. Did anyone ask you to make a note or remember any such instances that might occur?

"A. No, sir. In every instance where those approximately half a dozen occurred, I explained to them very thoroughly that Lorillard made Beech-Nut chewing tobacco, Murad, Helmar and those brands of tobacco; that we had nothing to do with the gum business; we were in the tobacco business, cigarette business, and not the gum business or food commodities or anything of that sort.

"X-Q. 169. You were pretty busy during that time, were you not?

"A. Well, I was, naturally, as I am busy now. I was busy; yes, sir, I was. I manage to keep busy all the time, Mr. Johnson.

"X-Q. 170. When you say that you have heard a half a dozen of such inquiries or remarks, you mean you do not remember any more than that?

"A. No, I cannot. I never heard any more than that, I say approximately six; in all, half a dozen.

"X-Q. 171. Can you give the names of any of those six parties who have asked?

"A. Oh, no. As I have just told you, I did not pay much attention to it, and explained to the dealer we were in the tobacco business and did not make gum and explained to him thoroughly what we made. I didn't pay much attention to it."

Defendant's witness FRANK C. DEGAN, of Chicago, salesman for the Lorillard Company (R., Vol. II, pages 1642-1643):

"X-Q. 61. Have you ever heard any discussion at all, or any questions asked as to who made the Beech-Nut cigarette?

"A. You mean the dealer?

"X-Q. 62. Anybody.

"A. That question is rather broad, Mr. Johnson. I wouldn't know just how to answer that. I would have to answer it in blanket no.

"X-Q. 63. Anybody on your rounds as you have gone about the City of Chicago or your Indiana district?

"A. Oh, I heard once or twice, not over that, I don't think, they would ask or make the comment: 'This is not made by the people that make the gum, is it?' I have had that occur to me once or twice. They seemed to take it for granted that it was not.

"X-Q. 64. Can you describe where or when such incidents as that occurred?

"A. No, I cannot. I attached no importance to them at the time at all; none whatever. I had made a practice of giving the dealer to understand that I was from the Lorillard, the Climax and the Beech-Nut Scrap house. That was as much as anything, because I wanted him to remember me. I wanted him to remember me.

"X-Q. 65. You have heard a few instances of that kind of questions and discussions, have you?

"A. No discussion. It was just a casual remark: 'This is not made by the gum house.' I have heard that once or twice; I do not know where or when."

Defendant's witness, PHILIP L. BURGESON, of Chicago, salesman for the Lorillard Company (R., Vol. II, pages 1649-1650):

"Q. 23. Now, have you ever heard of any questions or comments or remarks from customers or any other person or persons to the effect or which would lead you to believe that they thought the Beech-Nut cigarettes or the Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco were made by the same people that make the Beech-Nut gum or Beech-Nut peanut butter or food products?

"A. Well, I have perhaps as high as two or three times. A dealer would say 'Do you also make the Beech-Nut gum?' Of course, it would not be our big dealer that would say that; it would be some of the peanut stands, as we would say, that would say that. Two or three times at the highest.

"Q. 24. What was your answer on those occasions?

"A. 'We only make smoking articles.' Always say Beech-Nut gum is a food product and we do not make food products. We make eighty-five of the Turkish brands that are on the market. We do not manufacture any food products whatsoever.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Johnson.

"X-Q. 25. You did, then, Mr. Burgeson, hear some questions and discussion as to whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes were made by the gum people?

"A. Yes, naturally I would, on account of being the same name, but not as much as we did expect."

Defendant's witness, JOHN A. WEBER, manager and part owner of seven cigar stores in Chicago (R., Vol. III, page 1712):

. . . . . .

(Pages 1714-1715):

"Q. 25. Mr. Weber, have you ever heard any remarks, inquiries or comments among your customers or others to the effect or which would lead you to believe they thought Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes to be the product of the same company that manufactures Beech-Nut chewing gum?

"A. There was one, about once or twice that question was asked, wanted to know whether it was made all by one company or not.

"Q. 26. About how many times do you think that was?

"A. Once or twice, and I happened to be on watch at that time."

. . . . . .

(Page 1715):

"Q. 28. What did you tell those people who asked you whether it was made by the same company?

"A. Well, being acquainted with both companies, I just told them one was made by the packing company that makes bacons and hams, and the other was made by P. Lorillard Company, the tobacco company; there was no confliction between the two at all."

(Pages 1718-1719):

"X-Q. 65. And have you heard some discussion as to whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes are made by the same people that make the Beech-Nut chewing gum?

"A. Never. No, I can't say that I ever heard that.

"X-Q. 66. Did you ever hear any questions asked as to who makes the Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Only once or twice, as I stated before.

"X-Q. 67. Can you describe those incidents that you have just mentioned? Remember what the people said at the time?

"A. All I can say is, one party says, 'Are they all made by the same people?' I says, 'No.'

"X-Q. 68. What did they mean, were they all made by the same people, what were they referring to?

"A. Well, Beech-Nut gum and Beech-Nut cigarettes.

"X-Q. 69. And how many times have you been asked questions like that?

"A. Twice to my knowledge that is all.

. . . . . .

(Page 1719):

"X-Q. 75. You might have heard some more then that you do not remember, might you not?

"A. The reason of me remembering those two is because the names were all so much alike. That is the reason I remember that, you see, and made by different corporations. Otherwise, I am positive I never heard anything said about it."

Defendant's witness, J. W. COREY, of Chicago, owner of a tobacco, candy and variety store (R., Vol. III, pages 1778-1779):

"When the cigarettes first appeared I remember hearing four or five persons inquire whether the Beech-Nut Cigarette and Beech-Nut Chewing Gum were made by the same company. I told these persons that this was not the case and that the Lorillard Co. made the cigarettes and the Beech-Nut Packing Company made the chewing gum. Although I cannot say definitely that four or five was the number of these remarks which I heard, I can state positively that it was not many more than that."

Defendant's witness, W. E. DOUGLAS, manager of a tobacco store in Knoxville, Tennessee (R., Vol. III, page 1869):

"When the cigarette first appeared I remember that two or three people asked me whether the Beech-Nut Cigarettes and the Beech-Nut Chewing Gum were manufactured by the same company."

Defendant's witness, E. R. TURNER, manager of a drug store in Louisville, Kentucky, and in charge of the candy and tobacco department of the store (R., Vol. III, page 1900):

"When the cigarette first appeared I heard perhaps four customers ask whether the Beech-Nut cigarettes and Beech-Nut Gum were made by the same company."

Defendant's witness W. B. ZULWOOD, manager of a drug store in Louisville, Kentucky, in which tobacco is sold (R., Vol. III, page 1918):

"I remember that in all my experience I have heard about six people ask whether either the Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco or the Beech-Nut Cigarettes were made by the same company that manufactures the Beech-Nut Gum and Beech-Nut Mints."

Defendant's witness JOSEPH H. ROSSWOG, a retail tobacco dealer at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania (R., Vol. III, page 1949):

> "I have never heard more than four or five remarks, inquiries or comments among my customers or others to the effect, or which led me to believe that they thought the Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco or the Beech-Nut Cigarettes to be the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company."

Defendant's witness J. F. REINACKER, a retail tobacco merchant at Wheeling, West Virginia (R., Vol. III, pages 1970-1971):

> "I have never heard more than three or four remarks, inquiries or comments among my customers or others to the effect, or which led me to believe that they thought the Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco and the Beech-Nut Cigarettes to be products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company."

Defendant's witness I. KAUFMAN, a druggist dealing in tobacco in his drug store at Hartford, Connecticut (R., Vol. III, page 2055):

> "When the Beech-Nut Cigarette first appeared on this market I remember that two or three persons asked me whether the Beech-Nut Cigarette was manufactured by the same company that manufactured the Beech-Nut Chewing Gum."

Defendant's witness SAM SUKLOFF, JR., a retail tobacconist at New Haven, Connecticut (R., Vol. III, page 2103):

> ". . . I do remember that when the cigarette was first put on the market a few of my customers did ask me whether there was any connection between the makers of the gum and the makers of the cigarettes."

Defendant's witness A. H. GOTCH, a retail tobacconist at Bridgeport, Connecticut (R., Vol. III, page 2135):

> ". . . I heard possibly as many as three or four customers inquire whether the Beech-Nut cigarette was made by the same company that manufactured the Beech-Nut Gum."

APPENDIX D, QUOTATIONS FROM TESTIMONY OF DEFENDANT'S WITNESSES SHOWING THAT THE NAME "LORILLARD" IS PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN AS AN IDENTIFICATION OF TOBACCO PRODUCTS.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix D is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

JOHN A. WEBER, manager and part owner of seven cigar stores in Chicago, a witness for defendant, testified as follows (R., Vol. III, pages 1719-1720):

"X-Q. 76. When people have come into your stores, within your long experience in the tobacco business, do they usually ask for cigarettes or tobacco by the name of the brand?

"A. Oh, yes; yes.

"X-Q. 77. Would you say that cigarettes and tobacco sell by the brand?

"A. By the brand; yes.

"X-Q. 78. Did you ever have a purchaser come in and ask for Reynold's Camels?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 79. Or American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strikes?

"A. No. Never.

"X-Q. 80. Or Lorillard's Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 81. Do they always ask for the cigarettes or tobacco by the name of the brand?

"A. They do."

The following is from the testimony of WILLIAM H. GETZELMAN, general manager of the eleven Breitung cigar stores in the business center of Chicago. He was a witness for defendant (R., Vol. III, page 1688):

(Pages 1700-1701):

"X-Q. 101. In your experience in the tobacco business, Mr. Getzelman, have you found that customers ask for cigarettes and tobaccos by the name of the brand? Do they ask for Camels and Lucky Strikes and Union Leader, Climax, the names of the brands, such as that?

"A. Yes. Yes they come in and say, Camel, Lucky Strike. That is generally the way they ask for them.

"X-Q. 102. Would you say they sell by brands?

"A. Well, I guess that is what you would say, they sell by brands. If a man wants a package of Camels, he won't say Reynolds' Camels; he would say Camels.

"X-Q. 103. That is what I mean. Did you ever, in your experience, extending through sixteen years, hear a man, a customer, ask for Reynolds' Camels?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 104. Or American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strikes?

"A. No.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 107. Did you ever in your experience hear a customer ask for Lorillard's Moguls?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 108. Or Lorillard's Murads?

"A. No."

NATHAN ADELMAN, of Chicago, retail tobacco dealer, one of defendant's witnesses, testified as follows (R., Vol. III, page 1731):

"X-Q. 95. In your experience in the tobacco business, Mr. Adelman, do customers usually ask for a cigar, cigarette or tobacco by the name of the brand?

"A. Absolutely; absolutely.

"X-Q. 96. Do many customers ask you for the name of the brand, together with the name of the maker, like Reynolds' Camel cigarettes?

"A. No.

"X-Q. 97. Did anybody ever ask you for cigarettes that way?

"A. No, no, they come in and ask for Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco, Beech-Nut cigarettes, and if they want Beech-Nut Cigarettes they say Beech-Nut cigarettes.

"X-Q. 98. They do not say Lorillard cigarettes?

"A. No, they say Beech-Nut cigarettes."

WILLIAM GOLDSTEIN, head salesman for P. Lorillard Co., at Chicago, was a witness for defendant. The following is an extract from his testimony (R., Vol. II, pages 1365-1366):

"X-Q. 127. As a matter of fact, Mr. Goldstein, isn't it the brand of the cigarette, Murad or Moguls or London Lifes, the people ask for?

"A. As a rule the ordinary consumer does, yes.

"X-Q. 128. Isn't it the brand that sells the particular cigarette?

"A. Sure, it is the trade-name that sells it, but the average consumer that calls for that trade-name knows it is a product of the Lorillard Tobacco Company."

BENJAMIN A. MOSHER, proprietor of a drug store in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, testified for defendant concerning the tobacco business conducted in connection with his drug store. The following is quoted from his testimony (R., Vol. II, pages 1532-1533):

"X-Q. 101. In selling cigarettes, Mr. Mosher, did you find or have you found that people ask for them using the name of the maker?

"A. Never.

"X-Q. 102. Have you had people ask you when they were buying, for Lorillard's Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 103. Or Lorillard's Murad cigarettes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 104. Or Lorillard's Mogul cigarettes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 105. Or the American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strikes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 106. Have you found that it is the brand of the cigarette that sells the cigarette?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 107. You have found that right through, haven't you, it is the brand the people know and not the maker?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 108. It is the brand the people ask for?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 109. Do people ask just for Beech-Nuts or the Beech-Nut?

"A. Yes, a package of Beech-Nuts.

"X-Q. 110. And in a case like that, what do you do?

"A. Ask them whether they want gum or cigarettes."

Defendant's witness, JOHN GLASSPIEGEL, Milwaukee, Wisconsin (R., Vol. II, page 1560):

"X-Q. 98. How many years have you been handling tobacco and cigarettes?

"A. About eight.

"X-Q. 99. Do your customers ask for them by the brand? That is, do they ask for Camels or Beech-Nuts?

"A. They ask for the brand, for the name, whether it is Camels, Lucky Strike, Chesterfields, or Beech-Nuts, it doesn't make any difference what cigarette it is. A cigarette smoker as a rule asks for the name of the brand.

"X-Q. 100. And does the same thing apply to chewing tobaccos?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 101. Did you ever have any customer ask you for Lorillard's Union Leader?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 102. Or Lorillard's Moguls?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 103. Or Lorillard's Murads?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 104. Or American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strikes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 105. You never heard any customer ask for cigarettes or tobaccos by the name of the maker?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 106. Have you found then that tobacco and cigarettes sell by the brands?

"A. I have found that tobaccos and cigarettes sold by the title."

Defendant's witness, J. S. WEINER, manager of the cigarettes department in the department store of Rothschild & Co., in Chicago (R., Vol. III, page 1674):

"X-Q. 31. Have you found in your experience in the tobacco trade that customers ask you for a brand of cigarettes or tobacco, or do they ask you for the cigarettes by the name of the maker?

"A. They ask for the cigarettes by the name of the brand of the cigarettes.

"X-Q. 32. Cigarettes sell by the brand?

"A. By the brand; by the name."

Defendant's witness, DAVID KOSSACK, tobacco and cigar dealer, in Chicago (R., Vol. III, page 1685):

"X-Q. 47. Have you found in all these years' experience in the tobacco trade that people ask for cigarettes or tobacco by the name of the brand?

"A. Only.

"X-Q. 48. That is, they ask for Camel cigarettes?

"A. Camels or Beech-Nut, or whatever cigarette brand, they ask for it by name.

"X-Q. 49. Did you ever hear a customer ask for Lorillard's Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 50. Or for Reynolds' Camels?

"A. No, sir, they never asked me that.

"X-Q. 51. Or for the American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strikes?

"A. No, siree.

"X-Q. 52. You never heard anyone buying cigarettes or tobacco ask for it by the name of the maker, have you?

"A. No, sir."

Defendant's witness, JACOB SHANFIELD, retail dealer in tobacco, candies and novelties, Chicago. (R., Vol. III, p. 1739):

"X-Q. 61. Do you find through your experience of thirteen years that your customers ask for a cigarette or tobacco by the name of the brand?

"A. By the name of the brand; yes, sir.

"X-Q. 62. Do they ask for a brand made by the American Tobacco Company or—

"A. No, sir.

"X-Q. 63. Or naming the maker?

"A. No, sir. Sometimes they come and ask me and give me the P. A., or there was a tobacco by the name J. R. There was one tobacco, J. R. Reynolds, and that was on the package, big J. and big R. J. R.

"X-Q. 64. Was that generally asked for in any way except by the name of the brand?

"A. Brand.

"X-Q. 65. Would you say cigarettes and tobacco sell by the brand?

"A. By the brand.

"X-Q. 66. Have you a front display window facing the side walk on the front side of your store?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 67 Whose brands are you displaying in one half of your front window at the present time?

"A. Mostly P. Lorillard Company.

"X-Q. 68. What name is on that painted sign hanging out over your door with the street number '742 West 43rd Street' on it?

"A. One side is Helmar and one side is London Life, I believe. Don't say what company."

The testimony shows that even among the retail dealers in tobacco called as witnesses by DEFENDANT, many did not know the names of the manufacturers of the leading tobacco brands which they sold over the counter and could not name the brands made by the Lorillard Company.

SAMUEL S. BROADBENT, of Worcester, Mass., sells tobacco products in his drug store. He was one of defendant's witnesses. The following is quoted from his testimony (R., Vol.II, pp. 1157-1159):

"X-Q. 20. Have you sold other Lorillard brands besides Beech-Nut?

"A. Of what? Cigarettes, cigars?

"X-Q. 21. Cigarettes?

"A. I don't remember. I don't know what other brands they make, really.

"X-Q. 22. The only brand you can identify positively as a Lorillard brand is the Beech-Nut.

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 23. Do you know who makes the Camel cigarettes?

"A. No, I don't know as I do.

. . . . . .

"X-Q. 27. Do you sell 'Murad' cigarettes?

"A. Yes, I think we have them.

"X-Q. 28. Do you sell 'Mogul' cigarettes?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 29. Do you sell 'Helmar' cigarettes?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 30. Do you know who makes those cigarettes?

"A. I do not.

"X-Q. 31. And you cannot name any Lorillard brands at all of cigarettes?

"A. No. As I told you, that was the only thing that fixed that in my mind, was reading the ad. through to see . . .''

The following is from the deposition of PETER PETERS, of Lawrence, Mass., a retailer of tobacco and groceries, one of defendant's witnesses (R., Vol. II, p. 1138):

"Q. 7. Do you know who makes the Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Yes.

"Q. 8. Who makes it?

"A. Leroyd or Alroyd, or Ralroid—I don't know how to spell the name.

"Q. 9. You don't know how to spell the name?

"A. I don't know how to spell the name, but it is right on the package, anyway.

"Q. 10. Do you know who makes the Beech-Nut gum?

"A. Sure.

"Q. 11. Who?

"A. Beech-Nut Packing Company; their name is all marked on the package.

. . . . . .

(Pages 1140-1141):

"X-Q. 16. Who makes the Fatima cigarettes, do you know?

"A. I didn't look to see.

"X-Q. 17. Can you tell me out of your head who makes the Fatima cigarettes?

"A. Of course, I don't handle much of them.

"X-Q. 18. How about the Camels, do you know who makes them?

"A. The Camels?

"X-Q. 19. Yes.

"A. No,—the American Tobacco Company, I think.

"X-Q. 20. Who makes the Lucky Strike, do you know?

"A. Meyers, or Miles,—I don't know.

"X-Q. 21. And who makes the Moguls?

"A. I don't handle them.

"X-Q. 22. Did you ever handle the Murads?

"A. Yes, sir.
"X-Q. 23. Who makes those?
"A. I don't know; I didn't look on the packages.
"X-Q. 24. Who makes the Helmars?
"A. I couldn't remember who makes them, but of course when I look at the package I can tell.
"X-Q. 25. But in the ordinary course you would not look on the package unless somebody asked you?
"A. No."

Another of defendant's witnesses, ANDREW J. WRIGHT, of Worcester, Mass., who had for eleven years kept a grocery, tobacco and confectionery store, testified as follows (R., Vol. II, pp. 1167-1168):

"X-Q. 36. What are the leading Lorillard brands of cigarettes you sell?
"A. I would have to look at the packages to tell you who makes them.
"X-Q. 37. Can you name any other Lorillard brand of cigarettes except the Beech-Nut without looking at the packages?
"A. Very doubtful.
"X-Q. 38. Do you know the name of the makers of the Camel cigarettes?
"A. I couldn't say, without looking.
"X-Q. 39. Do you know who makes the Fatima cigarettes?
"A. Again, I wouldn't say without looking.
"X-Q. 40. Or Chesterfields?
"A. No.
"X-Q. 41. Or Deities?
"A. No, I don't handle them.
"X-Q. 42. Murads?
"A. The Greek,—I don't know what his name is; I don't know how you pronounce it.
"X-Q. 43. Or Moguls?
"A. Why—
"X-Q. 44. Some Greek makes the Moguls?
"Mr. Cavanagh: Anargyros.
"A. Yes, I guess that would be it. I was trying to make it begin with an S.
"Mr. Cavanagh: S. Anargyros.

"X-Q. 45. You have been selling Deities and Moguls?

"A. Deities I haven't handled for a long time.

"X-Q. 46. You still sell Moguls?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 47. You sell Helmars?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 48. Do you know who makes Helmars?

"A. Well, let's see. Isn't that by the same people that makes Moguls?

"X-Q. 49. Do you know? Whether you know or not?

"A. If I was going to say, I should say it was the same people that makes the Moguls. I wouldn't swear to it.

"X-Q. 50. So the only cigarettes of which you can name the manufacturer definitely is Beech-Nut?

"A. Why, let's see. No, I guess 'Sweet Caps' (Caporals) isn't that the American? Well, I wouldn't undertake to name them accurately.

"X-Q. 51. Can you name any other except Beech-Nut?

"A. Because I never pay any attention to these things. Most of these cigarettes have been manufactured by somebody and have been consolidated with other concerns; without paying any particular attention I know they have been, but who the originators are and who owns them, I wouldn't be sure."

CARL W. JACOBSON, one of defendant's witnesses, a retailer in Baltimore, Maryland, did not know that the Beech-Nut cigarette was made by the Lorillard Company until told so by defendant's counsel as shown by the following question and answer. (R., Vol. II, p. 1215):

"Q. 12. Do you know what company makes the Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. After I had a conversation with you I do, but I didn't know it before."

WILLIAM STEIDINGER, another of defendant's own witnesses, retailer of tobaccos, candies, groceries and notions, near an entrance to the Union Stock Yards in Chicago, did not know who made either Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco or Beech-Nut cigarettes until shown packages of each by defendant's counsel, although he handled both in his business. The following is from his testimony (R., Vol. III, pp. 1745-1746):

"Q. 17. Do you handle Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 18. Do you know what company makes Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco?

"A. The Beech-Nut is—I don't even know; I can't even tell you right now.

"Q. 19. Mr. Steidinger, do you know of the Lorillard Tobacco Company?

"A. Sure, I know of the Lorillard.

"Q. 20. Do you handle any of the Lorillard Tobacco Company's products?

"A. Sure, I got Lorillard.

"Q. 21. Could you name a few Lorillard products that you handle?

"A. Well, sir, that is, the Climax is Lorillard's, isn't it? Yes.

"Q. 22. Do you handle Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. Beech-Nut cigarettes? Yes, sir.

"Q. 23. Do you know what company makes Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. I do not know; no. I never paid any attention to that. You see, I buy from the jobbers; I don't even know half of the companies, who makes them.

"Q. 24. I show you a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, which is in this case as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1. Will you tell me whose name appears on the front of that package beneath the oval?

"A. The P. Lorillard—The manufacturer?

"Q. 25. Yes.

"A. Yes, P. Lorillard Company."

. . . . . .

(Page 1747):

"Q. 36. Did I understand you to say, when I asked you a moment ago whether you knew what company made Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco, that you did not know what company made it?

"A. I didn't know it unless I took time. I didn't pay any attention to the manufacturers at that time. I know it was not a gum manufacturer; it was a tobacco."

(Page 1753):

"R-X Q. 93. You keep the Lorillard products, do you not?

"A. Yes, sir.

"R-X Q. 94. Any others besides Beech-Nut cigarettes and Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco?

"A. Well, let's see. That is one thing I have never paid much attention to, as I buy through jobbers. Climax tobacco and Havana Blossom. I don't know. I might have one or two more that I can't think of just now."

The following is from the testimony of another of defendant's witnesses, ELEAZER LEBEWOHL, who keeps a tobacco store in Boston (R., Vol. II, p. 963):

"X-Q. 34. When you speak about the reputation of the Lorillard Company, you mean its reputation in the tobacco trade?

"A. As being an old, reliable concern, and handling their merchandise for so many years, it impresses it on your mind.

"X-Q. 35. You naturally would deal with them on that account?

"A. Yes; and the merchandise being so extentively advertised, too, you know.

"X-Q. 36. What are the leading Lorillard brands of cigarettes which you have found to be the best sellers?

"A. You mean any cigarettes?

"X-Q. 37. Yes.

"A. Well, I will tell you; in buying tobacco, I have in mind buying the tobacco, see, and my attention is so much occupied with all the other little details that I cannot tell you right off what they are,—you know, to be truthful to you."

PHILIP H. MORAN, proprietor of a tobacco store at West Lynn, Mass., a witness for defendant, thought every one knew that Lorillard made the Beech-Nut cigarettes, but he himself could not state accurately the names of the makers of other more prominent and widely sold cigarettes. The following is from his testimony (R., Vol. II, pp. 1109-1110):

"X-Q. 11. When you put in the Beech-Nut cigarettes, did the jobber, or the Lorillard agent come in and get you to put them in?

"A. I believe the agent came in first.

"X-12. He came in first and told you they were coming out with a new kind of cigarettes and that you better put them in?

"A. Yes, he asked me if I would put in some at the time.

"X-Q. 13. And, of course, you know who made them?

"A. Yes; I presume that everybody knew who made them.

"X-Q. 14. That is not based on anything anybody told you?

"A. No, that is just my supposition.

"X-Q. 15. You knew yourself?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 16. When a man comes in to buy Camel cigarettes, or other brands of cigarettes, he comes in and puts his money down and takes the goods and walks out?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 17. And you don't have any discussion with him as to who makes Camel cigarettes?

"A. I don't know who makes them. I give him the brand he calls for. I am interested in making the sale, that is all I am interested in, the sale of them.

"X-Q. 18. Do you know who makes the Camel cigarettes?

"A. Yes.

"X-Q. 19. Who makes the Camels?

"A. The American Tobacco Company.

"X-Q. 20. Who makes the Fatimas?

"A. Why, I don't know; I think they are made by the same house, I wouldn't say; I don't know exactly.

"X-Q. 21. Do you know who makes the Lucky Strike?

"A. No, I was under the impression that the American Tobacco Company did.

"X-Q. 22. You are not sure who makes some of these most popular brands?

"A. Yes, I know some of them, but there are some I don't know.

APPENDIX E, PLAINTIFF'S WITNESSES SHOWING LORILLARD NAME UNKNOWN TO MANY CLASSES OF PEOPLE.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix E is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

ALFRED W. GODFREY, trader in feeds and flour, on Chamber of Commerce, Boston—R., Vol. I, p. 53, X-Q. 24.

THOMAS F. MALONEY, trader on Chamber of Commerce, Boston—R., Vol. I, p. 69, X-Q. 13.

DORACE L. BOTTOMLY, grocer's clerk, Worcester, Mass.—R., Vol. I, p. 169, X-Q. 36.

JOHN H. LANG, wholesale grocer, Worcester, Mass.—R., Vol. I, p. 173, X-Qs. 17-19, p. 175, X-Q. 26.

CHAS. O. LARSON, grocer, Chicago, Ill.—R., Vol. I, p. 443, X-Q. 16.

EUGENE C. SULLIVAN, advertising salesman, Chicago—R., Vol. I, p. 459, X-Qs. 7, 10, 17.

DANIEL HUTTNER, butcher, Chicago—R., Vol. I, p. 487, X-Q. 19.

F. J. LATZEL, delicatessen proprietor, Oak Park, Ill.—R., Vol. I, p. 493, X-Qs. 17-19.

FRED KNOOP, grocer, Oak Park, Ill.—R., Vol. I, p. 497, X-Q. 9.

H. N. PETERSEN, grocer, Manitowoc, Wis.—R., Vol. I, p. 515, X-Q. 38.

MISS C. HELLER, bookkeeper and grocery clerk, Milwaukee, Wis.—R., Vol. I, p. 542, X-Q. 64.

CARL W. NEMETZ, grocer, Milwaukee, Wis.—R., Vol. I, p. 552, X-Qs. 22-24.

GEO. B. ROACH, grocer, Pembroke, Ky.—R., Vol. I, p. 669, X-Qs. 13-14.

BRYAN O. FOSTER, grocer's clerk, Pembroke, Ky.—R., Vol. I, p. 689, X-Qs. 39-40.

CHAS. P. COOK, grocer, Paris, Ky.—R., Vol. I, p. 698, X-Qs. 30-32.

WM. T. HILL, grocery and meat market, West Greenville, S. C.—R., Vol. I, p. 726, X-Qs. 11-13.

JEFFERSON D. HAYDEN, grocer, Columbia, S. C.—R., Vol. I, p. 763, X-Qs. 88-92.

WALTER PEABODY, grocer's clerk, Chicago, Ill.—R., Vol. IV, p. 2232, X-Q. 10.

LUDWIG NURNBERG, grocer, Chicago, Ill.—R., Vol. IV, p. 2236, X-Q. 3.

APPENDIX F, A FEW VETERAN TOBACCO DEALERS ARE THE ONLY WITNESSES WHO EVEN REMEMBER THAT THE WEISSINGER BEECHNUT TOBACCO BRAND EVER EXISTED—NOT ONE ULTIMATE CONSUMER REMEMBERS.

The only witnesses who testified to any knowledge or remembrance of the old Weissinger Beechnut brand of tobacco, outside of Lorillard Company officials and a few men connected with its manufacture, are the following:

W. H. NICHOL, buyer for twenty-five years for a Pittsburgh wholesale and jobbing grocery house, Allen, Kirkpatrick & Co., stated that he had, at the request of a representative of the Lorillard Company, examined the records of the company for which he worked and that he found records of purchases of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco in 1901, 1902 and 1903, but no record of any purchases of that tobacco after 1903 (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2275-2276). Mr. Nichol had no personal recollection of the Weissinger Beechnut brand and said that "my knowledge of it would be simply the record as it is recorded in the books." This witness was not an ultimate consumer and had no recollection of the Weissinger Beechnut brand. He merely produced the old records of his employer, and these records show no purchase later than 1903.

CHARLES C. ST. CLAIR (R., Vol. IV, p. 2280), also a buyer for twenty-five years for the same concern that the above-mentioned witness, Nichol, works for, remembered buying Weissinger Beechnut tobacco for his employer, and when asked why his company ceased buying that brand he replied, "Well, my only opinion would be that they were unable to get it; it was not manufactured; no other reason that I know of." The company for which

Mr. St. Clair worked made its last purchase of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco in 1903 and Mr. St. Clair thought the reason no more was bought was that it could not be obtained because it was not manufactured.

WILLIAM M. GORMLY, a buyer employed for thirty years by S. Ewart & Co. of Pittsburgh, a company engaged in the wholesale grocery and tobacco business, produced a record showing purchases of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco in 1901 and 1902 (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2283-2284). He also produced two packages of the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco put out by Luhrman & Wilbern and bearing revenue stamps canceled in 1905 (R., Vol. IV, p. 2285). Mr. Gormly obtained these old packages from an "old drawer of samples" which "as a sample drawer has been out of use for ten years" (R., Vol. IV, p. 2287, X-Q. 51). Mr. Gormly referred to the samples in the drawer as "pretty well dried out now" (R., Vol. IV, p. 2287, X-Q. 54). When asked if he intended to destroy the drawer he said that "it should have been done long ago" (R., Vol. IV, p. 2288, X-Q. 59), but that it would be kept "until housecleaning" (X-Q. 60). In answer to cross-question 74 he said they had offered several times to give away the contents of the drawer but "no person would take it on account of its age" (p. 2290). The latest packages produced by Mr. Gormly were those taken from this drawer and bearing revenue stamps canceled in 1905. He stated as his idea of the reason his company ceased buying Weissinger Beechnut tobacco that possibly there was a lack of demand for it (p. 2288, X-Q. 64).

H. H. ARNOLD, for thirty years connected with S. Ewart & Company, the firm for which Mr. Gormly also worked, identified the book entries referred to by the latter as being in his, Arnold's, handwriting. Despite this long period of employment by S. Ewart & Company he imparted no information regarding the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco and did not state that he even remembered that such a brand had ever existed (R., Vol. IV, p. 2291).

T. F. Coyle, a buyer connected with Arbuckles & Company, wholesale grocers, of Pittsburgh for "at least twenty-five years," says that he bought the Weissinger Beechnut tobacco for his employer during the years 1901 to 1908 as shown by the Arbuckles & Company weekly and fortnightly printed price lists which are bound in yearly volumes and preserved by the company. There was no record showing that Arbuckles & Company dealt in Weissinger Beechnut tobacco after the year 1908 (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2292-2293).

H. O. Evans was employed for twenty-four years by Thomas C. Jenkins Company, wholesale grocers and jobbers, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Evans was at first a bookkeeper and later a buyer for his employer. He produced records of the Jenkins Company showing purchases of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco in the years 1901 to 1907, but no record showing any dealings in that tobacco later than 1907 (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2294-2297). He said that the business in this tobacco "was a very small factor in our business" and that "we bought it in 100 pound lots" which "is a very small item for tobacco," "accustomed as we are to buy in carload lots" (R., Vol. IV, p. 2298, X-Q. 89).

J. Lewis Orrick, secretary and treasurer of J. C. Orrick & Sons Co., of Cumberland, Maryland, wholesale grocers and jobbers, stated on June 1, 1920 (R., Vol. IV, pp. 2270-2273), that he had been connected with this company "in one capacity or another" for nearly twenty years and that during the first years of his connection therewith this concern was selling "Beechnut" tobacco "purchased from Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co., Continental Tobacco Co. and Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Co." He produced from the records of his company nine paid invoices showing purchases by his company of "Beechnut" tobacco from those firms in 1902, 1903, and 1906-1908, respectively. He stated that a few months before (in 1920), at the instance of a P. Lorillard Co. investigator, he found a carton of the old Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. "Beechnut" tobacco which he sold to the Lorillard investigator, it having been in the Orrick store "for many years."

Albert P. Gans, of Louisville, Kentucky, stated that he had been employed for thirty-three years by the C. C. Bickel Company, manufacturers of cigars and jobbers of tobacco (R., Vol. IV, p. 2339). He said that the Bickel Company had bought and sold one "little lot" consisting of one gross of Weissinger Beechnut tobacco in the year 1897 (p. 2340, Q. 9, and p. 2342, Q. 19). He did not know what happened to this brand of tobacco or whether it remained in the market or not (p. 2343, X-Qs. 25-26).

P. J. Rosswog, retail tobacco merchant of forty-five years' experience in Pittsburgh, Pa., stated (R., Vol. III, p. 1927) that for several years following 1900, but not after 1910, he sold a scrap tobacco put out by Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. or its successor, which bore the name "Beechnut" and the picture of a squirrel. He could not remember exactly when he first began to handle it or when he made his last sale (R., Vol. III, p. 1928).

M. Borenstein, in the retail tobacco business for fifteen years in Pittsburgh, Pa., testified (R., Vol. III, p. 1930) to the same effect as P. J. Rosswog, above.

APPENDIX G, UNITED STATES TRADE-MARK STATUTES—EXCERPTS.

Act of Feb. 20, 1905, ch. 592; 33 Stat. L. 724 (as amended).

"SEC. 5. That no mark by which the goods of the owner of the mark may be distinguished from other goods of the same class shall be refused registration as a trade-mark on account of the nature of such mark unless such mark—

"(a) Consists of or comprises immoral scandalous matter.

"(b) Consists of or comprises the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States or any simulation thereof, or of any State or municipality or of any foreign nation, or of any design or picture that has been or may hereafter be adopted by any fraternal society as its emblem, or of any name, distinguishing mark, character, emblem, colors, flag, or banner adopted by any institution, organization, club, or society which was incorporated in any State in the United States prior to the date of the adoption and use by the applicant: Provided, That said name, distinguishing mark, character, emblem, colors, flag or banner was adopted and publicly used by said institution, organization, club, or society prior to the date of adoption and use by the applicant: Provided, That trade-marks which are identical with a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties, or which so nearly resemble a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties as to be likely to cause confusion or mistake in the mind of the public or to deceive purchasers shall not be registered: Provided, That no mark which consists merely in the name of an individual, firm, corporation, or association not written, printed, impressed, or woven in some particular or distinctive manner, or in association with a portrait of the individual, or merely in words or devices which are descriptive of the goods with which they are used, or of the character or quality of such goods, or merely a geographical name or term, shall be registered under the terms of this Act: Provided further, That no portrait of a living individual may be registered as a trade-mark except by the consent of such individual, evidenced by an instrument in writing: And provided further, That nothing herein shall prevent the registration of any mark used by the applicant or his predecessors, or by those from whom title to the mark is derived, in commerce with foreign nations or among the several States or with Indian tribes which was in actual and exclusive use as a trade-mark of the applicant, or his predecessors from whom he derived title, for ten years next preceding February twentieth, nineteen hundred and five: Provided further, That nothing herein shall prevent the registration of a trade-mark otherwise registrable because of its being the name of the applicant or a portion thereof." [33 Stat. L. 725, as amended by 34 Stat. L. 1251, 36 Stat. L. 918, 37 Stat. L. 649.]

"And if any person or corporation shall have so registered a mark upon the ground of said use for ten years preceding February 20, 1905, as to certain articles or classes of articles to which said mark shall have been applied for said period, and shall have thereafter and subsequently extended his business so as to include other articles not manufactured by said applicant for ten years next preceding February 20, 1905, nothing herein shall prevent the registration of said trade-mark in the additional classes to which said new additional articles manufactured by said person or corporation shall apply, after said trade-mark has been used on said article in interstate or foreign commerce or with the Indian tribes for at least one year provided another person or corporation has not adopted and used previously to its adoption and use by the proposed registrant, and for more than one year such trade-mark or one so similar as to be likely to deceive in such additional class or classes." [41 Stat. L. 535.]

"SEC. 6. That on the filing of an application for registration of a trade-mark which complies with the requirements of this act, and the payment of the fees herein provided for, the Commissioner of Patents shall cause an examination thereof to be made; and if on such examination it shall appear that the applicant is entitled to have his trade-mark registered under the provisions of this act, the Commissioner shall cause the mark to be published at least once in the Official Gazette of the Patent Office. Any person who believes he would be damaged by the registration of a mark may oppose the same by filing notice of opposition, stating the grounds therefor, in the Patent Office within thirty days after the publication of the mark sought to be registered, which said notice of opposition shall be verified by the person filing the same before one of the officers mentioned in section two of this act. An opposition may be filed by a duly authorized attorney, but such opposition shall be null and void unless verified by the opposer within a reasonable time after such filing. If no notice of opposition is filed within said time, the Commissioner shall issue a certificate of registration therefor, as hereinafter provided for. If on examination an application is refused, the Commissioner shall notify the applicant, giving him his reasons therefor." [33 Stat. L. 726, as amended by 34 Stat. L. 1252.]

"SEC. 9. That if an applicant for registration of a trade-mark, or a party to an interference as to a trade-mark, or a party who has filed opposition to the registration of a trade-mark, or party to an application for the cancellation of the registration of a trade-mark, is dissatisfied with the decision of the Commissioner of Patents, he may appeal to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, on complying with the conditions required in case of an appeal from the decision of the Commissioner by an applicant for patent, or a party to an interference as to an invention, and the same rules of practice and procedure shall govern in every stage of such proceedings, as far as the same may be applicable." [33 Stat. L. 727.]

"SEC. 13. That whenever any person shall deem himself injured by the registration of a trade-mark in the Patent Office he may at any time apply to the Commissioner of Patents to cancel the registration thereof. The Commissioner shall refer such application to the examiner in charge of interferences, who is empowered to hear and determine this question and who shall give notice thereof to the registrant. If it appear after a hearing before the examiner that the registrant was not entitled to the use of the mark at the date of his application for registration thereof, or that the mark is not used by the registrant, or has been abandoned, and the examiner shall so decide, the Commissioner shall cancel the registration. Appeal may be taken to the Commissioner in person from the decision of examiner of interferences." [33 Stat. L. 728.]

"SEC. 16. That the registration of a trade-mark under the provisions of this Act shall be prima facie evidence of ownership. Any person who shall, without the consent of the owner thereof, reproduce, counterfeit, copy, or colorably imitate any such trade-mark and affix the same to merchandise of substantially the same descriptive properties as those set forth in the registration, or to labels, signs, prints, packages, wrappers, or receptacles intended to be used upon or in connection with the sale of merchandise of substantially the same descriptive properties as those set forth in such registration, and shall use, or shall have used, such reproduction, counterfeit, copy or colorable imitation in commerce among the several States, or with a foreign nation, or with the Indian tribes, shall be liable to an action for damages therefor at the suit of the owner thereof; and whenever in any such action a verdict is rendered for the plaintiff, the court may enter judgment therein for any sum above the amount found by the verdict as the actual damages, according to the circumstances of the case, not exceeding three times the amount of such verdict, together with the costs." [33 Stat. L. 728.]

"SEC. 17. That the circuit and territorial courts of the United States and the supreme court of the District of Columbia shall have original jurisdiction, and the circuit courts of appeal of the United States and the court of appeals of the District of Columbia shall have appellate jurisdiction of all suits at law or in equity respecting trade-marks registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act, arising under the present Act, without regard to the amount in controversy." [33 Stat. L. 728.]

"SEC. 18. That writs of certiorari may be granted by the Supreme Court of the United States for the review of cases arising under this Act in the same manner as provided for patent cases by the act creating the circuit court of appeals." [33 Stat. L. 729.]

"SEC. 19. That the several courts vested with jurisdiction of cases arising under the present Act shall have power to grant injunctions, according to the course and principles of equity, to prevent the violation of any right of the owner of a trade-mark registered under this Act, on such terms as the court may deem reasonable; and upon a decree being rendered in any such case for wrongful use of a trade-mark the complainant shall be entitled to recover, in addition to the profits to be accounted for by the defendant, the damages the complainant has sustained thereby, and the court shall assess the same or cause the same to be assessed under its direction. The court shall have the same power to increase such damages, in its discretion, as is given by section sixteen of this Act for increasing damages found by verdict in actions of law; and in assessing profits the plaintiff shall be required to prove defendant's sales only; defendant must prove all elements of cost which are claimed." [33 Stat. L. 729.]

"SEC. 23. That nothing in this Act shall prevent, lessen, impeach, or avoid any remedy at law or in equity which any party aggrieved by any wrongful use of any trade-mark might have had if the provisions of this Act had not been passed." [33 Stat. L. 730.]

Act of May 4, 1906, ch. 2081; 34 Stat. L. 168.

"SEC. 2. That the Commissioner of Patents shall establish classes of merchandise for the purpose of trade-mark registration, and shall determine the particular descriptions of goods comprised in each class. On a single application for registration of a trade-mark the trade-mark may be registered at the option of the applicant for any or all goods upon which the mark has actually been used comprised in a single class of merchandise, provided the particular descriptions of goods be stated." [34 Stat. L. 169.]

APPENDIX H, DECEPTIVE PRACTICES OF SALESMEN SELLING BEECH-NUT TOBACCO AND CIGARETTES.

[Page numbers of the brief where Appendix H is referred to are shown in the list of Appendices appearing on the blue page immediately preceding the Appendices section.]

That the inherent deceptive effect of the Lorillard Beech-Nut labels was frequently aggravated by the deceptive representations or conduct of many of the Lorillard or other tobacco salesmen cannot be doubted in view of the testimony of some of the plaintiff's witnesses.

CHARLES P. COOK, of Paris, Kentucky, is proprietor of a grocery store. His deposition appears at page 695 of Vol. I of the Record. He testified (Q. 17 et seq.) that four or five years previously a salesman had come into his store, stating that he was selling Beech-Nut tobacco; that he told the salesman that he did not know that the Beech-Nut Packing Company put up tobacco and that the salesman replied "that this was a new product, or one of their new products" (Q. 20). Mr. Cook stated that he was not certain that he bought Beech-Nut tobacco at that time, but that he would have been willing to handle it because he "had been handling other Beech-Nut stuff and thought the quality would be like all other Beech-Nut stuff." He added that he remembered this occurrence because Mr. Mattox, who sells the Beech-Nut products, was in the store at the time and he told Mr. Mattox that he did not know that the Beech-Nut Packing Company put out tobacco, and that Mr. Mattox replied that he did not know it either, that it was not on his list, but that he would find out about it. (Q. 22.)

GEORGE B. ROACH, a grocer of Pembroke, Ky., whose deposition appears at page 663 of Vol. I of the Record, testified that he dealt in the products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company; that he first learned of the Beech-Nut tobacco by seeing posters in the show windows, and that he then thought the tobacco was being put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company; that he first saw a package of the Beech-Nut tobacco when shown it by a traveling salesman who came into his store saying that he represented Beech-Nut tobacco (Q. 19). This occurred about the first of August, 1921. In reply to questions 24 to 33, Mr. Roach stated that he did not remember that the salesman stated whom he represented, but said he was selling Beech-Nut tobacco and that he gained the impression that he represented the Beech-Nut Packing Company. He stated his reason for this impression as follows (Q. 26):

> "Well, because he said in the conversation that I knew the Beech-Nut trade-mark and knew what it stood for—anything put out under the Beech-Nut trade-mark had to be the highest quality."

Mr. Roach stated that these remarks convinced him that the tobacco was put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, but he learned differently later from Mr. Hamilton, a salesman for the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and that at a still later date the Beech-Nut tobacco salesman came in again, and Mr. Roach gives the following account of his interview with him upon that occasion (Q. 32):

> "Well, I told him that I understood that the Beech-Nut Packing Company was raising 'Cain' about them using their trade-mark, and he said that they had sold the trade-mark to the Beech-Nut Packing Company, and had reserved the right to use the trade-mark on tobacco—he said that they had sued them once on the trade-mark and lost it, and he didn't think that they could gain it this time."

Mr. Roach said that the Beech-Nut tobacco salesman said his name was Bacon (Q. 37).

WILLIAM T. HILL, proprietor of a grocery store in West Greenville, S. C., stated that a salesman came to his store, offering Beech-Nut tobacco for sale, about the first of November, 1921. He described the occurrence as follows (R., Vol. I, p. 724):

> "Q. 18. What did you say to him?
> "A. Well, I just have to commence sort of in my own way. You know we have men to come in here every day to sell something. As nigh as I recollect, I was by myself when he came in here. He asked me about the tobacco, and I had never heard tell of it. I told him I would not buy none now, but probably later on. I talked on and explained to him I didn't like buying new things. He went on then to ask me about how the Beech-Nut stuff sold, such as peanut butter and gum, and so on, and I told him it was a fine seller. 'Well,' he said, 'this tobacco will make you just such a seller as Beech-Nut.' I turned around to him and said, 'The Beech-Nut Company putting out tobacco?' He talked on and I don't know I got any direct answer. Don't think I did.
> "Q. 19. What was the effect on you of what he did and said at that time?
> "A. Well, I just put it up that they had put out tobacco.
> "Q. 20. Who did you think put it out?
> "A. The Beech-Nut Company, that's who I thought."

ROBERT L. BOWEN, a grocer of Spartanburg, S. C., whose deposition appears at page 742 of the Record, Vol. I, testified that he dealt in Beech-Nut products; said that when he first saw a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes (Q. 15 et seq.) he thought that they were the product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company. He describes the occasion when he first learned of the Beech-Nut cigarettes as follows (R., Vol. I, p. 744, Qs. 17-22):

"Q. 17. When you first saw them, who did you think put them out?

"A. Beech-Nut Packing Company.

"Q. 18. What made you think so?

"A. Well, a man came in and held it up just like you, only not so far, not that far away, and I saw Beech-Nut on it, and the style of their label.

"Q. 19. What was the occasion when you first saw the Beech-Nut cigarettes?

"A. I was in the store and a gentleman came in —I was busy at the time, and he walked around. He kept waiting and finally I got a chance to speak to him. He said, 'I see you handle Beech-Nut peanut butter, and I want to sell you some Beech-Nut cigarettes.'

"Q. 20. Then, what occurred between you and him?

"A. He tried to sell me some, and I told him that I did not want to put in a new line, I was handling Chesterfields. He could not sell me, and he started to pack up and go away, and I said, 'It's funny that the Beech-Nut Packing Company is putting up cigarettes.' He said, 'Yes,' and went on out the door.

"Q. 21. Did he have any Beech-Nut cigarettes with him?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 22. What effect did he have on you? What impression did he leave?

"A. He left the impression that the cigarettes were put up by the Beech-Nut Packing Company."

(Pages 748-749):

"X-Q. 26. You always bought your Beech-Nut goods from Mr. Jennings?

"A. Yes, sir.

"X-Q. 27. You would naturally think it strange that another party should come in to sell you Beech-Nut goods?

"A. Not necessarily.

"X-Q. 28. The party who came in to sell you the cigarettes did not say he was the Beech-Nut Packing Company's representative?

"A. He offered me Beech-Nut cigarettes.

"X-Q. 29. He did not say he was from the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. I don't think he said he was from the Beech-Nut Packing Company. He said he saw I was handling Beech-Nut peanut butter, and he wanted to sell me some Beech-Nut cigarettes. He did not say he was from the Beech-Nut Packing Company—he made me think, though, that he was selling me cigarettes put up by them.

"X-Q. 30. You did not buy any, did you?

"A. I did not buy any from him, but he went off leaving me under that impression.

"X-Q. 31. What else did this man have with him besides the cigarettes?

"A. He did not show me anything else—when he went out of the store, I just made the remark that it was funny the Beech-Nut people were making cigarettes. He just said 'Yes.' He did not explain to me they were made by a different concern. He left the impression on my mind that the Beech-Nut Packing Company were making the cigarettes. He wanted to sell me Beech-Nut cigarettes and speaking about the Beech-Nut butter made me think they were made by them.

"X-Q. 32. He did not say the Beech-Nut Packing Company were making them?

"A. I don't remember what he said about it, but he left the impression on me that the Beech-Nut Packing Company were making the cigarettes."

JEFFERSON D. HAYDEN, proprietor of a grocery store in Columbia, S. C., stated (R., Vol. I, p. 756, Q. 23 et seq.) that he first saw a package of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco on Oct. 18, 1921, when a salesman came into his store and sold him some. He said that when he first saw this tobacco he thought it was made by the Beech-Nut people who put out the other Beech-Nut products, and that he was led to think so from the appearance of the package, adding "all looked the same, the label and the name Beech-Nut."

Mr. Hayden describes his experience with the Beech-Nut tobacco salesman as follows (Ibid, p. 757):

"Q. 27. Who was the man who came into your store, the salesman, that day, October 18, 1921?

"A. E. L. Larson.

"Q. 28. What took place between you and Mr. Larson when he came into your store, October 18, 1921?

"A. He came in and introduced himself as Mr. Larson, selling Beech-Nut tobacco and from the appearance of the package it looked the same as the other Beech-Nut products, and he told me the Beech-Nut was a good seller, and I told him I had been selling the other products all along, and I thought it would be a good seller, and I would try a small quantity of it, and he said, 'Well, who would you like for it to come through,' and I told him it did not make any difference to me—Byrd Johnson would do. They were jobbers. I told him he could send me a small quantity. He said he would put in a dozen, and I told him all right. He had a little case with him full of tobacco, full of these packages, and he says, I can leave these packages with you. I told him all right. So I took an order for a dozen packages, and in the meantime I asked him how much it would amount to. He said, less than a dollar, so I took an order for a dozen and paid him. He said it would amount to 96 cents, with 2 per cent. discount. I said, 'Well, you can just mark the bill paid.' In the meantime he gave me this receipt here, marked 1 doz. packages, 10-cent size, which amount to 96 cents, 2 per cent. discount comes to 94 cents, paid to E. L. Larson. I gave him the cash over the counter for it.

"Q. 29. What was the effect on you of what Mr. Larson did and said at that time?

"A. He left me under the impression that it was the same house that sold the other Beech-Nut products, and that it was a good seller, that it would sell as the other products had been selling, and I understood the tobacco would be good, too.

"Q. 30. Who did you think was putting it out as a result of what he said?

"A. The same people who were putting out the other Beech-Nut products.

"Q. 31. How long did the conversation with Mr. Larson last?

"A. Very short. I suppose fifteen or twenty minutes. He was not in there very long, a very short time.

"Q. 32. You say he gave you this receipt for your order and your money?

"A. He did.

"Receipt signed E. L. Larson, identified by this witness, offered in evidence and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 14. [Reproduced in Record Vol. VI, page 57.]

"Q. 33. Please look at this receipt and read the printed name at the top.

"A. 'P. Lorillard.' A part of it is scratched out.

"Q. 34. Torn out?

"A. Yes, sir. 'P. Lorillard' is all I see, looks like 'Incorporated' on the end.

"Q. 35. Torn out?

"A. Torn out (resuming the reading), '119 West 40th Street, New York.'

"Q. 36. What is the date on it?

"A. 'October 18, 1921.'

"Q. 37. Is there any jobber named?

"A. 'Byrd-Johnson.'

"Q. 38. What address?

"A. 'Columbia, S. C.'

"Q. 39. Any shipping instructions?

"A. Under name, 'Cash and Carry Groceries, shipping point 827 Main. quantity 1 doz., brand Beech-Nut, size, ten cents, price '96' cents, discount 2 cents, net, '94' cents. Marked 'Paid' by 'E. L. Larson.'

"Q. 40. Is that his signature?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. 41. Is there any other indication of the salesman on that order blank?

"A. 'Order taken by Salesman E. L. Larson,' stamped with rubber stamp, I suppose it is.

"Q. 42. Did you know what P. Lorillard Company was, whose name was at the top?

"A. I did not.

"Q. 43. Did that mean anything to you?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. 44. You did not notice it at the time?

"A. I did not.

"Q. 45. Was shipment made through the jobbers?

"A. No, sir.

"Q. 46. How was it delivered to you?

"A. Over the counter.

"Q. 47. Did you buy that loose packages of tobacco—of Beech-Nut scrap, believing that you were dealing with the same people that were putting out Beech-Nut butter?

"A. I did.

"Q. 48. Did you sell any of it to your customers thinking it was put up by the same company that put up Beech-Nut butter?

"A. I did.

"Q. 49. Can you tell us what you said to some of them?

"A. I says, I have a new Beech-Nut product on the market, and it should be a good seller, that it was Beech-Nut and it ought to be all right. Beech-Nut products were good sellers and it should be a good product if it were as good as the others were."

(Page 762):

"X-Q. 85. When he came in here Larson did not tell you that the tobacco was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, did he?

"A. He did not tell me who made it.

"X-Q. 86. But he gave you a receipt of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. That is the receipt he gave me.

"X-Q. 87. That receipt has no connection whatever with the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. It has not, so far as the name on it.

"X-Q. 88. As an ordinary careful man, familiar with business, as you are, when that receipt was given to you, if you looked at it you would have seen P. Lorillard, and know it was a P. Lorillard receipt, would you not?

"A. If I had observed it carefully.

"X-Q. 89. If you had looked at it?

"A. I did not look at it. If I had I would not have known whether it was the manufacturer or the jobber.

"X-Q. 90. But you would have known that it was a receipt of P. Lorillard Company?

"A. I would have known that it was headed P. Lorillard Company, but I would not know him from anybody else. He did not explain whether he was the manufacturer or jobber when I bought this."

(Page 766):

"R-D. Q. 119. To go back to your conversation at the time Mr. Larson went into your store—what was the impression made on you as a result of his conversation and his conduct at the time he was in your store?

"A. He left me under the impression that he was putting out a Beech-Nut product made by the Beech-Nut people, and, as I say, these Beech-Nut products were selling fine, and I was under the impression the tobacco would go the same way, and I told him I would try a small quantity of it. I would not keep much on hand, therefore, I took a dozen packages. I was not able to carry any larger stock as you notice. I carry a very small stock of any kind of goods.

"R-D. Q. 120. And whose product did you think this tobacco was at the time that you made that first purchase from Mr. Larson.

"A. I thought it was the Beech-Nut Packing Company's product. I thought it was put out by the Beech-Nut people."

Mrs. Amelia Petersen, of Manitowoc, Wis., wife of E. F. Petersen, one of two brothers who keep a grocery store at Manitowoc, testified (R., Vol. I, p. 502) that she first heard of Beech-Nut cigarettes (Q. 14) when a man came into the store trying to sell them. She was asked what this man said, and replied:

"Well, he said they were branching, that the Beech-Nut Packing Company were branching off into tobacco and cigarettes, that is what he told us." (Q. 16.)

She stated that the salesman made this statement to her brother in her presence and that they talked with the salesman about peanut butter and he said they were branching off into tobacco and cigarettes (Qs. 17 to 20).

H. N. PETERSEN testified (R., Vol. I, p. 510) that he is one of the Petersen brothers who own the grocery store at Manitowoc, Wisconsin; that he first heard of Beech-Nut cigarettes when a salesman came into the store trying to sell them (Qs. 5 and 6); that his brother's wife was present upon this occasion (Q. 13). He was asked to state the conversation that took place when the salesman came in trying to sell the cigarettes, and testified as follows (p. 511, Q. 9):

> "A. Well, then I says to him when he showed them cigarettes, I says, 'Well, if those cigarettes are as good as the Beech-Nut peanut butter, it is a good line, but,' I said, 'we have never had them before.' And I said to him, then: 'Well, that is a kind of peculiar line to go into, from the peanut butter into cigarettes,' and he said then, 'Well,' he says, 'they are branching out,' so I never paid no attention to the tobacco, really, whose that was, and never thought any more of it at the time."

Upon cross-examination, Mr. Petersen testified as follows (p. 514):

> "X-Q. 35. Now, I want you to think this over very carefully. Did this man, when he came in, say that he represented the Beech-Nut Packing Company?
>
> "A. He meant it this way, that I said to him, 'Well, if it is the same people—'
>
> "Mr. Cavanagh: Would you just answer the question?
>
> "Mr. Hinton: Let him answer. He is entitled to finish his answer.
>
> "A. (Continuing) I asked him, 'If it is the same people that turn out the cigarettes as the peanut butter, it is a good article, no question about it,' and he said: 'Yes.' I said: 'But that is a funny thing to branch out in that line from peanut butter,' and he said: 'Well, they are branching out.' That is all he said.

"Mr. Cavanagh: X-Q. 36. Then he didn't say these cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, did he?

"A. No, he didn't say that that I understood, but I thought when I mentioned the peanut butter that would be sufficient.

"X-Q. 37. As a matter of fact, he didn't say those cigarettes were made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company?

"A. No, he didn't say that, that I heard.

"X-Q. 38. Do you know of the P. Lorillard Company?

"A. No, sir."

Defendant introduced the testimony of E. F. PETERSEN, brother of H. N. Petersen (R., Vol. II, p. 1580). E. F. Petersen testified that some months before the Beech-Nut cigarette was introduced into the city of Manitowoc he had purchased an order of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco from a salesman who stated he was from P. Lorillard Company, tobacco manufacturers, and that this salesman made no misrepresentations as to who was the manufacturer of that tobacco. Upon cross-examination Mr. E. F. Petersen stated that he did not recall ever having mentioned to his wife, Mrs. Amelia Petersen, or to his brother, H. N. Petersen, the first visit of this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco salesman or what he had said or done at that time.

WM. C. WEIGEL, retail grocer of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, testified as follows regarding what occurred when the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco was first sold him (R., Vol. I, page 561):

"I don't know whether I asked him directly, or whether he told me, but I was given to understand that this was a label that was only permitted on the very best products and was leased by the different companies that put out this product." (Q. 8.)

"I naturally supposed that the Beech-Nut label was owned by some man or some company and then leased out to the people that put it out in a very high class product." (Q. 13.)

Mr. Weigel testified that he had dealt in scrap tobacco about two years (Q. 6) and that he had not learned the true facts regarding the trade-mark until about two or three weeks before testifying (Q. 14).

Office Supreme Court, U.
FILED
DEC 19 192
WM R. STANSBU
CLE

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1925.

No. [redacted]249

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,

Petitioner.

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,

Respondent.

OPPOSING BRIEF FOR RESPONDENT ON PETITION FOR CERTIORARI.

JOHN W. DAVIS,
WILLIAM R. PERKINS,
JOHN MILTON,
Counsel for Respondent.

INDEX.

	PAGE
Four tribunals deny petitioner's contentions.....	1
Like petitions in similar cases uniformly denied..	2
I. Facts in case present no new question calling for decision by this court.....	3–9
Use of "Beech-Nut" for tobacco dates from 1897	3
Petitioner's business always wholly food products	4
No concern has ever combined food and tobacco products	5
Respondent's business always wholly tobacco products	5
Petitioner is estopped by laches and acquiescence	6
No deception of public or confusion in trade	7
No injury to petitioner's business.....	8
II. No conflict of decisions—they differ in result solely by reason of different facts.....	9–12
The Vogue Case.....	10
The Peninsular Case.....	10
The Aunt Jemima Case.....	11
III. Lower Court correctly applied well settled principles to the particular facts of this case	12–17
Hanover Case followed and applied.....	12–13
Goods and businesses totally unrelated....	13–16
Courts have always so classified them.....	14
Such the uniform custom of trade.....	15
Respective packages utterly unlike.....	16
Respondent's conduct fair and honest.....	16–17
Conclusion	17

CITATIONS.

Beech-Nut v. Lorillard Decisions.

	PAGE
Circuit Court of Appeals (3d Cir.) 7 F (2d) 967	1, 5, 7, 9, 12, 13, 16, 17
District Court of New Jersey, 299 Fed. 834	1, 4, 6, 16
Acting Commissioner of Patents, Rec. Vol. VI, p. 123	1
Examiner in Patent Office, Rec. Vol. VI, p. 114	1

Other Cases.

American Tobacco Co. v. Polacsek, 170 Fed. 117	15
Anheuser-Busch v. Budweiser Malt Corp., 295 Fed. 306	11
Armour & Co. v. Louisville Provision Co., 283 Fed 42	2
Atlas Mfg. Co. v. Street, 204 Fed. 398	2
Aunt Jemima Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 Fed. 407	2, 11
Baglin v. Cusenier Co., 221 U. S. 580	4
California Packing Corp. v. Price-Booker Co., 285 Fed. 993	14
Carroll v. McIlvaine, 183 Fed. 22	7
Charles Broadway Rouss v. Winchester Co., 300 Fed. 706	2, 11
Columbia Mill Co. v. Alcorn, 150 U. S. 460	13
D. & H. Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311	13
Hanover Star Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403	13
McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245	13

PAGE

Mouson & Co. v. Boehm, L. R. 26 Ch. D. 398 4

National Picture Theatres Inc. v. Foundation Film Corp., 266 Fed. 208 11

Old Lexington Club Co. v. Kentucky Co., 234 Fed. 464 7

Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson, 247 Fed. 658 10

Pflugh v. Eagle White Lead Co., 185 Fed. 769 7

Pittsburgh Brewing Co. v. Ruben, 3 F. (2d) 342 ... 14

P. Lorillard Co. v. Peper, 86 Fed. 956 8

Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. Elliott, 7 F. (2d) 962 12

Saxlehner v. Eisner, 179 U. S. 19 4

Southern Power Co. v. N. C. P. S. Co., 263 U. S. 508 3

Valvoline Co. v. Havoline Co., 211 Fed. 189 7

Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509 10

Washburn-Crosby Co. v. France Milling Co., 7 F. (2d) 304 .....2, 7, 11, 12

Window Glass Co. v. Pittsburgh Co., 284 Fed. 645 7

STATUTES.

Trade Mark Act (1905) 13

IN THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1925.

No. 834.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
Respondent.

ON PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

OPPOSING BRIEF ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT.

Four different times have the petitioner's contentions in this matter been adjudicated: First by the Examiner in the Patent Office (Rec. Vol. VI. p. 114); next by the Acting Commissioner of Patents (Rec. Vol. VI. p. 123); then by the District Court (299 Fed. 834); and lastly by the Circuit Court of Appeals (7 F (2d) 967). And each time they have been overruled and the rights and position of respondent upheld. It would seem that such a complete unanimity of opinion on the particular facts of this case by so many tribunals would indicate that a correct decision both in law and fact had been reached and entirely prevent this case from affording those "special and important reasons" which are necessary for the granting of a writ of certiorari.

Note: Italics ours, unless otherwise stated.

Furthermore, the petition for certiorari and supporting brief but seek a consideration and application by this Court to the particular facts of this case of the very same legal principles, and for the very same reasons, which were presented and urged for a like purpose in the entirely similar cases of

Washburn-Crosby Co. v. France Milling Co. (C. C. A. 2d) 7 F. (2d) 304, where the court had allowed the mark "Gold Medal" to be used by one party for "straight" flour and by the other for "prepared" flour and certiorari was denied (45 Sup. Ct. 640);

Charles Broadway Rouss v. Winchester Co. (C. C. A. 2d) 300 Fed. 706, where the court had allowed the mark "Winchester" to be used by both parties for shirts and certiorari was denied (266 U. S. 607);

Armour Co. v. Louisville Provision Co. (C. C. A. 6th) 283 Fed. 42, where the court had allowed one party to use "Star" as a mark for hams and bacon and the other to use "Southern Star" as a mark for like products and certiorari was denied (260 U. S. 744);

Aunt Jemima v. Rigney & Co. (C. C. A. 2d), 247 Fed. 407, where the court had restrained a party from using "Aunt Jemima" as a mark for pancake syrup at the instance of one using it for pancake flour and certiorari was denied (245 U. S. 672);

Atlas Manufacturing Co. v. Street (C. C. A. 8th), 204 Fed. 398, where the court had allowed the mark "Nick Carter" to be used by one party for a periodical and by the other for motion pictures and certiorari was denied (231 U. S. 755).

This uniformity of denial of such petitions in this class of cases would seem conclusive here, where like questions, all primarily ones of fact, constitute the whole issue (Southern Power Co. v. N. C. P. S. Co., 263 U. S. 508).

I.

The facts in this case present no new question calling for decision by this Court.

USE OF "BEECH-NUT" FOR TOBACCO DATES FROM 1897.

The mark "Beech-Nut" had its inception as a tobacco brand not in 1915, as the petition and supporting brief might lead this Court to believe, but in the Spring of 1897 when the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company put out a "Beech-Nut Chewing and Smoking Tobacco" (see facsimile of label at end of brief). It also registered "Beech-Nut" as a trade mark for tobacco products in the tobacco brand directory for 1898, 1899 and 1903 (Rec. Vol. IV. pp. 104-5). This brand by successive assignments duly came to belong to respondent. And it has been used as a brand for tobacco products during each of the years since 1897 to the present time though, due wholly to lack of orders, no sales of it were made in the four years 1911-1914. Early in 1915, however, the brand was again brought prominently before the public in the "Sunburst" package (see facsimile at end of brief) with the result that since 1916 respondent's sales of this one product, though but a 10¢ package, have greatly exceeded in money value the combined sales of all petitioner's products, such sales for 1919 being $8,979,586.35 by petitioner and $14,650,865.63 by respondent (Rec. Vol. I. pp. 867-70, Vol. VI. pp. 260-2).

It was admitted for petitioner at the trial that if no abandonment had occurred, petitioner had no standing for the purposes of this litigation (Rec. Vol. V. pp. 28-9). And the District Court on the authority of Baglin v. Cusenier Co., 221 U. S. 580, 597-598, Saxlehner v. Eisner, 179 U. S. 19, 31, and Mouson & Co. v. Boehm, L. R. 26 Ch. D. 398, held that no abandonment had occurred because respondent had clearly manifested its intention to retain ownership and made no sales in 1911-1914 solely for lack of orders (299 Fed. pp. 847-9). The Circuit Court of Appeals did not find it necessary to pass on this point; but, being purely a question of fact as to the intention of respondent as shown by the evidence, the decision against petitioner by the District Court, in view of petitioner's admission, would seem conclusive here.

PETITIONER'S BUSINESS ALWAYS WHOLLY FOOD PRODUCTS.

Petitioner has never made or sold a tobacco product, much less used "Beech-Nut" for that purpose. It has always and only made and sold food products. The business was started about 1891 by Imperial Packing Company and for many years consisted almost wholly of packing and selling hams and bacon. In 1899 it was taken over by petitioner who thereafter continued and expanded it, adding in later years peanut butter, preserves, jam, jellies, baked beans, chewing gum, soft drinks and candies (Rec. Vol. VI. p. 77). All these are food products for which it obtained registration of "Beech-Nut" under Patent Office Classification No. 46 "Foods and Ingredients of Foods" (See Reg. No. 89613, Rec. Vol. I, p. 21).

Accordingly, the assertion of petitioner that it has seriously considered dealing in tobacco must be regarded as made only for the purposes of this litigation in view of the many years which passed without any such addition and its very inconsistent contention that the use of "Beech-Nut" for tobacco is injuring its food business because of the anti-tobacco sentiment in this country. The fact is, as admitted by petitioner's officers (Rec. Vol. I, p. 791) and found by the Circuit Court of Appeals (7 F. (2d) 967, 970) no concern has ever combined the manufacture and sale of food and tobacco products, so distinct and incompatible are the two businesses.

RESPONDENT'S BUSINESS ALWAYS WHOLLY TOBACCO PRODUCTS.

Respondent's business dates from 1760 when Pierre Lorillard opened his tobacco factory in what is now Bronx Park, N. Y. During all the intervening years respondent and its predecessors have made and sold tobacco products only. Under the name "Lorillard" tobacco products of every kind have been sold in every part of this country, until it has become a household word. The name "Lorillard" appears on all its "Beech-Nut" packages, as it does on the great majority of its packages, and also the words "Established 1760" because respondent is featuring these facts (Rec. Vol. V. pp. 197-8).

Since its reorganization in 1911 respondent has been one of the largest tobacco concerns in this country. In 1919 its output was over $80,000,000. in money value, its capital over $60,000,000. exclusive of surplus, it had some 20 plants located in various states and over 10,000 employees. In the years 1911-1919 it spent in advertising the stupendous sum of $49,058,936.51 (Rec. Vol. IV. p. 113; Vol. V. pp. 186, 245-6).

PETITIONER IS ESTOPPED BY LACHES AND ACQUIESCENCE.

Petitioner did not complain of the use of "Beech-Nut" for tobacco until June 1915 when it wrote saying it had adopted the "mark or name for our manufacturing output of food material" and "while we have never yet manufactured tobacco, the taking on of such manufacture" was not impossible (Rec. Vol. VI. p. 181). So it claimed ownership of the mark for tobacco. A correspondence ensued which is fully set forth in the opinion of the District Court (299 Fed. pp. 840-5). Its result was that respondent asserted ownership by reason of such long use without question and the distinct nature of the products and businesses, while petitioner said the questions were interesting and it would write again after further examination.

However, four years passed in silence during which respondent actively pushed this brand with the results already noted and petitioner acquiesced in and encouraged this use by forwarding to respondent any missent orders and informing the trade that Lorillard made and sold the tobacco (Rec. Vol. I. pp. 794-5). It was not until the summer of 1919 that petitioner made any further objection and then it was not to the use of "Beech-Nut" or the tobacco package, but simply to the dress and design of the cigarette package which respondent was about to put on the market. For the executive committee of petitioner suggested by letter:

> "In view of the splendid success of your Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, would it not be worth while > to simulate your Beech-Nut Scrap tobacco package in a wrapping for your cigarettes; in other words, use for your cigarettes a form of label which will immediately apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company making the popular Beech-Nut tobacco, and tie up the advantage and publicity you have already gained through the merchandising of that product'' (Rec. Vol. VI. p. 205).

On these facts respondent contended that petitioner was estopped. Neither of the lower courts found it necessary to pass on the question; but it seems clearly sustained by Pflugh v. Eagle Co. (C. C. A. 3d) 185 Fed. 769; Washburn-Crosby Co. v. France Milling Co. (C. C. A. 2d) 7 F. (2d) 304, 306; Window Glass Co. v. Pittsburgh Co. (C. C. A. 3d) 284 Fed. 645; Carroll v. McIlvaine (C. C. A. 2d), 183 Fed. 22; Old Lexington Co. v. Kentucky Co., 234 Fed. 464 and Valvoline Co. v. Havoline Co., 211 Fed. 189, 195.

NO DECEPTION, CONFUSION OR INJURY.

The charges of deception, confusion and injury contained in the petition and supporting brief are entirely erroneous and contrary to the record.

The Lower Court found that

> ''The evidence shows that its goods have in no way been confused with those of the plaintiff so that when a purchaser desired a certain brand of plaintiff's goods, he in fact secured those of defendant. Defendant carefully made prominent in its label the Lorillard origin of its products. The difference between their labels is so great and distinct that any purchaser paying ordinary attention need not and should not be mistaken and certainly not deceived." (7 F (2d) p. 971).

This was clearly admitted by petitioner's executive committee in the letter suggestion already quoted.

And it is also overwhelmingly proven by the numerous depositions respondent took throughout New England, west into Wisconsin and south into the Carolinas, constituting a great mass of testimony filling two volumes (II and III) of the record. The witnesses were largely retail dealers, because it was felt that any such wholesale deception and confusion as petitioner claimed would certainly be known to them and that examining consumers over such a territory would magnify the record out of all proportion. But the witnesses were truly representative, coming from stores of all kinds, sizes and locations and where (with few exceptions) both products were handled. They gave a faithful portrayal of existing conditions and it showed that out of at least 110,500 customers who daily patronized these stores less than 100 instances of confusion had arisen—thus perfectly illustrating and confirming Mr. Justice Brewer's oft quoted observation that such mistakes will happen "no matter how great the differences" (P. Lorillard Co. v. Peper, 86 Fed. 956, 960). Their typical answers were "I have never heard that discussed", " I have never had it come up", "Their question was answered in the window on the posters", "It is on the front of the package" and "See the package, that is all".

Nor was petitioner's business injured. During the alleged period of injury, the years 1915-19, its total sales grew from $4,966,377.76 to $12,109,573.68 and its sales of chewing gum from $2,480,023.48 to $6,281,945.41 (Vol. I, pp. 867-70), an increase of some 300% more than its total growth during the preceding quarter of a century. That respondent's products are not cheap or inferior, as is now charged in the supporting brief, is demonstrated by the duration and magnitude of its business which forced petitioner to admit in writing that "the name 'Lorillard' carries with it a vast amount of good will and unquestionably a guarantee of excellence" (Vol. VI, p. 194).

II.

No conflict in legal principle exists between this decision and the Vogue and Peninsular Cases in the Sixth Circuit or the Aunt Jemima Case in the Second Circuit. They differed in result simply because of their different facts.

In the first place, the lower court expressly recognized the authority and applied the principles of these cases in reaching its conclusion, for the opinion says:

> "We are aware, however, that equity may be invoked without market competition. Emphasis should be placed on the word 'unfair' rather than 'competition'. If by unfair and fraudulent means, the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived, equity will enjoin whether the injury comes through competition or in some other way. Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 Fed. 407; Vogue Co. v. Thompson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509, 512. Within the principles announced in these cases, or in any other way, has the defendant injured the plaintiff in its property or reputation? We are satisfied that it has not. It has not tried to palm off its products as those of the plaintiff" (7 F (2d), p. 970).

And in the second place, on the facts of this case these three decisions clearly sustain and would allow the use respondent is making of "Beech-Nut" for tobaccos.

The Vogue Case (C. C. A. 6th), 300 Fed. 509 was not simply that of a mark being used by one party for a magazine and by another for ladies hats. The pivotal fact was that "prior to 1912 (when the mark was first used for the hats) the magazine had become the country over one of the dominating factors in the creation and promotion of styles, including those in millinery, and its approval or promotion of any pattern or style in its pages carried great influence" (pp. 510-1). This close relation of the articles, a question of fact only, not any new principle of law, clearly prompted the decision (p. 512). Had the magazine been a tobacco journal the suit would have been summarily dismissed. For the court on rehearing (6 F (2d) 875) allowed the defendant to "use the name and label 'Vogue Hats' in connection with or without 'New York' or 'Fifth Avenue', if accompanied by any prominently displayed manufacturing name it may select (not including the word Vogue)". Consequently, as respondent's name does not include the word "Beech-Nut" and is prominently displayed on its "Beech-Nut" packages, the Vogue Case becomes an express authority in its favor.

The Peninsular Case (C. C. A. 6th), 247 Fed. 658 proceeded upon similar principles to a like conclusion as in the Vogue Case. There the plaintiff, who had registered and used "Penslar" for drugs and pharmaceutical preparations, sought to restrain the defendants from using it for cigars. The court held the difference in the articles prevented infringement or unfair competition (pp. 660-1). But having found as a further fact that "defendants untruthfully represented that the article they were selling was, in effect, the plaintiff's article and that they were selling for and in the interest of plaintiff'' the court felt that the plaintiff was entitled to relief from these fraudulent practices because ''we know of no principle which will forbid malicious destruction of this kind to a competitor and permit it to a stranger''. Accordingly, the injunction did not restrain the use of ''Penslar'' for cigars but only such untruthful representations in that connection (p. 663). It will be seen, therefore, that the case likewise turned wholly on a question of fact and is an authority for respondent to continue its use of ''Beech-Nut'' since, as the Lower Court specifically found, no such practices obtained in the instant case; and even had such practices obtained it would be authority only for stopping such practices, not respondent's use of the mark ''Beech-Nut''.

The Aunt Jemima Case (C. C. A. 2d), 247 Fed. 407 restrained the defendants from using for pancake syrup a mark plaintiff for years had been using for a pancake flour because, as the court said, ''syrup and flour are both food products and food products commonly used together'' (p. 410). That this close relation between the two products, a question of fact only, was the determining factor clearly appears from the subsequent decisions of that court in the National Picture Theatres Case, (266 Fed. p. 211), the Anheuser-Busch Case (295 Fed. p. 310), the Winchester Case (300 Fed. p. 723) and the Washburn-Crosby Case (7 F (2d) 304), each of which turned on this question of fact, namely, the relation of the products and laid down the test to be that ''there must be a real present or prospective competition, that is, an endeavor to get the same trade from the same people at the same time.'' (266 Fed. 211), stating in a note that pens and hair brushes were not while tooth and toilet brushes were so related.

Thus in the Washburn-Crosby Case that court said, just as might be truly said in this case:

> "If then so many years of building up trade in 'straight' wheat Gold Medal flour had produced no business in 'prepared' flours, how can it be said that the two articles belong to the same class of commodities? Classification of any commercial article depends far more on commercial custom than upon the inherent nature of the product. Dog-biscuit and pilot-bread are closely allied in physical origin, and so are gun-cotton and calico, but in commercial classification they are poles apart. The difference between 'straight' and 'prepared' flours is not so great as in the illustration given, but that as commercial commodities they are different is in our opinion plainly shown by the exhibition of business methods given by the affidavits; and that such was Washburn's own opinion in 1923 we have pointed out above." (7 F (2d) at p. 305).

III.

The Lower Court only applied well settled rules of trade mark law to the facts as it found them from the evidence before it.

No one can read the opinions of the Lower Court in Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. Elliott, 7 F (2d) 962, and in the instant case, 7 F (2d) 967, considered and decided at the same time, and decided differently solely because of their different facts, without being convinced that that court is keenly alive to and in thorough sympathy with the trend of trade mark decisions on both infringement and unfair competition; and is correctly interpreting and applying the principles established by this Court in the Hanover Star Milling Case, 240 U. S. 403, 413, 414, which it cites in these opinions.

When analyzed, the opinion of the Lower Court in the instant case will be seen to have considered and decided three propositions, all questions of fact, which, being resolved in respondent's favor, made it prevail.

The first proposition was whether or not the products were such different classes of commodities as that both parties could use the mark.

As a matter of legal principle, indisputably the use of a mark on one class of merchandise will not prevent another from using it on a different class. This is the basis of our Trade Mark Act (33 Stat. L. 728, Sec. 16) and is the rule definitely announced by this Court in the D. & H. Canal Case (13 Wall. 311, 322-3), McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245, Columbia Co. v. Alcorn, 150 U. S. 460, 463 and the Hanover Star Milling Case (240 U. S. 403, 412-4) where the Court also showed it was the rule in England and in the States and quoted the typical English illustration that > "If he does not carry on a trade in iron, but carries on a trade in linen and stamps a lion on his linen, another person may stamp a lion on iron."

Accordingly, the first proposition became wholly a question of fact as to the relation of the foods and tobaccos under this legal principle. And the Court found the fact to be:

> "It is undisputed that the plaintiff and its predecessor in business have always dealt in food products only and that the defendant and its predecessors have always manufactured and sold tobacco, and have never dealt in food products. All the witnesses at the trial in the District Court testified in the most positive terms that food and tobacco products belong to different classes. Foods and tobacco are classified as distinct and unrelated products under the Trade-Mark Act. Tobacco Products are in Class No. 17; while 'foods and ingredients of foods' belong to Class No. 46. The Treasury Department treats them as of different classes. It has always taxed tobacco products just as it did liquor products, but it has never taxed food products.

"The Examiner of Interferences in the Patent Office found that tobacco and food do not possess the 'same descriptive properties' and so belong to different classes. This view was also held by the Acting Commissioner of Patents and the District Judge. Food promotes the growth of animal or vegetable life. There is no nutrition in tobacco. It is merely a narcotic. Foods are used by all mankind as a matter of necessity, but this is not true of tobacco. State v. Ohmer, 34 Mo. App. 115; Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. v. Cannon, 132 Tenn. 419; 178 S. W. 1009, L. R. A. 1916 A 940, Ann. Cas. 1917 A 179. The merchandise of the plaintiff and defendant belonged, therefore, to different classes" (7 F (2d) at p. 970).

Such has been the holding of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Thus in California Packing Corp. v. Price-Booker Co., 285 Fed. 993, 995, that Court illustrated its idea of distinct classes of products by saying "no one would be deceived into believing that a can of tobacco and a can of peas were put out by the same concern simply because they bore similar trade marks"; and in Pittsburgh Brewing Co. v. Ruben, 3 F. (2d) 342, that Court held the same mark could be registered for soft drinks and stogies by different concerns, saying:

"It is true that soft drinks and stogies are frequently kept on sale at the same stands, but this fact does not go far towards determining the > 'descriptive properties' of the goods, for it is well known that most retail stores deal in a variety of articles of diverse character. And when soft drinks and stogies are considered with reference to their component materials, processes of manufacture, and manner of consumption, it becomes evident that they are not goods of the same descriptive properties, and they are not so regarded in common understanding. Moreover, it is safe to assume that soft drinks and tobacco products are not often, if ever, made or marketed by the same manufacturer." (p. 343).

It is also the universal custom of the trade for the same mark to be used by a food and tobacco concern. Such is the case with such well known marks as "Veribest", "Ideal", "O. K.", "Climax", "Eureka", "Red Cross" and many others set forth in the opinion of the District Court (299 Fed. p. 847). As illustrating this custom there were introduced at the trial three exhibits, photographs of which are inserted at the end of this brief, showing three important cigarette brands, namely, "Camel" (the largest in this country), "Omar" and "Mogul", each being used for a line of food products similar to petitioner's.

And of course this Court knows of its own knowledge, as the testimony abundantly shows, that the tobacco business is one of the great generic industries of this country, ranking in this respect with steel, automobiles, textiles, coal and oil, so that if the position of the petitioner should obtain under the circumstances of this case it would work a complete revolution of the trade mark law of this country. As said by Judge Coxe in The American Tobacco Company v. Polacsek (1909) 170 Fed. 117, 120:

> "Whether a manufacturer confines himself to smoking tobacco, chewing tobacco, or cigarettes, he is still in the tobacco business, just as one is in the > clothing business whether he makes coats, waistcoats or trousers, just as one is in the whiskey business whether he makes rye or bourbon''— and he might have added, just as one is in the food business, whether he makes bacon, jelly, candies, chewing gum or soft drinks.

The second proposition was whether or not the dress or design of respondent's packages was in unfair competition with that of petitioner's.

This, again, was entirely a question of fact. And so different are the packages that the District Court said ''nothing like this sunburst or radiating effect appears on the labels of the plaintiff and the fact that the defendant adopted it demonstrates conclusively, it seems, that there was no attempt on the part of defendant to copy or imitate the standard mark of the plaintiff'' (299 Fed. p. 851). While both Courts united in declaring:

> ''If one should eliminate the word 'Beech-Nut' from both labels, it would be extremely difficult to locate any similarity at all between them'' (7 F. (2d) at p. 971).

The third proposition was whether or not the public was being deceived or the goods confused to the injury of petitioner.

This, also, was entirely a question of fact, as the Court said, of fraud or dishonesty in the use (7 F (2d) 971, citing Howe Scale Co. case). And here the Court subjected respondent's conduct to a most searching examination. Placing the emphasis on ''unfair'' rather than on ''competition'' it inquired whether by market competition, or ''in any other way'', ''by unfair and fraudulent means'' of respondent ''the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived''; and gave as its answer ''we are satisfied that it (respondent) has not'' (7 F (2d) at p. 970).

These three fundamental questions, all primarily of fact, being thus decided, inevitably led the court to its general conclusion that:

> "These principles, founded alike on reason and authority, when applied to the facts of this case, are decisive of the issues involved. The evidence, in our opinion, conclusively shows that both parties have acted in perfect good faith. Both have used the word 'Beech-Nut' on their respective, but very different, labels because they thought that they had the legal right to do so. The plaintiff adopted its trade mark without knowledge of the 'Beech-Nut' trade mark of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. The defendant naturally adopted the 'Beech-Nut' trade mark for its products, because it owned the old Harry Weissinger trade mark and thought it was acting within its legal rights. The plaintiff is proud of its 'position substantially at the top of a highly competitive industry'. The defendant is one of the great tobacco companies of this country with a Lorillard reputation stretching back into three centuries. Neither needed nor desired the reputation of the incompatible business of the other. The evidence does not disclose anything on which infringement of the trade mark or unfair competition can be based." (7 F (2d) at p. 971).

Conclusion.

We submit, therefore, that the petition should be denied.

December, 1925.

Respectfully,

JOHN W. DAVIS,
WILLIAM R. PERKINS,
JOHN MILTON.

Counsel for Respondent

Factory No. 28, Fifth District of Kentucky.

NOTICE.—The manufacturers of this Tobacco have complied with all the requirements of law. Every person is cautioned, under the penalties of the law, not to use this package for Tobacco again.

"Weissinger" Label. First used in 1897.

"Sunburst" Label. First used in 1919.

CAMEL
Camel Brand
PORK AND BEANS
CAMPBELL HOLTON & CO.
BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

OMAR
STEELCUT
COFFEE
OMAR
GRAPES
OMAR
APRICOTS
OMAR
SLICED PINEAPPLE
OMAR
CUT WAX BEANS
OMAR
PEAS
OMAR

COMMERCIAL LIBRARY
THE
SLSO

MAR 11 1927
WM. R. STANSBU
CL

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States,

OCTOBER TERM, 1926.

No. 249.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Petitioner,

vs.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
Respondent.

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT.

BRIEF FOR RESPONDENT.

JOHN W. DAVIS,
WILLIAM R. PERKINS,
JOHN MILTON,
Attorneys for the Respondent.

BEECHNUT
CHEWING AND SMOKING
TOBACCO
SUPERIOR QUALITY HAVANA CUTTINGS AND HIGH GRADE SEED LEAF
HARRY WEISSINGER TOBACCO CO.
INCORPORATED
LOUISVILLE, KY.
NOT MADE BY A TRUST
BAGLEY'S
HAZEL NUT
HAZEL NUT
FOR PIPE OR CIGARETTE
HAZEL NUT
LONG CUT
SMOKING OR CHEWING
HAZEL NUT
HAZEL NUT

HAZEL NUT
LORILLARD'S
10¢
BEECH-NUT
ESTABLISHED 1760
CHEWING TOBACCO
EXTRA PICKED
BEECH
Beech-Nut
CLOVE
DROPS
ADDED COLOR
BEECH-NUT PACKING CO. CANAJOHARIE, N.Y. U.S.A.
BEECH-NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
TRADE MARK
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
CLOVE DROPS
Beech Nut
CLOVE
DROPS
BEECH NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
TRADE MARK
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
CLOVE DROPS
NET WEIGHT 1⅛ OZS or 31.8 GRAMS
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
BEECH-NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
TRADE MARK
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
MACARONI
Beech-Nut
ORANGE
DROPS
BEECH-NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
TRADE MARK
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
ORANGE DROPS
BEECH-NUT PACKING CO. CANAJOHARIE, N.Y. U.S.A.
Beech-Nut
CINNAMON
DROPS
ADDED COLOR
BEECH-NUT PACKING CO. CANAJOHARIE, N.Y. U.S.A.
BEECH-NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
TRADE MARK
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
CINNAMON DROPS

LORILLARD'S
10¢
BEECH-NUT
ESTABLISHED 1760
CHEWING TOBACCO
EXTRA PICKED
BEECH
Beech-Nut
CLOVE
DROPS
Beech-Nut
CLOVE
DROPS
BEECH-NUT BRAND
BEECH-NUT
MACARONI
Beech-Nut
LEMON
DROPS
Beech-Nut
ORANGE DROPS
Beech-Nut
CINNAMON
DROPS

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
Opinions Below	1
Statement of the Case	1
Use of Beech-Nut by Petitioner	1
The Use of Beech-Nut for Tobacco Products	3
Petitioner's First Protest in Regard to the Beech-Nut Mark	8
Introduction of Beech-Nut Cigarettes	9
Petitioner's Cigarette Experiment	11
The Patent Office Proceeding	13
The Evidence in the Record	14
Four Window Displays	14
The Seven Alleged Cases of Misrepresentation by Respondent's Salesmen	15
Case of William T. Hill	16
Case of Robert L. Bowen	17
The Case of William C. Weigel	18
The Case of George B. Roach	18
Other Cases	20
Testimony of Petitioner's Salesmen	20
Other Witnesses Examined by Petitioner	22
Misaddressed Letters	23
Witnesses for the Respondent	24
Introduction and Summary of Argument	26
What the Lower Courts Decided	27
The Writ of Certiorari was Improvidently Granted.	30
Summary of Respondent's Argument	31
POINT I. The petitioner properly was denied relief on its claim of trade-mark infringement because the goods of the petitioner and respondent were not of the same descriptive properties	32

PAGE

Petitioner's Use and Registration of "Beech-Nut".. 32

The Trade Mark Act and Decisions of this Court Recognize that the Same Mark may be used on Goods which do not possess the "Same Descriptive Properties" 33

Tobacco Products and Food Products Do Not Have the "Same Descriptive Properties"..... 37

Court Decisions Deny "Same Descriptive Properties" to Food Products and Tobaccos..... 40

Use of the Same Mark by One Concern for Foods and by Another for Tobacco Has for Years Been a Universal Trade Custom 42

The Classification Rule in Trade Mark Law is Sound in Principle 44

POINT II. The petitioner properly was denied relief on the claim of unfair competition 46

The Courts below did not stop at inquiring as to unfair competition. They went further and inquired if by any "unfair and fraudulent means the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived" 53

POINT III. The use of the word "Beech-Nut" by Petitioner in its corporate name gives it no right to complain of the use of that word in the tobacco trade 55

POINT IV. There is no conflict of opinion between the Circuit Courts of Appeal: Alleged conflicting decisions of the Second, Third and Sixth Circuits and in England distinguished 57

Aunt Jemima Case 58

Peninsular Case 59

Vogue Case 60

Overland Case 61

Rolls Royce Case 62

PAGE

Walter W. Ashton 62
Kodak Case 64
The writ of certiorari was improvidently granted insofar as based upon an alleged conflict with these decisions of the Circuit Courts of Appeal... 64

POINT V. Petitioner is barred by laches, acquiescence and estoppel from obtaining any relief herein 66

POINT VI. Petitioner has failed to establish any damage and is entitled neither to an injunction nor to an accounting 72

POINT VII. There was no abandonment by the respondent of the Beech-Nut Mark 78

CONCLUSION 84

Appendix "A" consists of quotations from the witnesses of Petitioner cited in its Appendices "A" and "B" which show the utter carelessness and indifference of these witnesses, precluding any deception of them by Respondent 85

Appendix "B" consists of the correspondence passing between the Petitioner and Respondent prior to the bringing of this suit showing the acquiescence of Petitioner in the use of "Beech-Nut" for tobaccos, as well as the intent of Lorillard to sell its products on its own reputation 104

The photographs, in the order of their insertion, are the following exhibits offered at the trial: 140

(1) Lorillard Products.
(2) Showing use of "CAMEL" for cigarettes and for a diversified line of food products.

PAGE

(3) Showing use of "OMAR" for cigarettes and for a diversified line of food products.
(4) Showing use of "MOGUL" for cigarettes and for a diversified line of food products.
(5) Showing use of "O. K." for tobaccos and foods.
(6) Showing use of Ovals for various packages.
(7) Contrasting Scrap packages with packages of Petitioner.
(8) Contrasting Cigarette packages with packages of Petitioner.
(9) The "HAZEL-NUT" package showing the squirrel thereon.

Citations.

PAGE

Abestone Co. v. The Philip Carey Mfg. Co., 41 App. Div. D. C. 507 55
Ainsworth v. Walmsley, L. R. 1 Eq. 518 .....35, 47
Akron-Overland Tire Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., 273 Fed. 674 .....36, 61
Allen B. Wrisley Co. v. Iowa Soap Co., 122 Fed. 796.... 51
American Steel Foundries v. Robertson, 269 U. S. 372 .....46, 55, 56
American Tobacco Co. v. Globe Tobacco Co., 193 Fed. 1015 52
American Tobacco Co. v. Gordon, 10 F. (2d) 646 36
American Tobacco Co. v. Polacsek, 170 Fed. 117..... 67
Amoskeag Mfg. Co. v. Trainer, 101 U. S. 51 34
Anglo-American Co. v. General Electric Co., 43 App. Div. D. C. 385 36
Atlas Mfg. Co. v. Street, 204 Fed. 398 36
Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney, 247 Fed. 407.....36, 55, 58
Baglin v. Cusenier Co., 221 U. S. 580 .....79, 82
Ball &c. Co. v. Mammoth Co., 48 App. D. C. 243 82
Basket Stores Co. v. Allen, 99 Neb. 217, 155 N. W. 893.. 47
Beech Nut Packing Co. v. P. Lorillard Co., 7 Fed. (2d) 967 .....30, 36
Borden's Ice Cream Co. v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 201 Fed. 510 .....36, 47, 57
Borthwick v. The Evening Post, L. R. 37 Ch. D. 449 .....36, 47, 57
British-American Tob. Co. v. British-American Cigar Co., 211 Fed. 933 57
Burt v. Tucker, 178 Mass. 493 79
California Packing Corp. v. Price-Booker Co., (App. D. C. 1922) 285 Fed. 993 41
Carroll v. Duluth Superior Milling Co., 232 Fed. 675.... 47
Carroll v. McIlvaine, 183 Fed. 22..... 72
Charles Broadway Rouss v. Winchester Co., 300 Fed. 706 .....36, 47, 58

PAGE

Coats v. Merrick Thread Co., 149 U. S. 562 .....49, 60
Col. W. F. Cody v. Colonial Co., 284 Fed. 873 72
Columbia Mill Co. v. Alcorn, 150 U. S. 460 34
Corning Glass Works v. Corning Cut Glass Co., 197 N. Y. 173 .....36, 47, 56
Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311 .....34, 44, 48
Dubuque German C. Seminary v. St. Joseph's College, 169 N. W. (Ia.) 405, 8 T. M. Rep. 425 47
Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Co. v. Dunlop Motor Co., (H. L. 1907) 24 R. P. C. 572, L. R. App. Cas. 430 (1907) 36, 47, 56
Eastman Co. v. Kodak Cycle Corp., 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 105 64
Elgin National Watch Co. v. Illinois Watch Co., 179 U. S. 665 49
Elgin National Watch Co. v. Loveland, 132 Fed. 41..... 57
Enoch Morgan Sons Co. v. Ward, 152 Fed. 690..... 36
Ex Parte Penn Tobacco Co., 144 O. G. 275..... 67
Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co. of Kan., 1 N. Y. Supp. 44 57
France Milling Co. v. Washburn-Crosby Co., 7 F. (2d) 304 .....36, 58
Gaines & Co., W. A. v. Rock Spring Co., 246 U. S. 312.. 81
Goodyear's India Rubber Glove Mfg. Co. v. Goodyear Rubber Co., 128 U. S. 598 48
Hall v. Barrows, 4 DeG. J. & S. 150 .....36, 47
Haller Baking Co. v. Ward Baking Co., 295 Fed. 681.... 47
Hanover Star Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403 .....34, 45, 46, 47
Hier v. Abrahams, 82 N. Y. 519 82
Houston Oil Co. v. Goodrich, 245 U. S. 440 .....31, 65
Howard Co. v. Baldwin Co., 48 App. D. C. 437..... 55
Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, 198 U. S. 118 49
Hub Dress Mfg. Co. v. Rottenberg, 237 Mass. 281, 129 N. E. 442 .....36, 47, 56
International Trust Co. v. International L. & T. Co., 153 Mass. 271 56

PAGE

Investor Pub. Co. v. Dobinson, 82 Fed. 56 57
Johnson Educator Food Co. v. Sylvanus, Smith & Co., 37 App. D. C. 107 36
Keystone Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Buzby, 219 Fed. 473..... 57
Lawrence v. Sharpless, 203 Fed. 762, aff'd 208 Fed. 886.. 36
Lawrence Mfg. Co. v. Tennessee Mfg. Co., 138 U. S. 537.. 34
Layne and Bowler Corporation v. Western Well Works, 261 U. S. 387 .....31, 65
Layton Pure Food Co. v. Church & Dwight Co., 182 Fed. 35 36
Leather Cloth Co. v. American Leather Cloth Co., 11 H. L. Cas. 523 .....47, 56
Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co. v. Cannon, 132 Tenn. 419.. 42
Lord & Taylor v. Wolf & Sons, 41 App. D. C. 514..... 36
Lorillard Co., P. v. Peper, 86 Fed. 956 52
Ludington v. Leonard, 127 Fed. 155 76
McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245.....34, 75
Mouson & Co. v. Boehm, L. R. 26 Ch. D. 398..... 78
National Pictures Theatres Inc. v. Foundation Film Corp., 266 Fed. 208.....36, 47, 58
Nolan Bros. Co. v. Nolan, 131 Cal. 271..... 47
Old Lexington Club Co. v. Kentucky Co., 234 Fed. 464.. 72
Oppenheim, etc. v. President Suspender Co., 3 F. (2d) 88 36
Paul F. Beich Co. v. Kellogg Co., 262 Fed. 640..... 36
Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson, 247 Fed. 658...36, 48, 58
Pflugh v. Eagle White Lead Co., 185 Fed. 769..... 71
Pittsburg Brewing Co. v. Ruben (App. D. C. 1925) 3 F. (2d) 342 .....36, 41
Quaker Oats Co. v. Mother's Macaroni Co., 41 App. D. C. 254..... 36
Rosenberg Bros. Co. v. Elliott, 7 F. (2d) 962....36, 56, 61, 77
Royal Milling Co. v. J. F. Imbs Milling Co., 44 App. D. C. 207 81
Rushmore v. Badger Bros. Mfg. Co., 198 Fed. 379..... 76
Saxlehner v. Eisner, 179 U. S. 19 79

PAGE

Schlitz, Joseph Brewing Co. v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 250 U. S. 28 30
Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Scottish N. Ins. Co., 26 R. P. C. 105 ..... 36, 47, 57
Singer Mfg. Co. v. Loog, 8 App. Cas. 15 56
Southern Power Co. v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 263 U. S. 509 ..... 31, 65
Standard Paint Co. v. Trinidad Asphalt Co., 220 U. S. 446 ..... 45, 50
State v. Ohmer, 34 Mo. App. 115 41
United Drug Co. v. Rectanus, 248 U. S. 90...35, 45, 46, 47, 70
Vacuum Oil Co. v. Gargoyle Textile Corp., 285 Fed. 1002 36
Valvoline Oil Co. v. Havoline Co., 211 Fed. 189..... 71
Vassar College v. Loose-Wiles Co., 197 Fed. 982..... 57
Virginia Baking Co. v. Southern Biscuit Works, 111 Va. 227 ..... 36, 47
Vogue Company v. Thompson-Hudson Co., 300 Fed. 509, 6 F. (2d) 873 ..... 36, 59, 76
Wall v. Rolls-Royce of America, 4 F. (2d) 333..... 61, 62
Walter v. Ashton, L. R. (1902) 2 Ch. D. 282..... 48, 62
Walter Baker & Co. v. Harrison, 32 App. D. C. 272.... 58
White v. Miller, 50 Fed. 277 82
Window Glass Co. v. Pittsburg Co., 284 Fed. 685..... 72

Table of Statutes Cited.

Trade Mark Act (Act of February 20, 1905), 33 Stat. 724 33
Trade Mark Act, Sections 1 and 5, 35 Stat. 628, 37 Stat. 649 ..... 34, 36, 37
Trade Mark Act, Section 16, 33 Stat. 728 34

Text Books Cited.

Brown on Trademarks, Section 681 79
Hopkins on Trademarks (Third Edition), p. 213.....79, 82
Nims on Unfair Competition and Trade-marks, 2 Ed. Sec. 221 35

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States.

OCTOBER TERM, 1926.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY, Petitioner, vs. P. LORILLARD COMPANY, Respondent.	No. 249.

BRIEF FOR RESPONDENT.

Opinions Below.

This case is here on Certiorari directed to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, whose opinion rendered September 11, 1925, (V, p. 2694) is reported in 7 Fed. (2nd) 967.

The case came to the Circuit Court of Appeals on appeal from the Decree of Judge Lynch of the District Court of the United States, District of New Jersey, entered June 17, 1924, (V, p. 2676), pursuant to an opinion rendered May 7, 1924, (V, p. 2645) reported in 299 Fed. 834.

Both the Circuit Court of Appeals and the District Court decided in favor of respondent, dismissing Petitioner's bill on the merits.

Statement of the Case.

The Use of Beech-Nut by Petitioner.

In 1891 Imperial Packing Company, a New York Corporation, commenced in a small way packing and selling hams and bacons. After using the name "Imperial" as a mark for a short time, it commenced using the name "Beech-Nut". In 1899 the petitioner was organized under the laws of New York and succeeded to all the assets, trade-marks, business and goodwill of Imperial Packing Company. Records prior to 1903 were destroyed by fire but since that time records of the petitioner show a gradual expansion in its line of food products from year to year. A summary of its products showing the yearly additions to the line appears at Vol. VI, page 2784 of the record.

From time to time it registered the name Beech-Nut as a trade-mark for food products. The most comprehensive registration is the one asserted in this suit and was made December 31, 1912. It lists all the products put out by the petitioner at that time including chewing gum and after enumerating them closes by saying "all in Class 46, foods and ingredients of foods" (I, p. 21). An illustrative trade-mark typical of the petitioner's device is its bacon trade-mark appearing at page 2878 of Vol. VI of the record. A photograph of all of its labels appears at page 2777 of Vol VI.

It is to be noted that the mark is in the form of an oval with a border or annular band in red (it is so described in the registration, I. p. 21, and by petitioner's witness Barbour, I, p. 790, and in its letter, VI, p. 2888, making no mention of a blue mark or outline) across the upper section of which are printed the words "Beech-Nut Brand" in white letters. In the center is a single Beech-Nut embedded in three leaves pointing upwards and on each side in the border there is likewise a single Beech-Nut pointing upward embedded in the three leaves. The colored border frequently is outlined in gold. Other familiar Beech-Nut labels are reproduced at pages 2872 and 2876 of Vol. VI.

The business of the petitioner grew fairly steadily from a volume of sales in 1903 amounting to $563,764.37 to $12,109,573.68 in 1921. Chewing gum, which in 1921 contributed about half the total money value of petitioner's output, was introduced in 1911. It grew steadily in value, reaching the point of $3,594,864.53 in 1917, falling off during the war years on account of the difficulty in obtaining chicle (I, p. 869), and after regaining the lost ground reached $3,955,902.00 in 1920, and rose in 1921 to $6,281,945.41 (I, p. 868). The progressive growth in petitioner's business is summarized in a table of sales statistics appearing on page 868 of Vol. I. Between 1915, when respondent introduced its Beechnut scrap tobacco, and 1921, when this suit was brought, petitioner's business doubled.

The Use of Beech-Nut For Tobacco Products.

The tobacco business is one of the largest and most distinctive American industries, comparable in these respects to the textile, packing, oil, coal and steel industries. For 1922 the crop of leaf tobacco in the United States alone was sold by the farmers for over $300,000,000 (V, p. 2632). The success of a tobacco product depends upon blending leaf tobacco to meet the taste of the consumer, an intricate and delicate operation, requiring years of experience and the utmost care in preparation. The result has been to develop a great variety of types and blends of cigars, cigarettes, chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, making this a highly specialized industry.

In 1922, there were in the United States 10,291 concerns engaged in manufacturing tobacco having an output of the value of more than $1,000,000,000 (V, p. 2632). The larger concerns are officered by men who have devoted their lives to the tobacco business and who are experts in all its delicate operations.

Scrap tobacco started as a distinct tobacco product in the nineties, and had its origin in finding a way to dispose of "cigar clippings" or "scrap". Today the scrap business is so important that cigar clippings are entirely inadequate and large quantities of leaf are bought and used for this type of tobacco alone (V, pp. 2567-70, 2583). The use of the word scrap consequently is not to be taken as a designation of an inferior tobacco product, for the finest kind of leaf is used in making it, and cigar clippings from expensive varieties of cigars are used in it (V, p. 2574).

Scrap tobacco was first sold in Ohio, in the early nineties, and gradually spread through the Middle Western States to West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York. While these States remain the big scrap territory, it is sold extensively in all sections of the United States. From the beginning it has been put up almost universally in a package like the respondent's Beech-Nut package, which will be shown the Court upon the argument. Its individuality of shape and appearance have created a standard which makes the scrap tobacco package recognizable wherever it is seen. Among the earlier brands still selling today are the familiar Polar Bear and Mail Pouch.

In 1897 the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, a concern then carrying on a considerable business in Louisville, brought out a scrap tobacco which it called "Beechnut Chewing and Smoking Tobacco". The mark was registered in 1898 with Connerton's Bureau of Registration for Tobacco Brands as follows: "Beech Nut granulated, Harry Weissinger Tob. Co., Louisville, Ky." (IV, p. 2252). A reproduction of its package appears at page 2981 of Vol. VI. Figures prior to 1904 are not available as to the extent of the sales of this Beech Nut tobacco but the brand had an extensive sale (IV, pp. 2270-2301). On October 29, 1903, by an assignment, the Weissinger Tobacco Company sold and transferred its entire assets including the brand "Beech Nut" to Continental Tobacco Company, a New Jersey Corporation. This Company in turn by an assignment dated December 17, 1903, sold and transferred certain assets including the Beech Nut mark to Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company, another New Jersey Corporation. In October, 1904, Continental Tobacco Company was merged under the laws of New Jersey in the American Tobacco Company. An illustration of the "Beechnut" label as used by Luhrman & Wilbern appears at page 2971 of Vol. VI.

When the decree was entered in November, 1911, dissolving the American Tobacco Company pursuant to the decision of this Court, 221 U. S. 106, the respondent corporation was formed and there was transferred to it under the terms of the decree all the shares capital of the then existing P. Lorillard Company and of Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company, together with the trade-marks set out in a list of brands delivered at the time of the transfer. Among such brands was the trade-mark "Beech Nut" (VI, pp. 2942, 2945, 2956).

The name Lorillard had been connected prominently with the tobacco industry from 1760 when Pierre Lorillard opened his tobacco factory in what is now Bronx Park, New York. Since that time tobacco products of all kinds have been sold under this name throughout the country and during this period neither the respondent nor any of its predecessors has ever made or sold anything but tobacco products (V, p. 2624). Respondent has uniformly featured the name Lorillard in its advertising and on its package, the only exceptions being in the case of active brands obtained by transfer under the 1911 decree, such as "Honest Scrap", "Polar Bear", "Union Leader", "Murad", "Helmar" and "Deities". On these brands no change was made in the label because of the risk involved in leading the customer to believe that the blend has been changed whenever the package has been altered (V, p. 2578). Respondent now is, and since its organization in 1911 has been, one of the largest tobacco manufacturers in the United States, having in 1919 an aggregate retail money value for its output of over $80.000,000 (IV, p. 2261). It has over twenty plants and employs about 10,000 people. It has spent in advertising its name and business from 1911 through 1922, the enormous sum of $49,058,936.51 (V, p. 2573).

Undoubtedly the foregoing shows, as the testimony of nearly every witness confirms, that the name "Lorillard" possessed a wide and splendid reputation in the tobacco business of the United States and therefore it is not surprising that Petitioner in a letter to Respondent dated September 30, 1915, acknowledged "that the name Lorillard carries with it a vast amount of good will and unquestionably a guarantee of excellence." (See Appendix B, p. 117.)

Due to the change in tastes of consumers, which vary from time to time for reasons which the ablest men in the industry are unable to explain, tobacco brands rise and fall just as styles come and go in other articles. For example, the scrap tobacco Polar Bear, rose from 4,260,000 pounds in 1902 to 6,819,000 pounds in 1906, and declined to 2,813,000 pounds in 1910. Honest Scrap rose from 1,316,242 pounds in 1906 to 18,527,034 pounds in 1910, and declined to 13,512,000 in 1914 (V, p. 2567). The old Beechnut had sold at 10,775 pounds in 1904, declined to 3,600 pounds in 1906, and to 25 pounds in 1910.

The decline in Honest Scrap prompted the officers of the respondent to develop a new blend and after investigation, Mr. Ball, Vice-President, reported in 1914 that the sweeter blends were growing in favor. Upon his recommendation a new formula was worked out which produced a sweeter blend (V, p. 2557). In selecting a name for the new formula, Mr. Ball referred to the list of brands which had come to the respondent under the dissolution decree. He had been accustomed from time to time to refer to that list and to draw from it brands for use on the respondent's tobacco products. In this way he had selected Comet, Pioneer, and Yacht Club. On this list under the heading Luhrman & Wilbern, there were seven tobacco brands, six of which were actively selling in 1914, the seventh, Beechnut, having been dormant since the decline in popularity heretofore mentioned (VI, p. 2945; V, pp. 2558-9, 2575).

While this brand was then dormant in the sense that no sales actually had been made since 1910, labels and other necessary material were on hand and respondent had been at all times ready and willing to fill any orders received for it. Mr. Ball accordingly sent for one of the Beech-Nut packages and upon examination decided that the dress of the package was out of date; that it had too much reading matter on it and that it was objectionable in its use of the picture of the squirrel because there was at the time a well-known brand of tobacco known as "Hazel Nut" actively selling on the market, which prominently displayed the picture of a squirrel (V, p. 2560; VI, p. 2960). It was decided, however, to use the Beech-Nut name and a lithographer was directed to revamp the package. The result was the adoption of the sunburst package, a sample of which appears in the front of this brief, and photographs of which appear at page 2870 of Vol. VI.

It is to be noted that the most prominent feature of the package consists of the radiating red lines emanating from the center, a most distinctive device admittedly never used by petitioner and which has given the package its name "Sun-Burst". Prominently displayed at the top of the package is the name "Lorillard's". No solid color border such as appears in all the petitioner's labels occurs on the respondent's package. The Beech-Nut letters are printed in blue on a natural paper background, whereas the petitioner's name always appears across the top of the oval as "Beech-Nut Brand" in white letters against a red or colored background. On one side of the package in the oval the words "Established 1760" appear and on the other side "Middletown. Ohio", the respondent's chief factory is printed in prominent lettering. On each side appears in bold type the words "Chewing Tobacco". The beech-nuts appearing in the center of the mark are in the form of a pair of beech-nuts pointing downwards and are not surrounded by any leaves. It was explained that these twin beech-nuts were drawn from some picked up by the respondent's President, Mr. Maloney, on his New Jersey farm (V, pp. 2560, 2636).

Ovals, like stars and other devices, have for years been used upon packages of all kinds, including tobaccos, such a use having been made by Respondent and its predecessors on "Bagpipe", another scrap brand. It is also a custom of long standing to use conjointly with a mark the object of which it is the name; such a use having been made by Respondent in the case of "Comet", "Open Book", "Red Cross", "Stag". And the use of the hyphen in the "Beech-Nut" was too insignificant a detail to mislead anybody. See the very pertinent case of Postum Cereal Co. v. American Co. (C. C. A. 7th), 119 Fed. 848, 852-3.

The tobacco under this brand was offered to the market early in 1915 and met with great success, its sales being 7,364,214 pounds in 1915, 16,284,786 in 1916 and so on steadily to 27,602,606 in 1919 (VI, pp. 2968, 2970).

The total annual scrap business of the country is in the vicinity of 60,000,000 pounds, and in 1921, when this suit was brought, the respondent's Beech-Nut covered about fifty-per cent. of the business (V, p. 2635). The respondent's sales in 1919 of this brand alone had a retail value of $14,650,865.23 as compared with the petitioner's total sales for that year of all its products of $8,979,586.35. This is striking in view of the fact that the respondent's package has always been sold for 10¢. This success is directly attributable to the intelligent way in which the consumers' taste had been ascertained and met and to the very hard, systematic and expensive work by way of advertising and sampling which was done to introduce and push the brand. By the end of 1921, the respondent had expended in manufacturing and selling Beech-Nut scrap a total of $64,691,954.61 (V, pp. 2570-2572).

Petitioner's First Protest in Regard to the Beech-Nut Mark.

On June 11, 1915, the petitioner, by letter addressed to the respondent, first asserted an objection to the form of package under which the scrap tobacco was being introduced. This letter appears at page 2888 of Vol. VI, and the ensuing correspondence is set forth in the pages immediately following. For the Court's convenience all of this correspondence, arranged in chronological order, is printed as Appendix

B, p. 104 of this brief. The correspondence continued through the summer of 1915 and terminated substantially in a very full letter from the respondent to the petitioner dated September 15, 1915 (VI, p. 2897). In this letter the respondent set forth the early use of the Beech-Nut name by its predecessors commencing with the Weissinger Tobacco Company at Louisville in 1897. It explained in detail how the brands had come to it under the dissolution decree and it enclosed price lists and samples relating to the early use of the name. It then stated the legal doctrine on which it relied to support its right to use the name Beech-Nut on tobacco without violating petitioner's right to use the name on foods, referring to decided cases, and to Nims on Unfair Competition. It disclaimed any intention to make use of the Beech-Nut Packing Company's reputation to further the sale of its tobacco and pointed to the care it had exercised in selecting a label which would not be imitative of the petitioner's mark. It expressly invited the petitioner to inform it of any cases of representations made by its salesmen to the effect that Beech-Nut scrap was a product of the Packing Company and volunteered promptly to discharge any salesmen making such representation.

To this very full letter the petitioner sent an acknowledgment dated September 20, 1915, in which it said that it desired to review the matter before giving a definite reply. No further action of any sort followed for a period of four years, although during that time the respondent's business on this brand grew to the point where it commanded almost 50% of the scrap tobacco business of the country, and had a retail sales value almost twice that of all the petitioner's products combined, and during the same time the petitioner's business itself had doubled.

Introduction of Beech-Nut Cigarettes.

Prior to 1919, the respondent's cigarette business had consisted almost entirely of pure Turkish cigarettes in box packages selling at 10 for 25¢ or more. The great volume of cigarettes generally in use were blended mixtures of Turkish, bright domestic and Burley tobaccos, such as Camels, Lucky Strikes and Chesterfields, and were selling in "cup" packages as a rule at 20 for 20¢. As the end of the war promised to bring a lessened cost of materials respondent conceived the idea of offering a blended cigarette in a "cup" package to sell at 20 cigarettes for 15¢, and because of its success with the scrap tobacco it decided to offer its cigarettes under the Beech-Nut name. In this particular it was following the successful experience of the American Tobacco Company in promoting Lucky Strike cigarettes after Lucky Strike smoking tobacco (V., pp. 2592-94).

This came to the notice of the Petitioner and it volunteered the suggestion that the "sun-burst" design of the scrap package be adopted for the cigarette package, but examination showed that there was danger of a conflict with the sun-ray design of Sweet Caporal cigarettes then being sold by the American Tobacco Company, and there was some danger that the design may have been anticipated by "Zubelda". Accordingly, the twin Beech-Nuts and the oval were taken from the scrap package and a wrapper prepared and used on the cigarettes which is illustrated at page 2708 of Vol. VI. The prominent position of the name "P. Lorillard Co." is noteworthy. The use of the oval was, of course, a familiar design on cigarette packages, for instance on "Twelfth Nights". The solid red background was adopted because of the success of other cigarettes employing solid backgrounds such as the buff of Camels and Fatimas, the blue of Omars, the green of Lucky Strikes and Lord Salisbury and the white of Piedmonts and Chesterfields. Furthermore, red was the predominant color on the scrap tobacco and had already been used by the respondent on its "London Life" and "Windsor Castle" cigarettes (V, pp. 2594, 2604).

An early sample wrapper first submitted for the cigarette package carried the catch-phrase "Cigarettes of Beech-Nut quality have never before been offered to the public" (VI, p.

2973). Upon the petitioner's objection, this catch-phrase was changed to read "Beech-Nut cigarettes 'mildest of all' perfect quality, delicious taste, P. Lorillard, Established 1760", and only cigarettes bearing the later catch-phrase were marketed (V, p. 2620). The petitioner's objection had been to the close proximity of the words "quality" and "Beech-Nut" in the first suggested catch-phrase. The package was wrapped in glassine paper as was true of many other cigarettes in the competing brands.

On both the front and back of the distinctive cigarette package appears the name "P. Lorillard Co." These packages are sold ten in a carton, on each of which cartons is printed the name "Lorillard". Each carton contained a yellow and a white card for display on the counter in advertising these cigarettes which stated the cigarettes were "Lorillard's". And all other advertisements, whether in windows, billboards, newspapers or periodicals, plainly carried the name "P. Lorillard Co."

While preparations were commenced in 1919 for the introduction of Beech-Nut cigarettes, it was not until 1921 that the respondent was in a position to introduce them to the market. They were actively pushed, at first well received, and sold very satisfactorily. But the older and better-known brands, in part due to the deflation in 1921, soon engaged in a price war which resulted in the reduction by them to 15¢ for 20, and frequently two packages for a quarter. Beech-Nut was no match for these brands in a competitive situation of this bitterness, the old brands were able to command the situation, and by lack of volume it was unable to force its price below 15¢. The result was, in the language of the respondent's Vice-President in charge of cigarettes, "It just took the living life out of Beech-Nut" (V, p. 2602).

Petitioner's Cigarette Experiment.

In the spring of 1919, when the respondent was commencing its preparations for marketing a Beech-Nut cigarette, one of its sample labels came to the attention of the petitioner.

Thereupon the petitioner ordered from the American Tobacco Company 2,060 cigarettes and shipped some of them to one of its Vice-Presidents, some to its counsel and some to the New Jersey Tobacco Company, a jobber, all at a cost of $11.85 (I, p. 791). These cigarettes were packed in plain white boxes with black printing thereon. The label which appears in Vol. VI. at page 2999, and which conforms to the usual Beech-Nut food product label was never used on these cigarettes (IV, p. 2169).

Hearing of these shipments, the respondent wrote the petitioner on June 28, 1919 (VI, p. 2902) asserting its ownership of Beech-Nut for tobacco products and demanding that the petitioner cease using it on cigarettes. An interview followed and correspondence ensued running into October, which is set out on pages 2904 and following, of Vol. VI and Appendix B herein. The correspondence related to proposed changes in the wrapper for the Beech-Nut cigarette package put out by the respondent, and terminated in a letter from the respondent to the petitioner dated October 15, 1919, in which the respondent stood firmly on its position that it was entitled to use the name Beech-Nut for all tobacco products (VI, p. 2922).

It is important to note, however, that the petitioner made no objection whatever to the use of Beech-Nut on the scrap tobacco, confining its objections to the color and lettering of the proposed cigarette package (IV, p. 2173 and VI, p. 2922). In a letter dated August 7, 1919, the petitioner wrote the respondent stating that its Executive Committee had made the suggestion that "In view of the splendid success of your Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, would it not be worth while to simulate your Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco in a wrapping for your cigarettes; in other words, use for your cigarettes a form of label which will immediately apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company making the popular Beech-Nut tobacco, and tie up the advantage and publicity you have already gained from the merchandising of that product" (VI, p. 2912). Again in a letter dated October 8, 1919, the petitioner wrote: "Briefly stated our position is this—that regardless of the trade-name or mark Beech-Nut, your Company adopted our oval trade-mark and our general color scheme and other embellishments for your cigarette package and this your Company had no right to do regardless of any rights that you may have had in so far as the name Beech-Nut is concerned" (VI, p. 2920). It thus appears from this correspondence that petitioner definitely acquiesced in the respondent's use of Beech-Nut for scrap tobacco and in fact encouraged the respondent to adopt the scrap tobacco marking for its cigarettes.

The Patent Office Proceeding.

During the progress of the 1919 correspondence, the petitioner applied for the registration of Beech-Nut for cigarettes under the Trade-mark Act in the Patent Office. The respondent opposed the application, and the entire record of the proceeding, together with the decisions has been made a part of the record here, and is printed in Vol. IV (the opinions are in Vol. VI, pp. 2821, 2830). The issues presented were in a large measure the same as those here involved. The first hearing was before the Examiner of Interferences who held that respondent had a right to adopt and use the mark even as late as 1915 for tobacco products, notwithstanding the petitioner's use of the mark for food products, because the products were not of the same descriptive properties. He therefore held that the petitioner's application for registration should be denied (VI, p. 2821). The petitioner appealed to the Commissioner of Patents who affirmed the ruling of the Examiner and refused registration. From this decision no further appeal was taken (VI, p. 2830).

Thereupon, the present suit was instituted in May, 1921 charging trade-mark infringement and unfair competition. Voluminous testimony was taken in all parts of the country, very full argument was had before the District Court, elaborate briefs submitted, and after careful consideration, the District Judge held that the respondent was entitled to the use of the mark, that no unfair competition had been practised and that the respondent owned and could continue to use Beech-Nut for its tobacco products. Accordingly, the bill of complaint was dismissed. 299 Fed. 834. (V, p. 2645.)

On appeal to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, that Court affirmed the decree below, Judge Davis rendering a comprehensive opinion (V, p. 2694), 7 Fed. (2nd) 967.

The Evidence in the Record.

The evidence introduced to establish the petitioner's case will be reviewed under the various subdivisions under which it naturally falls. The major portion of it was devoted to an attempt to establish that there had been wide-spread confusion in the public mind as a result of which many consumers thought that the respondent's tobacco was made by the petitioner. To this end there were introduced four window displays in which advertising matter of both petitioner and respondent was alleged to have been set up in a confusing manner; seven cases of alleged misrepresentation by salesmen of the respondent; the testimony of sixteen of petitioner's salesmen, of a considerable number of dealers, and witnesses drawn from the general public. There were also introduced certain missent letters, which had come to the petitioner and which were inquiries relating to tobacco products. These different types of evidence will be considered in order.

Four Window Displays.

Four retail merchants in widely separated cities in dressing their respective store windows, included at the same time either packages or advertisements of both petitioner and respondent, along with other products. Three of them, Coughlin of West Haven, Conn. (III, p. 2090); Bieringer of Boston, Mass. (II, p. 911) and Pennell of Ashville, N. C.

(I, p. 712) were examined. The fourth, a grocer of Baltimore was not examined. In each instance the witness testified that the display was placed in his window without any suggestion, knowledge or participation by the respondent, and each retailer knew at the time of the difference of manufacture, and thought that the public likewise knew. The packages and advertisements of the respondent appearing in the windows plainly carried its corporate name.

Two photographs were put in evidence by the petitioner, one of the West Haven, Connecticut window (VI, p. 2710) and the other the Ashville, N. C. window (VI, p. 2762). When examined, these photographic exhibits do not show clearly the name P. Lorillard Co. as it appeared in black letters on the red background, but the name did appear on the placard reproductions of the packages with lettering in the same proportions as occurred on the package itself, and the name appears so plainly that both Pennell and Coughlin testified that it could be read from the street. Counsel for the petitioner explained the deceptive character of the photographs by saying that an improper camera had been used which would not show black lettering on red backgrounds. These photographs therefore must be considered with this defect in mind.

The Seven Alleged Cases of Misrepresentation by Respondent's Salesmen.

In considering the seven alleged cases of misrepresentation by salesmen of respondent it will be recalled that in one of petitioner's letters in the 1915 correspondence, the petitioner said that it knew that salesmen and agents of respondents deliberately pushed respondent's goods under petitioner's mark and name. To this the respondent replied that it would promptly discharge any salesman guilty of such representation. At the time of the correspondence not a single instance was cited of such misrepresentation, and in the elaborate preparation of testimony in this case only seven such instances out of the tremendous volume of sales made by the respondent were introduced. Each of these seven instances was investigated to the bottom by the respondent and this investigation disclosed very clearly that not only was there no misrepresentation by any representative of the respondent but that on the contrary the facts strongly suggested that a representative of the petitioner practiced the alleged deceit in order to secure evidence in this case. The full import of this will be apparent upon an examination in detail of a few of the instances.

Case of William T. Hill.

Hill is a retail grocer handling tobacco products as well, in the small town of West Greenville, S. C. He testified on direct-examination by counsel for the petitioner that "a special man" called on him in November, 1921, offered to sell him Beech-Nut tobacco, which he did not buy, and that the man thereupon went on to ask him "how the Beech-Nut stuff sold, such as peanut butter, gum and so on." Hill thereupon asked the salesman if the Beech-Nut Company was putting out tobacco, and, "he talked on and I don't know I got any direct answer," but Hill was left under the impression that the petitioner was putting out tobacco (I, p. 724). Counsel for the petitioner did not inquire as to the name or description of this "special man" or identify him in any way. On cross-examination, the witness said that the man had not said he represented the Beech-Nut Packing Company, that the witness had bought no tobacco from him and that the witness had never had in stock either Beech-Nut cigarettes or Beech-Nut scrap tobacco. Hill further testified "later on someone came and asked me about the man coming here trying to sell Beech-Nut tobacco and that was the first I knew of it. I reckon it was around the latter part or the first of December they came in. That was the first I heard anything about it being wrong" (I, p. 725). The someone who came was the petitioner's representative, and his visit resulted in the taking of Hill's testimony. Obviously, petitioner's representative would never have come to Hill unless the man who had tried to sell Beech-Nut tobacco likewise had come from the petitioner. The respondent went into West Greenville and took the testimony of other dealers in a further effort to get at the bottom of this incident. This investigation showed these dealers knew the tobaccos were Lorillard products and that Hills' case stood absolutely alone in that town (III, pp. 1863; 1865).

Case of Robert L. Bowen.

Bowen is a retail grocer also handling tobacco, in Spartanburg, S. C. On direct-examination by counsel for the petitioner he testified that in November, 1921 "a man came in and held it (a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes) up just like you (Counsel for petitioner), only not so far away" and the man said "I see you handle Beech-Nut peanut butter and I want to sell you some Beech-Nut cigarettes"; that witness refused to buy but said to the man, "It's funny that the Beech-Nut Packing Company is putting up cigarettes" to which the man said "yes" and went on out of the door (I, p. 744). Again, counsel for the petitioner did not endeavor to identify by name or description the man who interviewed the witness.

Counsel for the respondent on cross-examination brought out that the interviewer had not said that he was from the Beech-Nut Packing Company, although he made the witness think that he was selling cigarettes put up by them, and that when he went away the witness was under that impression. He left no credentials or card, and the witness had never seen him thereafter (I, pp. 748-9). Again representatives of the petitioner came along in about a month, made inquiries of Bowen, and later took his deposition (I, p. 745). Again in the process of investigation counsel for the respondent examined every other dealer in Spartanburg with the result that Bowen's case likewise stood absolutely alone (III, pp. 1846, 1848).

The Case of William C. Weigel.

Weigel was a retail grocer handling tobacco in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. On direct examination by counsel for the petitioners he said that a man called upon him and sold him some Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, making delivery and taking payment in cash. The witness did not recall whether he asked the salesman directly or whether the salesman told him, but in any event he was given to understand "that this was a label that was only permitted on the very best products and was leased by the different companies that put out this product" (I, p. 561). As in the case of the other witnesses, counsel for the petitioner did not identify the salesman by name or description. Counsel for the respondent brought out that the salesman did not state what concern he represented, and that the jobbers from whom the witness normally bought Beech-Nut tobacco never told him that it was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

Again counsel for the respondent took the testimony of dealers in the locality, all of whom testified that they had bought and sold the tobacco and cigarettes for varying lengths of time and always knew they were Lorillard's products from what the agents had said and from the packages and advertisements accompanying them (II, pp. 1430, 1459, 1524, 1538, 1551, 1566, 1568, 1569, 1571).

The Case of George B. Roach.

Roach was a grocer in the small town of Pembrooke, Kentucky. A travelling salesman made three visits to this store, the first of which was in August, 1921. According to the witness the salesman introduced himself as Mr. Bacon and stated that he was representing Beech-Nut Tobacco. He gave Roach a package to try. The salesman reminded Roach that he knew the Beech-Nut trade-mark and what it stood for and that anything put out under it had to be of the highest quality and from this Roach testified he became "convinced that it was put out by" the petitioner (I, pp. 665-668). The witness did not buy any tobacco at that time nor did he examine the package. The second visit was about two months later. In the meantime Roach had seen an agent of the petitioner and accordingly he said to the salesman that he understood that the Packing Company "was raising Cain about them using their trade-mark" and the salesman replied that they had sold the trade-mark to the Beech-Nut Packing Company, reserving the right to this use on tobacco, and that one suit by the Packing Company had been lost and he didn't think that they could reverse it (I, p. 666). The third visit was around November 21, 1921. Roach was out and the salesman saw his clerk who testified that the salesman said he was Mr. Bacon of the Lorillard Tobacco Company and was handling Beech-Nut cigarettes and tobacco (I, pp. 684, 686). At page 677 it clearly appears that Roach did not buy any tobacco in the belief that it was a Beech-Nut Packing Company product.

It would unnecessarily extend this statement to detail the testimony of the other witnesses in this group. Like those which have been stated each of them was unique in the fact that the witness was the only dealer in his community who was approached by any one who endeavored to convey the impression that the cigarettes or tobacco were made by the petitioner, and in each case the salesman remained unidentified. The alleged visits were all made about October or November, 1921, long after scrap tobacco was an established product and shortly after the bill of complaint was filed and testimony was beginning to be taken in this suit. The other cases were those of Peterson Bros. (I, pp. 501 et seq.), Charles P. Cook (I, p. 695), Jefferson D. Hayden (I, p. 754).

Thus Mr. Hayden when buying the tobacco received a receipted bill therefor plainly displaying the name "P. Lorillard Company", and when testifying he not only had on his shelves other Lorillard brands of tobacco but in plain view a stack of Beech-Nut cartons eight feet high, on each of which appeared the name "Lorillard". And Petersen Bros. in fact were fully acquainted (II, pp. 1580-1).

Testimony of Petitioner's Salesmen.

Petitioner examined sixteen of its own salesmen, and it contends that their testimony proves not only wholesale deception of the trade but that three of these salesmen were themselves deceived. Every one of these salesmen on cross examination admitted that just as soon as he examined the package and saw the name P. Lorillard Company on it he was satisfied that it was not one of petitioner's products, and those who testified that they thought it was one of petitioner's products admitted that they had not examined or paid any attention to the package. Thus in the testimony of E. I. Ray appears the following: "X-Q.28. Do you know of the P. Lorillard Co., do you? A. Why, yes. X-Q.29. You know they are a large tobacco manufacturing concern and put out various brands of cigarettes? A. Yes. X-Q.30. This name, P. Lorillard Co., on this package of cigarettes would indicate to you that it was one of their brands? A. Yes." (I, p. 364.) Similarly O. A. HUBBARD testified:

> "X-Q.32. When you took this first package in your hand and examined it, you saw the name P. Lorillard Co. on it? A. I did. X-Q.33. That indicated to you that that was their product? A. It did; just as soon as I got the package and examined it and saw the name 'P. Lorillard Co.' on it I was satisfied then." (I., pp. 101-2).

Their testimony as to the alleged deception of the trade took the indefinite form of stating that "hundreds" or "thousands" or "innumerable" inquiries had been made of them as to the source of the tobacco products. The weight of this testimony may be appraised by the following illustrative question on cross examination. E. I. Ray was asked: "Do you know of your own knowledge if any of these people took the trouble to examine that package of cigarettes before they asked you that question? A. No. I don't" (I, p. 363).

It may also be appraised by a reading of the testimony given by some of these inquirers, which showed conclusively that such inquiries proceeded from careless inattention to the package and utter indifference to the manufacturer. Illustrative witnesses were Charles O. Larson (I, pp. 442-3); James J. Creevan (I, pp. 138-9, 141-2); Robert Greene (I, p. 275); James J. Marrinan (I, pp. 283-4); James J. Cashman (I, pp. 265-7); Clarence A. Wilkins (I, pp. 109, 111-2); Ida W. Wilkins (I, p. 121); Dorace L. Bottomly (I, pp. 168-9); T. J. Branigan (I, p. 287).

Thus CHARLES O. LARSON, named by Salesman Southern, said:

> "X-Q.6. Do you smoke cigarettes? A. No, sir. I wouldn't be caught with one in my mouth. X-Q.7. Do you chew tobacco? A. No, sir. * * * X-Q.11. Did you ever buy a package of those Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. No, sir. X-Q.12. Did you ever buy a package of that Beech-Nut scrap tobacco? A. No, sir. Have no use for it. X-Q.13. Did you ever take the trouble to look at a package? A. Have looked at it tonight. Never took trouble to closely examine it. X-Q.14. You never prior to tonight took trouble to read printing on the package? A. No, sir. I am not interested." (I, pp. 442-3).

And JAMES J. CREEVAN, named by Salesman Blanchard, testified:

> "X-Q.27. Did you ever buy a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. No, sir; never smoked a cigarette in my life. X-Q.28. Did you ever go into a store and ask for a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. No, sir. X-Q.29.

Did you ever carefully examine a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. No, sir. * * * X-Q.33. Did you ever see Beech-Nut scrap tobacco? A. No, sir. X-Q.34. Like this package here that I show you? A. I never did see one before. * * * R-X.Q.58. Did you look at the cigarette package itself? A. I never saw the cigarette package until down here; you showed it to me. R-X.Q. 59. When was that? A. About ten minutes ago, just as I came up. R-X.Q.60. So the first time you saw a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes was today, August 19, 1921? A. Yes, sir." (I, pp. 138-9, 141-2.)

Other Witnesses Examined by Petitioner.

Counsel for the petitioner examined about thirty-five dealers, including those who testified to the seven cases of alleged misrepresentation, selected out of the thousands in the territory covered. The testimony of these dealers disclosed that none of them examined the package, that if the package had been so examined he would have seen Lorillard's name on it, and that that was the name of a tobacco company with which he was familiar. There was evidence also that these dealers were not representative of the trade but were hand-picked by counsel for the petitioner for the purpose of this suit. This was made evident by the testimony of witnesses offered by the respondent, who said that they had been interviewed by counsel for the petitioner and had been asked to testify to confusion in the minds of their customers, but when they explained that no such confusion existed, counsel for the petitioner did not take their testimony. Included in this group are L. G. Cauto (II, p. 971); Dennis T. O'Callahan (II, p. 1128); Ferdinand Bieringer (II, p. 919), Harry Klein (II, p. 990).

The petitioner also introduced certain other witnesses whose testimony on direct examination generally was to the effect that their first impression was that the tobacco products were made by the petitioner; but on cross examination they all admitted that they had never examined the package or the advertising, had never been interested in who was the manufacturer, and in most cases had heard of the Lorillard Company and would have recognized its name if they had examined the package. Included in this group also were certain ardent anti-tobaccoists who testified that they experienced a feeling of disgust when they saw billboard advertising of the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco and gathered the impression, without reading the billboard, that the petitioner had gone into the tobacco business. Some of them testified that thereupon they resolved not to purchase any more of petitioner's products, although in each case the witness admitted that an examination of the package or the advertising would have set him right, and subsequently did.

A fair statement of the import of this testimony is that Petitioner has assembled some witnesses (a comparative few when the enormous extent of the two businesses are considered) who had, and on direct examination testified to, mistaken first impressions. But with great unanimity these witnesses frankly admitted on cross examination that their mistaken impressions were due to their own careless inattention to the packages, which in turn was due to their lack of interest in the source of manufacture. And they go further and say that had they taken the trouble to examine the packages they would have known they were the output of "Lorillard", the well-known tobacco manufacturer.

In Appendix A we have quoted from the testimony of each of the witnesses relied upon by Petitioner in its Appendices A and B and we refer the Court thereto for complete substantiation of our statements.

Misaddressed Letters.

Petitioner also introduced some seventy letters, most of which were orders (with a few requests for advertising) which had been received by it and which it is alleged indicated that the writer had been under the impression that petitioner was the manufacturer of the scrap and the cigarettes. These letters bear dates ranging from December 16, 1915 to October 18, 1923. During this period of nearly eight years thousands upon thousands of orders were sent in for these products and it is not astonishing that the petitioner received this relatively small number of missent communications.

One of these letter writers, William L. Miller, an advertising agent, was examined, and he confirmed what the misdirection of the letters would indicate—complete inattention and gross carelessness. He testified that having seen an advertisement in the New York Evening Sun of the Beech-Nut cigarette, he sent a letter to the petitioner in an effort to get some advertising for another magazine, because he thought the petitioner was putting out the cigarettes. On cross examination he admitted that he had known Lorillard for twenty years at least, was actually carrying advertisements for Lorillard when the incident occurred and in fact noticed the name P. Lorillard Company on the particular advertisement when he had cut it out and sent it to the petitioner (V, p. 2475).

Witnesses for the Respondent.

Respondent likewise introduced twelve of its salesmen located in various parts of the country, who testified that when the cigarettes were first introduced, one or two or perhaps half a dozen inquiries were made as to who was the manufacturer of the scrap or cigarettes. These witnesses testified that they regularly featured the name Lorillard in introducing themselves.

In addition to its own salesmen respondent took the testimony of a great many dealers in all parts of the country. Each of them with very few exceptions handled the products of both parties so that any confusion, if it existed, would be within their knowledge. They represented stores of all sizes and were drawn from different kinds of communities. Every effort was made to have this group of witnesses truly representative of the chain stores, newspaper stands and restaurants, drug stores, grocery stores, general stores, etc., in which both products were likely to be sold. Exclusive of the many dealers who gave no figures, these witnesses disclosed that out of 110,500 customers who daily patronized their stores during all the years that respondent's Beech-Nut tobacco products had been on the market there were less than 100 comments or inquiries suggesting confusion or doubt in the mind of the public as to who was the maker of the tobacco product. It is perfectly obvious that no matter how great the difference between products may be, a minimum of confusion is likely to occur. Beyond all doubt this case presents the minimum.

Thus in Philadelphia respondent took the testimony of fifteen dealers whose combined customers averaged about 11,000 a day (II, pp. 1254-1335). Each of them who handled scrap or cigarettes or both knew them to be Lorillard products. Not one of them had ever heard any comment or inquiry indicating confusion in the trade. In Pittsburgh the respondent examined sixteen representative dealers whose combined customers averaging about 15,000 a day (not including seven who gave no figures) (III, pp. 1925-1962). Only one of them had ever heard any comment or inquiry indicating confusion and that was Joseph J. Rosswog with 500 customers a day, who had heard not more than four or five such inquiries (III, p. 1945). In other cities the experience was the same. Eleven dealers were examined from McKeesport, Pa. and vicinity, fifteen from Boston, eight from West Lynn and Salem, Mass., seven from Lawrence and Worcester, Mass., five from Springfield and Holyoke, Mass., nine from Wheeling, West Virginia, eleven from Baltimore, Md., four from Gary and Indiana Harbor, Ind., seven from Knoxville, Tenn., twenty-eight from four cities in Kentucky, twenty-one from three cities in North Carolina, fifteen from four cities in South Carolina, ten from Milwaukee, nine from Manitowoc, Green Bay and Two Rivers, Wisconsin, eighteen from Hartford, Conn., ten from West Haven and New Milford, Conn., nine from Bridgeport, Conn., five from Norwalk and South Norwalk, Conn., and twenty-six from Chicago.

As illustrative of the testimony of these witnesses Peter Peters said: "If anybody asked me who makes it I would say, 'See the package,' that is all" (II, p. 1142). Samuel S. Broadbent said: "I saw the advertisements when they first came out in the paper saying they were made by Lorillard" (II, p. 1156); and Haskell Sharf said: "They know just as well as I did who was making it, because they always saw it advertised on the posters in the windows, see,—Beech-Nut cigarettes made by P. Lorillard, so you see they saw it before they came into the place. Their question was answered in the window on the posters" (II, p. 939).

It was upon the testimony of these witnesses, as well as upon the cross-examination of the petitioner's witnesses, that the District Court found and the Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed that there was no confusion and no effort on the part of the respondent to palm off its goods as those of the petitioner. It is apparent therefore that there was abundant support in the record for the finding of fact which was concurred in by the two courts below, and that this finding was based on a full survey of the country-wide situation in respect of both products.

Introduction and Summary of Argument.

The petitioner sought relief on two grounds: first, that there had been infringement of its trademark in the adoption by the respondent of the name "Beech-Nut"; second, that there had been unfair competition entitling petitioner to restrain the use of the "Beech-Nut" mark on tobacco because of alleged confusion in the public mind and injury to the petitioner.

The Respondent answered that there was no ground for relief on either of these contentions because of the utter dissimilarity of the names, packages, products and businesses of the respective parties and the long and wide use of "Beech-Nut" as a mark for tobaccos. Further, Respondent denied that it had palmed off its goods as those of Petitioner or had caused any confusion or injury as alleged, and contended that the long-continued acquiescence by the Petitioner in the sale of Scrap Tobacco between the years 1915 and 1919, during which time the business of Respondent on this brand had grown in the extraordinary amount and at the immense expenditure previously set forth in the statement of the case, made it inequitable for the Petitioner to have the drastic relief for which it prayed.

What the Lower Courts Decided.

In resolving the issues raised by these contentions, it is apparent that the decision was altogether a determination of fact. In making this determination both lower courts had before them a voluminous record containing the testimony, taken by deposition and in open court, of approximately 500 witnesses, and numerous extensive exhibits. Every effort was made to present the history and experience of both businesses in complete detail. With this record before them both courts below agreed upon three propositions, all of which were in the respondent's favor.

The first was that there was no trade mark infringement because foods and tobacco are not goods of the same descriptive properties.

The second was that the respondent's labels, products and business were too utterly unlike the petitioners to be the occasion of any unfair competition and that no "palming off" had occurred.

The third was that the public had not been misled or confused by the respondent's conduct, and that the petitioner had not been injured in any way.

In addition, the District Court considered the question of alleged abandonment of the Beech-Nut trade-mark by the respondent, and found that there had been no abandonment during the years 1911-1914, when no sales of Beech-Nut tobacco had been made.

In their opinions the Courts below considered the three decisions now alleged to be conflicting, in the second and sixth circuits, a conflict which was relied upon when the Writ of Certiorari was sought. These three cases are considered in detail subsequently in this brief. It is enough here to say that the Courts below did not criticise or depart from them in any way. To the extent that they differ in result, that difference was based on a difference in fact and not a difference in legal principle. Citing and following the very cases on which petitioner relies, the inquiry, in the language used below, was whether, as a matter of fact, "within the principles announced in those cases, or in any other way, has the defendant injured the plaintiff in its property or reputation." Indeed it was expressly stated, as the underlying principle, that "if by unfair and fraudulent means the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived, equity will enjoin whether the injury comes through competition or in some other way."

And thus it becomes plain that Petitioner's quarrel with the decisions of the Courts below is not any failure in them to recognize and apply the principles of these cases on which petitioner relies, but the finding that even "within the principles of those cases" respondent had not injured petitioner or deceived the public—a question of fact purely.

Petitioner would have this Court believe that every consumer was deceived. This astounding statement is repeated with varying emphasis in the Petitioner's brief no less than twenty-seven times by actual count. In the teeth of the express findings of the lower Courts, it is asserted and reasserted that "absolutely the entire purchasing public of the U. S. has been and is being deceived" (Brief, p. 75) by the Lorillard use of the Beech-Nut Trade Mark. The claim rises to a climax of absurdity in the suggestion (Brief, p. 278) that "In effect the Court below rules that the universal deception of the public has resulted solely from the carelessness or stupidity of the hundred million inhabitants of the United States * * *".

We prefer to accept the statement of Petitioner's letter written to Respondent in 1919 after the "sunburst" scrap package had been on the market some four years and its sales had exceeded the total sales of Petitioner, saying that its Executive Committee suggested using the "sunburst" for the forthcoming cigarette package because this use > "will immediately apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company manufacturing the popular Beech-Nut tobacco" (VI, p. 2912).

And we refer the Court to the quotations in Appendix "A" from the testimony of a great number of these witnesses for Petitioner, from which the court will see that each of these witnesses frankly admitted that their mistaken first impressions came entirely from their own carelessness in failing to examine the package, that had they examined the package they would have known it was a tobacco product put out by Lorillard, the well known tobacco manufacturer.

Said the Circuit Court of Appeals:

> "The evidence shows that its goods have in no way been confused with those of the plaintiff, so that, when a purchaser desired a certain brand of plaintiff's goods, he in fact secured those of defendant. Defendant carefully made prominent in its label the Lorillard origin of its products. The difference between their labels is so great and distinctive that any purchaser, paying ordinary attention, need not and should not be mistaken, and certainly not deceived. * * *
>
> "The evidence, in our opinion, conclusively shows that both parties have acted in perfect good faith. Both have used the word 'Beech-Nut' on their respective, but very different, labels because they thought that they had the legal right to do so. The plaintiff adopted its trade mark without knowledge of the 'Beech-Nut' trade mark of the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Co. The defendant naturally adopted the 'Beech-Nut' trade mark for its products, because it owned the old Harry Weissinger trade mark and thought it was acting within its legal rights. The plaintiff is proud of its 'position substantially at the top of a highly competitive industry.' The defendant is one of the great tobacco companies of this country with a Lorillard reputation stretching back into three centuries. Neither needed nor desired the reputation of the incompatible business of the other. The evidence does not disclose anything on which infringement of the trade mark or unfair competition can be based." (7 F. (2nd) at p. 971).

The Writ of Certiorari was Improvidently Granted.

Upon the foregoing facts this case, if it is to be reviewed at all by this court, falls clearly within and will be governed by the rule applied in Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 250 U. S. 28, 29, a case likewise of alleged trade-mark infringement and unfair competition heard on certiorari where there was diversity of citizenship, also testimony to confusion by purchasers (241 Fed. p. 819), and this Court said:

> "This is a bill in equity, brought to restrain the use of a trade-mark alleged to infringe the plaintiff's, or at least to be used in a way that is calculated to deceive and unfairly to interfere with the plaintiff's good will. Both courts have found for the defendant (154 C. C. A. 519, 241 Fed. 817), so that the only question that we shall consider is whether, upon inspection, it can be said as matter of law that the admitted acts of the defendant are a wrong of which the plaintiff can complain."

It is apparent that the issues now before this Court are issues of fact upon which both Courts below have agreed. The petitioner sought the Writ of Certiorari on an alleged conflict of decision in point of law between this case and decisions in other Circuits. But in view of the complete agreement in legal principle between these Circuits, as will fully appear hereinafter, it is respectfully submitted that the Writ of Certiorari was improvidently granted. Since there remains nothing for this Court to consider except a review of issues of fact. the writ should be dismissed and the judgments below affirmed.

Southern Power Co. v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 263 U. S. 509;
Layne and Bowler Corporation v. Western Well Works, 261 U. S. 387, 393;
Houston Oil Company v. Goodrich, 245 U. S. 440.

Summary of Respondent's Argument.

The argument for the respondent in the brief following is divided into seven sections.

First, the petitioner properly was denied relief on its claim of trademark infringement because foods and tobacco are not goods of the same descriptive properties.

Second, the petitioner properly was denied relief on its claim of unfair competition because there had been no palming off of the respondent's goods as those of the petitioner. The parties are not trade rivals. Their names, packages and entire businesses are utterly dissimilar.

Third, the use of the word "Beech-Nut" by Petitioner in its corporate name gives it no right to complain of the use of that word in the tobacco trade.

Fourth, there is no conflict of opinion between the Circuit Courts of Appeal: Alleged conflicting decisions of the Second Third and Sixth Circuits and in England distinguished.

Fifth, the petitioner is barred by laches, acquiescence and estoppel from obtaining any relief because it has stood by for a period of years and without objection permitted the respondent to build up to a valuable business. It now seeks to destroy that business and to obtain the profits that have been made without protest by it.

Sixth, the petitioner has failed entirely to establish any damages to itself as result of the alleged unlawful conduct of the respondent.

Seventh, there was no abandonment by the respondent of its rights in the "Beech-Nut" name during the year 1911-1914 when no actual sales were made of "Beech-Nut" tobacco.

ARGUMENT.

POINT I.

The petitioner properly was denied relief on its claim of trade-mark infringement because the goods of the petitioner and respondent were not of the same descriptive properties.

Petitioner's Use and Registration of "Beech-Nut."

The petitioner was incorporated in 1899 under the Laws of New York and took over all the assets, trade-marks, etc., of Imperial Packing Company at that time. Imperial had been using the name "Beech-Nut" from 1891 on its products which had consisted chiefly of hams and bacon (IV, p.

2156). From year to year petitioner's products have increased in variety, but they have not only all been food products, but the particular class of food products which may be described as "delicatessen." In 1903 they included hams, bacon, chipped beef, grape jam, cramberry sauce, etc. During the next six years there were added marmalades, fruit jams, preserves, jellies, baked beans, sausage, candy in glass jars, catsup, sea foods, vegetables, etc. During 1911-1914, there were added olive oil, chewing gum, condiment sauce, sardines, etc., and during 1915-1920, there were added wintergreen, clove, and other compressed tablets, ginger ale, cough drops, peanut bars and caramels. A schedule of petitioner's products appears at page 2784 of Vol. VI.

From time to time petitioner and its predecessor registered "Beech-Nut" for its various products, the most comprehensive registration being the one asserted in this suit, No. 89613, made December 31, 1912 (I, p. 21). This was a registration made in the United States Patent Office in which the petitioner declared it had adopted for its use the trade-mark shown in the drawing attached to the declaration as its trade-mark for a large number of products ranging from hams and bacon to candies and chewing gum described in the statement as "all in class 46, foods and ingredients of foods."

Aside from the abortive attempt, hereafter discussed, to register the Beech-Nut mark for cigarettes, the petitioner has confined its use of the mark entirely to food products, so classified both under the Trade Mark and Pure Foods Acts.

The Trade Mark Act and Decisions of this Court Recognize that the Same Mark may be used on Goods which do not possess the "Same Descriptive Properties."

Both under the common law and the Trade-mark Act (Act of February 20, 1905, 33 Stat. 724), the principle long has been established that the same word or mark may be registered and used by one party for one product and by another party for another product if the respective products are not goods of "the same descriptive properties." See Section 1 and 5 of the Trade Mark Act, 35 Stat. 628; 37 Stat. 649.

The leading case in this Court on the subject is Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311. There the Court said at page 323:

> "The first appropriator of a name or device pointing to his ownership, or which, by being associated with articles of trade, has acquired an understood reference to the originator, or manufacturer of the articles, is injured whenever another adopts the same name or device for similar articles, because such adoption is in effect representing falsely that the products of the latter are those of the former."

The doctrine of this case has been restated in McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245; Amoskeag Mfg. Co. v. Trainer, 101 U. S. 51; Lawrence Mfg. Co. v. Tennessee Mfg. Co., 138 U. S. 537, 547, and Columbia Mill Co. v. Alcorn, 150 U. S. 460, 463. It is expressly carried into the Statute by Section 16 of the Trade Mark Act, 33 Stat. 728, fastening liability for infringement on one who uses another's mark on goods of "substantially the same descriptive properties."

More recently in two cases, the doctrine has been reexamined and restated. In Hanover Star Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403, 412, this Court said:

> "Where a party has been in the habit of labeling his goods with a distinctive mark, so that purchasers recognize goods thus marked as being of his production, *others are debarred from applying the same mark to goods of the same description, because to do so would in effect represent their goods to be of his production and would tend to deprive him of the profit he might make through the sale of the goods which the purchaser intended to buy."

---

*Italics in this brief are ours unless otherwise indicated.

In United Drug Company v. Rectanus, 248 U. S. 90, the same doctrine was reaffirmed, and the Court took occasion to point out in language especially applicable to this case that the adoption of a trade-mark will not preempt the field to the owner of that trade-mark beyond the same kind of goods upon which it has been appearing. The Court said at page 98:

> "It results that the adoption of a trademark does not, at least in the absence of some valid legislation enacted for the purpose, project the right of protection in advance of the extension of the trade, or operate as a claim of territorial rights over areas into which it thereafter may be deemed desirable to extend the trade."

The leading English case on the subject states the same doctrine and may be quoted for its classic illustration of the linen and the iron.

In Ainsworth v. Walmsley, L. R. 1 Eq. 518, 524, Vice Chancellor Sir Wm. Page Wood said.

> "He has no property in that mark per se, any more than in any other fanciful denomination he may assume for his own private use, otherwise than with reference to his trade. If he does not carry on a trade in iron, but carries on a trade in linen, and stamps a lion on his linen, another person may stamp a lion on iron."

The doctrine is stated and discussed with numerous illustrations from decided cases in Nims on Unfair Competition and Trade-Marks, 2 ed., Sec. 221.

These decisions and the provisions of the Trade Mark Act have, of course, been accepted by the Federal Courts as expressing and establishing the law on this subject. With them the question has been not the authoritative existence of the principle but whether or not as a matter of fact the respective products in the particular case were goods of the "same descriptive properties". And such is also the law of the States and in England.*

In accordance with the long established principle announced by these cases the Patent Office provides in its regulations than an applicant for the registration of a trade-mark must specify the class of goods in respect of which he desires registration. Indeed the statute so requires, the Act providing that the applicant must state in his application "the class of merchandise and the particular description of goods comprised in such class to which the trade-mark is appropriated." (35 Stat. 628).

The Patent Office has established some fifty classes of merchandise to guide applicants in making applications for registration of trade-marks. An extract from the Patent Office's pamphlet on this subject is printed at page 2941

---

*See in the Eighth Judicial Circuit: Layton Pure Food Co. v. Church & D. Co., 182 Fed. 35, 37, and Atlas Mfg. Co. v. Street, 204 Fed. 398, 405-6; in the Seventh Judicial Circuit: Borden's Ice Cream Co. v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 201 Fed. 510, 514, and Enoch Morgan's Sons Co. v. Ward Co., 152 Fed. 690; in the Sixth Judicial Circuit: Peninsular Chemical Co. v. Levinson, 247 Fed. 658, and Vogue Co. v. Thompson, 300 Fed. 509; in the Third Judicial Circuit: Rosenberg Bros. & Co. v. Elliott, 7 F (2d) 962; Beechnut P. Co. v. P. Lorillard Co., 7 F (2d) 967; Akron-Overland Co. v. Willys-Overland Co., 273 Fed. 674, and Lawrence v. Sharpless, 203 Fed. 762; in the Second Judicial Court; Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney, 247 Fed. 407; National Picture Theatres v. Foundation Film Corp., 266 Fed. at p. 211; Charles Broadway Rouss v. Winchester, 300 Fed. 706, and France Milling Co. v. Washburn Crosby Co., 7 F (2d) 304; in the D. C. Court of Appeals: American Tobacco Co. v. Gordon, 10 F (2d) 646; Pittsburg Co. v. Ruben, 3 F (2d) 342; Oppenheim v. President Suspender Co., 3 F (2d) 88; Vacuum Oil Co. v. Gargoyle Textile Corp., 285 Fed. 1002; Paul F. Beich Co. v. Kellogg, 262 Fed. 640; Anglo-American Co. v. General Electric Co., 43 App. D. C. 385; Lord & Taylor v. Wolf & Sons, 41 App. D. C. 514; Quaker Oats Co. v. Mothers Macaroni Co., 41 App. D. C. 254; Johnson Educator Food Co. v. Sylvanus Smith Co., 37 App. D. C. 107; in the States Corning Glass Works v. Corning Cut Glass Co., 197 N. Y. 173; Hub Dress Mfg. Co. v Rothenberg, 237 Mass. 281; Va. Baking Co. v. So. Biscuit Works, 111 Va. 227; and in England Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Motor Co. (H. of L. 1907), 24 R. P. C. 572, 580, (1907) L. R. App. Cas. 430; Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Scottish N. Ins. Co., 26 R. P. C. 105; Borthwick v. The Evening Post, L. R. 37 Ch. D. 449; Hall v. Barrows, 4 DeG. J. & S. 150, 158-9.

of Vol. VI. Foods and ingredients of foods make up Class 46. Tobacco products are class 17.

Tobacco Products and Food Products Do Not Have the "Same Descriptive Properties."

On this aspect of the case the question becomes ultimately a question of fact as to whether the food products of the petitioner are goods of the same descriptive properties as the tobacco products of the respondent. In litigation between the parties in this suit this issue has been resolved against the petitioner no less than four times.

In 1919 after four years of silence on the part of the petitioner regarding the use of the Beech-Nut name, and during which period the respondent's scrap tobacco business had grown from 7,000,000 pounds in 1915 to 27,000,000 pounds in 1919 (VI, p. 2968), the respondent began preparation for marketing a Beech-Nut cigarette. A sample label prepared for this purpose reached the petitioner and in an endeavor to forestall the respondents' plans, the petitioner had The American Tobacco Company manufacture for it 2,060 cigarettes at a cost of $11.85 (I, p. 791; VI, p. 2831). These cigarettes were packed in plain white boxes with black printing. A label which appears as Exhibit 22 in Vol. VI, page 2999, similar to the petitioner's usual label was never used (IV, p. 2169).

The respondent, hearing of these activities, wrote the petitioner on June 28, 1919, asserting the ownership of the Beech-Nut name for tobacco products and demanding that the petitioner cease its use for cigarettes (VI, p. 2902). Correspondence ensued regarding the label proposed to be used by the respondent, and during the progress of this correspondence the petitioner applied for the registration of the Beech-Nut for cigarettes under the Trade-Mark Act.

The respondent opposed the application, filing its opposition under the provisions of Section 6 of the Trade-Mark Act. The basis of the opposition was that the respondent was entitled to use the Beech-Nut name on tobacco products in view of its adoption and use of this name continuously since 1896, or at least since 1915 on scrap tobacco.

After an extended hearing, the Examiner of Interferences denied the application (VI, p. 2821). On appeal to the Assistant Commissioner of Patents, this decision was affirmed and registration was refused (VI, p. 2830). The basis of both decisions was that the goods were not of the same descriptive properties and that therefore the same name could be used by different parties on goods so differing. No further appeal was taken from the decision of the Assistant Commissioner.

Again, in the District Court in the present suit, the petitioner was defeated on its charge of trade-mark infringement upon the ground that the goods marketed by the two parties were not of the same descriptive properties (V, p. 2669). Again in the Circuit Court of Appeals in the decision now under review, the petitioner's contention met with defeat on the same ground (V, p. 2700).

There can be no question that these four adjudications arrived at the right result on the issue of fact before the respective tribunals. Before considering the authorities relied on in these decisions to support the results reached, a brief examination of the two products may be made.

In 1922, 10,291 concerns in the United States were engaged in manufacturing tobacco with an annual output of a value of $1,012,932,000., consisting of cigarettes, cigars, chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff (V, p. 2632). Not one of these manufacturers ever has made or marketed food products (I, 791; V, pp. 2555, 2614, 2634). Dating from 1760 when Pierre Lorillard opened his factory in what is now Bronx Park, New York, tobacco products of every kind and only tobacco products have been manufactured under the "Lorillard" name by respondent and its predecessors. The consumers of these products are mostly men. Tobacco is a narcotic. It is in no sense a food. Its active element is a poison called "nicotine" which, when extracted, is used only as an insecticide for such purposes as spraying plants and dipping sheep.

On the other hand the petitioner has never made or marketed anything but food (I, p. 790) which it sells under its widely published slogan "Foods of finest flavor". Women and children are the chief buyers (I, pp. 385, 856). All of petitioner's products are embraced in the Pure Food Act (I, p. 790; V, p. 2510) and this statement, of course, includes chewing gum. No tobacco product is thus included. All tobacco products long have been the subject of heavy taxation under the Internal Revenue Laws. None of petitioner's products is thus taxed. Every witness in this case who testified on this subject, stated that tobacco and food products are distinct and unrelated products and are so recognized in the trade.*

No manufacturer of food products has ever made or sold tobacco products, and no manufacturer of tobacco products has ever made or sold food products. This is the testimony of witnesses whose recollection extends back 25 to 40 years, during all of which time they have been actively in the tobacco business (V, pp. 2555, 2614, 2634). This was admitted by Mr. Barbour, Petitioner's vice-president, when he said:

> "X-Q.48. Did you ever know a concern that was manufacturing package or food products that was engaged

---

*Examples from among Petitioner's witnesses are:

Bryon O. Foster (I, pp. 692-3); Albert Levy (I, p. 411); John E. Watson (I, p. 417); William H. Sage (I, p. 422); William C. Wiegel (I, p. 564); Henry Butcher (I, p. 246); Richardson S. Marks (I, p. 776); George B. Roach (I, p. 675); William T. Hill (I, p. 728).

Examples from among Petitioner's salesmen are:

Roy B. Southern (I, p. 398); Albert B. Lewis (I, p. 403); O. M. Wesling (I, p. 534); Wyatt P. Jennings (I, p. 736).

Respondent's witnesses likewise so testified:

Samuel Rackmales (II, p. 1203); Ferdinand Bieringer (II, p. 918); J. S. Weiner (III, p. 1673); David Kossack (III, p. 1682); Morris Gold (III, p. 1782); William Waschler (II, p. 1257); Harry Klein (II, pp. 992-3); David Ornstern (II, p. 1285).

in the manufacture of tobacco? A. I do not know of any—cannot think of any at this time" (I, p. 791).

There are a few dealers in, not manufacturers of, food products who have special brands made for them. The evidence makes this very plain (V, pp. 2465, 2614-5). But this practice is not nearly so common now as it was 25 years ago. Today there exist only the "Bon Voyage" cigarettes of Charles & Company, a retail grocery concern, the "Black & White" cigarettes of the Liggett Chain of drug stores, and the "Tilford" cigars of Park & Tilford, another retail grocery concern. These instances are dwelt upon in Petetioner's brief (p. 135), but Mr. Belt, a vice-president of Respondent, characterized these brands as "so infinitesimal" that no attention need be paid to them (V, p. 2616).

These practical differences are reflected in the attitude taken by the Patent Office toward trade-mark registrations involving these products.

Hon. James T. Newton, a former Commissioner of Patents, who had served twenty-eight years in the Patent Office and had there been in charge of the Trade-Mark Division, testified that it had been the office practice for years to register the same word for foods and for tobaccos on the application of different parties because they never were regarded as goods of the same descriptive properties (V, pp. 2518, 2520). By way of illustration, the witness produced three large volumes containing a great multitude of instances of the registration of the same word by one concern for foods and by another for tobaccos, which are not in the printed record but will be exhibited at the hearing. The registrations are summarized, however, in Vol. VI, p. 2924.

Court Decisions Deny "Same Descriptive Properties" to Food Products and Tobaccos.

The courts, whenever the question has arisen and in whatever form, have consistently held that tobacco products and food products are not goods of the same descriptive properties.

In Pittsburg Brewing Co. v. Ruben (App. D. C. 1925) 3 F. (2d) 342, 343, the Court said:

> "It is true that soft drinks and stogies are frequently kept on sale at the same stands, but this fact does not go far towards determining the 'Descriptive properties' of the goods, for it is well known that most retail stores deal in a variety of articles of diverse character. And when soft drinks and stogies are considered with reference to their component materials, processes of manufacture, and manner of consumption, it becomes evident that they are not goods of the same descriptive properties, and they are not so regarded in common understanding. Moreover, it is safe to assume that soft drinks and tobacco products are not often, if ever, made or marketed by the same manufacturer".

In California Packing Corp. v. Price-Booker Co. (App. D. C. 1922) 285 Fed. 993, 995, the court illustrated its idea of distinct classes of products by saying:

> "For instance, no one would be deceived into believing that a can of tobacco and a can of peas were put out by the same concern, simply because they bore similar trade marks."

In State v. Ohmer, 34 Mo. App. 115 it was held that tobacco is not a food within the meaning of the laws forbidding sales on Sundays except of food and other necessities, the Court saying:

> "Food is a substance that promotes the growth of animal or vegetable life. There is no nutrition in tobacco. It is merely a narcotic. It is not generally regarded as an article of food. It could hardly be said that an indictment for selling unwholesome food could be sustained by proof the defendant sold a bad or unwholesome cigar."

And in Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co. v. Cannon, 132 Tenn. 419, the court held chewing tobacco was not a food within the rule of law that in the sale of food products there is an implied warranty of fitness for consumption, saying:

> "We think it manifest that tobacco is not a foodstuff. It does not tend to build bodily tissue and as to the average adult its tendency is widely thought to retard the building up of fatty tissue. In respect to its use by the young, it cannot be doubted that it tends to stunt normal development and even growth in stature. The desire or appetite for food is natural and common to all of the human race, while the desire for tobacco must be created" (p. 423).
>
> "Foods are used as a matter of necessity in the support of life by all mankind from the infant to the aged. The legislatures have accordingly undertaken to give safeguards to the consuming public by way of pure food statutes. Tobacco has not been so treated. On the contrary it has been deemed a fit article on which to levy heavy internal revenue taxes, and as we have seen, the sale of tobacco in certain forms has been restricted, and undertaken to be prevented by statute. It is, we think, apparent that the same consideration of public welfare cannot support the enlargement of the class of foodstuffs so as to include tobacco even in the form of chewing tobacco, and that public policy as thus far declared is, as it should continue to be, not favorable to a classification that would protect its ultimate consumer under the rule above outlined" (pp. 424-5).

Use of the Same Mark by One Concern for Foods and by Another for Tobacco Has for Years Been a Universal Trade Custom.

For years it has been the universal custom in this country, sanctioned by the patent office through its classification and registrations as above stated, for the same mark to be used by one concern for its food products and by another concern for a tobacco product. This is thoroughly established by the record and is a fact of the utmost importance and has often been held determinative of the issue involved.

There are inserted at the end of this brief, by way of illustration, several pictures of physical exhibits presented to the courts below, to indicate the extent to which the same trade-mark has been used by one concern for tobaccos and by another concern for foods. In addition to the mute argument of these pictures, it may be recalled that the following duplications have existed in the market and that very frequently these products covered by the same name have been sold in the same stores and from the same counters.

"Apple" tobacco and "Apple" chewing gum.
"Star" tobacco and "Star" hams, milk, soap, washing fluids, etc.
"Sunshine" cigarettes and "Sunshine" Biscuits.
"Velvet" tobacco and "Velvet" Ice Cream.
"Eureka" tobacco and "Eureka" chocolates.
"Comet" tobacco and "Comet" rice.
"Polo" cigarettes and "Polo" canned goods.
"Tiptop" tobacco and "Tiptop" bread.
"Murad" cigarettes and "Murad" canned corn.
"Pall Mall" cigarettes and "Pall Mall" candy.

The illustrations in the picture are three very well known trade-marks now in general use, namely "Camel", "Mogul" and "Omar", each of which is being employed on an extensively sold line of cigarettes and at the same time on a broad list of food products similar to the petitioner's.

It appears therefore that the products of the petitioner and respondent differ widely in their ingredients, in the type of purchasers, and in the manner in which they have been treated under the pure food and revenue laws. These differences have been respected in a long administrative practice in the Patent Office which has registered the same name for food products and for tobaccos. This administrative practice has been approved by the courts wherever the issue has been raised. Furthermore, in the commercial world precisely the same situation exists in respect of numerous familiar trade-marks now in extensive use on both food products and tobaccos. In this state of the record the courts below were clearly right in concluding that food products and tobaccos are not goods of the same descriptive properties, and that consequently no suit would lie for an alleged infringement by the petitioner against the respondent on the ground of trade mark rights.

The Classification Rule in Trade Mark Law Is Sound in Principle.

The petitioner challenges this conclusion in this Court with the argument that the principle of classification, long embedded in the trade-mark law, is arbitrary and unsound and that where actual confusion of origin is shown to exist, trade-mark infringement must be recognized.

This argument may be met on several grounds. In the first place, as heretofore has been pointed out, courts of equity apart from statute had developed the doctrine of goods of the same descriptive properties long before Congress enacted any trade mark legislation. The statutory classification therefore merely followed familiar equitable doctrines and after the statute had re-enunciated these doctrines, this Court has had occasion again to consider the question and has adhered to the principle. A doctrine so thoroughly established ought not longer to be debatable.

But there are more serious objections to the petitioner's contention. If it prevails the barrier between goods of different classifications would be broken down and the registering of a trade-mark for any class of goods would give to that registrant a universal trade-mark for any article he might thereafter market. This Court has stated the objection to this doctrine in D. & H. Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311, 323:

> "No one can claim protection for the exclusive use of a trade-mark or trade-name which would practically give him a monopoly in the sale of any goods other than those produced or made by himself. If he could, the public would be injured rather than protected, for competition would be destroyed."

and this language was quoted with approval in Standard Paint Co. v. Trinidad Asphalt Co., 220 U. S. 446, 454. This would lead to the very conflict which this Court had before it in United Drug Co. v. Rectanus Company, 248 U. S. 90, where the same mark had come into use in different parts of the country, each party being ignorant of the use by the other. The Court said at page 27:

> "The asserted doctrine is based upon the fundamental error of supposing that a trade-mark right is a right in gross or at large, like a statutory copyright or a patent for an invention, to either of which, in truth, it has little or no analogy."

This court plainly intimated in that case that it would require legislation especially directed to that end to make the trade-mark protection run beyond the scope of the owner's present activity either territorially or in respect of class of product. The petitioner's contention here would permit the trade-mark protection to run beyond the scope of the present activity not only territorially but also into totally unrelated products.

Such a principle is entirely at variance with the nature of the property in a trade-mark. For the petitioner's doctrine would give property rights upon the mere adoption of a mark. But as this Court said in Hanover Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403, 413:

> "As was said in the same case (Trade Mark Cases, 100 U. S. 82, 94) the right grows out of use, not mere adoption."

And it would give property rights separate and independent from an existing business, whereas this Court said in the Hanover case at page 414:

> "In short, the trade-mark is treated as merely a protection for the good-will, and not the subject of property except in connection with an existing business."

And in United Drug Co. v. Rectanus Co., 248 U. S. 90, 97:

> "There is no such thing as property in a trade-mark except as a right appurtenant to an established business or trade in connection with which the mark is employed."

The rule of "same descriptive properties" preserves the essential character of the property in a trade mark and should not be set aside.

POINT II.

The petitioner properly was denied relief on the claim of unfair competition.

The argument heretofore has been confined to the question of technical trade-mark infringement and has been directed to establish that the petitioner was not entitled to relief on that ground because its goods and those of the respondents were not goods of the same descriptive properties. This Court has frequently observed, however, that trade-mark law is but a branch of the broader law of unfair competition. Hanover Star Milling Co. v. Metcalf, 240 U. S. 403, 413; United Drug Company v. Rectanus, 248 U. S. 90, 97; American Steel Foundries v. Robertson, 269 U. S. 372, 380.

The principles upon which equity will give relief on the ground of unfair competition, where technical trade-mark infringement is not established, have been settled by a long line of cases and may be illustrated by brief extracts from these decisions. Throughout them all it is to be noted that the fact essential to establish the right to relief is the palming off by the defendant of his goods in such a way as to deceive a purchaser into thinking that the goods in fact are the plaintiff's and that so long as the defendant acts honestly in the representation of his goods, the occasional confusion to customers resulting from casual or careless observation of the package or the name will not make out a case for equitable relief.

As pointed out in the Hanover and Rectanus Cases, these principles, controlling both infringement and unfair competition, have as their basis the fundamental fact that, unlike a patent or copyright, which is a right in gross or at large, a trademark right arises from use, not mere adoption, and exists only as a right appurtenant to a business in which it is being employed, from which it necessarily follows as repects both territory and products (which the court treated as identical for this purpose) the adoption of a trade mark does not protect the right by its projection, as respects either infringement or unfair competition, in advance of the extension of the trade. In brief, there is no trade mark property where there is no business on the trade mark, whether looked at from the standpoint of territory or of commodity, or, as frequently otherwise expressed, where there is no competition there can be no unfair competition.

This view of the law has received the sanction of the leading cases in England and this country* as well as of this

---

* Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Motor Co., App. Cas. 1907 L. R. 430, 437-8, House of Lords, 24 R. P. C. 572;
Scottish U. & N. Ins. Co. v. Scottish N. Ins. Co., 26 R. P. C. 105;
Hall v. Barrows (1863) 4 De G. J. & S. 150, 158;
Leather Cloth Co. v. American Leather Co. (1865) 11 H. L. Cas. 523;
Ainsworth v. Walmsley (1866), L. R. I. Eq. 518, 524;
Borthwick v. Evening Post (1888) L. R. 37 Ch. Div. 499;
Corning Glass Works v. Corning Cut Glass Co., 197 N. Y. 173;
Hub Dress Mfg. Co. v. Rothenberg, 237 Mass. 281;
National Picture Theatres v. Foundation Film Corp. (C. C. A. 2nd) 266 Fed. 208, 211;
Charles Broadway Rouss v. Winchester Co. (C. C. A. 2nd) 300 Fed. 706, 723;
Borden's Ice Cream Co. v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co. (C. C. A. 7th) 201 Fed. 510, 514;
Haller Baking Co. v. Ward Baking Co. (C. C. A. 3rd) 295 Fed. 683;
Basket Stores v. Allen, 99 Neb. 217, 155 N. W. Rep. 893;
Dubuque G. C. & S. v. St. Joseph's College (Iowa) 169 N. W. Rep. 405;
Nolan Bros. v. Nolan, 131 Cal. 271;
Va. Baking Co. v. Sou. Biscuit Works, 111 Va. 227;
Carroll v. Duluth Co. (C. C. A. 8th) 232 Fed 675, 681.

court in cases that we shall notice and is expressed in the phrase that there must be a palming off. Any injury done otherwise is not trade mark infringement or unfair competition but a common law tort to be established and dealt with under that category. (By way of illustration see Peninsular Co. v. Levinson and Walter v. Ashton hereinafter considered.)

In the early and leading case of Delaware & Hudson Canal Company v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311, the principle of unfair competition had been stated in the following language, at page 322:

> "This will be manifest when it is considered that in all cases where rights to the exclusive use of a trademark are invaded, it is invariably held that the essence of the wrong consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor as those of another; and that it is only when this false representation is directly or indirectly made that the party who appeals to a court of equity can have relief. This is the doctrine of all the authorities."

In Goodyear's India Rubber Glove Manufacturing Co. v. Goodyear Rubber Co., 128 U. S. 598, 604, the principle is again stated in the following language:

> "The case at bar cannot be sustained as one to restrain unfair trade. Relief in such cases is granted only where the defendant, by his marks, signs, labels, or in other ways, represents to the public that the goods sold by him are those manufactured or produced by the plaintiff, thus palming off his goods for those of a different manufacture, to the injury of the plaintiff. McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245; Sawyer v. Horn, 4 Hughes, 239; Perry v. Truefitt, 6 Beavan, 66; Croft v. Day, 7 Beavan, 84. There is no proof of any attempt of the defendant to represent the goods manufactured and sold by him as those manufactured and sold by the plaintiff; but, on the contrary, the record shows a persistent effort on its part to call the attention of the > public to its own manufactured goods, and the places where they are to be had, and that it had no connection with the plaintiff."

From the statement of facts already given and from further argument that will be made, it is evident that the present case comes squarely within the language of the last quoted sentence.

In Coats v. Merrick Thread Co., 149 U. S. 562, 566, the same fundamental principle was stated by Mr. Justice Brown as follows:

> "There can be no question of the soundness of the plaintiffs' proposition that, irrespective of the technical question of trade-mark, the defendants have no right to dress their goods up in such manner as to deceive an intending purchaser, and induce him to believe he is buying those of the plaintiffs."

In Elgin National Watch Co. v. Illinois Watch Co., 179 U. S. 665, Chief Justice Fuller repeated the language originally used by Mr. Justice Clifford in the Canal case, when he said at page 674:

> "The essence of the wrong consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor for those of another."

Again in the Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, 198 U. S. 118, at page 140, Chief Justice Fuller said:

> "The essence of the wrong in unfair competition consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor for those of another, and if defendant so conducts its business as not to palm off its goods as those of complainant, the action fails."

In the same case at page 136, appears the familiar sentence repeated in the opinion of the Court below, which says:

> It is dishonesty in the use that is condemned, whether in a partnership or corporate name, and not the use itself."

In 1911 in Standard Paint Co. v. Trinidad Asphalt Co., 220 U. S. 426, the subject again was reexamined and Mr. Justice McKenna said at page 461:

> "It is true that the manufacturer of particular goods is entitled to protection of the reputation they have acquired against unfair dealing, whether there be a technical trade-mark or not, but the essence of such a wrong consists in the sale of the goods of one manufacturer or vendor for those of another.* * * Such a wrong is not established against the Asphalt Company. It does not use the word 'ruberro' in such a way as to amount to a fraud on the public."

Both courts below, after careful examination of the evidence, found that the Respondent had not palmed off its goods as those of the Petitioner and that there had been no deception of the public. Undoubtedly the facts, for this is purely a question of fact, amply justified the finding under the authorities.

To begin with, as said by both courts below, the packages are so dissimilar that if the word "Beech-Nut" were removed from them there would be no point of similarity at all. Those of Respondent are the standard scrap and cigarette packages, recognized as such as far as they can be seen and in no wise like the packages of Petitioner. They plainly carry the name of Respondent, which is widely known in the tobacco business, and is not at all like the name of Petitioner. They also carry in plain lettering the name of the products contained in the packages which have already been discussed and found to be totally different from the products of Petitioner and to have been so classified under the Trade Mark Acts, by commercial custom, by all the courts and by every witness who has testified in the case. And the scrap tobacco package has as its dominating feature the "sunburst" effect, nothing like which has ever been used by Petitioner and which we have seen the Petitioner thought so effective that it suggested the use of this design on the cigarette packages in order that the public might be immediately apprised that the cigarettes were put out by the same concern that made the popular scrap tobacco.

When, therefore, we contemplate the complete dissimilarity in names, products, packages and businesses, we have not only a case in which the parties are not trade rivals, in which there is no competition at any point, but incompatible businesses carried on in a manner that this court must feel, as the lower courts decided, was an honest and successful endeavor by the Respondent to sell its goods on its own good reputation. Indeed, it is perfectly preposterous to assert that such a large and well known tobacco company as Respondent would seek to market a tobacco brand on the reputation of a packing establishment, a maker and vendor of food products.

The principle of Equity invoked by the petitioner requires proof of deceit by the vendor, not mistakes of purchasers, in order to establish a case. If this were not the law proprietors would be at the mercy of the careless and indifferent. This aspect of the rule was succinctly stated by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit in Allen B. Wrisley Co. v. Iowa Soap Co., 122 Fed. 796, as follows:

> "His competitor has no better right to a monopoly of the trade of the careless and indifferent than he has, and any rule of law which would insure it to either would foster a competition as unfair and unjust as that promoted by the sale of the goods of one manufacturer as those of another. One who so names and dresses his product that a purchaser who exercises ordinary care to ascertain the sources of its manufacture can readily learn that fact by a reasonable examination of the boxes or wrappers that cover it has fairly discharged his duty to the public and to his rivals and is guiltless of that deceit which is an indispensable element of unfair competition. Centaur Co. v. Marshall, 97 Fed. 785, 789; Coats v. Thread Co., 149 U. S. 564, 567; Kahn v. The Diamond Steel Co., 89 Fed. 706, 707; Manufacturing Co. v. Spear, 2 Sandf. 599, 606; Canal Co. v. Clark, 13 Wall. 311, 322; Gorham Co. v. White, 14 Wall. 511, 528; McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245, 255, 256; N. K. Fairbanks Co. v. R. W. Bell Mfg. Co., 77 Fed. 869, 876."

And in American Tobacco Co. v. Globe Tobacco Co., 193 Fed. 1015, 1018, relief was denied because the testimony in the record showed only that

> "Careless purchasers have probably been deceived, not that purchasers who took enough interest in their purchase to look at the packages before pocketing them were deceived."

In the same case the broad doctrine is thus stated (p. 1018):

> "The rule is settled that 'equity will not interfere where ordinary attention by the purchaser would enable him to discriminate' between the goods put out by the parties, and that one is not bound to prevent a purchase by a careless purchaser" (citing numerous cases).

Mr. Justice Brewer said in the leading case of P. Lorillard Co. v. Peper, 86 Fed. 956, 960, where both products were tobaccos:

> "We shall not stop to review the testimony which is offered upon the question whether the resemblances between the two packages and labels were calculated to mislead, or whether in fact they did operate to mislead. It is enough to say that there was testimony on both sides of these questions, and perhaps, looking at the matter of testimony alone, it might be difficult to say on which was the preponderance; but such testimony, giving it all the weight that it is entitled to, does not disturb the conclusions which we have reached from an inspection of the packages and labels themselves. We cannot surrender our own judgment in this matter because others may be of a different opinion, or be cause it happens, in isolated instances, that some purchaser was so careless as not to detect the differences. It may well be that, where many sales were made, some individuals, not particularly attentive, may have purchased the defendant's, supposing they were purchasing the plaintiff's package. Such things will happen in the ordinary course of business, no matter how great the differences; and the fact that they do happen, while it is not to be ignored, is not to outweigh the evidence which comes from a personal inspection of the packages and labels."

The courts below did not stop at inquiring as to unfair competition. They went further and inquired if by any "unfair and fraudulent means the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived."

The Circuit Court of Appeals said:

"We are aware, however, that equity may be invoked without market competition. Emphasis should be placed on the word 'unfair' rather than 'competition'. If by unfair and fraudulent means the plaintiff is injured and the public deceived, equity will enjoin, whether the injury comes through competition or in some other way. Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co., 247 F. 407, 159 C. C. A. 461, L. R. A. 1918C, 1039; Vogue Co. v. Thompson Hudson Co. (C. C. A.) 300 App. Div. 512. Within the principles announced in these cases, or in any other way, has the defendant injured the plaintiff in its property or reputation?

We are satisfied that it has not." (V, p. 2701.)

It will thus be seen that the courts below went beyond the questions of trade mark infringement and unfair competition into the domain of common law to inquire whether any common law tort had been committed. In so doing it subjected the conduct of Respondent to the very utmost that any law in any way could require and it rendered the verdict that it was satisfied that the Respondent had not offended.

In view of the foregoing it is idle for Petitioner's brief by a process of selective quotations to undertake to show this court that the courts below confined their inquiry in a way that prevented it from properly ascertaining and determining the true merits of the case. To do so in the light of the quotation we have just made from the opinion below is to set up a straw man for the purpose of overturning it.

Both courts below, after careful consideration of the evidence found that the respondent had not palmed off its goods as those of the petitioner and that there had been no deception of the public. On the contrary the evidence clearly shows that respondent's sales were made on the strength of the quality of its product, its genius in meeting the public taste, its effective advertising and marketing organization, and of the Lorillard reputation stretching back into three centuries; that there had been no deception of the public, but that in a few sporadic instances, individuals who had not examined the package nor read the advertising had temporarily thought that the respondent's tobacco was made by the petitioner; that such confusion, if it could so be termed, was due to a failure to look at the package or the label, which in turn was the result of a total lack of interest in the source of manufacture; that no injury had resulted to the petitioner as a result of such occasional confusion; that on the contrary during the period of the use by the respondent of the Beech-Nut name, the petitioner's business had doubled; that the efforts on the part of the petitioner to establish sales by agents of the respondent upon the representation that petitioner was the manufacturer of the goods had not been proven; and that circumstances which already have been referred to indicate strongly that this attempt on the part of the petitioner to prove its case was a deliberate effort to create spurious evidence.

It is clear that if as this court repeatedly has said: "The essence of the wrong consists in the sale of the goods by one manufacturer or vendor as the goods of another" the petitioner has not made a case and the courts below properly have denied relief.

POINT III.

The use of the word "Beech-Nut" by Petitioner in its corporate name gives it no right to complain of the use of that word in the tobacco trade.

This is true in this case because

(1) The word has not only been used for tobaccos by Respondent and its predecessors as set forth in the statement of the case, but it has also been used for tobaccos by others, such as C. E. Schutz and Broecker Tobacco Co. (IV, p. 2264, and VI, pp. 2977, 2980), and even as the name of a cigar concern, to wit, Beechnut Stogie Co. of Lancaster, Pa., which, it will be recalled, is the concern which the counsel for Petitioner suggested Lorillard seek to stop from using Beech-Nut for tobaccos because such counsel thought Lorillard in a much stronger legal position to do so than Petitioner (VI, p. 2909);

(2) When the word became a part of Petitioner's name it was being used, and for several years had been used, by Respondent's predecessor in title as a trade name for tobacco and therefore could not be exclusively appropriated (Abestone Co. v. The Philip Carey Mfg. Co., 41 App. D. C. 509; Howard Co. v. Baldwin Co., 48 App. D. C. 442);

(3) Respondent is not using the word as its corporate name but simply as a trade mark on a distinctive package plainly bearing the name of itself and its product, hence no question of similarity of names is involved here such as was presented recently to this court in the Simplex case (269 U. S. 372. See Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney & Co. (C. C.

A. 2d) 247 Fed. 407, 410-12, and Rosenberg Bros. v. Elliott (C. C. A. 3d) 7 F (2d) 962, 963.

It is also true because, to put the proposition concretely, the existence of Beech-Nut Packing Co. and its use of "Beech-Nut" for its food products will not prevent the formation of a Beech-Nut Tobacco Co. and its use of "Beech-Nut" for tobacco products (Simplex Case, 269 U. S. 372, 380). In such cases equity will enjoin only "where the business transacted was similar to or the same as that of the complaining party and where the name or style or description under which the business was done was so similar to that used by the complaining party as to mislead" (International Trust Co. v. International Loan & Trust Co., 153 Mass. 271, 279, citing Leather Cloth Co. v. American Cloth Co., 4 DeG. J. & S. 137, and Singer Mfg. Co. v. Loog, 8 App. Cas. 15).

Thus in Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Dunlop Motor Co., 24 R. P. C. 572, the House of Lords of England refused to restrain defendant from using "Dunlop" for tires where plaintiff had been using "Dunlop" for automobiles, because the court thought that "the objects of the two companies need not be identical in order to entitle the complainants to relief but there must be great similarity" and in that case they did not "think that the measure of similarity established is sufficient either in the names employed or in the objects of the trade sought to be carried on."

So in Corning Glass Works v. Corning Cut Glass Co., 197 N. Y. 173, where the respective products were common and cut glass, the court denied relief because "the evidence shows that the manufacture of cut glass is a distinct business in which the plaintiff has not been and was not engaged. Between the two concerns there has been no competition, no rivalry, because each produces a distinct class of ware."

So in Hub Dress Mfg. Co. v. Rothenberg, 237 Mass. 281, where the parties made clearly different kinds of women's dresses out of different materials, the court refused an injunction saying the business of the parties was not the same and they were not in fact competitors and that "there could be no unfair competition unless the plaintiff is in fact a rival for the trade which the defendants secure."

Other cases to the same effect are:

Borthwick v. The Evening Post (1888), L. R. 37 Ch. Div. 449 the House of Lords;

Scottish Union & National Insurance Co. v. Scottish National Insurance Co. Ld. (1908) 26 R. P. 105;

Farmers Loan & T. Co. v. Farmers Loan & T. Co. of Kansas, 1 N. Y. Supp. at p. 47;

Investor Pub. Co. v. Dobinson (C. C.) 82 Fed. 56, 61;

Elgin Watch Co. v. Loveland (C. C.) 132 Fed. 41, 51;

Vassar College v. Loose-Wiles Co. (C. C.) 197 Fed. 982;

Borden's Ice Cream Co. v. Borden (C. C. A. 7th) 201 Fed. 510, 512;

British-American Tob. Co. v. British Am. Cigar Stores Co. (C. C. A. 2nd) 211 Fed. 933, 935; Keystone Oil Co. v. Buzby (C. C. A. 7th) 219 Fed. 473, 476.

POINT IV.

There is no conflict of opinion between the Circuit Courts of Appeal: Alleged conflicting decisions of the Second, Third and Sixth Circuits and in England distinguished.

The cases relied upon by Petitioner as being in conflict with the decision in the instant case are the Aunt Jemima Case in the Second Circuit, the Overland and Rolls Royce Cases in the Third Circuit, the Peninsular and the Vogue Cases in the Sixth Circuit and the Kodak Case and Walter v. Ashton and some others in England.

The Aunt Jemima Case (C. C. A. 2d), 247 Fed. 407, merely held that the same mark could not be used by one concern for pancake flour and by another concern for pancake syrup because "syrup and flour are both food products and food products commonly used together" (p. 410). This holding was neither new nor extraordinary. It was a plain application of the principle of same "descriptive properties" to articles similar both by inherent likeness and associated use and had been anticipated many years by a similar holding as to coffee and cocoa (Walter Baker Co. v. Harrison, 32 App. D. C. 272). Surely there is nothing in this decision requiring a similar decision as to such unrelated products as foods and tobaccos. And that the Aunt Jemima Case is not in conflict with the decision in the instant case is further conclusively shown by the holding in the Winchester Case (C. C. A. 2d), 300 Fed. 776, that two different concerns might use the mark "Winchester" for shirts, in the Washburn-Crosby Case (C. C. A. 2d) 7 F (2d) 304, that the mark "Gold Medal" might be used by one concern for "straight" and by another concern for "prepared" flour, and the statement in the National Motion Picture Case (C. C. A. 2d), 266 Fed. 208, 211, that there must be a real present or prospective competition such as could not exist between an Ideal fountain pen and an Ideal hair brush, but did exist between a Keepclean toilet brush and a Staclean tooth brush.

In the Peninsular Case (C. C. A. 6th), 247 Fed. 658, the plaintiff had adopted as its general trade name the word "Penslar," printed in peculiar script with accompanying ornaments and had registered and used it for a line of drug store supplies, selling it so extensively that at the time of the suit the line included more than 175 articles selling to more than 3,500 drug stores, each of which stores had on its door or window the word "Penslar" in prominent lettering. But plaintiff had not registered or used the mark for cigars. Under these circumstances a partnership began attempting to sell cigars to these Penslar stores in a package bearing on it the word "Penslar" as a trade mark with the same peculiar script and ornamentations as used by the plaintiff, and in addition this partnership represented that it was selling these cigars to these stores as the agent of plaintiff. Under these circumstances the court held (1) that the difference in commodities between the cigars and the drug store supplies prevented any trade mark infringement; (2) that it was unnecessary to enter into a discussion of the question whether relief could be afforded on the ground of unfair competition, because (3) the court deemed these partners impostors seeking to sell their goods by falsely representating them to be the goods of the plaintiff, thereby practicing a common law fraud. This process of reasoning is plainly stated in the opinion of the court and as a consequence the relief granted did not prohibit this partnership from using the mark "Penslar" for cigars, but simply from using it in a manner, namely, with the peculiar script and decoration and accompanied by the false representations, which led these drug stores to believe that the cigars were really put out by the plaintiff. The court said:

> "We know of no principle which will forbid malicious destruction of this kind to a competitor and permit it to a stranger; indeed, it was assumed by all parties in the court below and in this court—and we do not doubt—that malicious damage by defendants to the good will of plaintiffs' business and to the good reputation of the plaintiffs' line of goods would be redressed by the law and would call for an injunction where the remedy at law was not adequate." (p. 661.)

Undoubtedly, therefore, the Peninsular Case is not one of either trade mark infringement or unfair competition within the accepted meaning of those terms, but of common law fraud proceding on common law principles to prevent the malicious destruction of property by an impostor, a set of facts entirely absent in this case.

In the Vogue Case (C. C. A. 6th), 300 Fed. 509, re-hearing 6 F (2d) 875, plaintiff since 1892 had published a magazine called "Vogue" with a "V" of large size and carrying in its prongs the figure of a woman, which device had come to be known as the "V-Girl." From the beginning this magazine had assumed to be an interpreter of and authority upon styles in women's wear, devoting a considerable share of its efforts to millinery, so that there was no doubt that "prior to 1912 the magazine had become the country over one of the dominating factors in the creation and promotion of styles" in millinery. In 1912 the Vogue Hat Co. began marketing anonymously hats for women having the word "Vogue" on the band across the interior of the crown with a large "V" which carried between its prongs the bust of a woman wearing a straw hat, a device the court regarded as so similar to the "V-Girl" that it said: "The defendant's appropriation of plaintiff's dress is not to be disputed." It was also proved that this had created a very common alternative impression "first that these hats were manufactured by the plaintiff, or, second, * * * that these hats were in some way vouched for or sponsored or approved by the plaintiff."

The crux of the Vogue Case, of course, was the intimate relation of the products, which is entirely absent in the case at bar and would not have existed in the Vogue Case had the magazine been a tobacco journal. Styles and patterns for ladies' hats having for years been sold through the pages of this magazine, the public naturally thought that ladies' hats bearing merely the deceptive imitation of the magazine's name were at least sponsored or approved by plaintiff. The court said: "Such an impression is obviously one that would be unavoidable" and made the situation "pregnant with peril to plaintiff." It therefore granted an injunction. But in the case at bar the complete difference of products and of packages, the latter bearing the different names of the manufacturers, supported by the universal trade custom, made such an impression unnatural and the result of such careless indifference that, as held in Coats v. Merrick Thread Mfg. Co., 149 U. S. 562, the public was charged with notice that the word "Beech-Nut" could be used by different concerns as a mark for food and tobacco products.

The Rolls-Royce and Overland Cases (4 F. (2d) 333 and 273 Fed. 674) were prior decisions of the same court that decided the instant case, and were regarded by that court, and they undoubtedly are, as in complete harmony with the decision in the instant case. Neither was a trade mark case; they were name cases, and characterized as such in the Rosenberg Case (7 F. (2d) 962, 963) where the court said that they are not > "on the law of trade mark infringement at all for each was tried and decided on the single issue of unfair competition and then not unfair competition in the sale of goods but in the unfair appropriation and use of a competitor's trade name * * * Such an act is not an infringement of a trade mark but is a trespass of the same nature as is committed by one who applies another man's name to his own goods."

The question in the Overland Case was whether two different concerns could use "Overland" in its trade name, one for automobiles and the other for automobile tires. And the court held they could not because the products were too closely associated, saying:

> "* * * in exact terms the two do not compete in these particular things, yet the fact remains that the business of both is so connected with automobiles that the public" etc. (p. 676).
>
> "It will thus be seen that the business of both companies, because they both concerned some phase of automobile activity, were interrelated" (p. 676).
>
> "Such being the fact, it follows that both the English and American authorities justify the court below in its action, for in fact there was substantial and material competition between these parties" (p. 677).

The question in the Rolls-Royce case was whether two different concerns could use the word "Rolls-Royce" in their trade names, one for radio tubes and the other for automobiles and aeroplanes. And the court held they could not because the products in their component parts were too closely associated, saying:

> "It is true those companies made automobiles and aeroplanes and Wall sold radio tubes and no one could think when he bought a radio tube he was buying an automobile or an aeroplane. But that is not the test and gist of this case. Electricity is one of the vital elements in automobile and aeroplane construction and having built up a trade name and fame in two articles of which electrical appliances were all important factors, what would more naturally come to the mind of a man with a radio tube in his receiving set on which was the name Rolls-Royce, with nothing else to indicate its origin, than for him to suppose that the Rolls-Royce Company had extended its high grade of electric product to the new, electric-using radio art as well."

In Walter v. Ashton, L. R. (1902) 2 Ch.D. 282, plaintiff, the proprietor of the newspaper "The Times", had been in the habit of selling literary productions, such as "Encyclopedia Britannica" and "Century Dictionary" on monthly installments, announcing such sales by circulars typewritten on thin paper headed "The Times" in Old English letters, signed "Yours faithfully, The Manager" and enclosing for reply a pale green envelope addressed "The Manager, The Times, Printing House Square." Defendant advertised in the Daily Mail "The Times Cycle". "The only Bicycle that can be obtained on the Times System of monthly payments, forwarded on approval for 5s, all communications must be addressed to the manager." Circulars were also sent out by defendant, typewritten on thin paper headed "Times Cycles" in Old English, signed "Yours faithfully, The Manager" and enclosing a pale green reply envelope addressed "Times—Royal Arms—Cycles, The Times Cycle Department, 59-60

Chancery Lane"—"Times" and "Cycle" being in Old English. Neither the circular nor the advertisements gave the name of the defendant or told who the manager was or represented. On the windows of the office in Chancery Lane were "The Times" in Old English and beneath it "Cycles" in other type; outside the office was a man in livery with "Times" on his cap. And a clock with the hands pointing to five minutes past six, as in "The Times" newspaper, was stamped or painted in gold on most of the cycles.

Here again the common, not trademark, law was the basis of relief. The Court stated that it was common for a cycle and a newspaper to have the same name and so defendant had a right to call his cycles "The Times Cycles", to adopt the mark of a clock with hands pointing similarly to those of "The Times" and to advertise that payment would be according to "The Times System". But it restrained him from offering his goods in the anonymous manner above set out because he was an impostor falsely "holding out" to the public "The Times" as proprietor or partner in a way that, unless discontinued, would bring financial liability on it. It said:

> "It is not part of the general business of a newspaper to carry on a cycle business and this is not a question arising between rivals in trade." * * * "The case has to be considered apart from those cases turning on trade competition, infringement of rights, trade names, trade marks, or the ordinary passing off equity."
>
> "The real question I have to consider is whether by what he has done he has in fact held out the proprietors of The Times as either being principals or responsibly connected with him or partners with him in the sale of these cycles. I have come to the conclusion that he has; and I have further come to the conclusion that there is * * * a reasonable probability of The Times being exposed to litigation and possibly of being made responsible had they not taken the steps to disconnect their name from the advertisements and circulars issued by defendant."

In Eastman Co. v. Kodak Co., 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 105, the complainant for some years had made a specialty of cameras suitable for bicyclists and the appliances for affixing same to bicycles and had largely advertised these cameras as "Cycle Kodaks" or "Bicycle Kodaks". It also had a considerable trade in accessories for adapting bicycles to photographic purposes and had had a stall at a large bicycle show. The John Griffiths Cycle Company Ltd. had for some time been selling bicycles under the name "Dunlop" and "Aerial", when

> "it suddenly, and so far as appears for no reason * * * adopted the word 'Kodak' as applied to its cycles and applied to have registered and obtained the registration of the word 'Kodak' * * * upon a statement which was clearly inaccurate * * * that the word 'Kodak' had never been used in any way in connection with cycles and that plaintiff company had never had any dealings in or conection with the cycle trade. The defendant company was not content with merely registering the trademark * * * it incorporated its co-defendant under the name of 'The Kodak Cycle Company, Ltd.', clearly a mere creature of its own with a nominal capital of £100."

On the facts an injunction was granted, the Court saying:

> *"the evidence shows that as between the two trades, the bicycle trade and the camera trade, there is an intimate connection" so great "that in all probability * * * the plaintiff company may wish hereafter to manufacture and to sell cycles specially adapted to carry their kodaks."*

The writ of certiorari was improvidently granted in so far as based upon an alleged conflict with these decisions of the Circuit Courts of Appeal.

These cases have been discussed because it was upon the alleged conflict existing between them and the case at bar that the writ of certiorari was prayed. In view of the sharp differences in the facts of each of them and of the entire harmony between the principles they announce and the decision in the instant case, as shown by a consideration of those cases, it is clear that the alleged conflict does not exist, and if the writ of certiorari was granted on this ground it was improvidently awarded.

Southern Power Co. v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 263 U. S. 509;
Layne & Bowler Corp. v. Western Well Works, 261 U. S. 387, 393;
Houston Oil Co. v. Goodrich, 245 U. S. 440.

In so far as these cases were based on the connection between the respective products, such as the syrup and flour in the Aunt Jemima Case, the millinery magazine and ladies hats in the Vogue Case, the electrical component parts in the Rolls-Royce Case, the bicycles and kodaks for bicycles in the Kodak Case, and the automobiles and tires in the Overland Case, both lower courts on an examination of all the facts held that there was no such connection between the products in this case so as to bring this case within the doctrine of "same descriptive properties"—a question of fact purely—from the nature of the products and the commercial customs and authoritative data concerning them. In so far as those cases involved unfair competition, in whatever sense that term may be used, whether in the sense of trade mark law or as covering a common law tort, such as illustrated by Peninsular v. Levinson and Walter v. Ashton, where the defendants were impostors, seeking to perpetrate a deliberate fraud, the courts below subjected the Respondent to that test, inquiring, as we have seen, whether "by unfair competition or in any other way" the Respondent "by unfair and fraudulent conduct" had injured the Petitioner in its business or reputation. This again was purely a question of fact and the courts unhesitatingly answered that they were satisfied the Respondent had not offended in any of these respects.

POINT V.

Petitioner is barred by laches, acquiescence and estoppel from obtaining any relief herein.

The facts heretofore stated and now briefly to be summarized, disclose such delay on the part of the petitioner in bringing this suit and such entire acquiescence in and encouragement of the respondent's conduct herein complained of as completely to bar any right to relief herein. Neither of the courts below discussed this question in detail, placing their decision on other grounds, although the District Court referred to the respondent's contention in its opinion (V, p. 2665).

The respondent commenced its preparation for the manufacture and sale of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco in the autumn of 1914, and by the early part of 1915 had underway a vigorous advertising and sales campaign which resulted in the sale during that year of 7,364,214 pounds under the Beech-Nut mark (VI, p. 2968).

The petitioner first stated its objections to the use of the word "Beech-Nut" in a letter dated June 11, 1915 (VI, p. 2888) and a correspondence ensued which terminated in a very full letter dated September 15, 1915, from the respondent to the petitioner setting forth in detail a history of the respondent's ownership of the name Beech-Nut and stating the legal grounds on which it believed itself justified in continuing the use of that name on tobacco (VI, p. 2897). The respondent was at pains in this letter to give in minute detail the history of the use of Beech Nut on tobacco products. None of these statements has been challenged by the petitioner.

The contention made here (Brief, p. 256) that the statement in this letter that the Lorillard Company and its predecessor had continuously used the Weissinger Beech Nut mark since 1898 was untrue and misleading is a litigant's afterthought. The contention rests entirely on the unsupported assertion of counsel for Petitioner. Although Petitioner's officers were present in court at the trial, no evidence was offered to support the assertion. On the contrary, when the deposition of Petitioner's vice-president, Mr. Barbour, was taken in this suit, in answer to the express question, he gave the War as the reason for the delay in bringing the suit, making no mention whatever of the alleged misrepresentation (I, pp. 797-8). Proof positive that Petitioner was not misled is the fact that he attempted to register "Beech-Nut for cigarettes, as we do not see how he could possibly under the authorities hope to register "Beech-Nut" for cigarettes if the facts prevented him from proceeding with this suit (See Ex Parte Penn Tobacco Co., 144 O. G. 275, and American Tobacco Co. v. Polacsek, 170 Fed. 117, holding that use of a mark for one tobacco product gives title thereto for all.)

This letter was acknowledged by the petitioner on September 20, 1915 (VI, p. 2901) in a letter in which it said:

> "Your letter is a very interesting one and before giving a definite reply to same, we desire to review the matter as presented by you so that we can give you an intelligent reply."

No further correspondence or other action took place for four years. During this time the respondent's sales grew from the 7,000,000 pound figure for 1915 to 27,602,606 pounds for 1919 (VI, p. 2970). The 1919 business amounted to retail sales of a value of $14,650,865.63. This was nearly twice the money value of the entire volume of petitioner's business, which in 1919 amounted to $8,979,586.35, a growth from 1915 of $3,265,640.96, notwithstanding the fact that during that period the gum business of the petitioner, which is about 50% of its business, had been seriously curtailed owing to the difficulty of obtaining chicle during the war years (I, pp. 868-870).

In the spring of 1919, the respondent commenced preparation for manufacturing and offering to the public Beech-

Nut cigarettes, although it did not get into actual marketing operations until 1921 (V, pp. 2593, 2598). Its attention had been called in June, 1919, to the fact that the petitioner had ordered a small consignment of cigarettes from the American Tobacco Company and had made shipments to two jobbers in the locality of New York, supra, page 11.

On June 28, 1919, the respondent wrote the petitioner reminding it of the correspondence of four years earlier and insisting that the petitioner respect the respondent's right to the name Beech-Nut for tobacco products (VI, p. 2902). An interview ensued in which the petitioner protested against the proposed form of label which the respondent was then preparing for its cigarettes and as a result of which the respondent changed the slogan of the label to meet the petitioner's wishes. This was confirmed in a letter dated July 15, 1919, from the respondent to the petitioner (VI, p. 2907). A reply to this letter was written August 7, 1919, in which the petitioner said in respect of the proposed cigarette package of the respondent:

> "In view of the splendid success of your Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, would it not be worth while to simulate your Beech-Nut scrap tobacco package in a wrapping for your ciragettes; in other words, use for your cigarettes a form of label which will immediately apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company making the popular Beech-Nut tobacco, and tie up the advantage and publicity you had already gained through the merchandising of that product. Our thought in regard to the above is prompted by the procedure of the Patterson Co. in connection with their Lucky Strike Smoking Tobacco and Lucky Strike Cigarettes (VI, p. 2912).

The respondent replied to this suggestion on August 27, 1919, in which it pointed out that the Sun-Burst scrap tobacco design was not suitable for the cigarette package (VI, p. 2915).

It had been the respondent's belief as a result of these interviews and letters that the petitioner's abortive cigarette venture would be dropped, but in September, 1919, it observed a formal notice in the Official Gazette of the Patent Office that the petitioner had applied for the registration of Beech-Nut Cigarettes. Accordingly it wrote the petitioner on September 17, 1919 (VI, p. 2917) that it would be compelled to file a formal opposition opposing this registration.

On October 8, 1919, the petitioner replied that it proposed to press its application and charged that the respondent by adopting an oval trade-mark and a solid red color scheme for its cigarette package was adopting trade-mark property of the petitioner. No intimation was made, however, that the scrap tobacco package was objectionable and respondent's rights in the name Beech-Nut for that package were recognized and conceded (VI, p. 2920). The respondent replied to this on October 15, 1919 (VI, p. 2922) insisting that its ownership of Beech-Nut for tobacco products entitled it to proceed with the cigarette package, employing the wrapper appearing in the record at page 2708 of Vol. VI. The opposition of the respondent to the registration application of the petitioner was sustained by the Patent Examiner and on appeal this ruling was affirmed by the Assistant Commissioner of Patents (VI, pp. 2821-2833). No further appeal was taken.

This summary of the facts shows that in respect of the scrap tobacco package issue was clearly joined between the petitioner and the respondent and the legal principles stated in the respondent's letter of September 15, 1915. Thereafter no objection of any character whatsoever was made to the use of the Beech-Nut on scrap tobacco. The 1919 correspondence related only to cigarettes, the sale of which long since has disappeared from the market. It was six years after the September 15, 1915, letter before the bill of complaint was filed on June 17, 1921. During this period, without protest on the part of the petitioner, respondent's business grew to the enormous volume already stated. By 1922, out of a total business throughout the country of 60,000,000 pounds of scrap tobacco the respondent was selling 30,000,000 pounds under its Beech-Nut Brand (V, p. 2635). By 1921 it had expended on Beech-Nut scrap tobacco alone $61,691,954.61 (V, p. 2570). While this enormous business was being built up, the petitioner made no protest whatsoever. Indeed its own business was growing enormously during this period, reaching a total of $12,109,573.68 for all its products in the year 1921 (I, p. 868).

In 1921, it asked a court of equity to kill this enormously valuable business by enjoining the use of the Beech-Nut name for scrap tobacco and to require the respondent to pay over to it all the profits which had been made during these six years, notwithstanding the fact that it had silently watched the respondent push its brand until it outsold all the petitioner's products combined; notwithstanding the fact that during this period it referred any misdirected orders which came to it in the mails to the respondent (I, pp. 794, 795); notwithstanding the fact that from time to time it replied to letters received from the trade informing its correspondent that respondent was the maker of Beech-Nut tobacco; notwithstanding the fact that in its last letter of October 8th, 1919, it clearly admitted that the respondent had already acquired rights in the name of Beech-Nut for the scrap tobacco (Appendix B, p. 136), notwithstanding the fact that in its letter of August 7, 1919, it encouraged the respondent to apply the Beech-Nut scrap wrapper to the cigarette package in order to tie up "the advantage and publicity you have already gained through the merchandising" of the scrap tobacco product (Appendix B, p. 128).

It needs no citation of authority to show that under circumstances such as these the plaintiff is not entitled to relief at the hands of a court of equity. In United Drug Co. v. Rectanus, 248 U. S. 90, 102, this court said that the cases holding that laches and acquiescence will not ordinarily bar injunctive relief find their "appropriate application in cases of conscious infringement or fraudulent imitation" and so they are not applicable here where Respondent was proceeding under a bona fide claim of right which has been sustained by both of the lower courts.

The principle involved was forcibly stated by the late Judge Mayer in Valvoline Oil Co. v. Havoline Oil Co., 211 Fed. 189, as follows:

> "But it cannot be equitable for a well-informer merchant with a knowledge of a claimed invasion of right to wait to see how successful his competitor will be and then destroy, with the aid of a court decree, much that the competitor has striven for and accomplished--especially in a case where the most that can be said is that the trade-mark infringement is a genuinely debatably question."

Likewise squarely in point is Pflugh v. Eagle White Lead Company, 185 Fed. 769, 772, in which the Third Circuit Court of Appeals said:

> "We are not unmindful of Menendez v. Holt, 128 U. S. 524, 9 Sup. Ct. 143, 32 L. Ed. 526, and other cases cited in the opinion below, that mere failure to enforce trade-mark rights will not preclude injunctive relief when it is sought. But those were cases where, as said in Menendez v. Holt, supra, there was nothing 'in the nature of an estoppel, nothing which rendered it inequitable to arrest at this stage any further invasion of complainant's rights.' In this case there is. The complainant notified the respondents of its alleged rights; the respondents positively asserted their adverse rights; the complainant acquiesced in the respondents building up their trade under their label for 8 years without further objection; then complainant notified again and again, but respondents stood their ground and continued for 6 years more to build up their adverse trade-mark rights before the complainant again broke its silence by asserting an exclusive right by filing this bill.

Under such facts it would, in our judgment, be inequitable to arrest at this stage the respondents' trade, and therefore the decree of the court below must be reversed with costs.

The case of Carroll v. McIlvaine (C. C. A.), 183 Fed. 22, decided since the preparation of this opinion, is in line with the conclusion above stated."

In accord are:

Window Glass Company v. Pittsburg Co., 284 Fed. 685 (3rd C. C. A.);

Old Lexington Club Co. v. Kentucky Company, 234 Fed. 464, 468;

Col. W. F. Cody Co. v. Colonial Co., 284 Fed. 873;

Carroll v. McIlvaine, 183 Fed. 22.

POINT VI.

Petitioner has failed to establish any damage and is entitled neither to an injunction nor to an accounting.

The testimony in this case heretofore summarized shows that the only members of the public who received the impression that respondent's products were an addition to the petitioner's line, were careless observers who did not examine the articles they were purchasing or who did not read the advertising matter describing the respondent's product. The respondent is not obliged at its peril so to dress its article or so to word its advertising as to prevent the possibility of confusion in the minds of the careless public. It has discharged its duty so far as the petitioner is concerned when it has brought home to the ordinarily attentive purchaser the true source of the articles manufactured. The petitioner therefore has failed in this record to establish such confusion on the part of the public as to entitle it to an injunction in a court of equity.

Furthermore, such confusion as did exist in the minds of the public was not shown to have resulted in injury to the petitioner's business nor did it imperil petitioner's reputation.

The argument has been made in both courts below that the respondent's scrap tobacco is a cheap and inferior product and that the respondent's cigarettes were of an inferior quality and that the public so believed and that therefore the petitioner's reputation for putting out a line of food products of the highest quality has been impaired.

The substantial element in the case, of course, is the scrap tobacco, now selling at the rate of about thirty million pounds per year. This alone should be sufficient answer to the contention that the article is inferior. It is enough that the public likes it, that it now forms approximately 50% of the annual country-wide business in this article, and that it has grown to this enormous volume in the short space of about ten years. Nor is any discussion appropriate here as to the relative dignity and integral merit of a 10¢ package of scrap tobacco and a 5¢ package of chewing gum or bar candy.

The testimony showed that the respondent's Beech-Nut tobacco was formulated after an extensive study on the part of respondent's experts as to the tastes of the consuming public and the possibilities of blending various kinds of tobacco. These experiments were highly successful, resulted in the production of an unusually sweet blend, with a consequent wide-spread public approbation. In these facts there is clearly no evidence of inferiority of product likely to result in injury to the petitioner. Indeed, the argument might just as well be made, if it were pertinent here, that respondent's product now selling in twice the volume of all of petitioner's food products combined, has by its good reputation enhanced the reputation which petitioner has established.

So far as the cigarette package is concerned, the facts heretofore stated have shown that when this cigarette was put on the market in 1921 and sold at the rate of 20 for 15¢, it was designed to compete with the better known medium priced cigarettes, especially Lucky Strikes, Sweet Caporals and Camels, which were then selling for 20 for 20¢. The respondent endeavored to present to the public a cigarette equal in quality to those well-known brands but more attractive in price. Unfortunately the time was not an appropriate one, a bitter cigarette price war ensued and the better known brands were soon selling for 15¢ and occasionally as low as two packages for a quarter. Although for a time good progress was made, respondent's Beech-Nut cigarettes were not able to stand the competition of the older and more widely known varieties, sales fell off and in a short time the cigarette business was negligible. It must be apparent that this was due to two causes; first, the impossibility of competing in a price war with brands as well-known as those of the respondent's competitors; and, second, to the failure on the part of those responsible for preparing the recipe used in the manufacturing of Beech-Nut cigarettes correctly to guess the taste of the consuming public. Obviously, varieties and taste and preferment resulting therefrom are never an index to inferior or superior quality where a product like tobacco is concerned. Varieties of cigarettes come and go, and even the most successful disappear from time to time for reasons which are wholly unexplainable except because of a change in the taste of the consumers. This has happened repeatedly although there has been no change whatever in the formula used.

The petitioner endeavored to establish the inferiority of Beech-Nut cigarettes by presenting witnesses who testified that they were disappointed because a cigarette so widely advertized did not equal in quality Pall Malls or Philip Morrises. These are well-known brands made from pure Turkish tobacco and selling at 10 or 15 for 25¢. Obviously they were not in the same competitive field as Beech-Nut, Lucky Strikes, Fatimas and other well-known middle priced varieties.

The essential element necessary to entitle the petitioner to an injunction, namely, the danger to the petitioner's reputation due to the inferior quality of the respondent's product was not made out and no injury from this source possibly could have resulted to the petitioner.

Furthermore, the evidence as to the petitioner's growth of business appearing at page 868 of Vol. I of the Record shows a steady growth which was maintained as steadily after the respondent came into the field with its scrap tobacco as had been the case before.

This Court has pointed out that where danger to reputation exists acquiescence of long standing on the part of the injured party will bar it from the right to an accounting for profits.

McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S. 245, 258.

If this Court should hold, notwithstanding the finding of both courts below, and the overwhelming weight of the testimony that confusion does exist in the public mind, that the petitioner's good reputation is in peril by reason of such confusion, and that the laches of which the petitioner has been guilty are not such as to deprive it of its right to an injunction, nevertheless the delay in asserting its rights and the acquiescence which it has manifested in the enormous growth of the respondent's business will prevent it from obtaining an accounting for profits as sought by the bill. This contention need not be elaborated. The facts already have been stated which show that from the termination of the correspondence in 1915, at which time the issue was clearly drawn between the parties to the suit, nothing was done by way of protest by the petitioner in respect of the scrap tobacco until this bill was filed in 1921, and that it was during this period that the respondent's business grew from nothing to thirty million pounds a year. A plaintiff in equity, who has stood by and watched enormous profits accumulate in this manner is not entitled at the end of so long a time to ask a court of equity to compel the defendant to transfer those profits to it.

It is also well settled that where actual damage can be shown, and where acquiescence sufficient to bar a recovery of profits has not been made out, nevertheless where it is impossible as a practical matter to allocate the profits between that part of the infringer's business which is directly attributable to the use of the trade-mark owner's rights and good-will in contra-distinction to that part of the profits attributable to the infringer's own good reputation, no accounting will be decreed.

> Rushmore v. Badger Bros. Manufacturing Co., 198 Fed. 379, 381;
> Ludington v. Leonard, 127 Fed. 155.

Giving the petitioner's case its most favorable aspect, it would be impossible to determine what profits the respondent has made which are attributable to its own good name, sales force, advertising efforts and essential quality of its product, and those which are attributable to the alleged periodical use of the petitioner's mark and good-will. Under such circumstances even if an injunction be authorized, no accounting would be decreed.

Furthermore, no basis for claiming profits in an accounting is made out unless the plaintiff shows that it has lost the sales out of which the profits it seeks to recoup were made.

Even in the case of Vogue Co. v. Thompson (C. C. A. 6th) 300 Fed. 509, notwithstanding the Court granted an injunction because of the deliberate fraud attempted on the basis of the intimate connection between the millinery magazine and the ladies hats, making the latter sell on the reputation of the former, it refused to award damages or an accounting of profits because it found

> "no satisfactory basis for an accounting against either the manufacturer or the retailer for profits or damages. The case is peculiarly one where such damage as has > occurred, like that which is still in prospect, is incapable of computation * * * Those cases in which plaintiff in such a suit has been awarded all the profits which defendant received from the sale of the articles wrongfully trade-marked, have been cases in which by the theory of the law, the plaintiff had lost the sales" (pp. 512-3).

And this holding was followed in Rosenberg Bros. v. Elliott (C. C. A. 3rd) 7 F (2d) 962, 967, where the respective products were men's hats and suits.

There has been a complete failure on the part of the petitioner to establish any damage as a result of the acts of the respondent charged in the bill. As has been mentioned, petitioner's business has grown enormously. After combing the country for two years for witnesses, the petitioner was able to muster a very few biased anti-tobaccoists who testified that they would not have anything to do with the petitioner's hams and bacons if the petitioner entered the tobacco field, and that they had refused to buy petitioner's products while they had been under the mistaken impression that the scrap tobacco was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company. But on cross-examination each of these witnesses conceded that his impression had been based upon a failure carefully to examine the respondent's package or its advertising, that had such examination been made no confusion would have resulted, and no prejudiced attitude toward the petitioner would have followed. Here again the legal doctrine becomes important that the respondent need not so operate as to protect the petitioner against possible confusion in the minds of careless purchasers. The petitioner has not shown by any testimony an actual falling off of sales in any part of the United States and its evidence of alleged damage consists wholly in the testimony of these inattentive purchasers. No actual damage from this source has been shown.

In summary, the petitioner has failed to show any possibility of danger to its reputation through the alleged inferiority of respondent's product, any actual damage to itself resulting from the respondent's use of the Beech-Nut name, and it has by its inequitable acquiescence deprived itself of any right to claim profits from the respondent's operation.

POINT VII.

There was no abandonment by the respondent of the Beech-Nut Mark.

The petitioner has argued that the record discloses an abandonment by the respondent of its right in the Beech-Nut trade mark which prevented it from introducing the present type of label and package, first designed in 1914 and actually offered to the market in early 1915. The District Court found that there was no abandonment; the Circuit Court of Appeals did not consider the question. The respondent contends that there was no abandonment, and that even if there were, the field was still open in 1914-1915 to the respondent to adopt the Beech-Nut name for its tobacco products.

It is thoroughly well settled that abandonment does not occur unless an actual intent to abandon is established; that the burden of proving such intent is upon the party who affirms it; that such proof must be of the strongest character in view of the fact that abandonment is a forfeiture of property, which equity will be loath to recognize; and that mere non-user is not sufficient without proof of intent.

This was very clearly stated and illustrated in the leading English case of Mouson & Co. v. Boehm, L. R. 26 Ch. D. 398, where the Court said:

> "Now on the question of abandonment, it appears to me that intention to abandon must be shown. There are some analogous cases in law such as the case of an easement. Mere non-user of an easement, like a right to foul a stream, would not be sufficient to prove an intention to abandon."

The doctrine of this English decision has been adopted by this Court as the law on this subject.

In Saxlehner v. Eisner, 179 U. S. 19, 31, this Court said:

> "To establish the defense of abandonment it is necessary to show not only acts indicating a practical abandonment but an actual intent to abandon. Acts which unexplained would be sufficient to establish an abandonment may be answered by showing that there never was an intention to give up and relinquish the right claimed." Citing with approval, Mouson & Co. v. Boehm, supra.

And in Baglin v. Cusenier Co., 221 U. S. 580, 597-8, this Court repeated:

> "But the loss of the right of property in trade marks upon the ground of abandonment is not to be viewed as a penalty either for non-user or for the creation and use of new devices. There must be found an intent to abandon or the property is not lost." (Court's italics.)

The same rule is stated in Brown on Trademarks, Section 681 and in Hopkins on Trademarks (Third edition) p. 213. In each of these texts emphasis is laid upon the fact that the owner of a trademark may lay aside his mark temporarily and resume it thereafter without losing his property right and any lapse of time during which no actual use has occurred will be viewed as a mere temporary suspension of use unless an actual intent to abandon is clearly proved. Hopkins refers to cases in which defendants have been restrained from using marks that have been in disuse for periods ranging from one year to twenty years, and in each case the vital question is whether the owner of the mark intended to abandon it.

A decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, Burt v. Tucker, 178 Mass. 493, is strong authority for the foregoing contention that non-user without any intent to abandon does not destroy one's property right in a trademark. In that case the manufacturer had used "Knickerbocker" in connection with "school" as a trademark for shoes made by him in Massachusetts. His factory burned down, and thereafter for four years he was out of business for himself, in the employ of others as a salesman in other states and did not use the trademark at all. Then he again began business for himself in Philadelphia under the title "Knickerbocker Shoe Co.," using the trademark "Knickerbocker" on his packages with a label similar to, but not identical with, the one he had formerly used. He testified that he had never intended to abandon and had resumed at the first opportunity. The Court (Mr. Justice Holmes writing the opinion) held that the trial judge was warranted in finding that the manufacturer had made "Knickerbocker" a trademark, that he had not abandoned it, and that his present use was within the scope of the original acquisition.

In the present case the record clearly establishes that actual sales of scrap tobacco under the Beech-Nut mark were made in each of the years 1897 to 1910. During the years 1911-1914 the respondent stood equipped in all respects and ready and willing to fill any orders received (IV, pp. 2259, 2305; V, p. 2636). The sale of 25 pounds in 1910, a transaction wholly without profit stands as conspicuous proof of the respondent's intention to fill all orders received.

The mark was included by name in the list of brands delivered to the respondents in December, 1911, as a part of its assets under the decree of the Federal Court pursuant to the American Tobacco Company's dissolution (VI, p. 2945). In this circumstance, there is very clear evidence of no intention to abandon.

In the years 1912-1913 the mark lay dormant in the list in the respondent's file, but during those years this list was kept available for occasional reference and was used from time to time to supply names for new blends which the respondent proposed to introduce. It was at all times regarded as a list of marks from which selections might be made. All of the names in that list were regarded as property of the respondent which it might see fit to use at any time.

In 1914 preparations were commenced for introducing the new blend of sweet scrap tobacco which came on the market a year later as "Beech-Nut." The actual work in 1914 consisted of revamping the package, preparing the Sun-Burst design, and selecting the Beech-Nut name from the list in the respondent's files. Early in 1915 actual efforts were commenced to introduce the product to the market.

It is too clear for argument on this record that not only is there complete lack of evidence of any intent to abandon, but that, on the contrary, the respondent's conduct discloses an affirmative intention to retain the brand, and an early expression of that intention in its selection in 1914 of the name from the list in its possession. In only two years, 1912, 1913, was there lacking some positive, definite, overt act giving expression to this affirmative intention. It follows that the District Court was right in finding "that in the Fall of 1914 there had been no abandonment of 'Beechnut' on the part of the defendant" (V, p. 2672).

The fact that there was a change in the blend of tobacco at the time Beech-Nut was resumed in 1915 is not evidence of abandonment. Indeed, the alteration of the blend to meet the changed taste of the consumer, coupled with the use of the old mark, indicates a clear intention to preserve the old mark, and is stronger evidence of such intention than would be the case if the tobacco recipe had not been changed. The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia has said in Royal Milling Co. v. J. F. Imbs Milling Co., 44 App. D. C. 207:

> "The trade mark is not to be vitiated by change in the species of wheat used any more than it would be vitiated by an important change of process in the making of flour."

To the same effect are:

W. A. Gaines & Co. v. Rock Springs Co., 246 U. S. 312;

Ball & Gunning Milling Co. v. Mammoth Spring Milling Co., 48 App. D. C. 243 (1918);
White v. Miller, 50 Fed. 277.

The finding of the District Court that the change in formula did not work an abandonment is supported therefore both on principle and on authority.

The change in the dress of the package so as to modernize its appearance was not evidence of abandonment. Such modernizing changes frequently occur in current advertising and as long as the essential element in the name remains, the trade mark has not been changed. This Court has said in Baglin v. Cusenier Co., supra, that abandonment is not to be viewed as a penalty for the "creation and use of new devices."

In Hier v. Abrahams, 82 N. Y. 519, 525, the Court said:

> "But where the trade mark consists of a word it may be used by the manufacturer who has appropriated it in any style or print or form of label and its use by another in any form is unlawful * * *. The trade mark consisted in the word simply and the plaintiffs might have printed it on any form of label they might fancy without losing the protection of the law."

Abandonment must be predicated upon the features discarded, not the features retained, whenever an alteration in the appearance of a trademark has taken place. So long as the distinctive feature of the mark is preserved in the new device, there has been no abandonment of that distinctive feature, and hence no abandonment of the mark. In Hopkins on Trade-Marks (3 ed.), page 214, this principle is stated as follows:

> "the adoption of a new label or brand is, of course, an abandonment of all the distinctive features of the old label or brand not preserved in the new one."

In the present case, the retention of the distinctive name "Beech-Nut" makes it impossible to predicate an abandonment upon the change in the appearance of the package. In accordance with this principle, the District Court correctly found that the modernizing of the label and the change in the decorative feature of the package was not evidence of abandonment, and that to hold to the contrary would be unreasonable because it would prevent the rightful owner of an established trade name from redecorating or reornamenting his package in order to make it better adapted for his commercial needs.

But if the petitioner sustains its contention that the record shows abandonment by the respondent, its right to enjoin the use of the name will not be enlarged. The only legal effect of establishing abandonment is, in so far as the prior user is concerned, that others now are at liberty to apply the mark to the same articles to which that prior user had been applying it. In this case, that would mean only that the petitioner might have entered the tobacco field in 1915 and used the "Beech-Nut" name. It did not do anything of the kind. It adhered strictly to the food business, adding to its line during the period of alleged abandonment Olive Oil, Chewing Gum, Condiment Sauce, Sardines, Mustard, Guava Jelly and Mint Tablet—all food products and all sold under its slogan "Foods of Finest Flavor" (I, p. 810). In this conduct there was but a continuation of the same use for food products which the petitioner had been making of this mark for so many years side by side with the use by the respondent and its predecessors of the "Beech-Nut" name for tobacco products.

It follows therefore that the respondent had a complete right to resume selling tobacco products under the "Beech-Nut" name in 1915, whether or not any abandonment had occurred. So long as no rights of others have intervened, a former owner may, of course, resume his mark after abandonment.

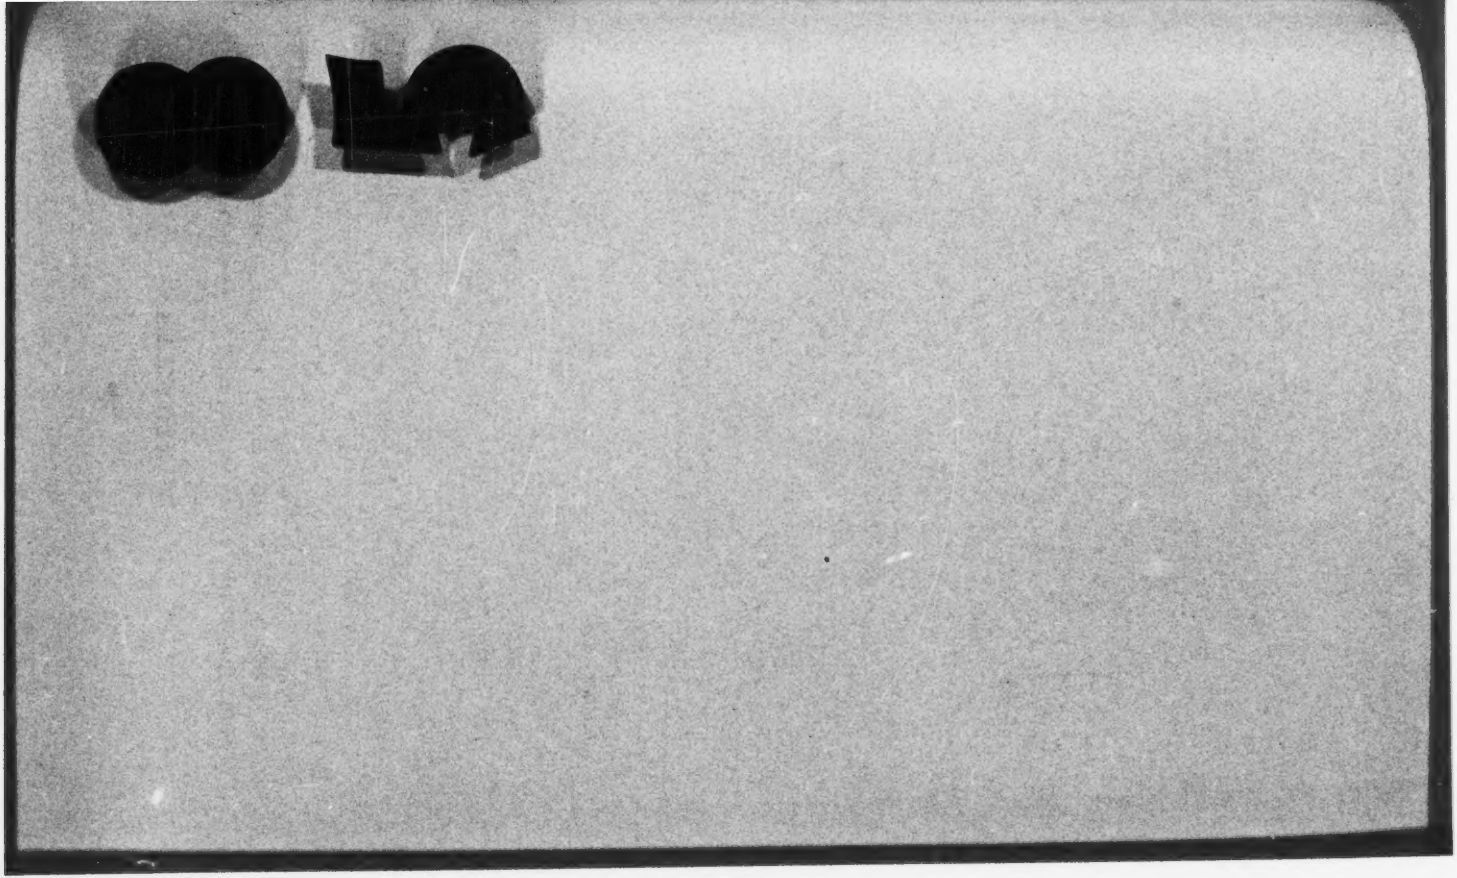
CONCLUSION.

It is respectfully submitted that the decree below should be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted,

William R. Rodes
John S. Miller
Attorneys for the Respondent.

March, 1927.



APPENDIX A.

Testimony on cross-examination of the witnesses to whom Petitioner refers this Court in its Appendices A and B to sustain its assertion that "absolutely the entire purchasing public of the United States has been and is being deceived * * * and believes that the Lorillard Beech-Nut products are produced by the Beech-Nut Packing Company." (Brief, p. 75.)

EDWARD ABRAMS, cigar store, by stipulation admits: "that he never examined a package of cigarettes and never paid any attention to the same * * *; that if he had seen the name P. Lorillard Company on the package he would have known that it was a product of P. Lorillard Company, tobacco manufacturers, as he knows that the P. Lorillard Company is a large tobacco manufacturing concern; * * *" (I, p. 388).

JOSEPH S. AISENBERG, grocer: "X-Q.48. When did you first examine a package of those Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. At the time I made the inquiry regarding the maker of the cigarette or the manufacturer. X-Q.49. Then you examined them? A. Then I looked at them, yes. X-Q.50. Whose name did you see? A. I saw the name that appears on there, P. Lorillard. X-Q.51. You knew it was not the Beech-Nut Packing Company's cigarette? A. Yes. X-Q.52. Up to that time you had not examined the package? A. Up to that time I had not taken the trouble to, no." (I, pp. 153-4.)

R. J. ANDREWS, clerk, by stipulation admits: "I did not ask for Beech-Nut cigarettes of the Beech-Nut Packing Company when I made the purchase but simply asked for a package of Beech-Nut Cigarettes. I did not examine the package particularly and therefore did not notice the name P. Lorillard Co. appearing thereon." (I, p. 342).

FRANK ARNOLD, JR., Accountant: "Q. Did you know who made the Camel cigarette? A. No, sir. Q. As a matter of fact, you didn't care, did you? A. No, sir. Q. The Camel cigarette had pleased your taste? A.

Yes, sir. Q. Like Mr. Disbrow, the last witness, tobacco is tobacco—if it happens to hit your taste, it is what you like, is it? A. Yes, sir. Q. You don't care whether it is made by Beech-Nut or by Lorillard Company or by any one else, do you? A. No, sir. Q. If the blend suits your fancy, that is what you buy, isn't it? A. Yes." (V, pp. 2501-2.)

JAMES F. BALLARD, butcher: "X-Q.20. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes, I heard of it. X-Q.21. They are a large tobacco company, are they not? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.30. You do not find the name 'Beech-Nut Packing Company' on this package of cigarettes? A. No. X-Q.31. But you do find the name 'P. Lorillard Company'? A. Exactly. X-Q.32. And you know the P. Lorillard Company tobacco people? A. Yes, I know of them." (I, pp. 480-1).

A. V. BOBB, butcher: "X-Q.23. You have heard of the P. Lorillard Company, have you not? A. Yes, I have heard of them; yes. * * * X-Q.29. I understand you have been chewing this tobacco for five years? A. About four years; I would not say five. X-Q.30. About four years? A. About four years. X-Q.31. And you had never taken the trouble to look to see whose name was on there? A. Never looked at the name; just stuck it it my pocket and when I wanted a chew just took a handful out." (I, pp. 475-6).

DORACE L. BOTTOMLY, grocery clerk: "X-Q.23. Did you purchase any of these Beech-Nut cigarettes yourself? A. No, I didn't. X-Q.24. You have never gone into a store and asked for Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. I never have. X-Q.25. Did you handle the package your brother had? A. I did. X-Q.26. Did you take the trouble to examine it? A. Not closely, no. * * * X-Q.37. You don't chew tobacco? A. No. X-Q.38. Smoke cigarettes? A. No." (I, pp. 168-70.)

T. J. BRANIGAN, shoe clerk: "XQ.24. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Co.? A. Yes. X-Q.25. They are large manufacturers of tobacco products, are they not? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.31. You never took the trouble to examine that pack of cigarettes to see who did produce it, did you? A. Never. X-Q.32. And when you were looking at all these advertisements and displays you never took the trouble to see whose name was on them? A. No, I didn't. I just looked at the head line. X-Q.33. At the word Beech-Nut? A. That's all. X-Q.34. You didn't pay any attention to the name at all? A. No." (I, p. 287).

J. E. BRIMAKOW, cigar clerk: "X-Q.25. You know the Lorillard Company is a very large tobacco concern? A. Yes. X-Q.26. They handle a good large line of cigarettes? A. High-grade cigarettes. X-Q.27. You have a good sale of their products? A. We have a good sale of their products. X-Q.28. In other words, you have absolutely no objection to ever putting in a P. Lorillard Company tobacco product, have you, because their reputation is good? A. Sure. X-Q.29. Did you look at these packages when you first received them? A. I did. X-Q.30. You saw the name 'Lorillards' on them? A. Yes. I did. X-Q.31. You knew they were Lorillard's cigarettes? A. Yes." (I, pp. 613-4).

ROBERT N. BROUGHTON, druggist: "X-Q.18. You did not buy from the manufacturer direct? A. No. The first carton I bought direct from their salesman, the P. Lorillard Company salesman. I paid him cash right on the spot. * * * X-Q.21. Did you ever look at this package to decide whether the goods were those of the P. Lorillard Company or the Beech-Nut Packing Company? A. I never did. X-Q.22. Just handed the cigarettes out? A. Yes. If they called for Beech-Nut I handed them out. X-Q.23. That name, P. Lorillard Company, on this package of cigarettes, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, indicates to you that it is the product of the P. Lorillard Company, does it not? A. Yes, it does." (I, p. 229-30).

R. A. BROWN, insurance, by stipulation admits: "I have only purchased, as I recall, one package of these cigarettes, and when I purchased them I did not ask for cigarettes of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, but merely for a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes. I did not notice the name P. Lorillard Co. on the package as I did not examine the package very closely." (I, p. 337).

W. J. BUCKLEY, broker, by stipulation admitted that he simply smoked some Beech-Nut cigarettes proffered by a friend; and "did not pay any particular attention to the package * * * I have not myself purchased any of these 'Beech-Nut' cigarettes." (I, pp. 76-77.)

A. H. CARLSON, sporting goods: "X-Q.24. On this package of scrap tobacco you see the name Lorillard, don't you? A. Yes. X-Q.25. As a person engaged in the tobacco business that would mean that was a P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.41. So when you thought it was made by Beech-Nut Packing Company that was simply a general impression on your part without making any inquiry or study or examination at all? A. Yes. X-Q.42. You had nothing to go on in forming that opinion. That is, if you had looked at the name Lorillard you would have known it was Lorillard tobacco; is that right? A. Yes, I understand that. * * * X-Q.62. So the minute you looked at the package you saw Lorillard's name on it and knew it was Lorillard? A. Yes. X-Q.63. If you had looked at that package when it first came into the store you would have known it was Lorillard? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.64. You never took the trouble to look at it, then? A. No." (I, pp. 427-31).

GEORGE L. CARLTON, grocer: "X-Q.20. The Lorillard Company is a large and well known tobacco concern, is it not? A. Yes. X-Q.21. If you had taken the trouble to look at that package when you first bought those cigarettes you would have known that it was P. Lorillard Company's product, would you not? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.28. You know that these cigarettes are the cigarettes of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes. I never examined the package. Never noticed the name on the package." (I, p. 234-5).

JAMES J. CASHMAN, JR., drug clerk: "X-Q.18. And I notice these products that are advertised in the windows are Beech-Nut cigarettes, Murad cigarettes, Mogul cigarettes and other products. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Co.? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.26. Did you ever take the trouble to examine a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. No, I didn't. X-Q.27. Never even glanced at them? A. No, I didn't. * * * X-Q.38. And the name 'Lorillard' appears on the Beech-Nut package? A. Yes. X-Q.39. And that would indicate to you that is a product of the tobacco people, the Lorillard people, would it not? A. Yes." (I, pp. 265-7).

GEORGE CATLIN, a grain broker, said: "I have never purchased any of these cigarettes, but have smoked some given to me by my friends. I did not examine the package, and therefore I didn't know that the name 'P. Lorillard Co.' appeared thereon, as I now see by examining this package, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1." (I, pp. 70-1.)

TRACY N. COLLINS, grocer, by stipulation admits: "I never noticed the name Lorillard or P. Lorillard Company on the packages, as I did not take the trouble to look at them, and as I now see from looking at the package that the name Lorillard's appears on the scrap tobacco and P. Lorillard Company on the cigarette package, and from this I would understand these to be a product of P. Lorillard Company, the tobacco manufacturers." (I, p. 379).

CHARLES P. COOK, a grocer, said: "X-Q.31. Now, when you looked at the package, you saw the name Lorillard on it? A. Yes, but not at that time. X-Q.32. I mean when you did take the trouble to look at it? A. Yes. X-Q.33. And that indicated to you that it was a Lorillard tobacco product? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.36. You would never confuse a food product with tobacco, would you? A. Not likely to. X-Q.37. You regard tobacco as an entirely different class of goods from bacon and chewing gum, do you not? A. We regard them as a different thing, but we carry them both, if that's what you mean." (I, pp. 698-9.)

JOSEPH DERAGO, general store: "X-Q.26. So that you didn't really have any foundation for saying it was made by the Beech-Nut Company? A. No. X-Q.27. Just a guess on your part? A. No, that's all. X-Q.28. You notice the name Lorillard on this package, do you not? A. Yes. X-Q.29. You notice the name P. Lorillard Co. on this cigarette package, do you not? A. Yes, but this

I cannot read, I don't know how to read in English. * * * R.X.Q.42. You never took the trouble to look, did you? A. No, I never took a real look." (I, pp. 331-3).

G. FRANK DISBROW, laborer: "Q. What can you say about it? A. Simply bought the tobacco and put it in my pocket and don't think of looking at it. In the average case, you don't look at the tobacco after it is in your pocket, you reach around and tear the top off and then you reach in for a chew when you care for it. * * * Q. So that not only did you fail to observe that the word 'Lorillard' was on this package of Beech-Nut chewing tobacco which you had in your hand sometimes at least five times a day, and possibly ten times a day for a period of three months, but you likewise failed to observe that on the back of the package is a statement that the tobacco is made under a special process in Middletown, Ohio? A. I never noticed any marks on it. I have handled thousands and thousands, you might say, in 22 years, packages of Murads, and can't tell you anything about it except the Murad is made by Shinasi Brothers. Q. Or Anargyros? A. Or Anargyros, yes. I want the cigarette, not the package, when I buy it." (V, pp. 2495-2498.)

JAMES EUSTACE, grocery clerk, by stipulation admits: "I never made an examination of the package and had not seen the name P. Lorillard Co. on the package." (I, p. 335).

ARTHUR E. FECHTER, druggist: "X-Q.13. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company tobacco people? A. Yes. X-Q.14. You have handled some of their goods? A. I think so. X-Q.15. Did you ever take the trouble to look at that package and examine it? A. No. X-Q.16. Do you still continue to buy this tobacco? A. Certainly. X-Q.17. You don't have any interest in who it was made by? A. No." (I, p. 438).

HENRY W. FOOTE, a grocer, said: "X-Q.16. You never took the trouble to read the printed matter when you bought the cigarettes, did you? A. No. X-Q.17. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company, the tobacco people? A. I have heard of them." (I, p. 566.)

BRYAN O. FOSTER, a grocer's clerk, said: "X-Q.28. You didn't pay any attention to who made it—anything of that sort? A. No, I don't know that I paid any attention as to who made it—I don't know that I did. X-Q.29. That didn't make any difference to you at that time at all? A. Well, not right then I don't suppose it did. * * * X-Q.41. You have sold these cigarettes (referring to cigarettes made by P. Lorillard Company) at Mr. Roach's store, have you? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.42. They come in that kind of a carton I show you—a large carton like this, which has been put in evidence in this case Defendant's Exhibit No. ? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.43. And that has 'Lorillard's Beech-Nut Perfect Cigarettes' on it? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.65. As a user of tobacco, you could tell that was a tobacco package, couldn't you? A. Well, I think I could. X-Q.66. And you never knew them to put up any packages of stuff that looked like a package of cigarettes? A. No, sir. X-Q.67. You can tell a cigarette package a mile off—it's got an individuality all of its own? A. Yes, if I wanted to smoke I could. X-Q.68. As a matter of common sense a package of cigarettes has a shape and appearance all its own? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.69. And you can readily tell them on the shelf of a store? A. Yes, sir." (I, pp. 688-9, 691-2.)

ALEXANDER C. GARDNER, grocer: "X-Q.27. You know of the Lorillard Co.? A. Yes. X-Q.28. You know they are large tobacco manufacturers? A. Yes. X-Q.29. And you have handled their goods of various kinds? A. Yes. X-Q.30. Have they always been very satisfactory? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.34. The name Lorillard always appears on the package, does it not? A. Yes. X-Q.35. And that would indicate it was a Lorillard product? A. Well, the name is so small at first you wouldn't notice it. X-Q.36. But if you took the trouble to examine it, you would notice it, would you not? A. Yes, I would notice it; of course I can read." (I, p. 312-3).

CHARLES E. GEARY, drug clerk: "X-Q.17. Do you know what line of business P. Lorillard is in? A. I think they are in the cigarette business. X-Q.18. Tobacco products? A. Tobacco products, yes. X-Q.19. If you took the trouble to look at that package, you would know that P. Lorillard Company made it, would you not? A. Naturally, if I had looked at it and saw it was marked with their name on it. X-Q.20. You never even took the trouble to look at that and see who made them? A. No; I just passed them out." (I, p. 132.)

EDWARD J. GLYNN, clerk: "X-Q.21. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Company? A. I have. * * * X-Q.25. When you first purchased that package of cigarettes (Mr. Cavanagh showing witness package of Beech-Nut cigarettes), did you look on it to see whose name was on it? A. I did not. X-Q.26. If you had looked at that package you would have seen the Lorillard name on it, wouldn't you? A. I presume I would if I had looked at the package, but I didn't look at the package, I looked at the Beech-Nut. XQ-27. You didn't take the trouble to examine the package? A. No, I didn't. X-Q.28. Had you looked at it, you would have seen the Lorillard name? A. Yes, I presume so." (I, p. 270).

A. W. GODFREY, a dealer in mill feeds and flour, said: "And in due course, I don't know whether it was that day or the next day, but very soon after, I went downstairs and purchased a package of them to see what there was in them, and upon looking them over I saw Lorillard's name on it. * * * X-Q.22. When you made your examination, then, you found the name P. Lorillard on it? A. When I read the package all over I found the name of P. Lorillard Co. on it. X-Q.23. You knew that P. Lorillard Co. was a large tobacco manufacturer? A. I simply knew that P. Lorillard Co. had been in the tobacco business, but in regard to their size, I couldn't state." (I, pp. 50, 53.)

NATHAN HAMMERMAN, drug clerk: "X-Q.22. You have heard of P. Lorillard Co.? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.23. They are a large tobacco concern? A. Yes. X-Q.24. That name would naturally indicate to you that it was their product? A. Yes, it would, if I had gone to the trouble to look at it I would have known it; otherwise I wouldn't know whether they were putting it out for the Beech-Nut people." (I, p. 279).

NEWTON HARRISON, dry goods: "X-Q.23. Have you ever heard of P. Lorillard Co.? A. Yes. X-Q.24. You know them to be large tobacco manufacturers? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.27. If you had taken the trouble to notice the name Lorillard— A. I would have noticed it was not a Beech-Nut product, but the Beech-Nut trade-mark is so conspicuous that I didn't draw any other conclusion but that it was a Beech-Nut product. * * * X-Q.34. You never made any particular inquiries to find out whether or not it was their product? A. I took it as a matter of course that it was their product." (I, pp. 320-1).

JEFFERSON D. HAYDEN, grocer: "X-Q.63. Whose name is on Old Virginia cheroots? A. P. Lorillard Company. X-Q.64. What name on the scrap tobacco? A. P. Lorillard Company. X-Q.65. What name on the Climax chewing tobacco? A. P. Lorillard Company. X-Q.66. I notice you also sell Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.67. Whose name is on that Beech-Nut package (showing package)? A. Lorillard Company, looks like. X-Q.68. P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.69. And this little yellow tag or slip that is over the carton of cigarettes, whose name appears on that? A. Lorillard. X-Q.70. So all of those products are Lorillard products? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.71. You don't find the name of Beech-Nut Packing Company on any of this tobacco, do you? A. No, sir, I don't see it. X-Q.72. And this receipt you have produced in evidence, that receipt bears, or did bear, but torn, the name P. Lorillard Company, 119 West 40th Street, New York, did it not? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.88. As an ordinary careful man, familiar with business, as you are, when that receipt was given to you, if you looked at it you would have seen P. Lorillard, and known it was a P. Lorillard receipt, would you not? A. If I had observed it carefully. * * * X-Q.109. You never bought any tobacco from the Beech-Nut Packing Company? A. I never have bought anything but some beans, peanut butter and chewing gum, and the tobacco was from Lorillard, I offered for sale as a Beech-Nut product. X-Q.110. And the tobacco, you did not take the trouble to see who made it? A. No." (I, pp. 761-5.)

C. HOUSLING, clerk, by stipulation admits: "When I purchased these cigarettes I did not ask for cigarettes made or put out by the Beech-Nut Packing Company but simply asked for a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes. I did not examine the package and therefore did not notice the name P. Lorillard Co. appearing thereon, * * * I only bought this one package of cigarettes." (I, p. 340).

MARGARET M. HUNT, cigar stand clerk: "X-Q.13. You never took P. Lorillard Co.'s cigarettes for any product of the Beech-Nut Company, did you? A. No." (I, p. 78.)

DANIEL HUTTNER, butcher: "X-Q.20. When you bought that package of cigarettes, you did not take the trouble to notice that name, P. Lorillard Company on it, did you? A. No, I did not." (I, p. 487).

OSCAR JOSEPH, grocer: "X-Q.27. You never took the trouble to read the writing on a package of Beech-Nut scrap? A. No. X-Q.28. You have heard of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company? A. Yes, I have heard of them sure. X-Q.29. Do you see Lorillard's name on there (exhibiting Exhibit 3 to witness)? A. Yes, of course, if you stop to read." (I, pp. 619-20).

JOHN JOZSA, grocery clerk: "X-Q.21. You never took the trouble to read the printing on the package to see who made the Beech-Nut scrap, did you? A. No. Generally when somebody wants tobacco in a hurry, I just grab it and give it to them. X-Q.22. You never even took the trouble to look at it to see who made it? A. No. X-Q.23. You see the name Lorillard on there, don't you? A. Yes." (I, p. 627.)

JOHN J. KING, a grain broker, said: "X-Q.17. Did you ever carefully examine that package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1? A. Why, never, carefully, no. I have seen them at a distance, that is all. X-Q.18. You find the name, P. Lorillard Co. on that package, do you not? A. Yes. X-Q.19. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Co.? A. Yes. X-Q.20. They are big tobacco people, are they not? A. I understand so. * * * X-Q.23. So, if you had looked at this package you would have considered that it was put up by Lorillard Company, wouldn't you? A. Yes, sir." (I, pp. 60-1.)

CLEMENT W. KIRKPATRICK, rubber business: "X-Q.22. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company? A. I have heard of it. X-Q.23. What line of business were they in? A. I assume that they are in the tobacco business. X-Q.24. They are large tobacco manufacturers? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.31. And judging from that, would you not take the name P. Lorillard Company on that package of cigarettes to indicate that it is the product of the P. Lorillard Company, tobacco manufacturers? A. I would. X-Q.32. When you first purchased a package of the Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes like that Exhibit No. 1, did you look to see whose name was on it? A. I didn't. X-Q.33. Then you didn't examine the package in particular; did you? A. No." (I, pp. 212-3).

SOLOMON S. KRAMER, delicatessen; by stipulation admits: "I never made a close examination either of the cigarette or the scrap tobacco package, and I never read the name Lorillard thereon." (I, p. 334).

F. J. LATZEL, delicatessen: "X-Q.19. You see the Lorillard Company name on it? A. I see it now. I see it last week; never before. X-Q.20. Never took the trouble to look for it? A. Never looked at it. X-Q.21. It doesn't make any difference to you, as long as you sell the tobacco, whose name is on it, does it? A. If they want tobacco and Beech-Nut stuff is good, maybe I sell it." (I, pp. 493-4).

HENRY LE CLAIR, grocer: "Q.6. When you saw, bought and smoked these cigarettes, by whom did you think they were put out? A. Well, by the Beech-Nut people, of course. I did not notice and did not care who they were put out by. * * * X-Q.15. You notice P. Lorillard Company on this package of cigarettes, don't you? (Mr. Kavanagh displays a package of P. Lorillard Company's cigarettes to Mr. LeClair) A. I notice it after I have been shown. I never cared to look at it. I gave them away. I could not smoke them. X-Q.16. You did not pay any attention to the package at all? A. No." (I, p. 1-2).

LEO LEWIS, a cigar clerk, said: "X-Q.44. When this cigarette first came to your attention, or reached your store, did you notice the name on it? A. No, sir.

X-Q.45. You didn't take the trouble to examine the package? A. No. I don't think I did. X-Q.46. If you had examined that package, would you have known it was not made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company? A. If I had examined it, yes. X-Q.47. You don't find the Beech-Nut Packing Company's name on it, do you? A. No, I don't find it on it. X-Q.48. But you do find 'P. Lorillard Co.' on there? A. Yes. X-Q.49. And that indicates to you that it is a product of P. Lorillard Company, doesn't it? A. Yes." (I, pp. 84-5.)

P. LYNCH, market clerk, by stipulation admits: "When I purchased the pack of cigarettes I did not ask for cigarettes made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company but merely for a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes and made no particular examination of the package and therefore did not notice the name P. Lorillard Co. appearing thereon." (I, p. 341).

THOMAS F. MALONEY, salesman: "X-Q.11. Did you examine the package to see if the Beech-Nut Packing Company's name appeared on it? A. No, sir. X-Q.12. Then you didn't deliberately buy this as a product of the Beech-Nut Packing Company? A. I did not, no." (I, p. 69.)

JAMES F. MASTERSON, publisher: "Q. Your friend having offered you casually a cigarette out of a Beech-Nut cigarette package, you assumed that the Beech-Nut Packing Company made that cigarette, and when you came to write this financial article for the Financial News you also assumed that the Beech-Nut Packing Company, being the manufacturer of a cigarette must be the manufacturer of a chewing tobacco and a smoking tobacco, that is right? A. Yes, sir. Q. What was on the package of cigarettes that your friend offered you a cigarette from? A. The only thing I observed—on the package of cigarettes? Q. Yes. A. The only thing I observed was the name Beech-Nut. Q. You didn't see P. Lorillard Co. on that, did you? A. I didn't observe it, no." (V. p. 2489.)

JAMES MATREACE, grocery clerk, by stipulation admits: "I know the P. Lorillard Company is a large tobacco concern and I have handled other products of theirs and if I had seen the name P. Lorillard Co. on the package I would have presumed it was their products. I never paid any particular attention to the matter but simply bought the cigarettes from time to time and sold them over the counter." (I, p. 344).

E. J. McFADZEN, grocer: "X-Q.24. You have heard of P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes. X-Q.25. You know they are large tobacco manufacturers? A. Yes. X-Q.26. If you had seen that name 'P. Lorillard Company' on that package of Beech-Nut cigarettes you would have known it was Lorillard's cigarettes? A. Yes. X-Q.27. Same as you would know the Lucky Strike was the American Tobacco Companys' cigarettes? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.28. But you didn't pay any attention to it and didn't take the trouble to read it? A. That is right. I just took it for granted it was a Beech-Nut product." (I, pp. 557-8).

JOHN MEAD, market clerk, by stipulation admits: "I never made any examination of the Beech-Nut scrap tobacco package and did not notice the name Lorillard thereon. I have never purchased a package of the Beech-Nut cigarettes and have not paid any particular attention to the same." (I, p. 343).

EDWARD MOSCOVITZ, cigar clerk: "X-Q.13. You know the P. Lorillard Company, do you? A. Yes. * * * X-Q.24. So you really never took the trouble to examine the cigarette package, that Beech-Nut cigarette package to know who it was made by? A. No. X-Q.25. When you were under the impression that that cigarette was the Beech-Nut Packing Company product, you hadn't taken the trouble to examine the package to know? A. No." (I, pp. 128-9.)

GEORGE F. MOULTON, druggist: "X-Q.15. Ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Yes, tobacconists. * * * X-Q 18. So when you first saw that package, or when you handled them first, you didn't pay any attention to the name, just glanced at the package? A. Well, Beech-Nut was the prominent name. X-Q.19. If you had seen Lorillard's name on them you would have known it was the product of the tobacco company, wouldn't you? A. Yes." (Vol. I, pp. 377-8).

THEODORE MUELLER, a druggist, said: "X-Q20. Mr. Mueller, did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company, tobacco manufacturers? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.21. They are very large tobacco manufacturers, aren't they? A. Yes, sir. * * * X-Q.27. And as I understand it, when you first ordered these cigarettes and you received them you noticed they were not made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, didn't you? A. Yes. X-Q.28. As a man purchasing goods you looked and saw they were not a Beech-Nut brand? A. Yes." (I, pp. 607-8.)

FRANKLIN G. NEAL, trademark lawyer: "X-Q.30. You have heard of the P. Lorillard Company, haven't you? A. I have. X-Q31. What kind of business do you know them to be in? A. Tobacco business. X-Q.32. When you purchased that package of Lorillard Beech-Nut cigarettes, you didn't examine it to see the name of the manufacturer or the producer thereon, did you? A. No." (I, p. 204.)

CARL W. NEMETZ, grocer: "X-Q.25. You never took the trouble to find who they were made by, did you? A. No, sir, never. X-Q.26. You don't chew tobacco, do you? A. No. X-Q.27. You never read that name 'Lorillard's' on the package, did you? A. I never took particular notice of it, no." (I, p. 552).

FRANK O'CONNELL, HENRY DIECKMAN, W. SHAFFER, H. A. NEFF, grocers, and ISABEL SHAFFER, drug clerk, by combined stipulation admitted: "I never took the trouble to read the printed matter on the package and did not notice the name 'Lorillard' or the name of the manufacturer, and paid no attention to the matter at all, as this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco is a good selling tobacco, which I have had on sale for a number of years past, and have bought at different times, and I would sell it irrespective of what company made it." (I, p. 634.)

MICHAEL O'CONNOR, market clerk: "X-Q.18. When you first purchased a package of these cigarettes, about two months ago, you did not notice the name on it, did you? A. No, I did not. X-Q.19. You did not ask the dealer who they were made by, did you? A. No. I did not. X-Q.20. You just went in and bought cigarettes and told them just what you wanted? A. I just went in and said 'Give me a package of Beech-Nut cigarettes.' X-Q.21. That was the only thing you asked him? A. Yes." (I, p. 238).

MRS. AMELIA PETERSEN, grocery store: "X-Q.66. You didn't look at a package very closely, did you and read it? A. No, I never read it either." (I, p. 507).

RICHARD E. POPE, grain merchant: "X-Q.17. (By Mr. Cavanagh) Did you ever hear or know of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Oh, yes. X-Q.18. You know they are a large tobacco concern, do you not? A. Yes, I know they are. X-Q.19. Will you examine this cigarette package, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1? What name appears on it? A. P. Lorillard Co. X-Q.20. Would that indicate to you that it was a package of P. Lorillard Company? A. I would not notice it. I don't know who makes Lucky Strike, even. X-Q.21. So you don't examine the label? A. No. I am like a Chinaman, I will take a chop without any knowledge of what goes with it." (I, p. 64.)

MIKE SABA, grocer: "X-Q.11. You never took the trouble to find out who made the tobacco, did you? A. No. X-Q.12. You never read the package? A. No, I do not read very much, and I did not look. X-Q.13. You did not pay any attention to it at all? A. No." (I, p. 623).

JOHN SABELIS, commissary clerk: "X-Q.1. Did you ever look for the name of the manufacturer on it? A. No, sir. I don't chew myself and I am not interested. X-Q.2. So you weren't interested in what appeared on the package? A. No, sir. X-Q.3. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company, tobacco manufacturers? A. I believe I have. * * * X-Q.7. You never took the trouble to notice any of the printing on that package, whether it had name 'Lorillard' on it? A. No, sir. X-Q.8. You weren't at all interested in what was on it or who made the tobacco? A. No, sir." (I, p. 446).

WILLIAM H. SAGE, druggist: "X-Q10. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Oh, yes. X-Q.11. They are large manufacturers of tobacco, are they not?

A. Yes. X-Q.12. On this package of Beech-Nut cigarettes you see the name P. Lorillard? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.13. That would indicate it is that tobacco company? A. Yes. X-Q.14. And likewise on this Beech-Nut scrap tobacco you find the name Lorillard? A. I didn't notice this until after a conversation with this gentleman. X-Q.15. As a matter of fact, when you told the party that the same people that put out the gum were putting out scrap tobacco and cigarettes, you had never really looked into the matter? A. No. X-Q.16. Wasn't of any particular interest to you? A. No. None whatever." (I, pp. 420-1).

C. A. SATTIG, grocery clerk: by stipulation admits he "made no particular examination of the package and did not notice the name P. Lorillard Co. thereon; that if he had he would have known the cigarette to be a product of that company." (I, p. 317).

LLOYD SCHULTZ, grocery clerk: "X-Q.45. You did not pay any attention to who manufactured it or where it came from, or anything? A. No. X-Q.46. When the customers came in like this customer you spoke of this morning, you never got a package of tobacco to compare it with a package of chewing gum to see who made it, did you? A. No. X-Q.47. Just simply had some idle conversation and paid no further attention to it; is that right? A. Yes. X-Q.48. If you wanted to find out whether a newspaper was of a certain date, or a product was made by a certain concern, and you were enough interested, you would read the printing matter and see? A. Yes. X-Q.49. But you were not interested in this case, and paid no attention? A. I did not pay any attention." (I, p. 632.)

ROBERT SKENE, JR., a dealer in sacks for flour and feed, said: "Q.13. Now, you stated you went down and bought a package of these cigarettes. Then what did you do? A. Of course, I examined it and found that the name Lorillard Company was on them. * * * X-Q.26. Are you familiar with the names of any of the big tobacco companies? A. Oh, I am with the Lorillard name and the American Tobacco Company, and Liggett. * * * X-Q.47. When you examined this package of Beech-Nut cigarettes, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, and saw the name P. Lorillard Co. on it, didn't that indicate to you that that package was made by P. Lorillard tobacco people? A. Yes. X-Q.48. Did you ever know the Beech-Nut Packing Company to put out any tobacco product? A. No." (I, pp. 39-44.)

ARTHUR A. SKINNER, grain broker: "X-Q.12. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard people? A. The tobacco people, yes. * * * X-Q.22. So when you purchased those cigarettes, after you examine them, you would have seen that name, P. Lorillard Co. on it, would you not? A. Oh, yes, if I examined them closely, but I didn't notice the cigarettes. I am not particularly interested in who makes them. I open them and smoke them. Of course, I don't know who makes the Fatimas, or the Camel, but I do know who makes Lucky Strike, because I smoke so many of them. X-Q.23. You never really take the trouble to examine them? A. No." (I, pp. 57-8.)

WILLIAM I. THOMAS, grocer: "X-Q.17. Did you ever hear of the P. Lorillard Company? A. Oh, yes. X-Q.18. They are large tobacco manufacturers, are they not? A. Yes. X-Q.19. Put out a nice class of goods? A. Yes. X-Q.20. You notice the name Lorillard on this package, do you not? A. I do on this one. I have never noticed it before. X-Q.21. Never took a good look at it, did you, now? A. No. All I was looking for was tobacco. X-Q.22. If you had noticed the name 'Lorillard's', you would have connected it with the tobacco? A. Why, evidently, yes." (I, pp. 471-2).

W. G. TORREY, a miller representative, said: "X-Q.17. (By Mr. Cavanagh.) You say you have got packages of these cigarettes? A. When they were first on sale here. X-Q.18. When you examined the package, what name did you find on it? A. P. Lorillard Company. Mr. Hinton: Witness examined package before answering the question. X-Q.19. What did that indicate to you? A. That P. Lorillard were the manufacturers." (I, pp. 73-4.)

JOHN E. WATSON, druggist: "X-Q.15. Did you ever see the name 'Lorillard' on it? A. Never paid any particular attention to it. As a matter of fact, it is same as Bull Durham. Didn't pay any attention to it. X-Q.16. Just simply sell it as so much tobacco? A. That's the idea. X-Q.17. Does the same apply to the cigarettes? A. Yes. X-Q.18. You never noticed the name P. Lorillard Company on those cigarettes? A. Never paid any particular attention to it. * * * X-Q.24. So when you told people that you thought that the scrap tobacco and cigarettes were made by same people who made gum, you didn't have anything on which to base that? A. No." (I, p. 416).

MRS. MATILDA WEDEL, in the cigar business, said: "X-Q.8. What is the name on that package? A. Lorillard. X-Q.9. Do you find the name Beech-Nut Packing Company on that package? A. Not at all. If I had ever stopped to read, I would have never said this was Beech-Nut Packing Company's product. X-Q.10. If you had stopped to read the package you would never have said it was Beech-Nut Company's? A. No. X-Q.11. What brands of cigarettes do you handle? A. All popular brands. Means most established. X-Q.12. Do you handle Murad? A. All. All of Lorillard. X-Q.13. You know Lorillard is a good tobacco concern? A. Yes, sir. X-Q14. If you had ever taken the slightest trouble to examine that package you would have connected it with the Lorillard Company? A. Yes, sir. Lorillard." (IV, pp. 2212-3.)

WILLIAM C. WEIGEL, grocer: "X-Q.30. Did you ever take the trouble to read any of the writing or printing on the package (indicating)? A. I don't recollect. That is, I couldn't say what it said on there. X-Q.31. You notice the name Lorillard's' on the package? A. Yes. X-Q32. Did you ever hear of P. Lorillard Company, the tobacco people? A. Yes. X-Q.33. They are a large tobacco concern? A. Yes. X-Q.34. Those jobbers you now get the Beech-Nut tobacco from, they did not tell you it was from the Beech-Nut Packing Company, did they? A. No, sir. X-Q.35. And none of the agents told you it was made by the Beech-Nut Packing Company, did they? A. No, sir. X-Q.36. You never knew the Beech-Nut Packing Company to put out a package of tobacco like this (indicating), did you? A. No. X-Q.37. You never knew them to sell tobacco at all, did you? A. No." (I, p. 563).

CLARENCE A. WILKINS, variety store: "X-Q.23. But you do sell the Beech-Nut cigarettes? A. I do. X-Q.24. And you buy that from P. Lorillard Co.? A. I buy it through a jobber; the original order was given to the Lorillard salesman. * * * X-Q.37. You know of P. Lorillard Company, do you not? A. Oh, yes, I have bought their goods for years, but I never bought anything direct from them, as I know of." (I, pp. 110-2.) This witness had defective eyesight and was somewhat color blind.

MRS. IDA W. WILKINS, wife of above witness: "X-Q.13. You have never taken any trouble to observe that package, have you? A. No, only as I put it out, not to go through it closely, all the reading on it, and look at it. X-Q.14. Whose name is that written on it? A. P. Lorillard Co., I see written on it. X-Q.15. So, if you had observed that package closely, you would have known that it was a P. Lorillard Co. cigarette? A. Yes, sir; the Lorillard tobacco company." (I, p. 121.)

ROY J. YUNKERS, a cigar salesman, said: "X-Q.3. I show you this package. Exhibit 16, and ask you if you can read that name? A. Lorillard. Yes, sir. X-Q.4. Whose tobacco would you take that to be from that package? A. I would take it to be Lorillard's tobacco. X-Q.5. You do not find the word Beech-Nut Packing Company any place on that package? A. No, sir. X-Q.6. And you know that Lorillard is a large and reputable manufacturer of tobacco? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.7. Have you a very good standing in the trade? A. Very good. X-Q.8. If a man asked you whose tobacco that was, if you took time to even look at it you would say it was Lorillard? A. Yes, sir. X-Q.9. You would immediately connect the name with such cigarettes as Murad, Mogul, Egyptian Dieties, and Climax chewing tobacco? A. Yes, sir." (IV, pp. 2221-2.)

APPENDIX B.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN PETITIONER AND RESPONDENT IN REFERENCE TO THE BEECH-NUT TRADE-MARK.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

6/11/15

LORILLARD CO.,
Middletown, O.

Dear Sirs:

We adopted many years ago as our trade name the word "Beech-Nut" arbitrarily selected by us as the mark or name for our manufacturing output of food material. We also associated with such trade name "BEECH-NUT" and as a part of the trade mark, an oblong or oval frame or border of a red color surrounding and enclosing a white oblong space with a picture or representation of a Beech-Nut centered therein.

We have built up during the last quarter of a century a vast trade in our products and always with our trade name or trade mark associated therewith. We have expended a very large sum of money in so doing and the word or name "BEECH-NUT" and our trade mark has become of vast value to us not only for these reasons but for the reason of a high quality and perfection of the various products manufactured by us to which this name and mark has been applied.

So completely has this name and mark been attached to and associated with our goods during all of these years that the purchasing public has come to recognize this name and mark as our property as to origin and to purchase the manufacture and output to which this name and mark is applied without any further identification as to the origin of the word or name itself, believing that wherever they see our name and mark applied that we are the manufacturers of the product and purchase accordingly.

We have from time to time added to the variety of our manufacturing commodities to which this name or mark has always been applied; as for example, a chewing gum product of somewhat recent production upon our part. While we have never as yet manufactured tobacco, the taking on of such manufacture in the future is by no means impossible or improbable. You will also see that the name or word "BEECH-NUT" is a part of our corporate name. We have been thus particular to state this matter to you by reason of the acts upon your part which now follow.

We have been shown a lined bag evidently employed for packing "Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco," apparently manufactured by one of your factories at Middletown, O. A prominent feature upon the bag is our trade name "BEECH-NUT," including the oval band and our characteristics burrs and nuts. It is difficult to believe that the presence of our trade name "Beech-Nut" and mark upon the bag will not deceive the purchasing public in the belief that the contents of the bag are of our manufacture, and to us there is no other explanation to be given to the presence of our trade name "Beech-Nut" and mark upon this bag except the intention on your part that the public shall be so deceived: and you will sell your tobacco by reason of the presence thereon of our name and mark. In other words, these acts strongly indicate to us intentional unfair trading.

We have decided in the first instance to write you fully as to this matter and present to you our view of your acts and to request to you immediately to cease this use of our name and mark and give us written assurance of the same.

We have confidence that now your attention is called to it you will recognize the justice of our position and that there will hereafter be no necessity of using any harsher course to enforce recognition of the same. We have been thus particular also for the reason that there can be no contention hereafter that we have not fully stated your position and ours in this matter. An early reply upon your part is requested and expected.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

6/18/15.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
Middletown, O.

Dear Sirs:

Will you kindly advise if we may expect an early reply to our recent communication with reference to the use of the word "Beech-Nut" in connection with your new brand of chewing tobacco?

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

June 23, 1915.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:

Your letters of June 11th and June 18th addressed to this Company at Middletown, Ohio, relative to the use by us of the name "Beech-Nut" for Scrap Tobacco, have been referred to me.

Preliminary to any discusion of the matter, will you be good enough to let me know when you first began to use the name "Beech-Nut?" I notice on your letterhead, "Incorporated 1899," but this of course does not necessarily mean that you began to put products on the market under the name "Beech-Nut" at that time.

The statement in your letter of June 11th, that you believe we are using the name "Beech-Nut" with the intention that the public shall be deceived into thinking that our product is of your manufacture, is not only without the slightest warrant, but is little short of ridiculous. As a matter of fact, if such an impression should be formed, it would be to our detriment.

Yours very truly,

TSF/L

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

P. LORILLARD CO., 7/2/15.
119 W. 40th St.,
New York.

Mr. Thomas S. Fuller.

Dear Sirs:

Your favor of the 23rd ult. duly received.

Our "BEECH-NUT" trade mark and trade name has been used by ourselves and our predecessors since and prior to the year 1891. Both our trade mark and our trade name "BEECH-NUT" has been used continuously since that date in our business and to such an extent and in such manner that both the name and the mark long since came to have a "secondary significance and meaning"; that is, wherever the mark and name "BEECH-NUT" is seen and no matter with what product it is associated with, it has a "secondary significance" and means only the product and products of the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

You are woefully mistaken and entirely misinformed in your assumption and, indeed, your statement that the public is not deceived by your clients use of our trade mark and name "BEECH-NUT." We know as an absolute truth what is apparent on the face of the facts that the general purchasing public is deceived by your use of our "Beech-Nut" trade mark and trade name and, indeed, this could not well be otherwise, but we know further that your salesmen and agents deliberately push your goods and trade under this identity of use of their mark and name.

We beg to call your attention in this connection to our former communication to you in this matter and to again urgently request that you immediately stop the use in every way and manner of our trade name and mark "BEECH-NUT," in your business without further action upon our part.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

July 8, 1915.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, New York.

(Attention F. E. Barbour, Esq.)

Gentlemen:

We have your letter of July 2nd, further with reference to our use of the name "Beech-Nut" on scrap tobacco, and informing us that you and your predecessors have used the name since and prior to the year 1891.

That the name "Beech-Nut" has acquired a secondary significance and meaning in the packing industry and is associated in the public mind with goods of your manufacture may be perfectly true, but this would not give you the right to the name for all purposes. The authorities are overwhelming on this subject. You seem to proceed upon the assumption that we have recently begun to use the name on the tobacco. This is not the case. This Company and its predecessor in ownership of this brand have used it continuously since prior to the year 1898, as shown by records in my office. I have not made a search beyond that time, but I have no doubt that I can find that the brand is very much older.

We would not desire to have it thought that our "Beech-Nut" tobacco is made by your Company, and if you can give us the name of any salesman of ours who has made such a representation, we would be very glad to have it, and we can assure you that if he did make such a representation, his discharge will immediately follow. It could be of no conceivable advantage to us to have the public think that our tobacco product was manufactured by a packing establishment. Our concern has been in business for more than one hundred and fifty years, and in that length of time has built an enviable reputation for the excellence of its tobacco products.

Though you may turn out an excellent quality of bacon, it does not follow that you could turn out an excellent quality of tobacco, or steel rails, or pianos or aeroplanes. If your contention were true, we, who have a brand of tobacco called "Climax," could enjoin the use of the name on a well-known threshing-machine which is sold in the Western States, or we could enjoin the use of our name on the Lorillard Refrigerators. It has never occurred to us to attempt either.

If you will look at our package of Beech-Nut Tobacco, you will see that the name "Lorillard" is prominently displayed thereon. This was done with the desire that people should know the tobacco is coming from the Lorillard Company. It has been our belief that the fact that Lorillard made it would of itself be of value to the brand.

It is difficult to see how you can seriously claim that there is the slightest similarity in the marking of the package and the fac-simile of your mark as displayed on your letterhead.

If you desire me to point out to you authorities which I consider completely sustain my view as expressed herein, I will take pleasure in doing so.

Yours very truly,

TSF/L

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

7/26/15.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th St.,
New York.

Thomas S. Fuller.

Dear Sirs:

Please pardon the delay in acknowledging receipt of your favor of July 8th.

We will greatly appreciate it if you will send us samples of your product showing the manner of use of the word "BEECH-NUT" since the year 1898, copies of advertisements or of letter-heads showing your use of this name. We trust you will consider this a fair request as we would like to reach a prompt and friendly termination of the correspondence on this subject.

We also desire to take advantage of the offer contained in the last paragraph of your letter to point out to us the authorities which sustain your views.

Thanking you in advance for the information requested herein, we remain,

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

9/2/15.

MR. THOS. S. FULLER,
119 W. 40th St.,
New York.

Dear Sirs:

Kindly refer to your favor of July 29th in which you advised that you would collect the information requested in our letter of July 26th after your return from a week's absence. Up to the present we do not seem to have heard from you and will greatly appreciate the information requested.

In this connection, we received today an inquiry from New River Gro. Co., Hinton, W. Va., asking the best jobbing price on Beech-Nut scrap tobacco, from which you will note that in the minds of some, at least, Beech-Nut scrap tobacco is credited to the Beech-Nut Packing Co.

Thanking you to favor us at your early convenience, we remain,

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

September 15, 1915.

F. E. Barbour, Esq.,
Beech-Nut Packing Company,
Canajoharie, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

I have been able to locate some old price lists which contain our Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, and enclose them herein. I am also sending you an old package showing the use of the name "Beech-Nut" and our present package.

Beech-Nut chewing and smoking tobacco (scrap) was made by Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, of Louisville, Kentucky. This Company was bought out by The American Tobacco Company some time in 1903. Prior to the acquisition of the Weissinger Tobacco Company by the American Tobacco Company the Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company of Middletown, Ohio, was acquired by the Continental Tobacco Company. In 1904 the American Tobacco Company and the Continental Tobacco Company were merged into a new company formed for that purpose and known as The American Tobacco Company.

Under a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, the so-called Tobacco Combination, which included The American Tobacco Company, was split up. In this disintegration proceeding the Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company, which had always been maintained as a separate entity, was acquired by P. Lorillard Company. In the meantime some of the brands formerly manufactured by the Weissinger Tobacco Company had been taken over and manufactured in the Luhrman & Wilbern factory in Middletown, and after the acquisition by our Company of the Luhrman & Wilbern business, including these brands, we continued to operate it as a separate Company until about two years ago, when we dissolved it, taking over all of the business and brands directly in our own name.

I give you this history so that you may understand the various price lists in the name of Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco Company and the package in the name of Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company. I do not know the exact date of the old package, as the stamp is not legible, but it was prior to 1903.

The price lists that I send you are dated January 2, 1904; May 6, 1907, July 1, 1910, and November 3, 1910.

It is difficult for me to see how anyone can claim that there is any similarity in our products and yours, or in your label and ours, other than the name "Beech-Nut." Your claim that we would not have the right to use the name "Beech-Nut" on tobacco products must find its basis in the idea that you can appropriate the name "Beech-Nut" for all products of whatever character.

That the law does not permit of such a claim is elementary. If your claim were maintainable, then the Lion Brewery in New York could enjoin the manufacture of Lion brand collars, or vice versa. Suppose that the J. B. Williams Company should tomorrow put out a new brand of shaving soap, called "Beech-Nut." Do you argue that you could stop it because you have first used the name on hams and bacon? It seems to me that your argument must lead to this conclusion. The law of unfair competition, so far as it assumes to protect the public, assumes to protect the purchaser of average intelligence. It is difficult to believe that a person of average intelligence who enters a store for the purpose of buying "Beech-Nut" hams or bacon could be deceived into thinking he was getting either if he were handed a package of "Beech-Nut" chewing tobacco, or that the "Beech-Nut" chewing tobacco was manufactured by the manufacturer of the hams and bacon. It is no more the custom in this country for a packer to manufacture chewing tobacco than it is for a manufacturer of beer to manufacture collars, and the purchaser of average intelligence perfectly well knows this.

We have tried to make it evident on our package that our "Beech-Nut" chewing tobacco is of our manufacture, by stamping across the top of the package, before the name "Beech-Nut," "Lorillard's." We have also on the other side of the package, plainly printed that it is manufactured at Middletown, Ohio. There is nothing in the get-up of the label, whether in design, color or wording, which could suggest to a person of average intelligence that it was of your manufacture, or in fact the manufacture of anyone except the Lorillard Company.

As I have written you before, we consider it of immense value to the brand itself that it is manufactured by the Lorillard Company, and we desire the consumers of tobacco to know this, because we believe that the Lorillard name carries with it a vast amount of good-will and a guarantee of excellence. We are justified in this belief by reason of the immense increase in the sales of "Beech-Nut" Scrap since we took the former manufacturer's name off and put "Lorillard's" thereon.

I think this covers the situation except with respect to any representations which you claim that some of our salesmen made, to the effect that our "Beech-Nut" Scrap was a product of your Company. I have written you before that if you will give me the name of any salesman who has made such representation, and that fact can be determined, his discharge will be immediately forthcoming, as he can be of no service to us. If you will point out to me anything in the conduct of our business which tends to create a belief in the trade that our "Beech-Nut" Scrap is made by you, we will thank you, so that we may rectify it. I assure you that we are just as anxious as you are, if not more so, to prevent any impression that our tobacco is made by you. Will you let me have a copy of the letter you received from the merchant in West Virginia making inquiry of you for "Beech-Nut" tobacco?

On this general subject, if you have not already done so, you might consult Nims on Unfair Business Competition, pages 200 to 300; therein I think you will find a very complete and satisfactory discussion of the law governing this subject. I will quote you paragraph 117 on page 236:

> "Property in a place name for all purposes cannot exist in one person, under ordinary circumstances. The defendant must be using it in the same or a similar business as the plaintiff. Large amounts of rubber as well as licorice might be found in Anatolia. If there were, the rights which the complainant has acquired in the use of the name in the licorice business, would not prevent another under certain conditions from acquiring a sole right to use the name in the rubber trade."

There is no distinction so far as the principle here laid down is concerned between a place name, a generic name, or a fanciful name. You might also consult the cases of Bordens Ice Cream Company against Bordens Condensed Milk Company, 201 Fed. 510 and Wells v. Ceylon Perfume Company, 105 Fed. 621.

I apologize for the length of this letter. I desire to give you the facts fully, together with our views, and I sincerely hope that this will satisfy you as to the law and our entire good faith. We are as proud of our good will and the excellence of our products in the tobacco business as you are of yours in the packing industry, and we believe with good reason.

Yours very truly,

(Sgd.) THOS. S. FULLER.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

9/20/15.

MR. THOS. S. FULLER,
119 West 40th St.,
New York.

Dear Sir:

We have your very interesting letter of Sept. 15th together with the pricelists referred to and the package of tobacco.

Your letter is a very interesting one and before giving a definite reply to same, desire to review the matter as presented by you so that we can give you an intelligent reply.

At this time, however, we may express our agreement with you that the name Lorillard carries with it a vast amount of good will and unquestionably a guarantee of excellence. So does the name "Beech-Nut Packing Co." and we take the view that the increase in sales of Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco is due to the exploitation of the name "Beech-Nut" with the oval label, and we cannot help but assume that the general impression is that these goods are manufactured by this Company rather than by Lorillard, at least to a considerable degree, for since writing you last we have another inquiry, and this time from Wm. Edwards Co. of Cleveland, O., asking us to ship them 5 cases of Beech-Nut scrap tobacco. The previous inquiry came from New River Gro. Co., Hinton, W. Va.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

June 28, 1919.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, New York.

Gentlemen:

Some four years ago, there occurred a correspondence between the two companies begun by your Mr. F. E. Barbour's letter of June 11th, 1915, complaining of our use of "BEECH-NUT" for tobacco products. Several letters having intervened, we wrote you on September 15th, 1915, setting forth at some length the title to and use of this trade-mark for tobacco products, asserting our ownership of it for tobacco products and denying that you had cause or right to call this ownership in question. Your response was an acknowledgment, dated September 20th, 1915, characterizing our letter as very interesting and stating that before giving definite reply you desired to review the matter presented by us so that you could give us an intelligent reply.

On your part, there the matter was dropped, you having made no further reply or objection. On our part we have continued the manufacture and sale of tobacco products under the trade-mark "BEECH-NUT" until today it is one of the leading tobacco trade-marks of this country.

On or about the 17th of this month information came to us of small shipments to two jobbers in this locality of cigarettes bearing the trade-mark "Beech-Nut" and your name, but manufactured by The American Tobacco Company. Our counsel immediately by phone took the matter up with Mr. Junius Parker, counsel for the Tobacco Company and, on being told by Mr. Parker that the Tobacco Company did not claim any title to the trade-mark, but was manufacturing cigarettes under it for your account, our counsel asserted our ownership of the trade-mark for tobacco products and demanded that the Tobacco Company cease making these cigarettes. We now have Mr. Parker's letter dated June 25th, 1919, stating that the Tobacco Company has "easily and definitely concluded" not to manufacture any tobacco products under the name "Beech-Nut." We do not enclose copy of this letter, as we take it for granted that the Tobacco Company has made you fully cognizant.

We very much hope that further consideration will bring you to a like conclusion, as we must and do insist that you respect our rights and cease using "Beech-Nut" as a trade-mark for cigarettes. You have never heretofore used this trade-mark for tobacco products. Indeed, you have never heretofore manufactured or sold any tobacco products, but always goods of an entirely different class. "BEECH-NUT" has been used by ourselves and our predecessors in title for many, many years as a trade-mark for tobacco products, and under numerous decisions this gives us ownership of the trade-mark "BEECH-NUT" for cigarettes.

We are mailing a duplicate original of this letter to your New York Office.

Yours very truly,

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
President.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

July 7, 1919.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th St.,
New York City.

Mr. Thomas J. Maloney.

Dear Sirs:

At the request of Mr. B. Arkell, you are advised in Pittsburg, Pa., there is a firm trading under the name of Beech-Nut Stogie Co. It is our understanding that this firm markets Beech-Nut Big Havana Stogies.

On 5/25/18 our Pittsburg salesman sent us an order for shipment of Beech-Nut Gum to H. Myers, 305 Wood St., Pittsburg, Pa. This party re-ordered under the name of Beech-Nut Stogie Co.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
W. C. Arkell.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

July 7, 1919.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th St.,
New York City.

Mr. Thomas J. Maloney.

Dear Sirs:

Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Co., 105 West 2nd South, Salt Lake City, Utah, has written us requesting us to make shipment to Fred Vogel, Ogden, Utah, of 5 gross Beech-Nut Scraps.

We are writing them that this product is made by your concern.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
W. C. Arkell.

July 9, 1919.

"BEECH-NUT."

MR. W. C. ARKELL,
c/o BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

I have your two letters of the 7th inst.—one calling to our attention the manufacture of "BEECH-NUT" Big Havana Stogies by the Beech-Nut Stogies Company of Pittsburg, Pa., and the other calling our attention to an order received by you from Wm. A. Stickney Cigar Co., for 5 gross of "BEECH-NUT" Scrap, and enclosing copy of your reply to the Cigar Company.

We thank you very much for this information and the same shall have our prompt attention.

Yours very truly,

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
(Sgd.) THOS. J. MALONEY,
President.

TJM/ELM

July 15, 1919.

MR. BARTLETT ARKELL, President,
BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Arkell:

Pursuant to our interview, I am sending you by registered mail, under separate cover, a sample of the old package for BEECH-NUT cigarettes, also one showing color scheme for the new package.

The new package will carry the same printing and gilt as the old package, except that the printing on the reverse side of the new package will be: "Cigarettes of this quality have never before been offered to the public. Guaranteed by P. Lorillard Company (Established 1760)." in lieu of that now appearing on the old package.

The color scheme we have adopted for the new package is not only strikingly different from the old package, but it is a distinctly new color, in so far as we know. Our lithographer tells us it is a recently "created" color.

In making this change we are destroying wrapping and advertising material that cost us $10,231.36. I mention this, as I feel sure you will not permit us to suffer such a loss in accommodating ourselves to your wishes.

Yours very truly,

President.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

Room 1818, 120 Broadway, New York City.

July 17, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY, President,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Maloney:

I am in receipt of your courteous favor of the 15th inst. together with sample packages, which I will submit to my associates, and also to our counsel. As soon as I hear from them, I will take the matter up further with you.

I do not understand the last paragraph of your letter. Do you mean that we should pay for all, or part of, the loss which you suffer, or what? If so, such a request is not in accord with my recollection of our interview.

Yours sincerely,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
BARTLETT ARKELL,
President.

LAW OFFICES OF OFFIELD & POOLE.
Attorneys and Counselers.
1225 Monadnock Building, Chicago.

JAMES R. OFFIELD. CHARLES H. POOLE.

July 22nd, 1919.

MR. W. C. ARKELL,
c/o BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, New York.
In Re Beech-Nut Stogie Company.

Dear Sir:

In reply to you letter of June 10th, the fact that you were aware of the existence of the Beech-Nut Stogie Company and have actually filled their orders with your goods without making any complaint will, of course, have a bearing upon the question of damages in the event you sued them, but I doubt if it would have any bearing upon your right to stop the use by them of your mark. Of course, the time to have taken the matter up was upon the first shipment but that is now past and I think it would be a good idea to call this matter to the attention of the Lorillard Company and let them take steps against the Beech-Nut Stogie Company as they are in a much better position to do so than the Beech-Nut Packing Company.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd.) JAMES R. OFFIELD for O. and P.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

Room 1818, 120 Broadway, New York City.

July 25th, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY, President,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Maloney:

I am enclosing letter addressed by our counsel, Mr. Offield, to my son, William Clark Arkell, in reference to the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, thinking that you would be interested in same.

Yours sincerely,

B. ARKELL.

Enclosure
Cy/Canajoharie.

July 28, 1919.

MR. BARTLETT ARKELL, President,
BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Room 1818, 120 Broadway,
New York City, New York.

Dear Mr. Arkell:

I have your letter of the 25th, enclosing letter from your counsel, Mr. Offield, to your son, Mr. William Clark Arkell, in reference to the Beech-Nut Stogie Company.

We are now opposing in Washington an attempted registration by this concern of the name "Beech-Nut" for some tobacco products. This is the beginning of measures which we hope will result in stopping the use of the name by this concern for tobacco products.

I also received your letter of the 17th, with respect to the sample package sent you, and as to which I hope you will find yourself in position to reply at an early date.

You state you do not understand the last paragraph of my letter of the 15th. Should we change from the label we had adopted for "BEECH-NUT" cigarettes, it will result in our being unable to use the labels and advertising and wrapping material which we had procured for this brand of cigarettes, and which cost us the figures stated in my letter. Mr. Perkins mentioned this to you—though not the figures—in our interview when you were here. There was no discussion of the point. It seems to me that we should not stand this loss and that you would not wish us to stand the loss, inasmuch as any change that we might make would be simply to accomodate ourselves to your wishes.

Yours very truly,

President.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

August 7, 1919.

P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
119 West 40th Street,
New York.

Mr. Thomas J. Maloney.

Dear Sirs:

Our President, Mr. Arkell, was here yesterday and your letter of July 28th was presented at a meeting of our Executive Committee.

In discussing the situation, a suggestion was made which possibly has not occurred to you, and therefore we are submitting it to you for your consideration. In view of the splendid success of your Beech-Nut Scrap Tobacco, would it not be worth while to simulate your Beech-Nut scrap tobacco package in a wrapping for your cigarettes: in other words, use for your cigarettes a form of label which will immediately apprise the prospective purchaser that the cigarettes are made by the same company making the popular Beech-Nut tobacco, and tie up the advantage and publicity you have already gained through the merchandising of that product. Our thought in regard to the above is prompted by the procedure of the Patterson Co. in connection with their Lucky Strike Smoking Tobacco and Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

Should you not care to follow the suggestion offered above, we hope you will abandon the red background and change the same to blue or some other color, and we would like to see the words "Beech-Nut Brand" a straight line instead of a curve, provided you could work out this idea to your satisfaction.

Mr. Arkell has no recollection of hearing mentioned the advertising matter or wrappings you have provided for your Beech-Nut cigarettes, and while Mr. Lipe recollects some mention made of it, no reference, as far as he can recall, was made in regard to the quantity and neither of these gentlemen gained the inference that you would expect the Beech-Nut Packing Co. to absorb the cost of these supplies.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

Room 1818, 120 Broadway, New York City.

August 9, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY, Pres.
P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Maloney:

I am enclosing copy of letter written by my son relative to the Beech-Nut Stogie Company, at Pittsburgh.

Yours sincerely,

B. ARKELL.

Enclosure.

August 8, 1919.

MR. JAMES R. OFFIELD,
1225 Monadnock Building,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

We are in receipt of a communication from Mr. V. P. Burby our Pittsburgh representative under date of August 5 as follows:

> "The Beech-Nut Stogie Co. is not incorporated. Mr. H. Meyers trades under the name. Mr. Meyers mentioned the other day that A. Schulte, who operate a string of Cigar Stores in New York, recently offered $5000.00 per year for the use of the name. This may be bunk but I thought it might be of interest.
>
> Mr. Meyers claims he has secured a copyright on the word Beech-Nut for stogies."

We have answer as per attached copy. We are also sending copy of this letter to Mr. B. Arkell with the thought that he will call it to the attention of the Lorillard people.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY.

August 27, 1919.

MR. F. E. BARBOUR, Secretary,
BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY,
Canajoharie, New York.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of the 7th has been received and its contents noted, and we appreciate very much your suggestion of our use for the cigarette package of the design now upon our scrap package. This thought occurred to us when we were originating the package for the cigarette and was tried out, with the result that in our opinion the design was not adaptable to a package the size of a cigarette package.

The matter of the oval upon the package was mentioned by Mr. Arkell, but he did not press the point against our objection, the only things remaining for discussion between us being the color of the background of the package and the wording as respects "BEECH-NUT" quality. In the light of this interview the sample which we sent you made changes in both these respects, and we still very much hope that it will prove acceptable.

Indeed, your averseness to assuming the loss which a change in wrapping material would occasion us indicates that the matter is of such small importance to you as not to justify further consideration, for you could not expect us to bear the loss of changes made just to accommodate ourselves to your wishes.

As we are anxious to get along with this matter, will you not let us have your prompt and full answer.

Very truly yours,

President.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

8/28/19.

P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th St.,
New York City.

Mr. Thomas J. Maloney.

Gentlemen:

Your letter of the 27th is received and the same will have prompt consideration.

Yours very truly,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

September 17, 1919.

Mr. Bartlett Arkell, President,
Beech-Nut Packing Company,
Room 1818, 120 Broadway,
New York City, New York.

Dear Mr. Arkell:

Although from my interview and correspondence which ante-dated your application for the registration of "BEECH NUT" for cigarettes, makes me feel sure that you did not intend to press this application, the appearance of a notice of it in the "Official Gazette" of September 9th compels us to file a formal opposition in order that the registration may not become complete through our default.

I am writing you in advance of the filing of this opposition, so that you will understand the circumstances.

I hope that you may be able to let me hear at an early date something further as to the proposed package for "BEECH NUT" Cigarettes.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd.) T. J. Maloney,
President.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

Room 1818 120 Broadway, New York City.

September 19th, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY, President,
P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

I take the liberty of acknowledging receipt of your courteous favor of the 17th inst. which has arrived during Mr. Arkell's absence from the city.

It is expected that Mr. Arkell will return to the city the forepart of the coming week, at which time your letter will be placed before him for his attention.

Yours very truly,

M. E. CARROLL,
Secretary to Mr. Arkell.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY
CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.

Room 1818 120 Broadway, New York City.

September Twenty-second, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY, President,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Maloney:

I appreciate, and understand thoroughly, your courteous favor of the 17th inst.

I take it for granted that the application for registration of Beech-Nut Cigarettes was a procedure advised by our Legal Department. I understand that Mr. Offield, who has offices in Chicago, and who has these matters in charge, has been in California and for that reason there has been this unusual delay. Or it may be that we felt that our suggestions as to your package should have been regarded in a more favorable light by you.

Yours sincerely,

BARTLETT ARKELL.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY

Oct. 8, 1919.

MR. THOMAS J. MALONEY,
Pres. P. LORILLARD CO.,
119 West 40th Street,
New York City, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Maloney:

We have just had a communication from our attorney regarding our application for the registration of our trade-mark "Beech-Nut" for cigarettes. It is his opinion that this application should stand in the Patent Office in order to preserve the rights of the Beech-Nut Packing Company and that no doubt your attorneys will advise the filing of a formal opposition against this registration to preserve any rights that you may have, and that it would be unwise for us to abandon this application for registration without contest unless we reach some definite agreement.

Up to the present time we have come to no final understanding and as the matter stands to date you have agreed to make certain changes in your label and submit your proposed changes to us, but have asked us to assume the loss which your company will incur by reason of making such change.

We do not feel disposed to reimburse your company for losses sustained by reason of adopting trade-mark and common law property which rightfully belongs to this company although such adoption may have been a mistake on the part of those in your employ who prepare such illustrative matter.

Briefly stated, our position is this—That regardless of the trade-name or mark "Beech-Nut" your company adopted our oval trade-mark and our general color scheme and other embellishments for your cigarette package, and this your company had no right to do regardless of any rights that you may have had in so far as the name "Beech-Nut" is concerned.

From a pure equitable standpoint we therefore believe that you should make the necessary changes so that there will be no similarity as to designs or marking upon the package other than the name "Beech-Nut."

The mistake, we believe, is due entirely to your organization and therefore this company should in no wise contribute to its correction. On the other hand, we are advised that for a sum less than the amount which you have suggested we contribute to reimburse you for the necessary changes, our legal rights could be determined and regardless of what the court might hold as to our respective rights in the trade-name "Beech-Nut" we are assured that a court would sustain our contentions as to the subject-matter which we now ask you to abandon.

Of course we know that lawyers cannot always foretell the outcome of any litigation on any given set of facts, and contests of this kind are undesirable to both parties.

The matter has been given very thorough consideration by us and we feel that your package should be changed and that such changes should be made at your expense. Our other differences, such as the opposition proceeding, can be very readily adjusted after we have definitely agreed upon the main issue, and we should be pleased to hear from you further.

Very truly yours,

BEECH-NUT PACKING CO.,
F. E. Barbour.

October 15, 1919.

Mr. F. E. BARBOUR, Secretary,
Beech-Nut Packing Company,
Canajoharie, New York.

Dear Sirs:

Replying to your letter of the 8th inst., this Company has not adopted any trade-mark or common-law property or design or color scheme or other embellishment belonging to your Company, nor have we agreed to make changes in our labels.

When knowledge of your attempted marketing of a "BEECH NUT" Cigarette reached us, we at once wrote asserting our ownership of the trade-mark "BEECH-NUT" for all tobacco products and asked your Company to respect this ownership. There followed an interview with Mr. Arkell and Mr. Lipe. In this interview it developed that the only real matters in difference as respects our use of the trade-mark "BEECH-NUT" for cigarettes were the color of the background and the wording of the catch-phrase on our proposed package of "BEECH-NUT" cigarettes, and we promised to submit a sample package with a different background and a different catch-phrase, in an endeavor to see if these differences could not be amicably adjusted, stating to you at the time, however, that if we did come to an agreement in this respect it would involve the loss of material we had already bought and that this loss should be borne by your Company. We subsequently submitted the sample as promised.

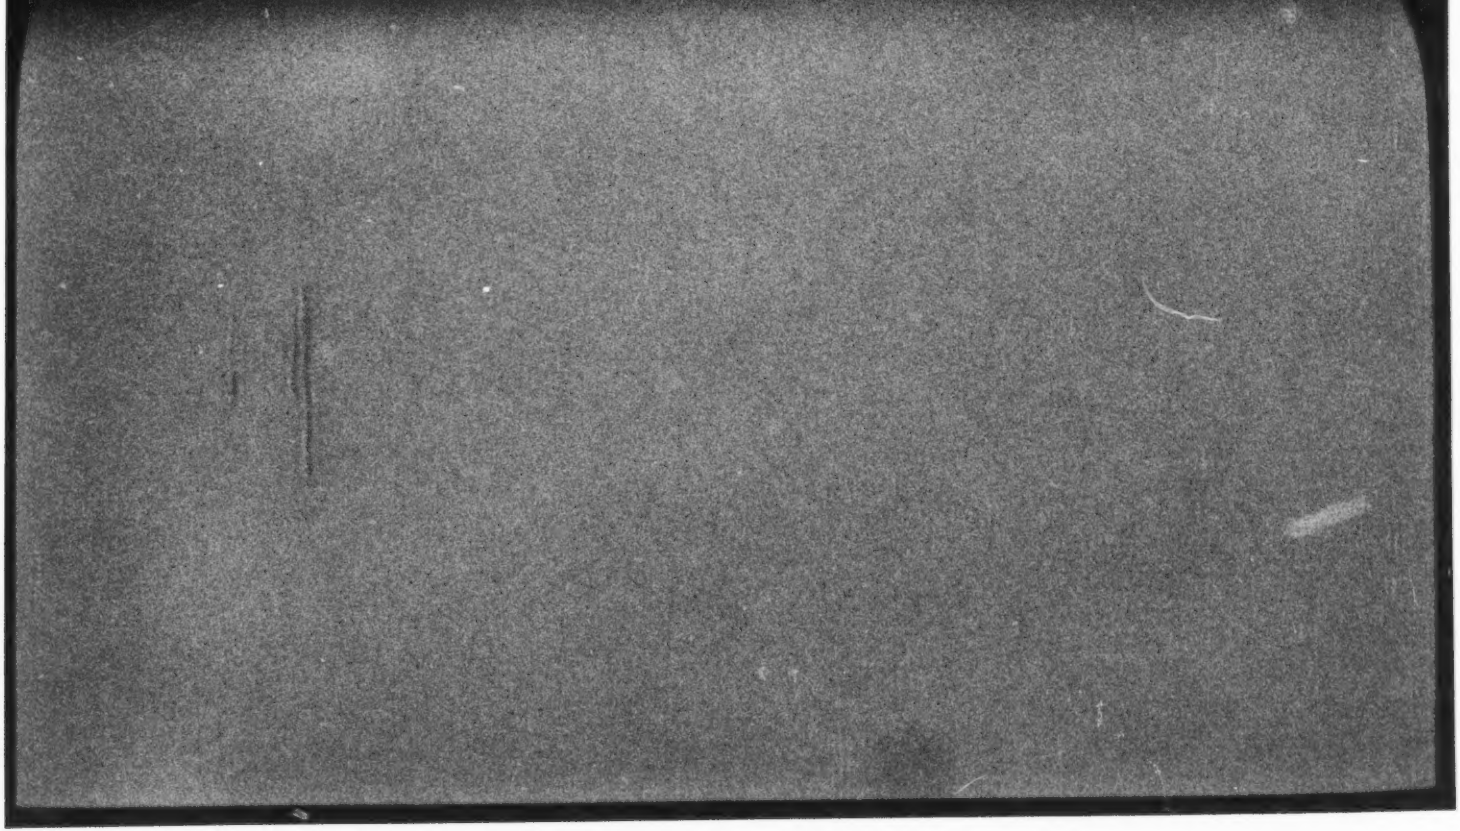
What we did and said in this connection was without any waiver of our rights and without recognition of any right in your Company to require any such change; but solely as explained in the interview and as we have tried to make plain in our correspondence, in a friendly endeavor to get together in this matter. Our ownership of the brand

"BEECH-NUT" for all tobacco products is clear and we are exercising our ownership of this brand, including the proposed package for "BEECH NUT" Cigarettes, in an entirely legal manner.

If we have failed in this endeavor, as your letter seems to indicate and which we sincerely regret, will you kindly return the sample package which we sent you.

Very truly yours,

President.



BUZZ
FRIENDS
CUBIST
UNION LEADER
PUSH UP
PIONEER
PAN HANDLE
ROMEO
BUZZ
ZIRA
LORIVANA
ROCKY FORD
BLOT
THE BEST

THE STUDIO

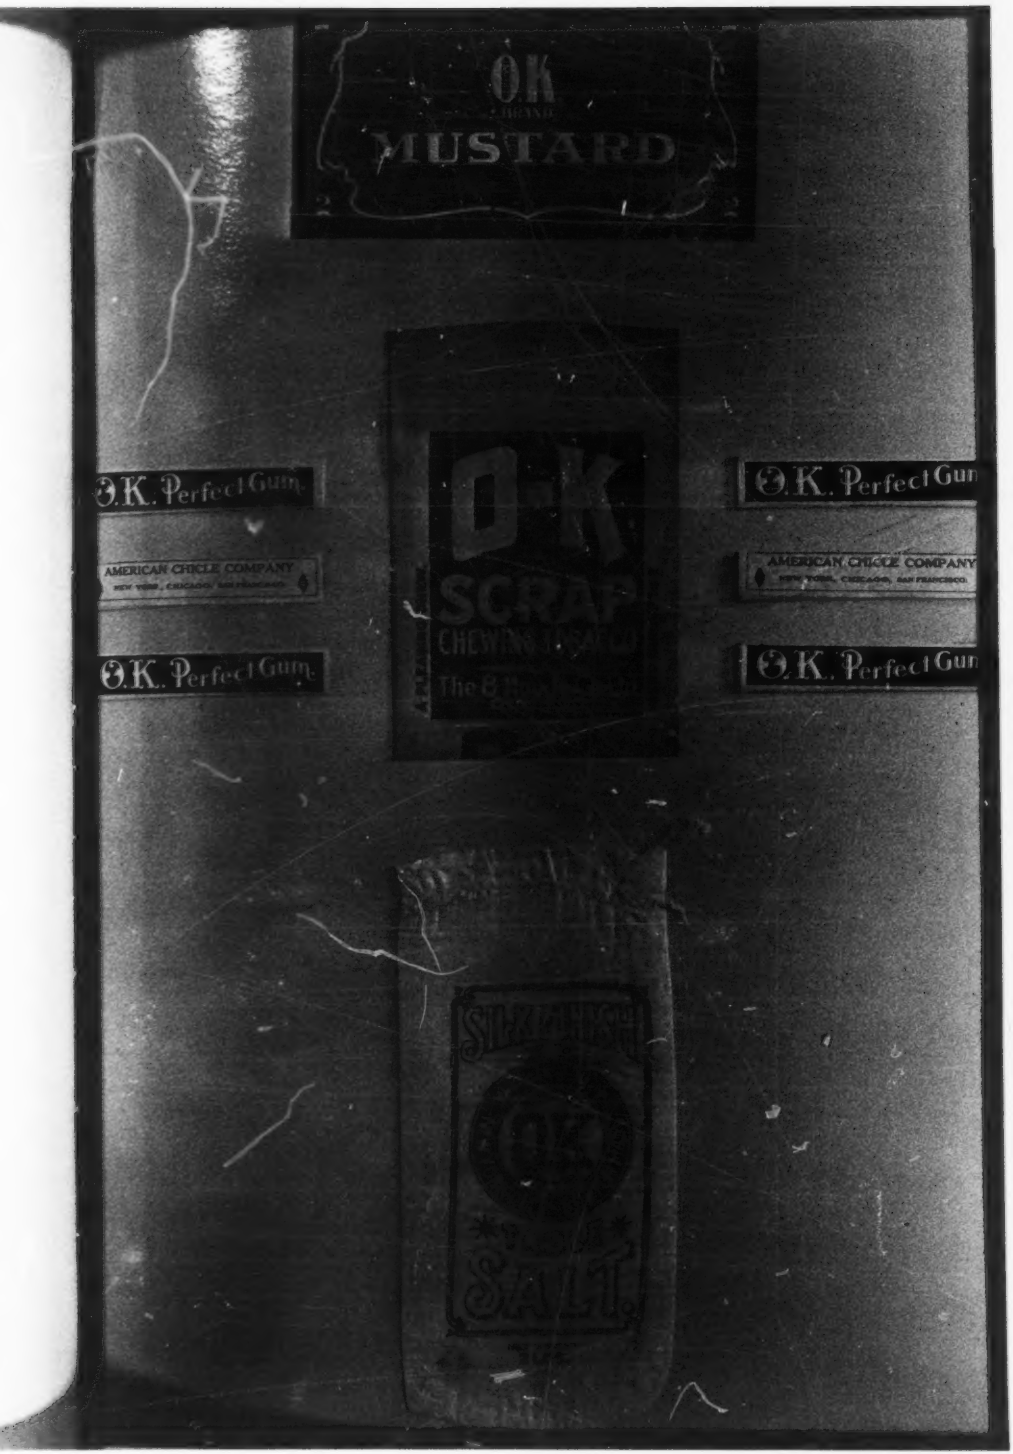
CAMEL
Camel Brand
CAMEL
CAMEL
CAMEL

OMAR
OMAR
OMAR
STEELCUT
COFFEE
OMAR
OMAR
GRAPES
OMAR
APRICOTS
OMAR
OMAR
OMAR

MOGUL
TAPIOCA
SUGAR
SALMON



O.K.
MUSTARD
O.K. Perfect Gum
AMERICAN CHICLE COMPANY
O.K.
SCRAP
O.K. Perfect Gum
AMERICAN CHICLE COMPANY
O.K. Perfect Gum
SALT
O.K.

CHURCHILL'S CRESCENT
Romaio Catsup
S. S. PIERCE CO.
HAPPY HOME
GRAPE APPLE JELLY PALLAS
Schimmel's
SALAD DRESSING
ASTER BRAND
PEANUT BUTTER
YOUNG-MANOOD COMPANY
STEEL CUT
COFFEE
PITTSBURGH
BEECH-NUT BRAND
SLICED BACON
COUNTRY MAID BRAND
PURE
APPLE STRAWBERRY JELLY
THE RED WING CO. INC
ST. ELMO BRAND
PEANUT BUTTER
BEAUTY
BRAND
SLICED
BEEF
KANSAS CITY MO
CANE & MAPLE SYRUP
Preferred Stock
PRESERVES
PORTLAND, ORE. U.S.A.
FIGS & DATE
QUEEN OLIVES
LA SEVILLANA
La Giralda
EASTON'S
SAMPLE
VEGONNAISE
Libby's
Sweet
Midgets
COUNTRY MAID BRAND
PURE
APPLE STRAWBERRY
JAM
PURITAN FOOD PRODUCTS CO. INC
ANCO
BRAND
PEANUT BUTTER
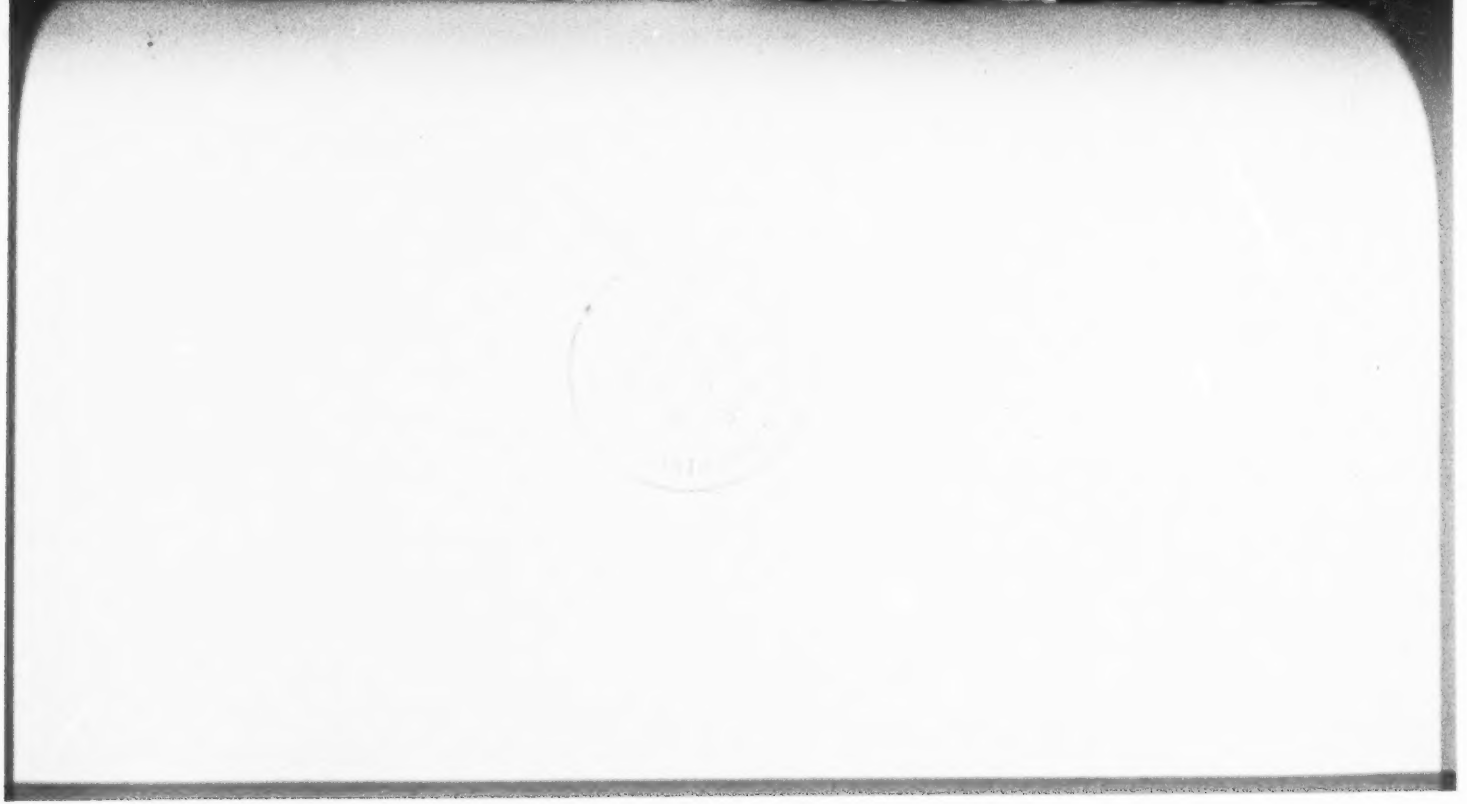
8 OZ. NET
Hawley's

POLAR
TOBACCO
BEECH-NUT
TOBACCO
BEECH-NUT
BRAND
SLICED
BACON



BEECH-NUT
PERFECT CIGARETTES
Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
FATIMA TURKISH
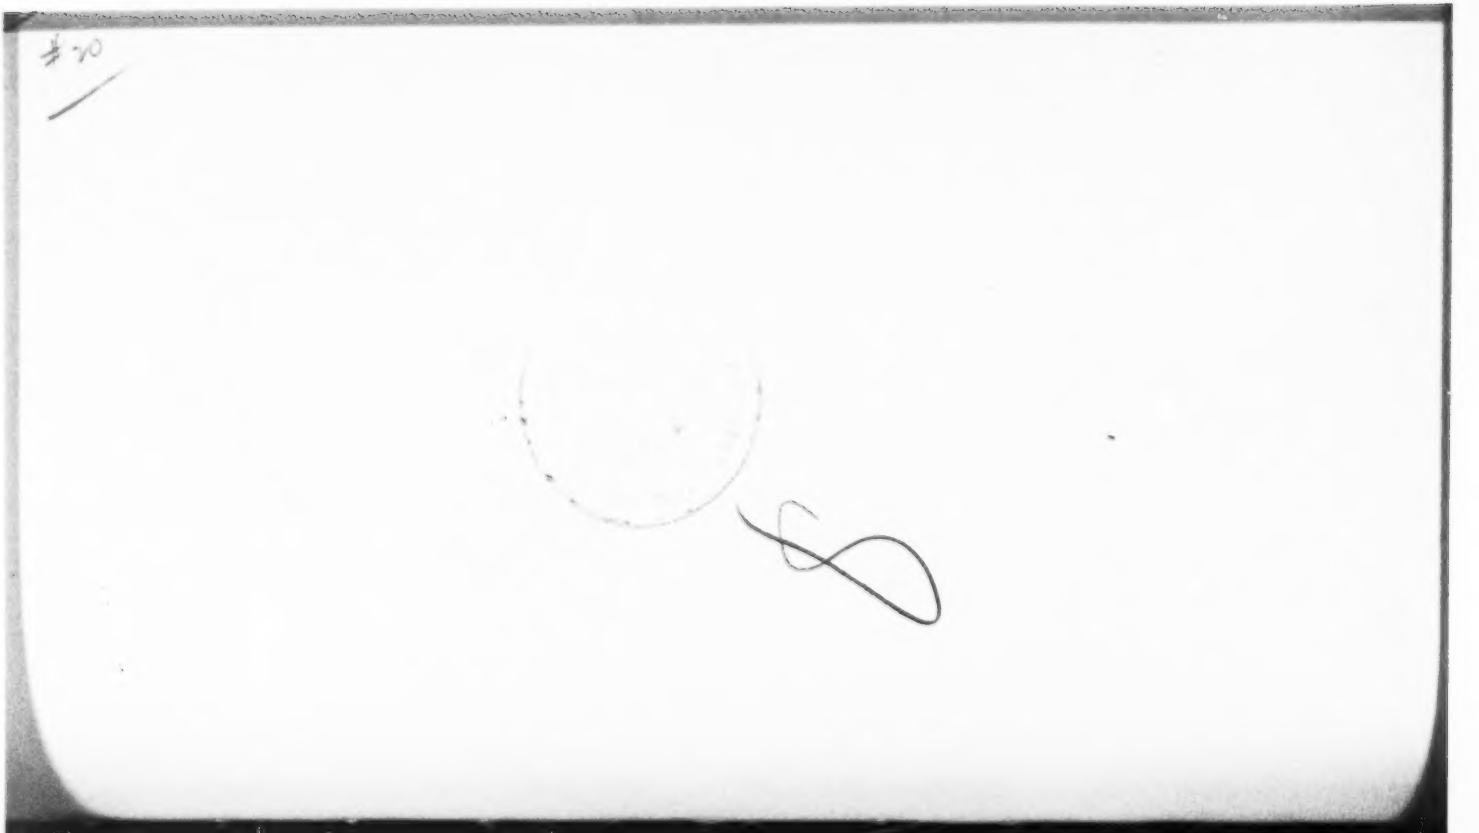
CIGARETTES
OMAR
TURKISH CIGARETTES
CAMEL
Piedmont
CIGARETTES
BEECH-NUT BRAND
SLICED BACON
You can't mistake the flavor
BEECH-NUT BRAND
SLICED BACON
BEECH-NUT BRAND
TOMATO CATSUP



#70

HAGLEY'S
HAZEL NUT
HAZEL NUT
FOR PIPE OR CIGARETTE
LONG CUT
UNION MADE
SMOKING or CHEWING
UNION MADE

HAZEL NUT
BRAND
PEANUT BUTTER
EMPIRE MFG. CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

(4)

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. 249.—October Term, 1926.

Beech-Nut Packing Company, Petitioner, vs. P. Lorillard Company.	On Writ of Certiorari to the the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

[April 11, 1927.]

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the Court.

This is a suit in equity brought by the petitioner, Beech-Nut Packing Company, a corporation of New York, charging the P. Lorillard Company, a corporation of New Jersey, with infringement of its registered trade-mark, "Beech-Nut", and with unfair competition. The bill also takes the possibly broader ground that 'Beech-Nut', being the plaintiff's trade-mark and part of its corporate name, has become the plaintiff's badge and autograph so far that the public seeing the mark on any package of commodity goods will believe that the article is of the plaintiff's make. The trade-mark was first used on ham and bacon but gradually has been extended to many other articles as diverse as chewing gum, peanut butter, and ginger ale, but always, the plaintiff says, as a guaranty of excellence, often expressed by it in advertisements, as 'Beech-Nut Quality'. The defendant uses the words "Beech-Nut" on chewing tobacco and cigarettes and the bill takes the hardly consistent positions, on the one hand that the plaintiff's reputation is hurt with its refined female customers by the belief that it would manufacture a cheap chewing tobacco, and on the other hand that it may wish to extend its business into that domain. The bill was dismissed on the merits by the District Court, 299 Fed. Rep. 658, and by the Circuit Court of Appeals. 7 F. (2d) 967. As the principles involved seemed important and as it was urged that the decision was in conflict with decisions in other Circuit Courts of Appeal, such as Aunt Jemima Mills Co. v. Rigney, 247 Fed. Rep.

407, and Vogue Co. v. Vogue Hat Co., 6 F. (2d) 875, a writ of certiorari was granted by this Court. 269 U. S. 551.

The plaintiff's trade-mark goes back to before the beginning of this century. The registration specially relied upon was dated December 31, 1912, and states that the plaintiff has adopted the mark for use upon a large number of specified objects, including those that we have mentioned, "all in Class 46, Foods and ingredients of foods." The defendant claims the mark 'Beechnut' for tobacco through successive assignments from the Harry Weissinger Tobacco Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, which used it from and after 1897. The plaintiff does not contest the original validity of this mark or suggest any distinction on the ground that it originated in a different State, but says that the right has been lost by abandonment. It appears that brands of tobacco have their rise and fall in popular favor, and that the Beechnut had so declined that in 1910 only twenty-five pounds were sold, and the trade-mark was left dormant until after the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company which then held it. This was in 1911, and the Lorillard Company took over the mark with many others. Then in connection with an effort to get a new brand that would hit the present taste, this mark was picked out, some of the adjuncts were changed, and in 1915 the new tobacco was put upon the market. Nothing had happened in the meantime to make the defendant's position worse than if it had acted more promptly and we see no reason to disturb the finding of two Courts that the right to use the mark had not been lost. The mere lapse of time was not such that it could be said to have destroyed the right as matter of law. A trade-mark is not only a symbol of an existing good will although it commonly is thought of only as that. Primarily it is a distinguishable token devised or picked out with the intent to appropriate it to a particular class of goods and with the hope that it will come to symbolize good will. Apart from nice and exceptional cases and within the limits of our jurisdiction a trade-mark and a business may start together, and in a qualified sense the mark is property, protected and alienable, although as with other property its outline is shown only by the law of torts, of which the right is a prophetic summary. Therefore the fact that the good will once associated with it has vanished does not end at once the preferential right of the proprietor to try it again upon goods of the same class with improvements that renew the proprietor's hopes.

It may be true that in a case like the plaintiff's its rights would not be sufficiently protected by an injunction against using the marks upon goods of the same class as those to which the plaintiff now applies it and to which its registration is confined. Upon that we express no opinion. For when it is conceded that whatever its effect the defendant has a right to use 'Beechnut' on tobacco unless the right has been abandoned, that possibility does not matter. Again it may be true that in putting a hyphen between Beech and Nut, framing its label with an oval and substituting a beechnut for a squirrel in the centre the defendant was trying to get an advantage from the plaintiff's good will and if challenged at once might have been required to make it even plainer than it was made by the word 'Lorillard's' in large letters upon the label that the plaintiff had nothing to do with the goods. But the plaintiff waited until 1921. The Lorillard Company is at least as well known to those who do not despise tobacco as the Beech-Nut Company is to its refined customers and the time and the need for that additional precaution has gone by. If the plaintiff was misled in its reason for thinking that the defendant's right had been kept alive it was right in its belief, and further, the belief had no bearing on the question whether the mark was presented in an unjustifiable form.

Now that the case has been more fully considered than it could be on the petition for certiorari it seems to us that the facts do not present the nice question upon which the petitioner wished us to pass. Both Courts having found for the defendant we see no ground upon which it can be said that they were wrong as matter of law. Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 250 U. S. 28, 29.

Decree affirmed.

A true copy.

Test:

Clerk, Supreme Court, U. S.